"The Man With a Lump," episode in Kalem's "The American Girl" series. Two reels. The protagonist is a young man who has a lump cast upon him, a crisis brought about as a result of his failure to tell the truth to the police. He calls on the police and is given an order to return to the scene of the crime, where he is met with the police, who take him to the hospital. The picture gets very dull.

"The Door in the Mountain," episode in Kalem's "The American Girl" series. Two reels. This episode is a mystery story, in which a young man is shot and killed in the woods, and the murderer is not found until the end. The picture is not well told.

"The Valhalla and the Lomb," episode in Kalem's "The American Girl" series. Two reels. The story is of a young man who is taken to Valhalla by the valkyrie, and who is told that he must kill the soldier in the picture. The picture is not well told.

"The Pursuing Vengeance," episode in Kalem's "The American Girl" series. Two reels. The story is of a young man who is pursued by a band of robbers, and who is saved by a young girl who is also pursued by the robbers. The picture is not well told.

"The Girl in the House," episode in Kalem's "The American Girl" series. Two reels. The story is of a young man who is taken to the house of a young girl, and who is saved by the girl's father. The picture is not well told.

"The Reel Life," No. 56. (Gaumont. One reel.) — Subjects of particular interest are contained in this number, and the picture is very well told.

"The Pursuing Vengeance," episode in Kalem's "The American Girl" series. Two reels. The story is of a young man who is pursued by a band of robbers, and who is saved by a young girl who is also pursued by the robbers. The picture is not well told.

"The Reel Life," No. 57. (Gaumont. One reel.) — The sugar industry of Barbados is technically combined with the interest in the story of the young man and the young girl. The picture is very well told.

"Jerry's Finishing Touch," (Cab. One reel. Thurs. May 27.) — George Owey as Jerry covers himself with glory in this reel that he assists in rounding up a couple of tramps who have stolen a motion picture camera's bag and are about to rob a house. There is, naturally, the inevitable shooting so promiscuous in many Cab comedies, but still it is harmless and cannot fail to raise a laugh. Where Jerry is known, this Jerry film will be well received.

"Caught in the End," (Vogue. Two reels. Sat. May 19.) — Ben Tustin, Margaret Temple- son, Lil Louis, Hattie Ed. Lovette, and Art Car- r over are the mischievous makers in this two-reel comedy. Tustin runs many risks but is eventually convinced. This picture is fully up to the Tustin standard and will, without a doubt get a causing reception when Tustin is known.

Trained Help Shortage
War Made

In most all of the different important lines of business, there is a way of publishing offers and demands of specially trained help required for such particular line.

On several occasions we have been lacking for office help, male and female, trained in the moving picture business. However, in most opportunities we have been obliged to engage people who knew nothing or little of the business, and we had to break them in.

On the other hand we are sure that good clerks, stenographers and other office help thoroughly acquainted with the film business, are anxious to get in a similar position in the same line rather than to change again.

As moving picture concerns who need such help have no way of advertising in a paper read mostly by moving picture people, the employees may be obliged to take a position which is out of their line, and where they have to start anew.

We are sure that many moving picture concerns have been in a similar position as we. and we venture to ask you whether there is a chance of opening a page or column in your review to fill this gap.

In your "classified" advertisements we only note a few advertisements for situations for camera men, managers, etc., but there is no general offer or demand of office help.

As we think it might be of advantage for both employers and employees, we shall be glad to have your reply to the

ARGUMENT WITHOUT PROOF IS USELESS—WITH CORROBORATION, IT CONVINCES AND JUSTIFIES PREJUDICE AND PRACTICE.

WHEN WE ARGUE IN FAVOR OF "SPEER PROJECTOR CARBONS," WE ARE WILLING TO PROVE EVERY STATEMENT.

THE FACTS ARE:

- That a combination of a Speer "Cored" upper and a "Hold-Ark" lower will improve your projection.
- That the hard core of the "Hold-Ark" assures absolute steadiness of the arc.
- That ghosts and aggravating shadows are eliminated by the brilliancy of the light.
- That every carbon is uniform and can be depended upon for efficient results.
- That a mere trial of "Speer Carbons" will cause you to use them unhesitatingly thereafter.
- That samples will be supplied willingly, to those who desire additional proof of the foregoing arguments.

Anti-Misframe League

Operators throughout the country are the men to whom we must look for the success of motion pictures on the screen. We have said before that the man in the booth can make or break any show. The least carelessness on his part means trouble and poor results on the screen. He must always be on his toes not only to help himself improve, but he must be ready to help every other operator, not only by suggestions but in more tangible ways.

For this reason we were particularly pleased when Mr. J. C. Pastre of Gary, Ind., suggested the Anti-Misframe League. It was a suggestion which showed the trend of the times, and the enthusiasm with which it has been taken up by operators all over the country proves that all are ready to help improve picture conditions. They are ready to put their shoulders to the wheel and do all in their power to improve conditions.

For this reason Motion Picture News has started the active promotion of the League, which we hope will develop to be of greatest benefit to the industry.

There are no strings of any kind attached to a membership except that every member must be willing to stand by the membership pledge which has appeared in the Projection Department for the past two weeks and is given below:

"Anti-Misframe League"

Pledge

As a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart, and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practiced in the operating room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remove all mis-frames, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operator and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

We are going further than this. Each member who enrolls will be given a membership badge which will distinguish him as being a promoter of better projection conditions, for the question of mis-framing is only a small part of the things which can be accomplished through the organization. We will also give a membership card to each member, to be hung in his projection room, which will designate him as being active in the upbuilding of his profession.

It is our hope that eventually the League, together with Motion Picture News, will be able to accomplish results in an active campaign for better working conditions for many men who at the present time are in anything but healthful surroundings. It is our aim to wage a campaign in favor of larger projection rooms in the new or remodeled theatres. We want to see proper sanitation for the operators—a wash room, etc., in each house for their personal use, and many other improvements for which there is a crying need but which cannot be accomplished unless they are put over by co-operative effort.

We have taken as the basis of our emblem the Geneva star. Above this is the name of the organization. This appears in black against an orange background. The effect is most pleasing and should be an emblem worthy of the organization for which it stands and one which each member should be proud to wear.

Write us stating your intention to live up to the requirements of the League so that we may enroll you as an active member without delay.

E. K. Gillett.
Why Not This?

THH-FP is an old adage that goes thusly: "Fools rush in where Angels fear to tread." This is applicable to those who, for motives of their own, have endeavored to throw a scare into a number of exhibitors by making the statement that "on account of the war" there was a situation confronting them whereby they might at any time find themselves without operators.

To the president of one of the largest film manufacturing companies belongs the honor, if honor there be, in suggesting and inaugurating the plan whereby operators (?) are to be made over night. Now that the ball has been started rolling, we also learn that:

"In order that the electricians of Muncie, Ind., now engaged in operating motion picture machines may feel at liberty to go to war, and especially enlist in the navy where electricians are said to be greatly needed, Richard Addison, electrician at a photoplay house, has established a school for girl motion picture operators. He instructs the young women free of charge, not only so they may hold positions as motion picture operators, but also may become skilled electricians. The only requirements for admission to the class are that the young women be between the ages of eighteen and twenty-eight, and possess some high school education. As no fee is charged, it is said Mr. Addison is doing this merely as a patriotic duty. Several young women have already entered the school."

No doubt these schools will spring up in many of the smaller localities to such an extent as to work a great injury upon the moving picture industry in so far as the presentation of the picture be concerned. While we do not question the motives of Mr. Addison, of Muncie, Ind., who is actuated solely by a spirit of patriotism, we do think, however, he could express that patriotism in a more fitting manner by himself enlisting and giving his services as an electrician where they are "said to be greatly needed."

Of course, there is nothing to the operation of a motion picture machine that could not be learned in two or three weeks' time, as many operators will testify who have been in the game since 1898. No one can claim to be an expert electrician and motion picture operator, for which I charge no fee. The only qualifications are that applicants must be young and beautiful—education not necessary. I'll attend to that. Apply to X. Y. Z., P. O. Box 00, Looknow.

"I'll attend to that. Apply to X. Y. Z., P. O. Box 00, Looknow."

All of the above is a very serious matter to the members of the craft, and we sincerely hope that the Operators' Organization will, wherever these schools spring up, take cognizance of same, and do their utmost to discourage them. There are sufficient operators, or men who are well enough qualified, to operate every motion picture theatre in this country; men who would find it difficult to pass the rigid physical examination imposed upon all applicants for enlistment in the United States military service. Chief among the disqualifications of the great mass of operators in this country is defective sight. I venture to say that not one operator in a hundred has perfect eyesight, this being due to the fact that his eyes are constantly focused upon the screen, straining to discover any defects in the pictures caused by intererference, illumination, or out of focus effect. Another cause: Many operators would be rejected by the military authorities by reason of unsound lungs and weakened heart action. I do not wish to go on record as stating any given percentage of operators who are thus affected, but we know there are many, for when we consider that it has only been in very recent years, and in a very few cities where adequate ventilation of the operating room has been provided for, we can but look back with a shudder to the old operating rooms who have been confined, as no prisoner in a penal institution is confined, without daylight or fresh air for from ten to twelve hours a day. Three hundred and sixty-five days in a year, we do not wonder at the statement which has been made that "80 per cent. of the operators are unfit for military service."

Make an Appeal

MARYLAND writes: "This is my initial bow in your Department page, so if I act "small timish," excuse, please. I wish to procure a bit of information which I am sure you will give me gladly; that is the method I employ when visiting our friend and brother, P. H. Richardson. To be frank, I have been "goated" or "gipped" out of joining the operators' local here in this city, and I have yet to find out why or wherefore the "boys" keep me out. I was at one time in their good graces, but I guess I am like Doug Fairbanks, "in again—out again." But aside from that I would like to know if they (the local) can keep me "out again" forever. You see I have been cranking projectors for the past nine years (forbears in the show business on the road and off), and think I am entitled to more consideration than an explanationless rejection. I am sure there is no question as to my ability, there must be personal reasons or something of that sort behind these rejections. But what I really come to you for is this: Have I a right to demand an explanation without endangering my future chances with I.A.T.S.E. boys? I have studied every machine I ever operated, and read almost every book covering that branch as well as various electrical books; read all your projection news also Brother Richardson's. Can you see any reason why I cannot be admitted into I.A.T.S.E. ranks to protect myself from these small town managers who spend almost nine dollars a week for a "film lacer" (operator) who does twenty other odd jobs besides projecting rotten pictures? [I] retain to me, and I must say it is a good title to wish on some of the butchers who call themselves operators.—Ed.] Thanks awfully for the time I have pilfered recklessly from you. Wishing you personal success, also the News of news, I am, yours sincerely."

IN REPLY. For obvious reasons I have avoided mentioning the name of the writer or the town from which he hails. I do not quit get your meaning regarding the method to be employed when visiting Brother Richardson. He is not a hard man to meet if you catch up with him, and the only "method" I could advise would be to walk right up to him and say: "Hello, Rich! I am so and so," and continue. I am willing to give you any information that is in my power to give, and I will give it you gladly, but you will pardon my saying there is something about your letter that hardly sounds plausible. The city from which you write, and the city wherein is located the local union whose number you gave in your letter, are separated by a few hundred miles. Perhaps you have made a mistake in the local union number. I am sorry you feel you have been "jipped." It does not seem reasonable that men who have the welfare of the organization at heart would act in this way unless for some good cause. I know there are some organizations which refuse to accept a man into membership and offer absolutely no explanation for their rejection of his application. This in my estimation is un-American. There is nothing of fair play about it; all men are created equal, and if the fourteen are against you, if your ability is unquestionable, if you have never been guilty of doing anything detrimental to the interest of Local —, and pass their examination, there is no reason in the world why you should not become a member of the International Alliance. A soft answer turneth away wrath, and I would suggest that you ask or request, not demand, an explanation from the local union officials. This may be done either in person or by letter, but I would advise that you send a registered letter, with request that receipt be returned to you, to the secretary of the union, timing your letter so that it will reach him a day or so before the meeting of the local is to be held, and if you do not obtain a satisfactory reply within a period of five days after the meeting, you should then write to International President Charles C. Shay, 107 West 46th street, New York City. stating your case as briefly and explicitly as possible, and I am sure he will do all in his power to help you, for he has the reputation of being a "square man"; at least he will get some action. I certainly do trust that you will be successful in becoming affiliated with this great labor organization, and stand ready at any and all times to assist you, or any other brother, if he will only "come clean." I have just been informed by my secretary that I have placed a wrong construction upon the second sentence of your letter, and that you meant when you said: "I wish to procure a bit of information which I am sure you ... gladly," that THAT was the method you employed when "visiting" F. H. R. For my denseness — excuse, please.

Manager on His Guard

AN interesting letter from H. E. Cane, manager of the Star theatre, Coudersport, Pa., in which he sets forth the happy sound facts, may well be read by operators who have the happy faculty of "not caring how much film they destroy." Here is the letter, read it and ponder: "It is with relief that I find one operator who is just enough not to attribute condition of film to the exchange's negligence, always. I refer to the letter of Albert H. Estes. When we first started in business, some three years ago, we were informed by an operator from a nearby town that 'No operator cared how much film he destroyed, or in what condition films were returned.' This information put us on our guard, and we resolved that our operator would be different. At various times we have received films with pins, shingle nails, paper clips, etc., attached, also films that showed careless handling by the previous operator, such as torn sprocket holes, etc. etc. We are now dealing direct with the exchanges, and find that there are very few films in bad condition received from them. Bad patches are our worst trouble now. We might state that six months have elapsed since the first break with a Paramount feature, which speaks well for the efficiency of the inspecting staff at Pittsburgh. If the operators would use the films as though they were their own property, fewer complaints would reach you relative to poor condition of film. If the exchanges would enclose a slip, in each case of film, similar to the one in use by Mr. Estes, the guilty parties could easily be discovered. Exchangers should give the slip idea a trial.

IN REPLY. Your letter was one that really gives me pleasure to publish. I know too well that there are unfortunately some operators who, like the one you make mention, don't care a tinker's dam, but their tribe is on the decrease. And your determination that your operator should be "different" shows that the "information" fell on fertile soil. In many instances such action should be taken on the part of other managers. We will, however, take exception to the statement made by the operator (?) in question.

There are many OPERATORS who do care! I refer to brother Estes in particular, and to hundreds of other operators in general. It certainly does speak well for the inspecting staff of the Pittsburgh exchange that you have not had a break in that length of time. Would that some of our New York exchanges could be spoken as well of. It is hoped that the formation of the "Anti-Misframe League" will help in part to make the operators realize the importance of treating the film that is placed in their hands as though it were their own property. The form of slip, such as used by brother Estes, is again reproduced in the hope that some of the exchange men, who are still in the dark upon the suggestion made in the closing sentence of your letter, i.e., "EXCHANGE-MEN SHOULD GIVE THE SLIP IDEA A TRIAL."

Perhaps It's the Reels

H. C. S., Belmont, WIs., addresses a letter to the editor of the Projection Department as follows: "An interesting letter from H. E. IN REPLY. Am glad that you find something of interest in the department, yet I would call your attention that is not my department but OUR department, for without the co-operation of the motion picture operators throughout the country there could be no such things as "projection departments." Don't think that I hold anything against the country town operator, for I do not, and your frankness where you say you have been operating for about six months and have practically no experience. Lately I have been having trouble with my machine, especially when running films that are old and in bad shape. When the film reaches above five to fifteen feet from the end it starts making a cracking noise and then breaks, sometimes snipping the film right off and at other times tearing out the sprocket holes. I don't know whether the blame belongs to me, the machine or the film. If you can give me any information regarding this matter will be thankful for the favor.

IN REPLY. Your letter was one that really gives me pleasure to publish. Service which in promptness is hard to excel was given by the Precision Machine Company, manufacturers of the Simplex Motion Picture Projector, in filling an order placed by the Post Exchange at Fort Totten, L. I. The order was received by the factory on May 18, at twenty minutes after twelve o'clock, and within an hour the Simplex Projector was packed, and on the way to Fort Totten, which is about thirty miles from New York. The new apparatus was used that evening to entertain the soldiers that are stationed at the post, and has been in great demand since. Such promptitude as shown in this instance is bound to have beneficial effects in business getting.

SLIDES

The "Q" Corporation, 110 West 49th Street, New York, which is exploiting the "Q" contest, have placed their order for slides with the Excelsior Slide Company, 219 Sixth Avenue, New York. Their slide campaign, advertising this contest, is considered one of the most important methods of advertising to the public, although a strong campaign has been mapped out for use in the various magazines.

Six slides, each of different design, have been manufactured by the Excelsior Company, to lend added value to the campaign of publicity, and there is no doubt that the contest will awaken popular interest in the part of the theatre patrons.

As each theatre running this contest will require the set of six slides, the order to be filled by the above mentioned slide company will run up into the thousands.

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry have been appointed a special slide committee for co-operating with the Liberty Loan Committee.

This committee consists of Joseph F. Coufal of the Novelty Slide Company, Ben Schulberg of the Paramount and Fred Hawley of the Motion Picture Directory Company. It is proposed that Liberty Loan slides be supplied to every motion picture exhibitor, which will be accompanied by a request from the Secretary of the Treasury to show the slides. Slide manufacturers throughout the country have been called on to get their assistance in this patriotic movement and have received assurances and the hearty support of the leading concerns.

A Statement from the United Theatre Equipment Corporation

In answer to the many inquiries that have been received regarding the policy and purpose of the newly formed United Theatre Equipment Corp., the company makes the following statement:

Up to the present time motion picture supplies and equipment were sold with but one object in view—that was the sale of the merchandise. No thought was generally given to the maintenance of the apparatus, and only in rare instances was advice given to the operator or exhibitor.

The main object of the United Theatre Equipment Corporation will be to serve the exhibitor in the fullest sense of the word: not merely selling goods over the counter or through the mail, but suggesting, planning, installing, supervising and maintaining theatre equipment; in short, they propose to furnish absolutely free of charge a service that will relieve the exhibitor of many worries and care of the past; that will better projection, improve conditions and increase box office receipts.

To insure and facilitate carrying out the policy of co-operative service the exhibitors, United Service Stations have been established in the principal cities of the United States. While new pictures, the service station idea has been conclusively demonstrated in the automobile business, and without a doubt the service will come as a blessing to exhibitors.

In introducing the service station idea to our industry, the United officials fully realize that they are assuming a great responsibility. Consequently they have surrounded themselves with an organization founded and managed by pioneer supply men, who know the business from A to Z, and who are fully competent to advise the-

The Lost Is Found

Charles A. Norton, Iowa, whom readers will remember as the "small-town operator," writes the following letter: "Am back again at my old job. I read the piece about myself dis-countered in that I would drop you a few lines and tell you where I was. I read in the Waterloo paper that "intolerance" was going to be at Waterloo and knowing that Ma would not let me go alone I run away. First I went to 'intolerance' and saw the operators which sure were a nice lot, they showed me the picture which was on bigger wheels (reels) than I got but it looks just the same as mine. They had 2 simplex machines and electric lights and also wire loops which they told me was residence (resistance). They said they were from Frisco or something like that. Then I went to the Plaza theatre, that's the theatre that I wrote you about in my first letter, but the fat operator was not there, or "Tubbie" as they call him. He had a small town theatre somewhere. The new operator there seemed very nice to me and gets a nice picture. Then I went to the Palace theatre, and my, they have some "life manager" there and also the operator. The United Theatre Equipment Corporation is in able hands. Herbert T. Edwards, the founder of the Picture Theatre Equipment Corporation, is president. J. H. Halberg, known as the inventor of the Halberg Generator, is vice-president. He will concentrate his best endeavors to insure better projection and 100 per cent equipment efficiency for every exhibitor. E. E. Fulton, head of the E. E. Fulton Company, of Chicago, is secretary and treasurer. Friends of these men in the motion picture business are numbered by the thousands.

Among others who are taking a deep interest in this organization may be mentioned George Kline; Messrs. Clark and Rowland and Ludwig Houmel, of Pittsburg; C. A. Calchuff, of Philadelphia; E. E. Oliver and H. J. Mandelbaum, of Cleveland; T. A. Nolan, of Cincinnati; Ray Brauch, of Detroit; E. A. Van Husen, of Omaha; H. E. Van Duyne, of Los Angeles, and A. D. Flinton, of Kansas City.

The Novelty Slide Company, of New York, will have the exclusive manufacture of slides, novelties, specialties and other products.

Adapter for "Silver-Tips"

W. RABELL, whom operators in Greater New York will remember from his being associated with the supply house of J. H. Halleberg, has, since severing his connections with Halleberg, branched out in business for himself and now conducts the Independent Motive Supply Company, 729 Seventeenth Avenue, New York, dealing in supplies and accessories for the motion picture theatre, also being the distributors of the Baird Projection machine.

Mr. Rabell has one specialty that is attracting considerable attention on the part of users of Silver-Tip carbons; this is an adapter as well as an economizer for either the 3/8 in. or 11/32 in. Silver-Tip carbon. The adapter is made of phosphor bronze, having a hexagon nut in place of the ordinary thumb screw for holding the carbon in place. The price of these adapters and economizers is quite reasonable considering the care with which they have been constructed and few exhibitors will allow the price, one dollar, to stand in their way of obtaining such a device which will serve a two-fold purpose.

Has the Third Ingredient Been Found?

It is said that success depends upon Push, Publicity, and Progressiveness. The "third ingredient" in this case is Progressiveness. One of our correspondents in his letter to the department praises the efficiency of the inspecting staff of the Paramount Film exchange of Pittsburgh, Pa.

By a strange coincidence another exchange manager has evolved an idea which is expected to show 100 per cent efficiency in the examining room. To Herbert Given, manager of the Triangle exchange, Philadelphia, Pa., belongs the credit for the scheme which will give prizes to the operators returning film in the best condition. His plan has been endorsed by Local 307, Moving Picture Machine Operators of Philadelphia, and at their last meeting at which Mr. Given was present he explained this in detail. The plan, if successful in Philadelphia, will be introduced in every Triangle exchange in the country.

"Anti-Misframe League" Pledge

As a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart, and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practiced in the operating room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remove all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

UNION ANNOUNCEMENTS

Where Promises Are Kept

The members of Local 384, Motion Picture Machine Operators of Hudson County, N. J., are planning to hold what is expected to be one of the most delightful affairs ever given by any local union in the state of New Jersey. Each year this progressive union gives a dinner to its members and friends. It is something more than a dinner, however; it is an event, for on this night the members get together in the true spirit of fraternalism and cement the bonds of friendship which exists between them, and make new friends.

The Third Annual Dinner of the above mentioned organization will be held on Saturday, June 2, at 12 o'clock midnight at New Odd Fellows Hall, 412 Washington street, Hoboken, N. J.

The committee in charge, consisting of Brothers George Hoffman, chairman; W. A. Bemis, E. W. Bordmann, Frank Kirschgesner, Francis Steiner and Edward Dougherty, have promised that this year's affair will eclipse all previous efforts.

Many prominent state, county and city officials have signified their intention of being present, as well as the foremost manufacturers of motion picture accessories, and last, but by no means least, it is expected that Local 384 will be honored by the presence of the General Executive Board of the International Alliance.

The officers of Local 384, who have given of their best to make this a local union that was ever willing to meet the managers half way and give them a 50-50 break are: Walter A. Bemis, president; Harvey Sapp, vice-president; Edward A. Bordmann, secretary-treasurer, and Conrad Daubener, Jr., recording secretary. The officers have been ably assisted by Brother Anthony Boscarelli, whose efforts have been tireless where the good of the local has been concerned.

As we have said at the beginning, it is here where promises are kept, and we are anticipating with a great deal of pleasure being present on Saturday, June 2, and doing full justice to whatever may come before us.

Coloring Film Images with Basic Dyes

In the subtractive methods of color photography (and cinematography) the images of the film positives (composite or otherwise) are actual colored approximations to the subject photographed, and it is consequently a more difficult, tedious, and costly operation to prepare film positives for a subtractive process of color cinematography than is the case with the additive methods, wherein (in most instances) a black-and-white print from the color separation negative in all that is required for use in projecting.

A common practice, much resorted to by workers upon the subtractive methods, is to color the images of the film positives by toning, but it is difficult, if not impossible, to secure accurate colors by chemical treatment, and exact hues cannot be produced with certainty in this way.

Since the accuracy of the projected results in subtractive color cinematography is dependent upon theoretically accurate coloration of the film pictures, it is imperative that the method by which the positives are colored must be one which can yield colors undegraded by partially opaque image deposits and must also be such that the coloring may be regulated as regards hue and intensity.

A toned silver image always possesses a certain opacity the effect of which is to darken or degrade its apparent hue upon projection, so it appears that in order to successfully color the images of ciné films used in subtractive color processes a method must be utilized which is capable of yielding transparent dye images the hues of which may be accurately controlled when preparing the positives.

There have been numerous methods proposed for the achievement of this end, but the most accurate, and apparently the most feasible, method is that of bleaching the images of film positives in a bath which changes them into images of silver iodide and then developing them up with a basic dye of the requisite hue. Such procedure is known as "basic dyeing," and appears to have first been proposed by Dr. Traube under the name of the "Diachrome" process of color photography. In spite of the modifications by various workers, the practice of basic dyeing as applied to film positives or photographic transparencies may be said to follow the procedure outlined by Traube in 1907.

Although the details of the Traube iodide method of basic dyeing have long been on record, the practice of iodine staining does not appear to have been studied by the majority of workers, and some of the color cinematographers have withheld the working details, claiming the process as their own invention and investing it with a mantle of profound secrecy. There remains no cause for this, and in response to numerous requests for the publication of basic dyeing formulae we are pleased to supply readers of the Camera Department with details of the basic dyeing process which has been long in use by ourselves and others.

Many toned or dyed films are a disappointment upon projection, due to the fact that their apparent hues sometimes appear much darker, or of entirely different color than the effect which has been striven for. To avoid such unfortunate results the positive prints for color cinematography should not be as strongly exposed in printing as for ordinary (black and white) cinematography, and in developing the positives a soft result should be aimed at. This holds good for all processes of color cinematography according to our experience.

Having printed, developed, fixed, and thoroughly washed the positive films, they have next to be bleached and their developed images converted into silver iodide by immersion in a bath composed as follows:

<tr>
<th>Water</th>
<th>10 gals.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Potassium iodide</td>
<td>3 lbs.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Then add Iodine (sublimed)</td>
<td>½ lbs.</td>
</tr>

The potassium iodide will dissolve in water; iodine will not, but will dissolve more or less slowly in the potassium iodide solution. The mixture of the iodine with the potassium iodide may be considerably accelerated by placing the iodide in a jar and just covering it with hot water, whereupon the iodine may be stirred in.

As previously stated, the action of this bleaching bath converts the silver images of the film positives into silver iodide images, which are of a yellowish color. As will be appreciated by all who have had experience in photographic manipulations, the bleaching should continue until the images are seen to be yellowish in color right through to the back of the film. When bleaching is completed, the film will be strongly discolored by the iodine solution and must next be washed to remove the bleaching solution and render the picture images (now composed of silver iodide) clear and transparent.

This may be done by a thorough wash in running water, but is more expeditiously accomplished by immersing the film in a 5 per cent. solution of sodium bisulphite for a short time, followed by a further wash to remove the bisulphite. When these operations have been properly carried out the film images should appear perfectly transparent.

With the film bleached (and iodized) and thoroughly freed of the bleaching solution the dyeing operation may next be undertaken. It is to be understood that basic dyes only are to be used in the process of dyeing. The list of basic dyes is not very extensive—only a few of them are eminently suitable, as regards hue, for two-color or three-color cinematography, but insofar as their dyeing action is concerned they all seem to work satisfactorily with the method now under consideration. For the benefit of experimenters we give a list of basic dyes suitable for experiments in color cinematography:

- Red dyes: Fuchsine, quinoline red, rhodamine B, phenosafranine, xylene red.
- Yellow dyes: Auramine, acridine orange, chrysoidine.
- Green dyes: Methylene green, brilliant green, malachite green, juniper green, iodine green, emerald green, diamond green, Victoria green.
- Blue dyes: Methylene blue, crystal violet, turkey blue, methyl violet, gentian violet, azoline blue, Victoria blue, Victoria blue.

For use in color photography (or cinematography) these basic dyes should be of the purest quality, and the majority of the dyes here mentioned may be obtained, in normal times, from Fairwoakes, 122 Hudson St., New York. It is almost needless to state that since the outbreak of the present European war these dyes have been difficult to obtain and very costly—a circumstance which has limited the practice of basic dyeing during the last few years.

The dye solutions used in the iodide staining process are solutions of these basic dyes in water, and will vary in strength for different dyes from 1:5000 to 1:5000.

As is probably well known, some of these dyes are best gotten into solution by dissolving in a small quantity of boiling water. The time of immersion in the dye bath is not specific, but for a positive of the soft character it would be about 5 minutes. When the images are seen to be dyed through to the back of the film the latter may be removed from the dye bath.

Next in order is the clearing of the high lights, and all portions of the film which are normally exposed to light. This is preferably accomplished by immersing the film in a weak bath of acetic acid—say 2½ lbs. acid to each 10 gallons of water. We do not recommend the use of a hydrochloric acid clearing bath with this process. If an acid clearing solution is used, a brief rinse should be given the film before the next step is undertaken.

The next step is the removal of the silver iodide images, the necessity of which will become evident when it is considered that the iodide is a haloid salt and will therefore darken upon exposure to light. With a cinematograph positive this would occur the first time it was subjected to the intense light beam of the projection.
machine are. Failure to properly remove this iodide residue has been responsible for many unsuccessful attempts at film staining with basic dyes.

The iodide is removed from the film by immersion in a hypo bath, to which is added a small amount of tannin and water. After washing to remove excess tannin solution to fix in a 10 per cent. hypo bath, well washing at the finish.

A variation of the last treatment is to first place the film in a 5 per cent. tannin (and water) bath, and after washing to remove excess tannin solution to fix in a 10 per cent. hypo bath, well washing at the finish.

If the process has been carried to a successful conclusion the result should be film positives with brilliant, transparent dye images and clear high lights. The high lights and clear gelatin edges of the film should be smooth and glossy (as in an ordinary positive), and not characterized by a matte appearance somewhat tinged with the dye, as is noticeable in the results secured with other methods of basic dyeing.

A basic dyeing process fundamentally similar to the Traube iodide method, which we have described, has been recently patented for the Bower Film Corporation by Mr. Hoyt Miller (U. S. Patent No. 1,214,940). It is interesting to note that this patentee considers that the silver images of the film positives are converted into silver iodide by action of the iodine in the bleaching bath (previously described), and that the silver iodide, in turn, precipitated into a "hydrosol" or adsorption compound of the haloid salt. Miller further considers that if the bleached positive is processed at too high a temperature, or left too long in the hialoid clearing bath will be converted to ordinary silver iodide, with an attending loss of transparency in the bleached images.

As far as we are aware, the assumption that the silver iodide is changed to a hydrosol by the potassium iodide in the bleaching bath is purely hypothetical, but as long as the temperature of the bleaching bath is maintained at 65 degrees Fahrenheit or lower there is no fear of loss of transparency in the bleached silver iodide images, according to our experience with the process.

The Goerz Focusing Microscope

The Goerz focusing microscope is similar to a terrestrial telescope eyepiece, or inverting ocular, and is of itself a telescope designed for the viewing of objects at extremely close range. Its field is of sufficient extent to embraces a full cinematograph image, which it amplifies to the extent of 6 to 8 X, and the image, as observed by the cameraman, right side up, as previously noted.

The ocular or eyepiece end of this focusing microscope carries fine cross-hairs, or wires, which are situated at the focal plane of the compound object glass system, and serve to facilitate

MUSIC AND THE PICTURE

Picture Music Classics

THE motion picture musician must be resourceful. He is not only the artist who plays beautiful music, but he must possess a repertoire of selections to satisfy all tastes. This music he must supply himself. Many a picture musician is looking forward to the Utopian era, when the manager will supply him with a library of music, just as he supplies the operator with the films. This era of the booth walks serenely into his "throne room," and all he needs to do is to "thread" his machine and turn the crank. But the "slave" in the "pit" must carry the machinery and tools (which he supplies) with him to his daily work. The few lucky ones are those who play the piano or organ; and some managers would not supply these instruments if they could be carried around by a handle. Would that the day were not far off when the music library would become a part of the motion picture theatre equipment.

It is the nature of real musicians to take great pride in the instrument they play. Many sacrifices are made to procure the best. It matters not so much to the manager whether his leader uses a "Strad" or a piano, everyday fiddle, so long as it makes a noise and keeps on making a noise. Even though the conscientious musician possesses a fine instrument, his sacrifices do not end there, for he must also furnish the music in order to play the instrument. "Well," says the manager, "that is his stock in trade." We answer that the demand for good music, and a large quantity of it, was never so great as it is required today in order to play the picture properly. Then, too, a "lot" of music will not fill the bill; it must be music of varied character by reason of the many situations to be depicted. The requirements call for an ever-ready and inexhaustible supply.

By way of a quiet hint, we would suggest that musicians procure music of a character which does not become tiresome, and there is such to be had. Why is it that audiences will stand for the "Wedding March," "Traumerei," "Serenade" and "Spring Song" over and over again? The answer is because they are classics.

Do you say there is no such collection? Look around; you may find just such a one. We are told that one publisher has compiled a collection which possesses these very attributes. It is not a chance collection of incongruous numbers, but has been selected with such care and precision that it forms a complete and concrete whole. No two numbers are exactly alike, and any ten or fifteen pieces selected at random from its numbers would constitute a complete evening's program.

Many of the larger movie theatres now possess this library. Few of them have actually been purchased by the management, not by the orchestra leader. This is the ideal state, since it belongs to the theatre equipment. Should the leader leave his post the library would remain intact.

To help leaders who are still looking for suitable music a list of ten numbers selected from the library has been here appended: any one of which would be a musical gem, the repetition of which audiences would welcome as a friend, and, we venture to say, would meet with the approval of any picture fan rather than be compelled to listen to some of the trash with which amateur publishers are flooding the market. To furnish the following music (which contains only a few of the gems) for an evening's pleasure, it took brains and years of experience. These are classics of lasting merit:

American Festival Overture .................................................. A. Hegner
Poetical Scenes ............................................................... B. Godard
Adagio Cantabile .............................................................. R. Strauss Trio ........................................................................................ T. Lack
Arabian Nights ..................................................................... A. Moldenbeech

Melodie .................................................................................. R. Frum

Menuetto all antico ................................................................. G. Karganoff
Suite Valse Gracieuse, Souvenir, Gypsy Dance. P. German

There has been a deal of knocking in the field of music for the pictures. Well, perhaps it is like the picture industry, only in its infancy (?). But this is hardly true. Good music has been in existence many moons before the pictures were born, and is not an infant, but a full-grown man, therefore it is the duty of the man to help the infant. For the past three years movie magnates have told us that the picture industry was in its infancy. If this be true it is about time it grew up. Good music has saved many a poor film from complete failure.

Remember the last qualities of good music. It is incumbent upon the photoplay musician to build for the future, as well as for the present. The leader or piano player cannot do better than add to his repertoire selections and numbers with a classical value.

Seeberg with Big Purchase Increase Facilities and Equipment

THE J. P. Seeberg Organ Company of Chicago, have bought out the complete business, factory equipment and good will of the Smith Organ Company at North Tonawanda, N. Y. The deal was closed during the latter part of April, and was announced in Chicago, when J. P. Seeberg, president of the Seeberg Company, arrived back at the office after completing the deal.

The purchase of the Smith Company will mean a big addition to the Seeberg facilities and equipment. The Smith Company was incorporated several years ago to manufacture Smith Unified organs, the invention of S. W. Smith its president. The company, it is said, has had a big measure of success with the organs from an artistic and mechanical standpoint. A number of them were installed in Eastern motion picture houses. When the deal was proposed Mr. Smith and his associates are said to have welcomed the opportunity of transferring their interests to the Seeberg Company. It was figured that the instruments will be given the wide distribution they are said to deserve.

The factory equipment will be moved to Chicago, and will be installed in the Seeberg plant at 419 West Erie street. Later on, according to Mr. Seeberg, another factory will be built devoted entirely to construction of the Smith organs. Mr. Smith and his entire office force will also remove to Chicago.

Mr. J. P. Seeberg
Large Orchestras in Buffalo Theatres

The extension of the Buffalo Auditorium, now under the direction of Herman E. Schultz, has introduced new novelties with his orchestra. The first was his direction of the organization in "his screen form." A motion picture was made of conductor Schultz as he directed the selection from Victor Herbert's "The Fortune Teller." The effect when this film was shown on the screen was a novel one. Then the idea was reversed and a film taken of the orchestra playing on stage from "The Firefly," by Rudolph Friml, which the orchestra played while the film was shown on the screen. The idea was a big hit.

Last night, Sunday, the orchestra staged a patriotic stunt. A new stage setting has been erected on the stage, showing a large harbor with towering hills in the background. At intermission the house was darkened and the orchestra commenced to play Strauss's "The Stars and Stripes Forever," when suddenly through the harbor, in the form of toy warships, came a U. S. Atlantic fleet, but very realistic was the effect when a searchlight was thrown on them, with Old Glory waving from the deck of each ship. After the show, the conductor Harry Kellerman in "The Daughter of the Gods" is now being shown at the Tock theatre, where it is being shown because of the long lines of patrons bringing Buffaloans who are crowding to see this great picture.

The orchestra is one composed of real artists, and some notable compositions are rendered from time to time. Present at Sheas's Hippodrome have recently been raised to twenty-five cents general admission, with box seats placed at thirty-five, but the increase has been justified by the program and music offered. Hippodrome patrons are being treated to excellent pictures since the coming of C. B. Taylor, former manager of the Lyric and Family theatres in Buffalo.

On the first Sunday in May the Strand will change its program three times a week instead of two, as is done under the present policy. The changes will take place on Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday.

The Family theatre, now under the management of Harry Kellerman, is showing "Fugl高中 The Daughter of the Gods," to capacity audiences, and Mr. Kellerman expects to run the picture for three weeks.

Manager J. H. Michael of the Academy theatre will co-operate with the "backyard garden" plan by distributing seeds to audience on Academy profit sharing coupons.

Womanhood

The Vitagraph V.-L.-S.F., producers of "Womanhood, the Glory of the Nation," a dramatic spectacle by J. Stuart Blackton, have prepared a special synchronized music score, which is obtainable from every V.-L.-S.F. exchange.

New Baltimore House, the McHenry, Opens May 26

BALTIMORE'S newest motion picture theatre, the McHenry, on Eight Street near Cross, will be opened to the public for the first time on Saturday, May 26. The McHenry is one of the first of the new motion picture theatres in Baltimore, and will be complete in every detail. It is being erected by the Southern Amusement Company, which is very closely identified with the Parkway Amusement Company, which concern controls the Park- way, on North Avenue near Charles.

The McHenry is one of a chain of theatres which is ultimately expected to be built in Baltimore by the Parkway promoters. The building, which was designed by Oliver B. Wright, an architect, and built by the Pogwell-Kother Company, is of rather artistic lines, and the design is suggestive of an Italian renaissance. The front will be decorated with a large marquee, over which will be a large French latticed window.

The building will occupy really two lots of ground. The main lot is 65 by 115 feet, and will be occupied by the building, while a smaller lot, 20 by 93 feet, will be devoted to the foyer and lobby. The structure will cost in the neighborhood of $75,000.

The main auditorium will be 64 by 100 feet and will contain 4,000 seats, furnished by A. K. Andrews Company. They are 22 inches wide, of mission oak wood, upholstered in old rose plush.

The colour scheme to be carried out in the interior decoration is light gray and gold. The panels on the section of the lobby, and in the lobby are oil paintings of the stars of the leading film companies, which are to be interspersed with pansy trousers. The ventilation has been arranged through four 6-feet ventilators equipped with direct pipe suction fans measuring 40 inches in diameter. During the summer a cooling system has been installed which will be operated in conjunction with ten oscillating 16-inch general Electric fans. The building is fireproof throughout. It has four exits, each one of which is protected by metallic fireproof bolts. The theatre being located near Cross Street Market, arrangements have been perfected for 10:30 A. M. performances on market days. On other days the shows will start at 12:30 P. M. and the admission price will be 10, 15 and 25 cents.

The management of the house will be under the supervision of Bernard Depkin, Jr., directing manager of the Parkway. The resident manager will be J. Arthur Barron, who has been associated with Mr. Depkin for several years. H. W. Webb, president of the Parkway Company, is also president of the Southern Amusement Company. The directors of the Southern are very closely allied with the Parkway interests.

Acme Gold Fibre Screen on Market

GEO McARTHUR, Jr., formerly connected with the Gold Fibre Screen Company of Detroit, for the past six years, has resigned and has gone into business of his own, under the style of Acme Gold Fibre Screen Company of Windsor, Ont. Mr. McArthur claims to make a perfect screen and reports having already booked enormous orders, among them one for the Recent theatre, Toronto, Ont., where his screen replaces an imported Gold Fibre Screen formerly used there.

Luminous Plans for Great Theatre Made for New T. & D. House

MUCH curiosity has been aroused by the completion of final negotiations for the new Turner and Dubkens theatre, which is to be one of the largest and most beautiful theatres in the world. It is to be located on the Old Central Park site owned by the McCrory estate at Eighth and Market streets, San Francisco, Cal., the location, due to several new enterprises, has become the center of attention.

The New T & D theatre, as it will be named when completed, will be a work of art as to its exterior finishings, interior decorations and the consideration of the comfort and convenience of patrons.

An exterior view of the new theatre shows the vast size and elegance of the building. The exterior is designed in modern art and is to be executed in concrete and terra cotta. The entrance is to be through a tiled floor vestibule with panelled walls and ornamented domed ceiling, thence into a marble floored lobby leading into the promenade foyer, which is 50 feet in width by 260 feet in length. The center of the promenade foyer will contain a beautifully designed water lake, aquarium, electric fountain with live ducks of the most gorgeous plumage. The walls and ceiling of this foyer will be finished in ornamental plaster and with a very elaborate color scheme.

On the foyer will be a reception room 25 by 65 feet in size, a ladies' rest room 22 by 25 feet, men's smoking parlor 24 by 25 feet, three lounging parlors 24 by 25 feet, house manager's office, kitchen, lavatories, ushers' room and storerooms.

The reception room will be a combination tea-room, where the ladies may partake of tea, cakes and ices, make appointments for meeting friends while waiting for the next feature film to start. This room will be in charge of two capable and experienced matrons, and here the children may be taken care of while the parents watch the pictures.

From the foyer there will be six gradients leading to the lower portion of the auditorium; also gradients 25 feet in width leading to the mezzanine floor. On this floor will be located the children's room and nursery, 30 by 50 feet. This room will be fitted with every modern contrivance of interest to the kiddies. Check rooms and first aid requirements, as well as an intercommunicating telephone system for the outside as well as the interior of this magnificent theatre, will be included in the equipment of the house.

The auditorium is 250 by 200 feet, with a seating capacity of 6,000.

The lighting arrangement will be a distinct feature of the exact color scheme of a very original nature, being so arranged that any desired color scheme may be had by a certain arrangement located on the main switch-board in the rear of the promenade. This switchboard will be wired that on account of its position it will not allow the operator to see the interior of the auditorium. So when lighting the auditorium with a certain color scheme a miniature arrangement over the board will designate to the operator the exact colors that are being blended throughout the house. The lighting fixtures will be of a semi-indirect nature, and upon projection of a picture that calls for a scene at dusk, or a volcanic effect, or in fact anything that requires color, the operator can give the desired effect. Aside from the wonderful color scheme, there will be two large what might be called sun porches on each side of the promenade arch. Looking through these sun porches, arranged with glass, it gives the occupant of a seat in the auditorium a feeling of looking out upon a vast landscape. This color scheme arranged throughout the house will also add to wonderful paintings which have been used to decorate the interior. The dome in the center of the ceiling of the auditorium will also be provided for in this wonderful series of color schemes, restful to the eyes and harmonizing with any color in the picture.
The La Salle Theatre, South Bend, Indiana

Behind the elaborately decorated proscenium arch, with a width of 80 feet, will be located the various pipes of the master organ, which will be operated from the console in the orchestra pit in front of the stage. Special attention has been given to the selection and distribution of the organ parts, as well as the acoustic properties of the house.

The proscenium arch is to be ornamented, aside from its decorations, with magnificently draped velvet curtains and trimmed with an additional valance, to give it artistic lines. Just inside of this drapery will be a beautiful drape on each side of the stage, as well as an artistic one to cover over the space where the pictures are to be projected. All these curtains will be mechanically arranged, so that by pressing a series of buttons the front curtain can be opened, then gradually the one on each side, exposing wonderful transparent scenes of landscapes. This also includes part of the stage where the picture is to be projected, and upon completion of this operation, which will cover the time required for an organ or orchestral overture, the curtains, with the exception of the front one, will slowly close again and the scene covering the screen will gradually rise to the beginning of the picture.

In method of construction and mechanical equipment this New T & D theatre is equally admirable and adequate. It will be of firered construction throughout and equipped with double the number of exits required by law and with all the improved safety devices. The heating and ventilating system will be of the most modern type, and designed so that the temperature of the auditorium will be automatically regulated by thermostats to a degree that is consistent with the comfort of the patrons.

There will be two box offices, located on each side of the main entrance. Passing through the entrance into the vestibule, masses of hothouse flowers will bring joy to the eye and sweet music of the innumerable German roller canaries will please the ear.

The operating room is to receive special attention, and will be constructed entirely of concrete and located in the center of the auditorium, so designed that it will not be visible to the audience. The machinery to be installed here will be of the latest design, so arranged that under the most extreme conditions this room, with its various emergency machines and devices, will make it impossible to have a delay of any kind in the exhibition of its performances.

The officials of the Turner and Dahnken Circuit, known as the T & D Circuit, are Fred D. Dahnken, president, and J. T. Turner, vice-president and general manager. The founders of this chain of theatres, the largest in western America, Messrs. Turner and Dahnken, started in the motion picture industry, with very little capital, and through constant application and close attention to detail have obtained a marvelous success. Closely associated with them in the management of their successful houses are E. B. Johnson, secretary, and Claude L. Langley, managing director and treasurer of the circuit.
Crosley Makes Good at Sorg Theatre

The Sorg theatre of Middletown, Ohio, is owned by the P. I. Sorg Estate and has been leased by Weaver Brothers and Crossley for a number of years.

The theatre is operated under the management of J. F. Crossley, who, with World wide circulation, 22,000 addresses—100 illustrations—contains all legal and business information about the cinema trade. The volume of 1000 pages, handsomely bound in cloth. Price: 15 cents.

Newman Equips New Oakland Theatre

The Newman Manufacturing Company of 717-721 Sycamore street, Cincinnati, Ohio, with a branch located at 68 West Washington street, Chicago, III., who make a specialty of brass railings, poster frames, easels and ticket choppers for theatres, recently installed all the brass railings around the orchestra pit, auditorium boxes, loge boxes, balcony and lobby of the New Oakland theatre, Walla Walla, Wash.

Mr. Goldstein, of the New Oakland, selected the Newman Manufacturing Company to do this work because of the high reputation the firm bears among the theatre interests.

The Newman Company advises that the prices of brass poster frames and easels advanced only 15 per cent, during the past week.

NEW YORK

A new theatre is to be built in Albany according to plans just completed by Mr. Fred Wright, an old showman of Albany formerly connected with the Clinton Square theatre. The house is to be on North Pearl street and will seat 1,600 people. Paramount Pictures will be shown.

KANSAS

Mrs. Millington, manager of the Crystal theatre, Ottawa, suffered the loss of her theatre by a fire the latter part of March, but this did not discourage her, for she immediately set about rebuilding a theatre which embodies all the modern features in construction and equipment. This theatre was completed and opened for the public on Thursday, May 10. Mrs. Millington has booked the Paramount Black Diamond and Klever Komedies, also the Paramount-Arkwright two-reel comedies.

KENTUCKY

Manager R. L. McLean announces that the Grand theatre at Frankfort, which is being thoroughly renovated and almost completely remodelled, will be ready for opening in a few days.

MICHIGAN

The Colonial theatre of Jackson has taken over Paramount Pictures for that community, and is booking every advertising campaign of the promotion of the same.

Manager W. S. Buerfield, is to be open in August, and will play vaudeville next season. The Garden is going to continue to play pictures, while the Majestic will play road attractions and will fill film attractions on dark nights.

Col. W. S. Buerfield, who operates a chain of theatres in Michigan, is expanding his ideas of the business, because he has found that he can have anywhere from 20 to 30 days solid booking. Mr. Buerfield makes his headquarters in the National City Bank building, Battle Creek. The general booking for his chain of theatres is done by Ed Beauty.

F. A. Schneider and William H. Bauer, who promoted the Stratford theatre, Dix and Ferdinand avenues, Detroit, have taken over the DeLuxe Theatre Co. and have let contracts through their architect for the new playhouse, which will be located at Kercheval and Parkview avenues, and seat 1,750, ready late in the year. The theatre, according to Mr. Schneider, will be exclusively for motion pictures.

MISSOURI

The Melba Amusement Company, with offices in the Farmers and Merchants Bank Building, are to begin the erection of a $50,000 theatre at the northeast corner of Grand avenue and Miami street, in South St. Louis.

The new amusement house, which will be built of reinforced concrete, after the latest ideas of theatre construction, with modern ventilation and air conditioning, will be seventy-two feet wide and one hundred and fifty feet long. The entrance will be on Grand avenue.

A program of vaudeville and moving pictures will be maintained and it is planned to be ready for business by the first of October. Dr. O. T. Uprey, Dr. H. A. Upham, vice-pres., T. J. Lavin, sec., and A. G. Bauer, treas., are the officers of the Melba Amusement Company.

The plans for the new building will be prepared by Hart, Henderson & Tucksonchinst, architects, who will also supervise the construction work.

MONTANA

The Rialto theatre recently erected at Butte will seat 1,600 people and will mark a new era in picture presentation there. Many expensive and elaborate features have been included among the comfort and conveniences, and the management feels confident that the public will not fail to vote it an excellent establishment and worthy, of a franchise that will make the investment profitable. It is a palatial house in all that the word implies.Symphonies in its appointments, rich in its decorations,up- ping in its details for the comfort of patrons and perfect in its arrangement for the faultless presentation of the very best pictures obtainable, the Rialto seems to leave nothing to be desired.

NEBRASKA

The Wonderland theatre at Hastings, managed by Mrs. Ida M. Walden, has undergone a complete remodeling with decorating, draping, lighting and new stage repairs. The Wonderland has a seating capacity of about 600 and is situated in the heart of a prosperous Nebraska city, having a population of about 10,800 people.

In this remodeling two large posts have been removed and a balcony and stage has been built in. In fact it has taken several thousand dollars to make the changes and improvements, yet the owners of the building and Manager Stuart believe that the future has a bright outlook, and also that it is only by the people of Hastings were entitled to the best when it comes to comfort and entertainment.

TEXAS

On May 16 the Old Mill theatre in Dallas was reopened after the recent fire that gutted it. This is one of the Holmes string of theatres, and is managed by Mr. Laurence Stuart. The theatre has been completely re-fitted and the latest equipments have been installed.

During the fire, two canaries which had been the pride of the management since its opening, were rescued from the burning theatre at the risk of the life of Manager Stuart, and the two poor, little yellow birds, although soaked with water while fighting the fire, had been placed in their new homes, blithely warbling their tunes to the delight of the audience.

NEW YORK

A new theatre is to be built in Albany according to plans just completed by Mr. Fred Wright, an old showman of Albany formerly connected with the Clinton Square theatre. The house is to be on North Pearl street and will seat 1,600 people. Paramount Pictures will be shown.

War-time Audiences Demand
Better Pictures

GOLDWYN believes the war will bring great increases in attendance at all motion picture theatres. But the war will also make your patrons much more exacting.

War-time audiences are more serious than other audiences. They will be more quickly irritated by the flaws and faults of cheaper pictures than ever before. And they will have a more sensitive appreciation of quality.

Goldwyn Pictures, no matter in what theatre they are shown, whether first run or sixth run, will always attract and impress audiences because of their refinement and distinction; their photographic excellence; the unusual power of their stories and the beauty and ability of their stars, who are favorites throughout the world.

Great amusement institutions like the New York “Strand,” owned by exhibitors who are conscious of their obligations to their patrons, are now safeguarding themselves by signing up for all of the Goldwyn Pictures.
Taking the Yawn Out of Motion Pictures

In Goldwyn Pictures we are avoiding the mad error of producing footage. The length of our productions will be determined solely by the amount of time required to tell the stories concisely and sanely.

Your audiences always will be able to count on all of these elements in Goldwyn productions:

1. A story that holds attention.
2. A story that entertains.
4. Crispness and freshness.
5. Popular and powerful stars.

Is there an exhibitor on earth who is not eager to find productions that guarantee these important elements?

THE DOOR IS OPEN

To get the best results possible from SELZNICK-PICTURES I organized a perfect system of distribution.

I have decided to throw open this system to all independent producers who make high class photoplays.

If you published a magazine, you wouldn’t peddle it yourself. You would turn it over to the American News Co., which reaches every important news stand.

In the picture industry I occupy the same position as the American News Co. does in the publishing business. I have the most direct and efficient means of bringing producer and exhibitor together.

If YOU have made a picture good enough to stand up under the severest criticism, bring it to me, and I will give it the same attention that has made SELZNICK-PICTURES stand for success.

REAL FASHION SHOW

"Empress of Fashion" Displays Ultra-Modern Costumes in "The Slave," a Strong Photoplay of To-day.

Again the ever dashing Valeska Suratt proves her pre-eminent right to the title of "The Empress of Fashion," by her startling and bizarre costumes in "The Slave," her newest William Fox feature.

Miss Suratt displays gowns which surpass for cost and number even the record she established in "The New York Peacock." Miss Suratt impersonates a forelady in a Fifth Avenue shop who accepts the marriage proposal of "Old Moneybags" despite a warning dream vividly portraying her life as an old man's darling.

Dustin Farnum Busy

With pettie Winifred Kingston as leading lady, Dustin Farnum, William Fox's West Coast star, is now engaged in the picturization of a famous novel of stirring action. Miriam Cooper Featured Miriam Cooper, of "Honor System" fame, will be featured in a new R. A. Walsh drama now in work to be released on the Fox programme under title of "The Innocent Sinner."

LONDON ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT
"A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS"
News papers Laud Enchantment of $1,000,000 Film

"A Daughter of the Gods" is proving the sensation of current London theatrical attractions, and is playing to overflow audiences. Newspaper reviews of the Fox million-dollar spectacle, with Annette Kellermann, were as enthusiastic as the trade magazines about the film's marvelous enchantment.

ELABORATE "SETS" ERECTED FOR FOX KIDDIE FEATURE

Even Vast Fox "Lot" in Hollywood Was Inadequate

The leading players are the only thing on a small scale in connection with the Fox Kiddie Features, William Fox wishes to make clear. One of the great pictures for this brand was completed recently in California, and the settings were so elaborate and so vast that even the enormous Fox "lot" at Hollywood, Cal., was entirely inadequate. Few photoplays ever made can boast of more massive and artistic "sets."

Pretty Miss Petit

If the person who invented the phrase "as pretty as a picture" had ever seen Wansla Petit, playing opposite Stuart Holmes in "The Broadway Sport," he would have found room for Miss Petit somewhere in the smile.

PERFUME AIDS BARA'S ROLE

She Uses Special Psychic Concoction for Cleopatra

The perfume Theda Bara uses in aiding her portrayal of Cleopatra, in William Fox's coming release, was made for her by Anne Haviland, famous psychic perfumist, from a 2,000-year-old formula. The fragrance is so strong that it would not be strange if it were detected on the screen.

BROCKWELL'S VACATION OVER

Now Working on Seventh Fox Pictureplay

Gladys Brockwell, the beautiful emotional star, is now busily engaged in her seventh Fox pictureplay. Miss Brockwell has been enjoying her first vacation from the camera—a rest which began immediately after "Her Temptation" was finished.

COOL, VILLAINOUS HOLMES IN NOVEL CHARACTER PART

Hardly Recognizable in Early Reels of "Broadway Sport"

Even veteran exhibitors of William Fox productions will find extreme difficulty in identifying the cool, debonair Stuart Holmes, villain supreme, as the "small town gawk" in "The Broadway Sport," soon to be released. As the stoop-shouldered, be-spectacled bookkeeping "grind" in the early part of this novel picture, Holmes presents an unusual study in make-up and expression.

THE AGILE GEORGE WALSH

If "porch-climbers" were as agile as George Walsh in "Some Boy," people would have to protect their homes with machine guns. George defies the laws of dignity, gravity, and everything else in some hair-trigger exploits.

THE HONOR SYSTEM" PLAYS TO UNPRECEDENTED CROWDS

"The Honor System," William Fox's cinemelodrama of a thousand thrills, continues to play to audiences of unprecedented size wherever shown. Theatre owners proclaim it not only the greatest human story ever told, but the greatest box office attraction ever made, particularly for one and two week runs.

FOX LAVISH ON LAUGHS

Spending Thousands of Dollars on New Foxfilm Comedy

William Fox is spending thousands of dollars in the erection of "sets" to be destroyed ruthlessly so that the audiences who see Hank Mann's next Foxfilm comedy may laugh. Each laugh will cost Mr. Fox several hundred dollars. Statisticians estimate, therefore, that the price of a single smile will be approximately $48.98.

JEWEL CARMEN'S CANDY

Here's a puzzle: Jewel Carmen, the "opposite" in "When A Man Sees Red," William Farnum's super picture, says she likes "soulful candy." Can anyone accommodate Miss Carmen?

CAPRICE'S RADIANCE
WINS PICTUREGOERS

She's "First in Hearts" of a Million "Fans"

No player upon the silent stage has won moving picture fans with such unanimity, and in such a short time, as winsome June Caprice, the sparkling little William Fox star. Miss Caprice's thoroughly natural screen art, her daintiness, and the sunshine she always seems to radiate, have put her "first in the hearts" of a million "fans." Her last film was "A Small Town Girl." She is now completing another fine production.

PEARSON DRAMA COMING

Virginia Pearson's forthcoming William Fox feature, "Wretch of Love," should prove an unusually strong box office attraction because the plot relates closely to the international conflict. The story is one which is "different," and is of tremendous interest.

FOX FILM CORPORATION
MUTUAL WILL OFFER
"HEROIC FRANCE" AS A SPECIAL FEATURE

"HEROIC FRANCE," the super-sensational eight reel production showing scenes at war, will be released through the Exchanges of the Mutual Film Corporation at an early date. This powerful war subject was taken with the sanction and approval of the French government. It pictures war as it really is.

Taken on the French Front.
Every scene in "Heroic France" was taken on the French front. Some scenes were made in the front line trenches. Close-up views of famous statues and generals. Heroes of the war, are shown throughout the picture. It shows the relief work in the base hospitals. It illustrates the aviation service—the eyes of the enemy and the aeroplane in action. It depicts any number of actual attacks upon the enemy. It shows the prisoners coming in while the battle still rages. It shows more of actual war than one could see for himself if he were actually in the fighting lines. Exhibitors can obtain some idea of its drawing power when it is said that this is the same picture which ran for six solid weeks at advanced admission prices at the Boxoffice Theatre in Chicago, and for another two weeks at the Studebaker Theatre in the same city. During the Strand showing some of the best known women in Chicago's society world acted as patronsesses. Among them may be mentioned such notables as Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. David R. Forgan, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Arthur L. Fairwell, Mrs. Harry Pratt Judson, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Jr., Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, Mrs. James W. Thorne, and a host of others equally well known.

Photographed by Merl La Voy.
The picture was made by Merl La Voy under the auspices of the American Relief Clearing House of Paris. The camera was under the hottest kind of fire during the taking of any of the scenes. Bookings on "Heroic France" can be made now at Mutual Exchanges everywhere. Make your reservation now.

Date of Next Chaplin Film Soon Available

The eleventh Mutual-Chaplin Special is nearing completion and its release date will shortly be announced. Quality has ever been a preminent feature of these productions and will be still more noticeable in the forthcoming releases.

WILLIAM RUSSELL
HAS STRONG ROLE IN "SHACKLES OF TRUTH"

It would be hard to name a stronger role than that which has been assigned William Russell in "Shackles of Truth," his newest Mutual Picture. He plays the part of a young attorney whose father, lately dead, is loved and revered by all who knew him. This love of his father has become almost a fetish to the young attorney, for since childhood his mother has held his father up as an example to the son, and time and again expressed the wish that he might become as honest and upright. And then one day comes the crash. A story is related to the young attorney which shows that his father had deeply wronged the woman who now relates her tale. For a time the young attorney is compelled to believe that his father was anything but what he had imagined him. Struggling as he will against believing, he is firmly held in the shackles of the real truth which has been so unexpectedly revealed to him. And then he makes the supreme sacrifice. Fate steps in and unravels the tangled web. And so a happy ending is achieved.

Released Week of June 4th, "Shackles of Truth" will be released as the Mutual—"Big Stars Only"—Picture of June 4th. It was made at the American Film Company's studios in Santa Barbara, California, under the direction of Edward Sloman. Julius Grinnell Barthmann wrote it. Exhibitors can book it now by supplying to their interest Mutual Exchange.

"Shackles of Truth" will be released as the Mutual—"Big Stars Only"—Picture of June 4th. It was made at the American Film Company's studios in Santa Barbara, California, under the direction of Edward Sloman. Julius Grinnell Barthmann wrote it. Exhibitors can book it now by applying to their nearest Mutual Exchange.

Juliette Day, who has just closed an engagement in "Upstairs and Down" to become an American-Mutual star, has arrived at Santa Barbara, California, and began work on "Betty and the Buccaneers," the vehicle chosen for her debut as a Mutual Star.

MARJORIE RAMBEAU
COMPLETES FIFTH MUTUAL PRODUCTION

Marjorie Rambeau, famous heroine of "Cheating Cheaters" and today acknowledged one of Hollywood's most beautiful stars, has just completed her fifth Mutual Picture, Frank Powell directed it, and Miss Rambeau enacts a role similar to several of those which have been hers in notable speaking stage productions. Her new picture, with the title "The Dazzling Miss Davison," is being adaptation from Florence Warden's widely read mystery story of that name. As in previous Powell productions, photography and stage settings will be particularly notable. An all-star cast—even down to the minor "bits"—will aid Miss Rambeau in the enactment of "The Dazzling Miss Davison." Prominent among them will be Robert Elliott and Aubrey Bealbe, both of whom have appeared as principals in previous Rainbow-Mutual Pictures; Winifred Harris, Ames Eyre, Frank Ford, Aline Barcelli, Lilian Paige, Frasier Tarbell and George Paige. The Mutual Pictures, starring Miss Rambeau, already released, include "The Greater Woman," "Motherhood," "The Debt" and "The Mirror."

In addition to the four attractive fifteen-chapter photo-novels now booking at Mutual Exchanges, exhibitors will find the two Gummert chapter-plays, "The Vampire" and "Faunoms," excellent drawing cards. Both are stories of a mystery-detective sort. Both are crammed with thrills and surprises, keeping an audience ever on edge for what is to happen next. Probably no type of story has a wider appeal. Big box-office possibilities lie in such offerings. Book now!

Unknown three weeks ago—today the biggest business getter of any picture ever shown in Chicago—that's the wonderful record of "Should She Obey?" No wonder that requests for rights from every State in the Union are arriving in every mail. No picture ever filmed has secured such quick, country-wide publicity.

Sunday, fifty sermons were preached from fifty pulpits with "Should She Obey?" as the theme. Every recognized picture critic who has seen it gives "Should She Obey?" unqualified praise.

Now you have the opportunity to secure exhibition rights to this remarkable film that has put the Arizona Film Company on the national map overnight. Remember, that right now at the La Salle Theatre, Chicago, "Should She Obey?" is drawing the crowds and getting the money against the fast and furious competition of downtown Chicago. A picture has got to be right to do that.

Over fifty theatres booked a few days after the first showing. Over eight thousand personal letters received in response to our $500 cash prize offer. While you are thinking, your reservation opportunity may be snapped up. You'd better wire and do it right now.

305 New York clergymen saw it at the Eltinge Theatre and sincerely indorsed it.

AS OTHERS SEE US

NEW YORK AMERICAN:
"One of the few motion pictures seen on Broadway worth the Broadway scale of admission prices. Like taking a trip on the flying carpet of Prince Ahmed of the "Arabian Nights." One of the most charming entertainments that can be imagined."

NEW YORK EVENING WORLD:
"Refreshingly free from the sensationalism to which the screen is so often given and possessing picturesque charm. Both interesting and enlightening. From beginning to end, a trip thru China is fascinating."

NEW YORK WORLD:
"Of exceptional value, both for its informative and entertaining qualities."

NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL:
"A motion picture with a purpose of value, more than mere entertainment. The picture is entertaining, with frequent amusing scenes, remarkable scenic views and exceptionally good photography."

NEW YORK TRIBUNE:
"Viewing China via the motion picture at the Eltinge is almost as interesting as viewing it from the back of an observation car. The scenes in The Forbidden City are magnificent."

NEW YORK EVENING MAIL:
"The most instructive and entertaining view of China that has ever been recorded. Not only has beauty of picture been the aim of the producers, but there are plenty of humorous scenes which will prove of particular delight to the young folk."

NEW YORK EVENING TELEGRAM:
"This is an art motion picture that stands alone as an educational travelogue and replete with interesting and humorous scenes."

NEW YORK TIMES:
"Some excellent pictures of the New Life of the Chinese Republic."

NEW YORK MORNING TELEGRAPH:
"It is not only interesting, but it is unusually impressive for its sincerity and faithfulness in every detail. The spectator realizes that he is not only being entertained, but also educated and given information that he could not acquire by months of reading."

Bringing Broadway To You!

Our plan of SERVICE, the connecting link of cooperation between manufacturer, exchangemen and exhibitors, is actively begun.

Our Mr. Jesse J. Goldburg is en tour of the country, bringing this service to you.

He brings to you the value of years of careful study of conditions and methods of exploitation, such as have been successfully adopted in the exhibition of previous FROHMAN productions; the results of months of combined study by our entire staff compiled from methods proved successful.

He is BRINGING BROADWAY TO YOU—Broadway, with all its world-famed night life—the cabaret—the underworld—a reproduction of its millions of electric light bulbs—Broadway, the greatest show place of the world.

Broadway, embodied accurately in the master photoplay production "GOD'S MAN," in which the eminent screen artist, H. B. WARNER, is the star.

Mr. Goldburg will stop at all exchange centres, to discuss plans with those live exchangemen already listed as purchasers of "GOD'S MAN," and to complete negotiations with the great number who have applied for territorial rights privileges for this production.

CAPACITY PLAN

One of the greatest weaknesses in the moving picture industry is waste of exhibiting possibilities. The average print may lie on the shelf 70 per cent of its life when it should be earning money. Our Capacity Plan means development of exhibiting possibilities of each production to its limit, renting it in exclusive exhibiting territories on such terms as will enable Exhibitors to get its capacity in number of presentations, in packed houses, in profits—and in repeat bookings without charge. Every Paralta Play will be a big factor in this Capacity Plan through its powerful story, popular star, talented supporting company and magnificent production.

A TRADE ANNUAL

The Convention number of Motion Picture News, contemporary with the Seventh Annual Convention of the M. P. E. L. of America, Chicago, July 14th-22d, will comprise a Trade Annual.

This Trade Annual will include data and other editorial matter bearing upon all branches and departments of the industry.

The latter will have a permanent reference value, making this issue of Motion Picture News a desk fixture with all its readers. This editorial matter, which has been in preparation for some months, will be the most complete and authoritative thus far issued in the field.

This Convention and Trade Annual issue will be dated July 28th. Advertising forms close July 14th.

Reservations should now be made for color advertisements, inserts and special positions.

"THE NIGHT WORKERS"

Marguerite Clayton and Jack Gardner

lights up this world of darkness, with its fascinating color, its gayety, its bleakness, its joy, its tragedy. There is a call in this world of itself, this world to the vast majority unknown, that will stir an answering throb of wonder and curiosity in those who work by day. It carries a thrilling and beautiful love plot, in which a night bird of prey, in answering the call of his mate, wings his way back to the higher and cleaner atmosphere.

Written by J. Bradley Smollen

A SHARP—and unfortunate—division has arisen within the industry over the war tax.

The small houses have arrayed themselves against the large theatres and the manufacturers.

Briefs, entirely at variance with each other, have been filed with the Congressional Committees. The North and South Carolina exhibitors make the claim in their brief that the manufacturers and larger theatres are acting as "allied interests" in a move calculated to confiscate the business of the small house.

Evidently the North Carolina League is voicing correctly the smaller house sentiment of the country, ... protesting that a ten per cent box office tax will put the majority of picture theatres out of business.

These briefs, taken separately, are excellent. They are sincere and practical. We present them on the following pages.

But the point of the matter is this: they should have been first presented within a general meeting of all branches of the industry—and left the meeting as one brief.

They should never have been leveled, in their antagonistic form, at the Finance Committee of the Senate.

The Senate Committee is looking for light. Its members have a highly intelligent, sincere desire to raise from this industry a war tax thoroughly just and compatible with the industry's present resources and future good.

They are looking for light; but the clearest ray shed by these briefs, taken in total, is that the industry is divided against itself.

We advise a careful reading of these arguments.

The Senate Committee is looking for light. Its members have a highly intelligent, sincere desire to raise from this industry a war tax thoroughly just and compatible with the industry's present resources and future good.

They are looking for light; but the clearest ray shed by these briefs, taken in total, is that the industry is divided against itself.

We advise a careful reading of these arguments.

We ask the exhibitor to weigh carefully the manufacturers' stand against the footage tax on film.

Here are just a few cold facts: the producing and distributing industry is not today earning the tax... necessity, be greatly diminished. Positive prints will be lowered in quality through long usage, etc., etc.

Unite!—Unite!!

All of this burden will fall heaviest upon the small house, as any small house manager can figure in one minute's time. It will not avail the nickel house to escape a box office tax and assume the heavier burden of higher rentals and inferior service. It won't help any theatre to jump out of the frying pan into the fire.

The question of this huge footage tax is a mighty important one. We ask the exhibitor's careful and thoughtful investigation of it and of its consequences in his own interests. Apparently it would be his tax.

A GAIN we ask the manufacturer to consider the theatres' plight.

It is easy enough for the industry to say that this is a public tax, that the public must pay it; and that therefore it must all be collected through the box-office window.

But the collection, in a year, of an extra thirty or more million dollars—in pennies—through the box-office is not a matter of words.

We do not in the least blame the exhibitor for his general and violent protest, based upon the fear that the burden will break him.

There are many valid objections to this ten per cent tax. We recommend in this connection the sensible points scored in the Varner brief. The exhibitor already has heavy taxes to bear.

We have a lot of respect for this Varner brief and for the man who wrote it.

But what's to be done?

There's but one answer—absolutely one only—and that is united action.

We can—after plenty of thoughtful and careful consideration—frame one schedule—agreeable to all branches of this industry and to all the theatres; and based upon what the industry can best do for the government and for its own perpetuation and salvation. This can be done.

Moreover there is time still to act—if action takes place now. The Senate Finance Committee will probably be in session on the revenue bill for at least a week.

This Committee, we have said, is highly intelligent. It is, but not upon the subject of the motion picture industry. Its members are probably highly misinformed—and worse still, confident that their misinformation is correct.

Theatres and Taxes

The Finance Committee of the Senate may be interested in the picture theatre situation in Milwaukee. Milwaukee has a population of 450,000. In the downtown section there are 19 theatres with an approximate total of 27,000 seats. Milwaukee has 61 more theatres totaling 18,300 more seats. Twenty per cent of Milwaukee’s population—90,000 people—are required to fill these theatres twice a day.

The nineteen downtown theatres are fighting each other for existence. A 25 cent admission price was tried and failed disastrously. The fight is now on between 10 and 15 cents. Big features are being played, often four simultaneously within a radius of two blocks, to such an extent that the public seems apathetic to any feature announcement however startling.

This doesn’t look like the easy profits picture theatres are supposed to make—in the minds of the members of congressional committees.

This doesn’t look like an enterprise that should bear the bulk of an amusement tax, or the bulk of any heavy taxation.

The plain facts are that the majority of these theatres are near the breaking point.

And the situation in Milwaukee is typical of the picture theatre situation in many other American cities.

Business, Not Politics

The South Carolina exhibitors held their state convention in one day, during which they made time to listen to four business addresses, not the least important of which concerned “What the Exchange and Publicity Department Can Do for the Exhibitor,” by Grace Wyden-Vuil of the Southern Paramount Company.

Also the Virginia exhibitors met in Richmond last Friday, held their convention and left in the evening to get back to their Saturday business. Fred J. Herrington organized this state branch.

Evidently politics played not part in these conventions; no time was wasted in framing up delegates to vote for some one for president at Chicago.

The conventions were called for organization purposes—and organization was accomplished and business done.

Long May He Wave!

This is not a “fan” publication; we rarely go out of our way to mention players in this hard hearted section of the magazine.

But we must say a word for William S. Hart.

One of our representatives recently heard Mr. Hart telling about the astounding applause that greeted him at various points on his whirlwind tour.

Hart did not modestly bow his head and say “I wonder why?”

He said: “They weren’t applauding me at all! What they were applauding was their recognition of the fact that the frontier period was the most romantic phase of American history.” Common horse sense!

It occurs to us that William S. Hart is not entirely lacking in that quality himself. Probably he goes so far as to believe that his world-wide fame is due partly to his excellent interpretations but also to the astounding popularity and publicity of the motion picture.

“Other stars please note!”

Send Uninstructed Delegates

We have a grave suspicion of any state convention which instructs its delegates how to vote at Chicago.

Our suspicion is that such a convention was called for this one purpose and no other.

If so, this State League isn’t worth its name and stationery.

Nor will the National League ever be what it should and must be if it has for units State Leagues only called into existence to elect officers and send delegates to a national convention.

Send uninstructed delegates to Chicago. Give them but one instruction: to work at Chicago for a permanent, active-the-year-round organization for and of the exhibitors, all the exhibitors, of the country.

Unite!—Unite!!

They must be set right—by facts and figures, backed by the say-so of a united industry.

In the beginning, these same facts and figures and this same united action, would, we confidently believe, have given this industry the same consideration accorded to the newspapers.

We believe that a net profits tax—spread over the entire industry could have been substituted. The industry could at least have been presented in its true commercial light, and not as a Golconda of million dollar salaries and easy profits.

However, there is still time!—for united action, but only for united action.

As this editorial is being written a call has been sent out for the holding of a convention in Washington on Friday, June 1.

The full particulars are given elsewhere in this issue. A fund is being raised to bring to Washington the heads of all the State Leagues. All exhibitors who are able to make the trip are urged to attend. Thousands of calls are being sent out in an effort to secure the largest representation from the industry ever gathered together.

We need not dilate upon the gravity of the situation. Every exhibitor, every producer knows what a crisis faces us.

An executive committee with full power to act is already at work.

Haste, of course, is necessary: but we urge this committee to make haste slowly.

When it acts let it do so for a united industry; but let it listen to the voice of the industry. Let no burdens be shifted. Let it weigh carefully the consequences of its recommendations and the strength of the factors called upon to bear the burdens it will recommend. This is a grave situation; it should be met accordingly. We recommend for one thing that Mr. Varner of North Carolina be added to this committee.

But above all let there be no further scattered and antagonistic action. Let us unite!
Californian Wants Red Cross to Collect Ticket Tax

L. A. Schlesinger, manager of the West End theatre, Santa Ana, Cal., advances a plan in a letter to the editor of Motion Picture News, of recruiting Red Cross girls to sell war tax tickets in front of all theatres. Excerpts from his letter follow:

"Whatever the tax may be—whether it be 10 per cent. of our gross receipts, or whether it will be one cent on each admission—there must be a table in front of every theatre in the country, with a young lady dressed in red cross uniform sitting there to sell the war tax tickets, which must be purchased before patrons can purchase admission tickets at the box-office."

This would in no way confuse patrons with the idea that they were paying more to see a show, because the plan would be adopted universally, and at the same time it would eliminate all arguments and confusion at the box-office as well as dispensing with pennies at the box-office. A large sign could be painted on white muslin and tacked around the table out in front of the lobby where the red cross ticket seller sits, something like that—"Buy Your War Tax Tickets Here Before Purchasing Admission Tickets."

"If this plan could not be carried out all the time, possibly it could be done for ninety days or six months, after which time it would become a recognized habit with the public, and during which time no ill-effects would be felt by exhibitors."

Nova Scotia Exhibitors Raise Prices to Pay Tax

To eliminate the inconveniences that surround the carrying out of the law just passed by the Nova Scotia House of Assembly, imposing a one cent tax on all tickets costing twenty-five cents or less and two cents for any ticket costing more than that amount, the Halifax exhibitors decided to raise by five cents the evening scale of prices and pay the tax from their own proceeds. No tax will be imposed at the afternoon shows, yet the exhibitors will be obliged to pay a tax of one cent on all tickets sold, but hope to get around it by the extra charge in the evening. It is felt that the addition of another five cents will prevent few, if any, patrons from attending the shows, and will obviate the necessity of handling so many coppers.

Ludwig Schindler in New York

Brimful of enthusiastic plans for the coming Chicago Exposition and Convention, Ludwig Schindler, manager of the affair, arrived in New York on Monday. He will spend the week comparing with manufacturers on their plans for exhibits in July.

Hearing on Pennsylvania Tax Bill June 1st

Indications Strong That Beyer Bill Will Be Defeated or Tax Provisions Materially Lowered—Philadelphia Named as Place of Hearing—Labor Leaders Help

Motion picture men last week gained one concession from Pennsylvania's law-makers in the securing of a public hearing on the Beyer bill, which proposes a tax of one cent per foot on all motion picture positives shown in that state. The hearing has been set for Friday, June 1, at Philadelphia.

Through the National Association a vigorous campaign against the proposed confiscatory tax has been under way during the past weeks. Both exchange men and exhibitors have been busy at work on the ground, with the result that their local legislative representatives are nearing in unmistakable fashion from "the folks back home."

The friends and foes of the Baker bill, putting a 2 per cent tax on the gross earnings of all theatrical corporations of other states showing in Pennsylvania, also are to have an opportunity for a public hearing. The date has not yet been set but it probably will be about June 5. The measure is now in the hands of the Ways and Means Committee of the House.
Powers Advocates "Tax at the Box Office"

Powers, treasurer of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, is one of the many film executives who have been devoting all of their time and energy in the last few weeks in efforts to solve, for Congress and the exhibitor, the troublesome business of equa-

table taxation.

Mr. Powers complains that his efforts towards this end have been hampered and hindered by various others who have been submitting plans of which oppose his.

"We are at nixes and sevens," declared Mr. Powers to Motion Picture News, "and we are drifting nowhere. I have been in close touch with both committees at Washington, and as soon as I have them in a friendly mood towards the business, some agitated exhibitor or some worried and producer descends upon them with both feet and kicks things all to pieces. Can you beat it?"

Mr. Powers submitted an amendment to the proposed tax plan which is said to have been favored by both the Senate Finance Committee. The amendment is as follows:

Proposed Amendment Submitted for and on Behalf of Manufacturers, Producers, Distributors, Importers of Motion Pictures.

Resolved Unanimously by the Committee at St. Louis, April 27, 1917, Section C and D—Section 600, also section 700 and substitute the following:

"A tax shall be levied under this title in respect to any admissions, all the proceeds of which inure exclusively to the benefit of religious or charitable institutions, societies or organizations, or admissions to agricultural fairs, all the proceeds of which inure exclusively for agricultural purposes.

The term "admission" as used in this title includes seats and tables, reserved or otherwise, and other similar accommodations and the charges made therefor.

Mr. Powers gave his reasons, in a letter to Senator Simmons why the tax plan would be unfair to the manufacturer. He says in part:

Pathe Favors Canadian Ticket Tax System

Mr. Powers advocates a tax plan which would be unfair to the manufacturer. He says in part:

Ohio United in Strenuous Protest Against 10% Tax

Resolutions unanimously endorsing the action of the Northeastern Ohio district meeting, on May 8, in opposition to the 10% tax on gross receipts, and urging a direct tax on incomes, were passed at the state business convention called by State Secretary W. H. Horsey, in Cleveland, on May 15. The result was sent at once to Ohio's representatives at Washington, and National President Lee Ochs.

The attendance was disappointing, neither Dayton, Cincinnati, Columbus nor Toledo being represented.

The election of officers resulted as follows: State president, Ben J. Sawyer; vice-presidents, E. M. Mandelbaum; secretary, W. H. Horsey; treasurer, George Heinbuch; national vice-president for Ohio, Samuel Bullock.

Milwaukee Exhibitors Call Convention to Face Tax

Asserting that the proposed war tax of 10 per cent on the gross receipts of motion picture theatres would drive the majority of the houses there out of business, Milwaukee members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League have decided to call a State convention to consider the question on May 31 and June 1.

The election of delegates will take place for the National Convention at Chicago in July.

The imposition of the tax would be oppressive, it was declared, because of the heavy overhead cost of producing and exhibiting pictures. A considerable percentage of moving picture houses in this city and state are not now making ends meet.

The exhibitors declared they are willing to stand a tax of 10 or 15 per cent on net receipts, but they take the stand that they should not be compelled to pay a special tax on a losing business.

Protest against the proposed assessment will be sent to the Wisconsin members of Congress, to whom it will be represented that the exhibitors are willing to pay any just tax that may be devised.

Seelye Urges Canada's System in Letter to Salesmen

C. R. Seelye, general manager of Pathe, addressed himself in a letter last week to all Pathe Exchange managers and salesmen in which he outlined more fully the various points brought out in his brief filed at Washington. He says that the Canadian plan is most logical and will prove to be completely satisfactory, if it goes into effect, and he adds that whatever tax is imposed upon the industry will be felt sooner or later at the box-office anyway.

New York State Owners in Tax Protest

The offices of Buffalo Congressmen in Albany are being flooded with telegrams from local theater managers protesting the proposal to tax their gross receipts ten per cent. Managers charge the tax is unjust, discriminatory, and unfair.

Mark, who has large interests in Buffalo as well as other houses, is active in Albany in opposing the measure.

“Impossible to Raise Admissions to Uneven Figures”

“It is foolish to fight the war tax. It would be still more foolish for us to try to raise prices to $1.00, to $1.50, and at that price, the tax is certain to prevent a large number of houses from being opened this summer.

“Impossible to Raise Admissions to Uneven Figures”

“Impossible to Raise Admissions to Uneven Figures”

“It is foolish to fight the war tax. It would be still more foolish for us to try to raise prices to $1.00, to $1.50, and at that price, the tax is certain to prevent a large number of houses from being opened this summer.

“Impossible to Raise Admissions to Uneven Figures”

“I would like to see prices raised to $1.50, but the tax prevents us from doing it. The exhibitors are willing to pay any just tax that may be devised.”

Seelye Urges Canada’s System in Letter to Salesmen

C. R. Seelye, general manager of Pathe, addressed himself in a letter last week to all Pathe Exchange managers and salesmen in which he outlined more fully the various points brought out in his brief filed at Washington. He says that the Canadian plan is most logical and will prove to be completely satisfactory, if it goes into effect, and he adds that whatever tax is imposed upon the industry will be felt sooner or later at the box-office anyway.

New York State Owners in Tax Protest

The offices of Buffalo Congressmen in Albany are being flooded with telegrams from local theater managers protesting the proposal to tax their gross receipts ten per cent. Managers charge the tax is unjust, discriminatory, and unfair.

Concerted Efforts of Industry for Liberty Loan

Every Branch of Film Industry Preparing for Country-wide Campaign—Loan

With the announcement from Washington that the Liberty Loan was to be solicited by the Government, there was not an organization or institution which responded with greater enthusiasm than the Motion Picture Industry. Their most effective channels of publicity and their purveyors have been thrown wide open to their country and not a stone has been left unturned to further in every way possible the Government’s plans.

Immediately upon receipt of the information relative to the Liberty Loan, prominent members of the film industry assembled and mapped out the most effective plans for aiding the Government in their plans. Committees were appointed, represented by every angle of the trade and men with recognized executive ability were placed at the head. The names of the executive officers, and the personnel of the various committees appointed will be given below.

Perhaps the most effective manner in which the industry can assist the Government with its Liberty Loan plans is through its powerful medium of placing the facts before the public. In view of this fact the various film companies have taken concerted action amongst the publicity bureaus and the most effective and far reaching methods of exploiting the loan have been devised and steps taken to put the machinery into action. Not alone has the industry taken steps to get the matter before the public but within their own organizations there has been plans laid whereby Liberty Loan Bonds will be handled.

"On Trial" is First Buy of Exhibitors’ Circuit

Essanay Film Purchased by Foremost Exhibitors—Rothafel Arranges Presentation For Other Members—Sanger Amusement Corporation Replaces Pearce

The First National Exhibitors’ Circuit, which organization was set forth exclusively in these pages a number of weeks ago, has bought its first film, "On Trial," from the Essanay Company.

As arranged when the company was formed, prints were submitted to the seven directors of the company, and passed on by them before the purchase was made.

It was learned Saturday that Josiah M. Pearce & Sons, of New Orleans, have withdrawn from the First National Exhibitors’ Circuit, and have been replaced by the Sanger Amusement Corporation, of New Orleans. Josiah M. Pearce was one of the incorporators of the circuit.

S. L. Rothafel, of the Rialto, New York, president of the circuit, has devised several striking innovations for the presentation of "On Trial," and the other members of the circuit will get the benefit of his original ideas, in fact, as well as his distinctive musical setting, lighting, and off-stage effects. It is intended that members of the circuit shall have the benefit of his genius in the line of picture presentation for all subsequent shows purchased by the organization, and at the same time each member will receive ideas from other members whenever any of them hits upon a novel effect which will enhance the value of a production.

Several important purchases are now being negotiated, and announcement of the pictures selected will be made in the near future.

Carolina’s Protest Hints at Chicago Clean-up

President Wells, Aroused by War Tax Situation, Makes Starting Charges, but Promises Full Attendance at Chicago "To Clean Up the League"

Illustrating the wide differences of opinion within the industry in propounding a satisfactory war tax scheme and the limits to which the situation has driven many exhibitors is the following communication which we are publishing in full at the request of P. W. Wells, president of the North Carolina Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League. President Wells’ attitude, believed to be held by many exhibitors, is among the many reasons for the hurry call for a meeting in Washington of representatives of the entire industry. This gathering, in addition to formulating a plan of campaign satisfactory to all, is expected to show the good faith of the manufacturers and larger exhibiting interests.

President Wells presents this case in the manner of a lawyer preparing for court trial. In line with his request we are publishing it here in full and without alteration:

Monday ten o’clock. In the fight to the finish for a tax on net profits finally but for opposition so-called National League.

That was the message wired to President Percy W. Wells from Secretary H. R. Varner and Attorney A. F. Sonis, of the North Carolina Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League last Sunday night.

To go back a bit. In response to a wire, Mr. Varner wrote Mr. Wells more than two weeks ago—May 20—that it appeared at long last that if there was some movement on foot among the New York exhibitors and manufacturers to submit a tax scale which would run the small exhibitors out of business, thereby giving them an opportunity to amalgamate and control practically the industry in the United States. Mr. Varner submitted this letter, with other data, to the Exhibitor’s League, and it was refused. Mr. Varner’s original charge was made after Congressmen Kitchin had told Mr. Sams personally that cer- tain individuals purporting to represent the National League had already been to him and propounded such a measure in relaxing the tax as valued excise, and that the present telegrams began to pour in on both Mr. Wells and Mr. Wells on the subject of the League and its right-hand men trying to conciliate the North Carolina exhibitors who are "kicked out of harness" when the prospect of contact with the exhibitors will be met.

That Mr. Varner found conditions just as foreseen is revealed by a telegram from Washington, which was shown by the telegram above mentioned.

Metro Absorbs Producers and Increases Capital 600%

Same Officers Re-elected—Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., Columbia Pictures Corporation and Popular Plays and Players Taken Over—Capitalization Increased from $400,000 to $2,600,000

June 9, 1917

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Metro Absorbs Producers and Increases Capital 600%

IN a statement from the Metro Pictures Corporation reaching Motion Picture News office Friday afternoon was the announcement that that concern, which has heretofore been engaged merely in the business of distribution, has absorbed three of its producing competitors.

The three producing concerns are Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., Columbia Pictures Corporation and Popular Plays and Players, Inc.

At the same time the capital stock of the company has been increased from $400,000 to $2,600,000, or an increase of over 600 per cent. All of the new stock has been subscribed for.

At the latest directors' meeting the existing officers were re-elected. The Metro personnel is as follows:

The Yorke-Metro Company, which, under the direction of Fred J. Balshofer, produces the Harold Lockwood pictures, will shortly be absorbed.

The three New York manufacturers now a part of the Metro organization will be operated at the new Metro studios at 3 West Sixty-first street, with B. A. Rolfe, formerly president of the Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., as general manager.

Maxwell Karger, who was identified with both the Rolfe and Columbia companies, will make special productions at another studio. The Yorke productions will, as before, be made in California at the Hollywood studios.

It was announced at the Metro offices that this reorganization was the first step toward Metro's entrance into the field as a contender for first honors, and that this step was merely the means of putting the Metro house in order to meet the new conditions and enlarge its field of activities.

The new system under which Metro will operate has occupied the attention of the board of directors and the Metro executive committee for more than six months, and the plan that has been perfected permits of the placing of specialists at the head of each unit of the organization.

Mr. Rolfe has completed the organization of a new scenario department, which will provide Karger, in plays and shorts, already in hand and will work on a schedule that will give more time to the working out of the details of the screen dramas. A double director system will be inaugurated, so that directors will work one month actively in the taking of the picture, and then spend one month in the cutting of the product finished and in preparation for a new script. In this way such stars as Ethel Barrymore, Emmy Wehlen, Viola Dana and Mabel Taliaferro will be directed alternately by two directors.

This system has been decided upon in order to insure a better product and to combat the greatest expense of the picture business, aside from the star's salary—the studio overhead—the high "upkeep" cost.

Metro's production plans in full will be announced within the near future, as soon as each of the details is perfected. Under the new system the exhibitor will be permitted to book the program or contract for the stars, thus placing Metro in the position of being neither for nor against the open or closed policy and neither for nor against the program policy, but striking a new plan which is likely to solve the problems which both systems present.

It is announced that Maxwell Karger's first three productions will be seven-reel specials, with Emmy Wehlen in "Empty Pockets," the novel by Capt. Rupert Hughes; Viola Dana in the world-known play, "Blue Jeans"; Emily Stevens in a picture which has not as yet been christened.

Frank and Choyinski Expelled from League

THE factional strife within the Chicago Exhibitor's League, came to a head last week, when at a special meeting of the league members on Wednesday afternoon, May 23, Louis H. Frank, manager, and M. Choyinski, Adolph Powell and Henry Schoenstadt, all charged with being undesirable members and having pursued conduct unbecoming members of the organization in the past year were expelled from the organization by vote of the members.

Frank and Choyinski were leaders of the faction that were in power last year, and were heads of the convention and exposition committee in 1916, until they were ousted early in this year.

Frank brought suit several weeks ago for $50,000 damage against Peter J. Schaefer, Robert Hopp, Lee Ochs, and Thomas Furniss, now the leaders of the faction in control of the Chicago league and the national body.

He charged Schaefer with libel for certain alleged aspersions cast upon his honesty, when control of the convention funds last year, and all of the other five with conspiracy in ousting him from the managership of the coming convention.

Directly after the serving of the papers in the suit Frank and Choyinski were served with notice that they were to appear before the special meeting of the league, which was held last Wednesday. The charges against them were signed by John Frank, and Paul J. Sweeney. The latter is treasurer of the Chicago league and secretary of the national organization.

While they have always been aligned with the Frank-Choyinski forces, the cases of Powell and Schoenstadt had no bearing on the suit or recent political fight within the league. They, it seems, were charged with being disturbers and are alleged to have created so much discord within the league that they were dangerous. Powell recently appeared before a hearing on the Geurnsey Censorship Bill, held in Chicago, and is said to have advanced views and made endorsements of the Geurnsey Bill in direct opposition to the policy of the Chicago league.

About forty-eight members of the league gathered at the special meeting and trial of the quarter last Wednesday. The meeting was a closed one, and members of the press and trade journal representatives were barred. The vote for the expulsion of Frank and Choyinski was 25 in favor and 20 against. Powell is said to have had the majority against him.

Clara Young and Lewis Selznick in Legal Battle

Clara Kimball Young has entered suit against Lewis J. Selznick, and Mr. Selznick has notified his lawyers to take the cudgels of defense.

According to the complaint all the money she has received has been a weekly salary of $1,000, whereas, she was promised stock and a share in the profits. Young asserts that three of her pictures, namely, "Father of the Bride," "The Price She Paid," and "The Foolish Virgin," earned more than $600,000 in six months, and that Mr. Selznick made $235,000 in selling the film rights.

Frank and Choyne Expelled from League

In the hearing room Choyne made a long speech demanding knowledge of specific charges against him and also delivered a scathing diatribe against the faction opposing him. When he left the room after the vote was taken in his case, he declared to the assembled members and to the press that he would bring a libel action against Peter J. Schaefer, charging him with libel and demanding $100,000 in damages. Later he announced that Frank and he would appeal, their expulsion before the national convention in July.

Neither Schoenstadt nor Powell were present at the hearing. Schoenstadt is one of the biggest exhibitors in Chicago.

Master Dramas Announce "Who's Your Daughter?"

"Who's Your Daughter?" from the pen of Willard Mack, is announced by the Master Drama Features, Inc., as a new release. The production is in seven reels, and was stag ed by S. Rankin Drew. Among the prominent names in the cast are Christene Mayo, Evelyn Brent, Anders Randolf and Frank Morgan.

The exhibitors pay for film rental about 130 million dollars per year. Five per cent of this amount would yield the seven million that the government wishes from the producers.

A tax of five per cent on all films rented to the exhibitor has been suggested instead of the destructive footage tax. The Rockefeller kind of films, that the government would probably receive only two million dollars the first year and practically nothing thereafter.

The producers must pass this amount along to the exhibitor. Therefore the producers must pass this amount along to the exhibitor. Therefore the producers must pass this amount along to the exhibitor.

Yet on the basis of the present footage issue this tax would yield the government only seven million dollars per year and the footage would necessarily decrease to a point where the tax falls on the day laborers instead of the Rockefeller kind of films, that the government would probably receive only two million dollars in the first year and practically nothing thereafter.

Indiana Houses Contemplate Admission Increase

Motion picture exhibitors in many Indiana cities are considering advancing prices as soon as the war tax is placed on admission. According to reports from the revenue measure now before the Congress, the end of the five-cent show seems a certainty. It is probable that a meeting of the Indiana Exhibitors' Association may be called to consider plans to meet increased costs if the industry is hit hard by the revenue measure.

South Bend managers expect to do away with the five-cent show, and also in crease prices on the better programs now given at cheap admission. George Hines, manager of the Auditorium theatre, says that at the present "no raise of price" will be made, but that an advance will be necessary as soon as the proposed war measure is passed.
Hodkinson and Pawley Leave Triangle—Lynch is President

S. A. Lynch, of Tandy and Lynch, New President—Big New Plans Afoot—Hodkinson Discontinues Forum Films Indefinitely—Sells Triangle Stock to Lynch—Other Triangle Officers Remain

FOLLOWING directors' meetings and closed conferences in the Triangle Distribution Corporation's offices, which have covered a period of two weeks or more, a Motion Picture News representative was told by William W. Hodkinson, president of that concern and of Superpictures, Inc., and formerly president of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, had tendered his resignation.

Raymond Pawley, who came with Mr. Hodkinson from Paramount to become treasurer of the Triangle Distributing Corporation, also handed in his resignation Friday afternoon.

Mr. Hodkinson and Mr. Pawley simultaneously resigned as president and treasurer of Superpictures, Inc.

S. A. Lynch, of Tandy & Lynch, of Asheville, N. C., the well-known firm of Southern exhibitors, has been elected president and successor Mr. Hodkinson. Mr. Tandy will participate in Triangle distributing activities, although his official title has not yet been announced.

H. O. Davis, general manager of the Triangle Producing Corporation, who resigned from Universal nearly a month ago to join Harry E. Attkin's forces, speaking of Triangle's future activities in the producing and distributing field, told Motion Picture News that Triangle's object would be to sell not films but service to the exhibitor. Mr. Davis will make a complete statement regarding Triangle's future plans when "everything is ready."

An important meeting will be held in the Triangle's offices next Tuesday, at which various points in Triangle's development and new distributing policies will be thrashed out.

Concurrent with the announcement made by Mr. Hodkinson of his withdrawal from Triangle comes that of the discontinuance of Forum Films, Inc., which was organized by Mr. Hodkinson last winter to distribute the Edison Conquest pictures holdings.

Mr. Hodkinson is at present undecided whether he will take up the Forum idea again in the fall or not. One of the chief faults Mr. Hodkinson had to find with the Forum plan was that exhibitors do not consider five reels a complete program, and that on further consideration he decides seven reels to be the proper length. If the Edison Conquest plan is carried out in the fall it will contain seven reels of "balanced pictures," and not five.

Kenneth Hodkinson, W. W. Hodkinson's son, who was manager of Forum, tendered his resignation a week ago.

S. W. Hodkinson had just signed his resignation as president of the Triangle Distributing Corporation when a Motion Picture News representative called at his office.

Mr. Hodkinson had very little to say for publication beyond the bare fact that his resignation had been accepted and that Mr. Lynch had bought out his holdings.

"I have faith in the future of the motion picture," said Mr. Hodkinson, "or else I would not have devoted the last seven years to it."

"Do you intend to continue your business relations with Mr. Collins of McClure Pictures?" Mr. Hodkinson was asked.

"No," said Mr. Hodkinson.

"What are your plans for the future?"

"I am going fishing," said Mr. Hodkinson.

Selznick Opens Doors to Independent Producers

Will Handle Any Real High Class Picture Offered—Able to Handle More Subjects Than Affiliated Companies Can Make—Promises Profits

THE Selznick distributing system is to be thrown open to independent producers. The announcement from the New York office last week, following shortly on the adoption of open booking, further stated that the organization would be a huge clearing house for high-class pictures.

"When I organized my distributing system," says Mr. Selznick, "it was because I was compelled to break through the barriers. I wanted a system, as perfect. Various observant gentlemen agree with me in this, such as Ben H. Hampton, who transferred his pictures over to me the world rights to 'The Barrier'; Marcus Loew, who turned over his rights to 'The Whip' for New York state, and others.

"This distributing system has become so efficient that I am now able to market more pictures than the affiliated companies can make. For this reason, I am opening the door to the independents. I invite all producers to bring me their output. It will be subjected to the most critical scrutiny, and those productions which come up to the mark will be accepted.

"I believe this will be hailed as the best news of the year by producers, many of whom have been turning out pictures of a high order, with no means of getting them before the exhibitors profitably. The only distributing concerns which were in a position to take outside productions have been handling so many inferior films that they were not in touch with exhibitors who wanted the higher grade of photographs. As a result, many independent producers have lost money, or barely broken even, on pictures that should have been big financial successes.

"I am going to do for the moving picture industry what the news company has done for publishers—provide the manufacturer with the quickest and most effective means of reaching his market. The result will be bigger profits for both producer and exhibitor, as it will stimulate the creation of photographs of the very best quality."
Kaplan's Russian Films Now Being Prepared

American Producer Who Returned Recently from Moscow with Films of Russian Novelists' Adventures Exciting Trip Across Siberia to Get Home

NATHAN S. KAPLAN, an American producer, who went to Russia several years ago and returned about one month ago with series of films made by special arrangement with the imperial government, is now preparing to launch his product on the American market.

Mr. Kaplan established a studio at Moscow and with Mrs. Kaplan made a thorough study of Russian literature, having all of the films upon the works of such well known Russian novelists as Tolstoy, Turgeneff, Dostoevsky, Pushkin and others.

In a talk with a Motion Picture News representative last week Mr. Kaplan spoke interestingly of his thrilling journey out of Russia with the films, amounting virtually to an escape.

"We arrived at Petrograd on the day that the revolutionists took hold," said Mr. Kaplan. "Mrs. Kaplan and I were under fire a number of times before we reached the railroad station. Many of the police who will remain loyal to the old government found themselves in a new position with machine guns and shot everybody within range on the streets.

"Every automobile carried two armed soldiers, who lay on the running boards with rifles pointed ahead. Every so often we would hear a noise like ratlineskets, and could see the pavement ahead of us or to one side being chipped by the bullets from the machine guns. Our escape was miraculous.

"When we arrived at the railroad station we found it ablaze. It cost me more than five thousand rubles in 'tips' to bagagemen and others to get our trunks of films aboard.

"We were the only passengers on the trip across Siberia. The train left Petrograd in such a hurry that the kitchen car was overlooked. We went without food for nearly a day.

"In Vladivostock we were held up three hours while customs officers wrangled. At first they insisted that the films should not leave the country, one reason being that it is a punishable offense to ship goods of any nature out of Russia. The other reason was that the imperial order permitting us to take the films out was no good, because the monarchy had become a republic during our trip."

Mr. and Mrs. Kaplan made the remainder of the trip in safety. They are now engaged in cutting, fitting and assembling the films for the American market, and are taking their time.

Mr. Kaplan says the most important message he has just now is that he "is certainly glad to get back home. I've had enough of Russia, although of course I hope to go back after the war."

Optimism and Warning Vie in Rothacker Address

President of Big Chicago Firm to Speak Before St. Louis Ad Convention on Importance of Screen as an Advertising Medium

WILLIAM R. ROThACKER, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, has left Chicago to attend the St. Louis convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World to be held beginning May 3.

Mr. Rothacker will address the convention, expounding on the value of the motion picture as an advertising medium. It is his belief that the best advertisement is never written, because pictures are the superlative ad medium and exceed the limitations of any pen.

Advance indications are that his talk will be of a most optimistic trend and will touch pointedly on the intensive and proper use of moving pictures in advertising.

He will tell of his faith in the screen as a selling medium, and of his certainty that results will always be obtained if judicious methods are employed.

Failure of moving pictures to efficiently advertise Mr. Rothacker will lay to any one of a number of reasons, such as poor analysis of the business in hand, injudicious use of funds, lack of preparation on the part of the prospective advertiser, faulty production and camera work.

The lack of a fixed price among the many men advocating the purchase of moving picture advertising is held by Mr. Rothacker as the basis for the element of speculation in the sale of pictures to the prospective purchaser. This lack of stability will be forcefully emphasized.

A portion of his address will be devoted to urging that the men in the picture business get together and have a complete understanding of the serious and important nature of the work—their work beyond merely expounding theories or talking for oratorical effect.

"The fact that no state adopted legalized censorship this winter despite the fact that bills proposing it were introduced to legislatures of over twenty-five states, is an illuminating fact," says Cranston Bronton, chairman of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. "Practically all of the various elements interested in the production, exhibition and publicity of motion pictures contributed to this result. One force which perhaps was not as apparent as some of the others, was the undercurrent developed by the Better Films Movement. Of importance also were the decisions of the National Board of Review regarding 'white slave' films, and the agreement reached with the producing companies following the suggestion of D. W. Griffith, that the nude should be eliminated and the recognition that the elimination of certain types of films was demanded.

"Mothers of Men." First Robards Picture, Completed

Filmimg of the initial production of the Robards Players has been completed, and Willis Robards, producer and co-author, as well as one of the featured players of the subject, is now in Los Angeles supervising the editing of the film. It is entitled "Mothers of Men," and is heralded as the greatest tribute of the motion picture age to the power of woman. Hal Reid, author of many stage successes and successful books, wrote the original story for this photoplay of timely import. The author and producer have given to this story one of the greatest plots imaginable, and in the making selected well-known players for every role, no matter how small the part. Dorothy Davenport, starred in several Bluebirds and featured in Lasky subjects, plays the all-important part, with Mr. Robards in the opposite lead, with a cast which includes Hal Reid, Arthur Taveras, of "Ramon" fame, Kathrine Griffith, Marcella Russell, George Kern and many others.

Plans are shortly to be completed for a trade showing, and the owners announce the subject will be sold by state rights.

Marriage Claims Rutli Roland

Ruth Roland, star in Pathé's latest serial, "The Neglected Wife," was married on May 16 to Lionel T. Kent of Los Angeles. A quiet trip to Patchogue, L. I., where the license was obtained, was followed by the performance of the ceremony at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

"And I will not be a neglected wife, either," smilingly said the Pathé star.

Burton Holmes Notes Better Picture Conditions

Paramount’s Traveloguer Finds Improvement in Foreign Countries, Due to Prevalence of American Methods—American Pictures Have Monopoly

FILM conditions in foreign countries have been found greatly improved by Burton Holmes, traveler and lecturer, who spends six months of every year gathering new material for Paramount Travel Pictures. Mr. Holmes some weeks ago set sail for foreign shores to provide new material for his screen travelogues.

"Conditions in the film industry in every country that I have already passed through have improved wonderfully since last I was here," wrote Mr. Holmes to one of the officials of Paramount, from Sydney, Australia.

"There is a great demand for American pictures, and there are over four times as many theatres in each community now than were here some years ago. The American manufacturer of motion pictures is so far in advance of any of his foreign brothers, that there has been no opposition when he talks of quality and service. There is a corresponding increase of advanced in the type of theatres and their modes of management also. They have gone over the American idea in its every detail, and when you walk into any of the theatres here to see a Paramount Picture, you receive the same amount of courteous attention you would receive from the first class houses on Broadway.

"It has been the American influence in the motion picture industry that has brought this all about in the foreign countries. They have followed the modern methods of exhibiting to the last letter, and in many of the cities they rank with the best." Mr. Holmes stated also that he secured some very remarkable pictures of his travels, and that the results of this six months’ trip would far exceed his expectations.

Carl Anderson

WHICH DO YOU REACH FOR FIRST?

The book with the bright red cover is read from cover to cover—FIRST!

Carl Anderson

Carl Anderson, president of Paralta Plays, Inc., is one of the real pioneers in the moving picture industry. He entered the business of producing and exhibiting moving pictures in the year 1897. He personally made a moving picture of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee Procession in London for the American Bioscope in that year. This consisted of six to seven reels, each one hundred feet in length, and was said to be the first multiple-reel moving picture of record. This picture was first presented in London.

After its exhibition, Mr. Anderson hooked the American Bioscope on the European Continent, opening at the Circus Barite, a variety theatre in Rotterdam, Holland. At that time variety attractions were booked for one month in continental cities instead of one week as was customary here. The American Bioscope, however, being an experimental attraction, was only booked for one week. This was an unusual booking, and was due to the utter disbelief of the manager that the attraction had any lasting merit.

After the second night the business the Bioscope drew was so great that the manager made a hurried booking. If not bookings been made with other managers in various parts of Europe, who came to Rotterdam expressly to see these American motion pictures.

Mr. Anderson showed the American Bioscope Pictures in all the principal theatres of Europe, his tour occupying fully two years. He made motion pictures of all the crowned heads of Europe with the exception of the Sultan of Turkey and King of Spain, and personally met all these monarchs. King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, Queen Wilmemina of Holland, and the President of France, all requesting private exhibitions of these pictures at their palaces. On two different occasions after Mr. Anderson's return to England, Sir Francis Knollys sent him a royal command to appear at Buckingham for special exhibitions for the Prince of Wales.

After remaining abroad for two years and clearing up a considerable sum of money, Mr. Anderson returned to America. The novelty of moving pictures in Europe had begun to wear off, and their value as an attraction in theatres had decreased to a point where the weekly salary basis was not profitable.

At this time motion picture theatres were unknown in this country, and those who remember know that there was a gap between the days of the presentation of moving pictures as a novelty in vaudeville houses and the establishment of moving picture theatres.

After his return to America, Mr. Anderson engaged in the theatrical business, and remained with the Lasky organization until the formation of the Lasky Company, which he joined shortly after its inception. He remained in this field of the amusement business until the formation of the Lasky Company, which he identified with several noteworthy dramatic productions. He remained in this field of the amusement business until the formation of the Lasky Company, which he joined shortly after its inception. He remained with the Lasky organization until the organization of the Paramount, with which he became identified. After leaving the Paramount Company, he made no further connections with moving pictures, giving his attention to the development of problems in electrical science.
"Organization Assures Quality of Castle Films"

The first picture completed, worked on a second begun, and the perfection of the organization behind the series—such is the progress of Pathé on the Gold Rooster plan, according to Mrs. Vera Zuzak. The title of the finished subject is "Sylvia of the Secret Service."

The name of the second picture has not been announced.

"The contract for the producing of the Castle pictures was assumed by the Astra Film Corporation, whose president, Louis J. Gasnier, is recognized as one of the greatest production experts in this country," said Mr. Berst in an interview. "His experience dates from the dawn of film history, and he combines artistic appreciation and ability with the practical common sense of the business man and showman, who knows as nearly as it is possible to know what the public wants.

"Realization that the country-wide success of 'Patria' has established Mrs. Castle with the motion picture millions and that every step must be taken to insure one hit after another led to the selection of George Fitzmaurice as the supervising director of all the Castle pictures.

"It was in order that the entire resources of a splendid studio should be devoted to the Castle productions without in any way interfering with the present work that a

Gaumont Forces Depleted—Men Off to War

With the London and Paris plants depleted of man-power by the war, the Gaumont Company now faces the same condition of affairs at its Flushing, N. Y., studio and laboratory. The first call to the colors takes five of their stars. They are members of Company I of the Tenth New York Regiment, National Guard. This is the Flushing company of this organization. The men who go with the militia unit are: Blundell, B. Homer, S. Field, H. Schaefer and F. Peters. It is expected that the draft for the national army will make further Gaumont inroads.

From the actors who have appeared prominently in Gaumont productions the government has selected for service in the armed forces. R. C. Cropper, president of the Standard Film Corporation, of Kansas City, to New York, has given rise to a rumor that he purposes concluding negotiations for more territory in which to exploit the Art Dramas program.

R. C. Cropper is in conference with Harry Raver, president of Art Dramas, a great part of the time.

He is already distributor for that program for Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota.

The Standard Film Corporation is the largest independent exchange in the United States. It has offices in four cities, and will another in Minneapolis.

Dinner Dance of Pathe Club—Many Stars Present

Members and guests of the Pathé Club, including in their number the executive heads of the Pathe Company, members of the home office, Twenty-third street exchange and Newark exchange organizations, stars, directors and authors associated with the concern, met at one of the largest and most successful affairs in the history of the club at Delmonico's last Saturday night, May 19.

The officers of the club, all of whom were present, are: J. A. Berst, president; Paul Brunet, vice-president; G. Bardet, treasurer; J. W. Kyle, secretary. The board of directors includes M. Ramirez, Torres, G. A. Smith, L. E. Francioni, P. A. Parsons and F. C. Davidson. J. W. Kyle was in himself an entertainment committee with an eye to every detail.

A half hundred stars and prominent picture men were present.

Virginia Exhibitors Hold Rousing Convention

Motion picture men from every section of Virginia met Friday afternoon, at Murphy's Hotel, Richmond, and perfected an organization, having for its object the protection of the motion picture industry in that state; the promotion of cooperation between exhibitors and the development of the picture business as a whole. Forty-one representatives from more than 200 picture houses were in attendance, while a number of representatives from the leading film exchanges of the country, as well as delegates from the North Carolina organization were present.

Jake Wells was named temporary chairman of the meeting, and a committee of nine, representing every section of the State, was named to recommend officers. They reported as follows: President, Jake Wells; vice-president, Elmore D. Heins, of Roanoke; secretary, C. B. Toney, of Richmond; treasurer, M. Geoghegan; national vice-president, Otto Wells, of Norfolk; and a board of directors as follows: Messrs. Collins, Hart, Henry, W. F. Crall and Fryor. These with the president and secretary make up the seven directors of the organization.

A committee was named to draft by-laws and constitution, and Harry Bernstein, of Richmond, was named chairman. The organization will immediately lay plans to get every picture show owner in the State into its fold. A "Picture Star Ball" will be given, at which many of the silent drama performers will be present.

The Virginia organization will be chartered by and affiliated with the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America.

Is the Program a Mirror?

Does your program reflect your theatre or is it a reflection upon it? We are looking at a program on the desk before us which came all the way from the Strand theatre, Marshalltown, Iowa. The cover is as fresh as a spring field. It has a variety of pleasant colors. The type is navy blue, large and easy to read. We imagine the Strand must be a line, upstanding theatre, too.

Attending Virginia Convention

Among the Washington exchange men, who will attend the Virginia State Convention at Richmond, Va., are C. F. Semling of the Fox Film Corporation, and Sidney B. Lust of the Lust Exclusive Service and Selznick Productions.

Herrington Rounds Up Tennessee Exhibitors

Enthusiastic Meeting in Memphis Lays Plans for State Convention—Makes Application for League Charter and Promises Big Chicago Representation

FRED J. HERRINGTON, National League organizer, struck Tennessee last week on his whirlwind tour and left with plans for a real State organization booming along at a stirring speed. A call has already been issued for a State Convention to be held June 19th and 20th, while application has been made for a charter in the National League.

Mr. Herrington found Memphis exhibitors eager to hear his message of organization. They threatened Government war taxes and the always present menace of freak legislation have caused the Memphian theater owners to realize that without organization their State was in a woefully weak position.

Under the leadership of Charles A. McElravy, of the Memphian Amusement Company, a meeting was therefore called immediately on Mr. Herrington's arrival. At the conclusion of the call, after full discussion it was decided not to name the city for the State Convention, but to leave that to the majority of the exhibitors responding to the call.

Responses to the call were immediate and already there is every indication that the initial convention will boast a good attendance. In addition many of the exhibitors have stated their intentions to be present at the National Convention in Chicago in July.

The telegraphed call issued by Mr. McElravy, as acting chairman, follows: "Memphis exhibitors have made application for a State charter from the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America. We ask your cooperation. Are you with us? You know the many forms of drastic legislation that is at all times confronting our business, and further a tax of ten per cent, is now confronting us, and if passed by the Federal Government would put many of us out of business. If J. Herrington, at our request, has called a State Convention for June 19th and 20th. We have named the dates, now you name the city. Wire answer immediately."

Maine Exhibitors Decide to Permanently Organize

Formation of a temporary organization and decision to apply for a charter from the national organization, were important features of the meeting of Maine exhibitors held at the Congress Square Hotel, Portland, Me., May 24.

Alfred S. Black was named temporary chairman, and L. Richmond as temporary secretary and treasurer.

The meeting adjourned for final action, and the election of permanent officers until June 7, when Ernest H. Horstmann, president of the Massachusetts branch will address exhibitors at the Penobscot Exchange, Bangor, Me.

Among those present at the Portland gathering were: W. E. Gray, Lewiston; A. S. Black, Rockland; H. C. Webber, Bath; P. P. Peakes, Milo; S. Hanson, Camden; P. E. Cary, Newport; Wm. Reeves, Portland; F. Egley, Portland; H. J. Mulqueen, Biddeford; L. Richmond, Sanford; A. P. Blaker, Portland; J. W. Grecely, Portland; A. Goodside, Portland; John Goodman, Vinal Haven; Wm. Stithman, Pittsfield.
Building Business in New Territory

How One Exhibitor, with a Large New House on His Hands, Beat His Competitor and New Controls the Town's Best Business

What tactics should an exhibitor use who is just breaking into a new territory? Two years ago there was just one small picture show in Yazoo City, Miss. Today there is one of the very best in the State operating in the city and showing the best pictures obtainable. The question of getting the people in the habit of attending the show was before Mr. and Mrs. Cacum.

At first they put on each night special feature pictures, and maintained an orchestra of six instruments. This did not draw the crowd, as they had been in the habit of attending another small show. Mr. Cacum was losing money, so he cast about for new methods.

He then tried the plan of admitting every lady free on special nights who has accompanied by a charitably one, and gave them all they made over actual expenses. This helped for a while, and in the meantime the little show on Main street went into bankruptcy from poor attendance.

Mr. Cacum tried giving the children that were exempt on examinations free passes. This did not prove to be worth while, so being determined to succeed, he offered every child fourteen years and under a pass all the week, if they bought one ticket on Monday. This has proven the drawing card, as each Monday finds the children coming in droves in the afternoon accompanied by their parents, and at night many of the women who cannot get off in the afternoon come with their children. During the week the parents can come because the children come free, when if they had to pay for both neither would come.

By his untiring efforts Mr. Cacum has built up a fine business in this city in the 28 months that he has been here, and fully justifies the reputation that he has made for a “business builder” in this particular line of business.

Offers Theatre to Aid Education of Immigrants

In line with the policy of the new management of the Dream Moving Picture theatre, Gay street, near Aisquith, Baltimore, Md., Dr. Leonard K. Hirshberg, the proprietor, is seeking to co-operate in a new movement launched by the Talmud Torah Free School Society to make the moving pictures a more practical agency in the education of immigrants.

Philip L. Sykes, president of the United Hebrew Charities, recently conceived the idea of sending a group of pupils from the Free School Society to the moving pictures every week. To help this plan Dr. Hirshberg offered the use of the theatre to the society any afternoon during the week without charge.

Exhibitors to Let Patriotic Speakers Address Audiences

Harry Vail, one of the members of the City War Committee in Cleveland and chairman of the sub-committee on aliens and patriotism, last Tuesday enlisted the aid of the motion picture exhibitors of Cleveland, in the work of putting the public into a more serious mental state, such as the present war complications necessitate.

Mr. Vail, in behalf of the War Committee, which consists of the leading professional and business men in town, requested that each theatre donate ten minutes of its time to some prominent speaker, who would try to instill some ideas of the danger that is besetting the country at present. “There is too much feeling of security,” said Mr. Vail. “The people do not realize that the even trend of life no longer exists. Now, we feel that if we can gain the attention of the people, all of whom can be found at a picture theatre some of the time, a great good can be accomplished.”

Advertise Michigan Convention

A. J. Moeller, secretary of the Michigan Exhibitors’ League, is sending out a second letter urging attendance at the annual convention to take place in Grand Rapids, Hotel Pontiac, June 12 and 13.

Floor Space Selling Rapidly for Philadelphia Convention

With the Philadelphia Exhibitors of the League hustling, with all the committees hustling, with all the sweetharts and wives hustling, it is a foregone conclusion that the forthcoming convention of the Pennsylvania Exhibitors’ League to be held in Philadelphia, June 25, 26 and 27, will be a big success.

The promise of the League to make this the biggest of its kind ever screened, bids fair to be realized.

The floor space and the pages of the souvenir program are both booking at such a fast clip, the committee in charge expect to have every inch disposed of before June 1.

Stars of the first magnitude will glitter in the firmament of film folk which S. E. Blatt and his entertainment committee have secured to shine on this occasion. The banquet will be held at Hotel Adelphia.

The Ladies’ Reception Committee, which will have charge of the feminine guests, are: Mrs. J. O’Donnell, Mrs. C. H. Goodwin, Mrs. B. Amsterdam, Mrs. E. M. Greenberg, Miss M. Reeves and Miss M. Strain.

The committees appointed are as follows:

GENERAL EXPOSITION COMMITTEE (Space, Programs and Stars)—H. Amsterdam, 1215 Vine street (chairman and treasurer); J. O’Donnell, 1420 Pt. Breeze ave; H. Goodwin, 606 Abbott building; S. Blatt, 6112 South third street; R. Shindler, 1734 Ridge avenue; B. Altman, Suquehanna theater, 1710 Suquehanna avenue.

PUBLICITY AND MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE—C. H. Goodwin, 606 Abbott building (chairman); F. Greenberg, Holmesburg, Holmesburg; H. Hustler, Keystone theater, 2543 E. Dauphin street; H. Brennan, 2029 South third street; Wm. Pierce, 1127 Vine street.

ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE—S. Blatt, Owl theatre, Twenty-third and South streets (chairman); B. Shindler, 1734 Ridge avenue; C. Burghart, 1106 North Thirty-first street, Star theater; B. Altman, 1709 Columbia avenue; T. O’Donnell, Premier theatre, 1420 Pt. Breeze avenue; P. Sprul, Coliseum theatre, Nineteenth and Columbia avenue; W. Boyd, Jumbo theatre, Front and Girard avenue; C. Stanger, Coliseum theatre, Fifty-ninth and Market streets; J. Miller, Granada theater, 1200 Market street; L. Lewis, Tingle, 1321 Fairmount avenue; S. B. Blatt, 1709 Columbia street; Geo. Case, Howard, Columbia, 1731 Democrats, 1709 Connecticut street; Geo. Hausdorfer, Cambria theater, Twenty-fifth and Cambria street; Rensiek, Premier theatre, 1420 Pt. Breeze avenue.
Women and Exhibitors Co-operate in Omaha Special Programs

Out in Omaha Mrs. W. S. Knight reports that the motion picture committee of which she is chairman has made a most profitable study of motion pictures this Winter. After getting the programs for Saturday mornings for the young people under way they prepared a questionnaire for use in the various theatres and spent several weeks visiting the motion picture houses. "This part of the work," she reports, "has been the means of bringing us into very pleasant co-operation with the managers of the various theatres and we have learned many things from them and gotten an insight into their problems. They have always been most generous and willing to do everything that we wanted for our programs, and more. In many frank talks with them about pictures in general we have found their ideals as high as our own, and without making any effort to change the kind of pictures shown the tendency is towards better things all the time."

She concludes: "All this has its effect, and we frequently hear the remarks that pictures in certain theaters have improved so much."

Exhibitor Shows His Own Play

Exhibitor Frank R. Adams, of the Nufner-Adams Playhouse, Whitehall, Mich., had a rare privilege this week in showing his patrons a World-Wide production filmed by the manager personally. Mr. Adams is a novelist as well as theater manager, and has several of his books now in the process of being converted into pictures, which will all be exhibited, as soon as produced, in his own theatre.

"The Page Mystery," starring Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge, is the first one to reach completion.

Another Program That Pays Its Board

Manager Edward L. Hyman, Victoria theatre, Buffalo, N. Y., distributes a program to his patrons that earns its board and room. And it is a good-looking program as well, printed on clean buff paper with thoughtful and effective type arrangement.

Every week the Victoria program's twelve pages carry about $60 of advertising.

The pages carry more than advertising. They show thought and sincerity of purpose with a desire to make good with the public.

Every week a cheerful message is printed at the top of the cover. May sixth, for example, the message was: "As an honest expression of appreciation for the men who wear soldier uniforms, the Victoria offers to them the best seats in the theatre."

Another week it said: "Don't restrict your spring cleaning to the home and yard! What about yourself? Brighten up with smiles and happiness at the Victoria."

If the program is a mirror, we have a firm notion that the Victoria is a pretty fine place to go.

Rally 'Round the Flag, Boys

"Stock, common and preferred, in the Star Spangled Rumper seems to have been affected by a strong bull market, to use a term from Wall street."

The Roanoke, American, Jefferson and Isis theatres all use the same program. In a recent issue Old Glory floated through that program twenty-one times. Roanoke must be a patriotic community.

Aside from the Red, White and Blue, the program contains an astounding amount of advertising, probably fifty per cent.

SPARKS OF GENIUS

MANAGER BLANK who runs the Garden theatre in Des Moines, Iowa, hired a girl to dress up in a suit of armor and ride through the town on a horse with a flag and banner to advertise "Womanhood."

WHERE a desert or a circus is handy, Manager Frank Hall's idea of advertising "The Garden of Allah" is excellent. Mr. Hall who runs the Strand theatre, Newark, N. J., hired a caravan of real camels and decorated the street in front of his theatre with them.

MANAGER PAUL V. PHILIPS, recognizing that, next to the motion picture the automobile is the greatest invention of the age, sends neat programs to "movie fans" in towns near his (Durham, N. C.). On pleasant evenings, folks from the surrounding towns motor over just for the fun of seeing a good show in a different locality.

J. S. WOODHOUSE has done wonders with one small word. Mr. Woodhouse manages the Minneapolis Lagoon theatre. He wanted the Lagoon to personify pop. So he acquired the finest orchestra in the community and named it "the jazz band." He advertised jazz, and he made people come to find out what jazz meant. The word jazz has made the Lagoon famous.

Whenever you have a "spark of genius," why not let us know about it to help along the other fellow?

The Gallant Mr. Hightower

Robert Hightower, managing the Crystal theatre, Dublin, Ga., runs his establishment on the belief that when there is a theatre to go to the ladies do the choosing. Accordingly, he helps them whenever he has the chance. When the ladies of the Episcopal church wanted a picture for a social he gave them the pick of his week's program. He gave them the theatre one night free and conducted their advertising campaign without charge.

When the Red Cross society started a special campaign Mr. Hightower offered his lobby.

Unusual Tribute by Audience to Sarah Bernhardt

Cognizant of the serious illness of Sarah Bernhardt, and enthused at the presentation of "Mothers of France," prominent people in the audience at the Alhambra theatre, New York, on the night of May 6 paid the unusual tribute to the noted actress of jointly signing a telegram which was sent her to the hospital. The wire expressing the appreciation of Madame Bernhardt's work, and trusting for an early recovery was signed by a committee representing the audience. Christine Mayo, the actress, was one of the signers.

A message of thanks and appreciation of theprompting spirit was sent by Madame Bernhardt from her sick bed.

"Pearl of the Army Ends," "Mystery of the Double Cross Begins," "Three-day Engagement, Thursday, Friday and Saturday," "Extra attraction, Pauline Frederick in 'Sapho'" were the four important announcements by the Queen theatre, Knoxville, Tenn., on the back page of Queen News, a small program issued by that house. The page of Queen News is 4 x 5 1/2 inches, or measuring to outer edge of type border only, just 3 3/4 x 5 inches. In this little space the above important announcements were made, each distinct and separate from the other, and besides a "double cross" made of six-point rules was incorporated, yet still leaving white space around each announcement and good sized type at that.

The illustration herewith shows better than description how it was done. The only rule observed was to mark each announcement separate from each other by either rule, distinct type face, or white space setting off from the rest.

Designing ads., with the simple object in view of making them stand out from the type around them, can be very profitably practiced by any manager. A given type space is worth only what business its use will induce. The first principle of advertising is to have your ad read at a glance. Hence just enough, and not too much, space around it to assure, most everybody will read it is the right "balance." There are people who would not see a full page ad., and others who would see two lines hidden away in the furthest corner of the sheet, but the average reader is the only one you can afford to try to reach by either display or news column ads.

M. Kashin Is One of Our Livest

M. Kashin, manager of the Midway theatre, Montreal, Ont., is without exception the livest of our live wire exhibitor-contributors. In the department, this week is a reproduction of one of his excellent lobby displays. Mr. Kashin is a firm believer in the value of a single idea in advertising. All of his lobbies hammer one idea home—give the indifferent passerby a "jolt," and draw his attention to what is going on in the theatre. Mr. Kashin uses colors and cardboard effectively. All of his display show thought, clear knowledge of his subject and an almost uncanny sense of what will appeal to the public.

We will publish more of his ideas from time to time.

Friendly Cards from Barrymore

A novel stunt that did much to make the Ethel Barrymore week at the Merrill theatre, a record breaker was a postcard bearing what appeared to be a personal appeal to the person it was sent to from Ethel Barrymore, telling them of her appearance at the Merrill theatre that week. From returns secured, it proved a very inexpensive way of getting business. The card which bore a photograph of Miss Barrymore was printed from a plate and appeared to have been written by Miss Barrymore herself.

This is a simple, though impressive way to get business.

Paramount's Lithograph Corps

Paramount maintains a staff that does nothing but follow lithographs from the moment the idea enters the office until the finished posters are on their way. As many as six and seven colors are used in Paramount lithographs.

J. E. Richards built a special front for his theatre in imitation of a sanitarium when he ran "The Cure." He relied on his own and other local talent to supply the comedy for signs which were posted on the make-believe brick. Some of the signs were: "Steak at 40 cents is pretty tough, but steak at 20 cents is tougher." "Don't shoot the attendant; he is finding joints you did not know you had."
NOTE

In the "Theatricals" section of the page, the text discusses various films and their upcoming screenings. It mentions the release of "The Undying Flame," with Mme. Petrov, and "The Undying Flame," with Miss Dana, among others. The section includes a variety of film reviews and promotions, highlighting the diversity of films available at the time.

The feature article "Ready-Made Ad-Talks" provides a list of ready-made ad-talks for the week, including titles like "Duchess of Doubt," "Duchess of Doubt," "Duchess of Doubt," "Duchess of Doubt," and "Duchess of Doubt.

The "Features" section includes a variety of stories, such as "The Undying Love," with Gladys Leslie, and "The Undying Love," with Miss Dana, among others. These stories emphasize themes of love, family, and happiness, reflecting the popular interests of the time.

The "World News" section contains a variety of news items, including updates on film production and distribution, as well as stories about the people behind the scenes. The section is rich with detail, providing readers with a snapshot of the film industry at the time.

Overall, the page provides a comprehensive overview of the film industry, showcasing the diversity of films and the people behind them. It is a snapshot of the film industry as it evolved during the early 20th century, capturing the excitement and vibrancy of the time.

The newspaper business is somewhat a different enterprise in the West than it is in New York. A newspaper editor there is a? well, Mr. Dashiell is not that kind of editor. The news is discovered by a friend of Brewster and the order is countermanded, defeating the scheme of Bentley. There is plenty of action in "The Mystery of the Meddler" and a strong cast. There is a lesson for all in the story "The Circus of Life" tells on the screen.
ADVANCE OFFERINGS OF THE PROGRAMS

Three Stars in Interesting Paramount Releases

Wallace Reid and Myrtle Stedman appear in “The World Apart.” Mining Becky a Chance”—Klever Komedy

TWO Monogram features, starring three popular players, will be issued on the Paramount program the week of June 4. Wallace Reid and Myrtle Stedman will appear in a mining story called “The World Apart,” while Vivian Martin will star in “Giving Becky a Chance.”

World Apart,” while Vivian Martin will be seen in a production entitled “Giving Becky a Chance.” Reid has the part of Bob Fulton, young mining superintendent, who saves Rosie, a dance hall girl from the attentions of her employer. She falls in love with him, but the affair is not returned.

In the East Clyde Holt, son of the owner of the mine where Bob is employed, gets into trouble and is sent West to work at the mine. He marries Beth Hoover secretly before he leaves, and she gives him her ring to wear. With the dance hall owner Clyde plans to rob the safe of the mining company, is caught by Bob and after a struggle escapes. Beth comes West, arriving the day of the attempted robbery. She sees Clyde’s ring on Bob’s finger, and Bob thinking he has killed Clyde tells her so. He falls in love with Beth only to find she is Clyde’s wife, just as the latter returns. Eventually Clyde is killed, and the other young people are free to marry.

John Burton, Eugene Pallette, Florence Carpenter and Henry A. Barrows are in the cast.

Vivian Martin in “Giving Becky a Chance” is seen as a poor country girl. Sent to boarding school her school mates take her as a wealthy girl. She is invited to one of their homes, and Tom Fielding, a young doctor, falls in love with her. She keeps up her deception, but is eventually found at her shabby home by Tom. Becky is offered an engagement to dance, accepts and on the last night of her engagement is saved by Tom from the advances of another man. All finally ends happily.

Jack Holt, Jack Richardson, P. H. Sosso and Alice Knowlan are in the supporting cast.

Herald “Star Spangled Banner” in Film as Stirring Tale

“The STAR SPANGLED BANNER,” a three reel production from the Thomas A. Edison studios, appears to be a psychological picture of a psychological moment. It deals with a story of life in the American Marine Corps and teaches a lesson in patriotism.

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay have announced its release date June 10, an opportune moment, because during the week of June 10 to 16 the Government is planning a big recruiting drive for the Marine Corps Service.

Naval officials have seen and approved of this picture and have caused it to be known at more than four thousand recruiting stations throughout the United States that it will be released through Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay June 10.

K-R-S-E has in mind a comprehensive supply of advertising for exhibitors, and this will be bolstered by posters, handbills, circulars, lantern slides, store window displays, etc., which the Government will begin distributing June 10 through all of its many recruiting offices.

A regiment of bona fide U. S. Marines assisted in making “The Star Spangled Banner,” and this, it is thought, will be an especially strong feature in connection with soliciting bookings.

The U. S. Marine Corps believe that “The Star Spangled Banner” will be a means of greatly stimulating enlistments, and it is now under consideration to place a uniformed member of the Marine Corps in theatres where “The Star Spangled Banner” will be shown.

Review Board Praises Art Drama

Dates of Fairbanks and Pickford Releases Changed

Release dates of the new Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks productions, now being staged at the Lasky studios in California, were changed last week, according to an announcement from Artcraft.

Originally scheduled for release on June 17, the Fairbanks picture, “Wild and Woolly,” has been set back a week in order to give more time to the final preparation of the film and its exploitation. This photoplay will therefore be released on June 24.

The forthcoming Mary Pickford picture, a subject of patriotic theme, entitled “The Little American,” is also now rapidly nearing completion at the Hollywood studio, under the personal direction of Cecil B. De Mille. Although originally planned for release at a later date, this production will make its first public appearance throughout the country on July 2.

Art Drama Gives Story of Wall Street and Finance

“The Golden God,” a story of money lust and its effect on the happiness of two young people, is announced as the next Art Drama release. June 14 is set as the date. Alma Hanlon is starred, while the leading male role is in the hands of Charles Hutchinson.

The plot has been constructed by the author, Robert Hage, with the intention of proving a theme, but that does not detract from its entertainment value according to Artcraft officials.

George Woods, the central character, is owner of a garage in a small town near New York, living happily with his wife and daughter. He is employed as a chauffeur by Cyrus Morton, a millionaire. On moving to the city, the environment changes him. On finding a lost wallet of his employer’s he takes the money and plunges in the stock market, winning. He returns the money, wins more in the stock market, but as his wealth increases the Golden God draws him away from his wife and daughter. The denouement is said to have remarkable intensity, and the theme evidently warrants the assumption.

First Essanay Western Ready

Trade showings of “Land of Long Shadows,” first of the Essanay series of Western dramas, which will be released June 18, are now being given in the K.E.S.E. branches.

Jack Gardner makes his screen debut in this subject. His supporting company includes Ruth King, C. J. Lionel, and Carl Stockdale.

Exteriors of the photodrama were taken in the Canadian Northwest. Essanay promises in this production, which is directed by W. S. Van Dyke, an entirely novel and yet typical picturization of red-blooded Western life.
A "Different" Ending to Suratt Film, "The Slave"

Valdska Suratt is seen as Caroline, forelady of a fashion shop, in her newest Fox picture, "The Slave," released June 3.

A rich visitor to the shop, who is twice Caroline's age, proposes to her. That night her brain is in a whirl. As she crawls into bed she takes up "The King's Favorite," a "best seller," which she has read and read. As she reads, the characters in the book appear before her in the form of those of her daily life. She falls asleep.

Then follows a vivid dream portraying her life as an old man's darling and a slave of luxury. She sees herself sitting forth on a continual round of pleasure, with a great warning climax.

Caroline wakes trembling. She gazes out upon the dreary row of tenements. As she eats her sodden breakfast the man comes for his answer. Caroline disregards the dream and says, "Yes."

She knew the past, and she dreaded a future like it. What the new future may bring she will chance.

In Miss Suratt's support appear Violet Palmer, Eric Mayne, Dan Mason, and others.

Laughable "Lonesome Luke"

The "Lonesome Luke," two-reel comedy for release on June 17 is considered by the Pathé film committee to be one of the very best comedies that has yet been made. Several members voted it to be the best of the first six "Lukes" to go on the program.

One of the best bits is where Harold Lloyd, as Luke, the plumber, is carrying down a flight of stairs a bath tub inverted over his head and shoulders. Two bears enter the house and make for him. He throws himself flat on the floor with the tub over him and then by crawling along like a giant turtle seeks to escape. In the meantime the bears are paving at the tub in their efforts to get at him. The cast includes besides Lloyd, "Snub" Pollard, Bebe Daniels, Margaret Joslin, Margaret Nichols and Bud Jamison.

Bluebird Directors Preparing for the Future

Titles of Several Subjects Are Changed—Lynn Reynolds Working on Nature Study, "Mr. Opp," and Rupert Julian on "My Mother"

"The Greater Law" has been decided upon as the title for Bluebird's July 16 release. This attraction has hitherto been referred to under its story-title, "The Code of the Klondyke." Lynn F. Reynolds directed the production, in the Sierra Nevadas, near Truckee, Calif., last winter, and it is to be seen for the first time, the result, in mid-summer, to watch Myrtle Gonzalez, George Hernandez, and the other Bluebird players, as they wade through snow knee-deep in bringing the Alaskan melodrama to screens of the exhibitor.

Mr. Reynolds has just completed another Bluebird, to be changed in title from its original, "Back to the Primitive," before it is released. Santa Cruz Island, in the Pacific, furnished most of the locations, and Miss Gonzalez and Mr. Hernandez again led the Reynolds Players through the acting details of the story. With Arthur Hoyt and Neva Gerber leading, Mr. Reynolds is now at work on "Mr. Opp," another "nature-study" of the sort he specializes in. George Hernandez, Jack Curtis and Geo. Cheesboro are leaders of the support.

Dorothy Phillips has been provided with vehicles for her August and September appearances by Joseph De Grasse and his Miss Park is just finishing "The Rescue" for Miss Phillips' use. In both features Lon Chaney and Wm. Stowell are leaders of the supporting company.

Jack Conway has nearly completed "Little Miss Fix-It," in which Ella Hall will be the star, with George Webb, James M. Cansdall and Lincoln Stedman her chief assistants. Another feature in the making on the West Coast is "My Mother," story by E. J. Clawson, and directed by Rupert Julian. The mother role will be played by Ruby La Fayette, an actress of the old school who, now in her seventy-third year, is having her first experience before the camera.

Before arriving at release date for the above, Bluebird has other subjects already under contract and is busy getting the necessary vehicles for "Case of Chance," directed by Ida May Park, with Dorothy Phillips, the star, July 2; "The Car of Chance," on July 9, in which Franklyn Farnum and Browne Vernon will be featured, and "Vengeance of the West" July 16. The June layout of Bluebirds has previously been announced.

Wallace MacDonald in O. Henry Pictures

In the current O. Henry picture among the General Film releases a new male lead is presented with Mildred Manning in "Vanity and Some Sables." Wallace MacDonald, recently seen in Famous Players' productions as juvenile and formerly playing opposite Mary Miles Minter in "Youth's Endearing Charms," has a congenial role as "Kid" Brady. The generous-hearted gangster played by him has several thrills to furnish. One of these is to plant himself in front of an oncoming automobile and leap over the hood at the driver's throat as the first step to a gentle hold-up affair.

It is expected MacDonald will be seen in other O. Henry pictures produced by the Broadway Star Feature Company, all of which are to be furnished with thrills aplenty.

First Thanhouser by Brooke

On June 3 appears "The Amateur Orphan," the first picture made by Van Dyke Brooke for Thanhouser. Gladys Leslie is the featured player, and the supporting cast includes Isabel Vernon, Thomas A. Curran, Jean Armour, Chester Morris, Ray Hallar and Justus Barnes. Agnes C. Johnson, author of many successful screen plays, wrote this subject, and the scenarioizing of same hides none of the glamor of the production.
High Class Array of Mutual Features June 4

William Russell in Story of Love and Politics—Many Comedies and Interesting Topicals—Gripping "Railroad Raider" Chapter

WILLIAM RUSSELL in "Shackles of Truth" holds first place on the Mutual schedule of June 4. "Shackles of Truth" is described as a virile story of love and politics, dealing with a young man's love for both his mother and his sweetheart, his loyalty to his father's memory and his faithfulness to duty.

"A Leap for Life" is the title of Chapter 9 of "The Railroad Raiders." In this chapter Helen Holmes performs some courageous swimming feats.

On June 4 comes the La Salle comedy, "The Flight That Failed," telling of a proposed elopement that brought many unpleasant complications to the fleeing pair.

"There and Back," the Cuba comedy of June 7, featuring George Ovey, shows the many narrow escapes of Jerry, who fell asleep while driving his flivver.

"Good for Evil" is the title of the twelfth chapter of the "Jimmie Dale Alias the Gray Seal" series, scheduled for June 8. In this story Jimmie Dale comes to the rescue of a young man who has robbed to provide for his sick wife and baby.

Mollie King Appears Twice on Pathe Program

Is Seen in "Blind Man's Luck" and in Episode of "Double Cross"—Max Linder Comedy, Hitherto Never Shown, Among Other Offerings

A GOLD ROOSTER play, described as another "Kick In," a Max Linder comedy, two strong serial episodes and other features, in all nine releases, totaling sixteen reels, make up Pathe's program for the week of June 10.

Mollie King appears as the star in "Blind Man's Luck," written by George B. Seitz and directed by George Fitzmaurice. "Blind Man's Luck" is described as another fast-action photoplay like "Kick In" and "The Hunting of the Hawk." Earle Foxe is in the supporting cast.

The fifth episode of "The Neglected Wife" serial, in which Ruth Roland stars, is entitled "The Crisis." There is said to be a decided thrill in this episode furnished by Dywe, the disbarred attorney, who blows up the Kennedy houseboat in an attempt to kill the man who brought about his ruin.

Mollie King again appears as a star on this program in "The Face of the Stranger," the thirteenth episode of "Mystery of the Double Cross," produced by Astra under the direction of William Parke. The identity of the Masked Stranger is revealed to Philippa Brewster in this episode. The story develops rapidly and closes with the identity of the girl of the double cross a deeper mystery than ever.

Especially timely is the release by Pathe of "Max Plays Detective," a new two-reel comedy, featuring Max Linder. With the star at present not making pictures, it is felt exhibitors will be more than ordinarily interested in this one. Max is detailed to locate the spies who are signaling from land to submarines at sea, and his unique methods of going about such duties are said to be such as to "bring" any house in convulsion of laughter, so ludicrous are the situations.

Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby also appear in a new comedy. A Combintone scenario, the International Cartoon and scenic split-reel and Hearst-Pathe News Nos. 48 and 49 complete the program.

Virginia Pearson in "Wrath of Love"

A new photoplay, "Wrath of Love," has been completed by Virginia Pearson. Her characterization is one which she says has been requested in scores of letters from exhibitors and fans recently.

The subject is of modern theme, and allows the star wide scope for exercise of her talents. James Vincent directed the production, which is scheduled for release by Fox in the near future.
Unusual Story in World-Brady Release of June 18

An uncommon complication supplied by a blind man who is married to a counterfeited heiress, and how, after the complications, a child has been born, forms the theme of the World-Brady release for June 18, entitled “The Stolen Paradise,” with Ethel Clayton in the leading role.

The man, impersonated by Edward Langford, had lost his eyesight in rescuing from fire a young woman to whom he thought himself rather strongly attracted. But she was “out for the money,” and became the wife of a single gentleman, a girl friend, really in love with the blind man, readily assented to the plan that she should substitute herself at the altar.

Young Stranger to Film as Star

Selig announces the appearance of a new star, Amy Leah Dennis, to appear in the Hoyt comedies released in K-E-S-E.

Miss Dennis is said to have appeared in Broadway theatrical attractions, and to have been engaged by the management of the Hoyt comedies. James Harris and William Fables are members of the cast. J. A. Richmond is director.

On June 11 will be presented “A Brass Monkey”; on June 25, “A Day and a Night,” and on July 9, “A Rag Baby.”

“The Moth” Next Production of Norma Talmadge

A drama of society life, abounding in emotional possibilities, is the description given by the producers of Norma Talmadge’s next picture under the management of Joseph M. Schenck. It has been titled “The Moth,” and Miss Talmadge is busy at her studio directing the details of the drama.

The story tells of Lucy Gillam, a spoiled young heiress married to a man of blue blood, but a worthless spendthrift. Cocktails and flirtations fail to make life worth while to the Moth, but she finally becomes infatuated with a soldier of fortune. Events progress, and her husband, in breaking with his mistress, gets into trouble when he sees herself. A dramatic climax is said to ensue.

An elaboration of Willard Mack’s playlet, “The Dream Girl,” has been made by June Mathis, and will be released on the Metro Program on June 25, under the title of “Aladdin’s Other Lamp.” Viola Dana appears as the star in this delightful photo-play. As the drudge of a boarding-house in a seacoast village, Miss Dana has a role entirely different from any in which she has previously appeared. She has but one desire in life, and that is to find her mother, from whom she has been stolen in infancy.

The finding of a miracle-working lamp brings the power to perform wonderful feats. She finds her mother, and also happiness in love.

Augustus Phillips, Robert Walker, Henry Hallam and Ricca Allen are members of the cast.

Reopening Triangle-Fine Arts Studio

Wide interest among Southern California motion picture folk has been aroused by the announcement that the Triangle-Fine Arts studio in Hollywood soon will be reopened on a large scale. The studio formerly employed hundreds of performers, to say nothing of a large force of mechanics, clerks and laborers, and the news that it will become active again is welcome in many quarters.

Recent additions to the Fine Arts studio at Hollywood have put that plant in excellent shape to take on a new lease of life under a new regime. A new central scene dock, 180 feet in length and 70 feet in width, has been built to house the elaborate interior settings that are to be utilized for forthcoming releases. On either side of the scene dock is a runway leading to each of the new stages, while a fleet of large baggage trucks with low wheels is employed to carry sets and properties to their destinations.

The new light studio just completed at the northern end of the property is said to be up to the minute in every particular.

Jimmie Dale as Pierrot

Too many Pierrots and Pierrettes cause the complications in “A Rogue’s Defeat,” the eleventh story of the “Jimmie Dale Alias the Gray Seal” series, released by Mutual on June 11. It was a masquerade ball that called out all the similar impersonations. Jimmie Dale decided to represent Pierrot as a partner of Marie LaSalle as Pierrette. Through one of the maids the pretender and the woman in black learn the plans and decide to be another Pierrot and Pierrette.

Jimmie’s faithful but unknown friend, the Tocsin, comes to his rescue, however, and when the costume is sent from the costumers it contains a warning from the Tocsin that there will be similar masqueraders at the dance. Hence, when the pretender attempts to kidnap Marie he discovers that the Pierrette he has captured is his own partner, the woman in black.
Discovers Wonderful Genius in Nick of Time

J. F. Leventhal, Now Producer of "Animated Blue-Prints" for Bray Pictographs, Almost Lost Job Because of "Failure" as Comic Artist

TRUE stories are often stranger than fiction; and this is one of them. About two years ago J. F. Leventhal insisted on entering the movies via Bray cartoons. Architect's draughtsmanship was not a thrilling enough occupation for an ambitious young man, and he "deserted" for more excitement. But it was soon discovered his animated "cartoons" were about as funny as rain at a picnic. Then fate intervened in the form of an idea, plus the pluck to work it out.

Mr. Leventhal is now one of Mr. Bray's proudest supporters. It is he, who constructs in the twinkling of an eye anything from a submarine to the Hell Gate Bridge. He can take a series of architect's "blue prints" and animate them in a few moments on the screen into magnificent completed structures, months, perhaps years before the structures are actually built.

In collaboration with Waldemar Kaempfert, editor of Popular Science Monthly, he shows, in diagramatic form, combinations of structures, or structures "cut through" so as to show the inside and outside both at the same time, and does anything else that the genius of a true inventor of a new art can devise for entertainment and instruction.

When our new submarine destroyers are invented, if the censor does not object, he will show them to us in action, even while they are still merely plans "on paper."

Gaumont Featurettes for Week of June 11 from Mutual

THE great admiration of the United States for France in the present war will make doubly interesting Gaumont's "Tours Around the World." No. 32, released through Mutual June 12, the wonderful castle and grounds at Versailles is one of the beauty spots of the world. Its historic interest is great. The story of Marie Antoinette is well known in America. Other pictures shown are Capri, Italy, the picturesque island south of Naples, and Antigua, an island of the British West Indies.

The second Gaumont single reel to be released this week is Mutual Weekly No. 128, which reaches the screen June 13. It will contain the usual assortment of patriotic news pictures, as well as other events of importance.

"Red Life" No. 50 is released June 14. Its longest section is devoted to showing how a large publishing house is equipped to turn out 12,000,000 copies each month. The spectator is taken through the various departments and shown the machine-like precision of all the work. "How Big Guns Are Moved" is a section that makes most timely pictures. It shows the moving of a 70-ton gun which is to protect a port on the Pacific coast. A third section is devoted to the hemp industry of rural Roumania, with archaic, Old World methods.

The reel concludes with a picture of the koala, or eucalyptus bear, the strange little creature, an inhabitant of Australia, combines certain features of the rabbit, bear and kangaroo, resembling all to some degree, yet fully descriptive of all.

Selig World Library Important Addition to Specialties

The Selig-World Library, issued each week through General Film has replaced the Selig-Tribune weekly, with carefully edited "always timely" specialties — by which we mean subjects appealing to special classes of patrons. Issue No. 3 will present several particularly interesting and instructive subjects. The Ainu of Japan, remarkable for their excessive hairiness, were probably the first inhabitants of Japan, after the cave dwellers. Many quaint dances and ceremonies remain to them since their first migration from Siberia. They occupy the northern end of Japan, and exist by hunting and fishing. American ruins, particularly the missions of San Antonio, Tex., are of educational interest. The Alamo is famous in the history of the Lone Star state, and over it the flag always flies. Within these walls less than two hundred men withstand the siege of six thousand for ten days.

Locations from which famous paintings have been made, include the cloistered walk at Amalfi, Italy. Many artists have attempted to catch upon their canvases the exquisite colorings of the terraced city, set crescent-wise on the Gulf of Salerno. The Matterhorn, most famed of Alpine crags, is another most impressive subject, and the balance go to make a good film.

Fourteen Patriotic Punches

Fourteen "all-patriotic" current events are recorded in the latest release of Universal Current Events, with titles calculated to stir the most sluggish blood to fever heat of fervor. This release of May 19 has the real punches in it, fourteen, count 'em.

Mystery of War Beat Solved

When patrons of the Strand theatre, New York, saw pictures of the fleet of American torpedo destroyers on the screen the same day the news of their reaching European waters reached this country through the newspapers, it looked like a "fake." The pictures were bona fide, however, from the Cinema News Syndicate, the prints having been made and held until the "censor" released the publication of the news, simultaneously in the press and on the screen.

Pathe News Shows Boy Troops

An especially interesting feature of Hearst-Pathe News, No. 41, is the Culver School Boys' "Black Troop" cavalry drill, showing fine horsemanship and bayonet practice. The Kentucky Derby, at Churchill Downs, Louisville, and other war news fill a reel brim full of interest and variety of subjects.
Universal Screen Magazine

Many subjects of more than usual interest are found in the current issue of the Universal Screen Magazine. Every effort is made to furnish only subjects which have an appeal to all classes and which will be received with favor by audiences in large and small theatres.

This week's issue leads off with an exceptionally instructive subject showing how a bronze statue is made. Allen C. Newman, the noted sculptor, is shown at work on his famous bronze figure, "The Hiker." No phase of this little known industry has escaped the omnipotent eye of the camera.

Some wonderful pictures of the historic Virginia Dare caverns of Virginia are shown as they were before they were flooded. Another subject of timely interest shows the preparedness measures taken by the New York Police Department in patrolling the harbors. Close studies of the strange fish in the New York Aquarium has a particular appeal for children and will prove instructive to grown ups too.

Holmes Travelers Still in Java

In the seventieth of the series of weekly trips around the world, which Burton Holmes is conducting for Paramount, he takes his fellow-journeyers to "Surabaya—the Busy Burg of Java." Surabaya is the busiest headquarters of the Dutch in the Far East. Here the white-clothed white man from Holland has established the commercial metropolis of the Dutch East Indies, here one sees the evidences of "big business," and finds satisfaction in traversing the Broadway of Surabaya, and it is also evident that small business is done in a small way. This is not at all astonishing when you stop to consider that Java is larger than the State of New York, and that it has a population of thirty-two millions of people. Of these there are thousands of Chinese, who thrive in Java in every branch of business.

Pathe Cameraman Quick on Job

News gathering for pictures is not always the surest thing you know, as one of Pathe's cameramen discovered, recently, when he went by train and stage all the way from Los Angeles to the Roosevelt Dam to "catch" an Indian "war dance" that was scheduled to be "wonderful.

When he got there he found a regular American frame-up, "no money, no dance." The few poor specimens of Indian humanity were far from up to "Pathe standard." Furthermore, a Pathe news representative could not be so easily stalled, and when he discovered that the great dam was overflowing for the second time in its history, with 125,000 gallons a minute over the spillway, he felt amply repaid for his long trip on securing some most spectacular pictures.

Los Angeles Houses Taking Big Productions for Long Runs

"WITHIN THE LAW," the Vitagraph feature, has just finished a successful two-weeks' run at Tally's Broadway, Los Angeles. The Isis theatre, Los Angeles Spring street house, has contracted for third run of the picture. The Palace, on second street, has first run, and the Portola, on Main street, second run.

The first Metro special de luxe attraction, "The Call of Her People," starring Ethel Barrymore, was shown at the Symphony, on Broadway, Los Angeles, during the week of May 27 to unprecedented good business.

The Superba theatre, Los Angeles, known as "the home of Bluebirds," has

T. & D. Circuit Takes Official War Pictures

Pathe announces that the official British Government War Pictures in seven two-reel episodes have been booked by the Turner and Dabney Circuit of California at a record price. The pictures will be shown eight days in San Francisco, four days in Oakland, three days in San Jose, three days in Berkeley, three days in Stockton, three days in Row, four days in Sacramento, two days in Watseville, two days in Hanford, and two days in Richmond.

Record for Bluebirds

According to reports from London, Ont., five out of seven exhibitors are running Bluebirds regularly.

Thousands Flock to See Late Official War Film

Record crowds attended the first showing of "The Tanks at the Battle of Amiens," latest official British Government War Pictures, at the Strand Theatre, New York, the week of May 20.

Eleven thousand admissions were clicked off on Sunday, first day of the run. An extra thousand was added to this number on Monday, and it was estimated that several thousand more were turned away. Beginning Wednesday, Harold Edel, managing director, gave an extra morning performance each day, starting at ten o'clock instead of noon.

All Ossining, N. Y., Theatres Run Paramounts

All three houses in the city of Ossining, N. Y., are now running Paramount Pictures. The Parthenon, the Alhambra and Rowe's theatre are the houses...
Brenon Directing Film of Russia's Revolt

Monk Hlidar to Have Prominent Part—Special Arrangements Made for Production with Selznick—"Downfall of the Romanoffs" Is Title

The Biograph Corporation, recently chartered at Albany, has, by special arrangement with the Herbert Brenon Film Corporation and Lewis J. Selznick, obtained the services of Herbert Brenon to make a drama of the Russian revolution, which will be presented in a few weeks as a state rights attraction.

This drama is being made under the title "The Downfall of the Romanoffs," and Hlidor, the fugitive monk, who was the spiritual adviser of the Czar Nicholas is the featured player.

Hlidor's own story of the intrigues and scandals of the Russian court, is now appearing in more than three hundred daily newspapers throughout the United States. "The Downfall of the Romanoffs" has been produced in New York and in Mr. Brenon’s New Jersey Studios for the past two weeks. It will be rushed to speedy completion.

The consent of the directors of the Herbert Brenon Film Corporation and of Lewis J. Selznick was obtained after much persuasion, but the directors now realize the importance of the deal.

Brenon, as the featured figure in this tremendous panorama of a nation's downfall, has figured in every newspaper in America for the past six months. His last publicity was when he engaged in litigation with one of the popular monthly magazines to regain possession of his manuscripts in a series of articles exposing the intrigues of the Russian court.

Immediately after effecting a settlement with the magazine, a struggle began between two of the important Yiddish daily newspapers in New York, each claiming rights to his story.

Alexander Beyfuss is president of the Biograph Company; E. Schay is secretary and treasurer, and John M. Zwicki and J. Deshain are directors. The offices of the company are on the fourteenth floor at 279 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

Coast Reports Far from Optimistic

Reports from the Pacific Coast and particularly San Francisco, as to the receptions being given big special attractions have a decidedly blue tone. Independent buyers find it difficult to place the blame for the quiet tone of the field, but are inclined to attribute it to the uncertainty surrounding war conditions.

One big state rights buyer, interviewed by a representative of Motion Picture News, declared: "The first run situation in San Francisco for big pictures is certainly far from optimistic. However, I am one of those who look for a return to normal conditions in a very short space of time. There is no particular cause that we can blame at present, and it is for that reason that I am inclined to believe that present quiet condition cannot last long."

Other state rights buyers held to the same opinion. "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" is the only big picture that has apparently not felt the effect of the slump. The underwater production having just turned the third week of its run.

"The Barrier" Attracting Many Big Exhibitors

With the reorganization of the Lewis J. Selznick exchanges practically completed, great progress was made last week in the distribution of Rex Beach's production of "The Barrier." More than $12,000 worth of bookings were made the first three days last week, with contracts ready to sign a number of other important engagements.

Among the bookings closed last week for seven days or more were the Mall and Alhambra in Cleveland; Clinton Square in Albany; Garden theatre in Washington, D. C.; Columbia in Pittsburgh; and the Broadway, Mr. J. Frank Brockiss, who has control of the foreign rights to "The Barrier," closed bookings for Canada and Australia; and, in the New York district, the demand for dates indicates that every first-class house in Greater New York will play the picture before the end of the summer.

Buys Bernhardt Film for Eastern Canada

Don McRae, manager and proprietor of the Empire theatre, Halifax, claims to be the first Maritime Provinces exhibitor to bring a picture into Eastern Canadian territory on the state rights basis. He recently negotiated with the Biograph Film Corporation of Canada, Limited, for the "Mothers of France" production, featuring Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, and has purchased the field outright, with a promise of releasing it there within a very short time. It is felt that this action by Mr. McRae will stimulate the state rights movement in the Maritime Provinces, and open the door for some of the other big productions, which are not being taken there.
Concrete Examples Given of Territorial Inconsistencies

Joseph F. Lee, of Metro Exchange, Points Out Way Toward Improvement—Producer Must Anticipate Censor—Countrywise Revision Essential to Efficiency

MOTION PICTURE NEWS continues to receive warm expressions of approval from both territorial buyers and manufacturers for the independent market on its plan to properly map the country's territorial divisions.

"One of the most constructive moves ever started by a trade publication," was one of the highest compliments of approval from Harry Chapin, the Cleveland distributor. "You can be sure that the independent exchange men will be with you strong in this move, and will co-operate to the limit in laying out a territorial map that will give the manufacturers one hundred per cent distribution and the exchanges an opportunity to secure proper returns."

Joseph F. Lee, of the New York Metro Exchange, offers some pertinent suggestions as a means to this end, in the following interview:

"There isn't a reason in the wide world," said Mr. Lee, without resorting to preliminary remarks, "why the country cannot be efficiently divided into logical state rights' territories—and for the right reason, few, but for the good of all. It is inconceivable to me why this phase of the industry has not been given more attention. At its door lies the root of much of the evil existing in this field, which is destined, I believe, to be one of the most lasting branches of the motion picture industry.

"One of the outstanding inconsistencies which has been brought home to more than one interested in this branch of the industry is found in the New England territory, comprising Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. Of course, there is no definite rule which says that this particular division should stand as it is, but the buyers and sellers in the transactions decreed it so in practice, thereby establishing a precedent which has been and is followed today.

"There are very good reasons for keeping this territory intact, and there are also good reasons why it should be divided, and this is the matter that should be straightened out and systematized. The happy medium should be found. Take, for example, the city of Stamford, Conn. Is there any reason why the exhibitor here should not book from New York, which is the logical distributing point from the standpoint of distance? But the exhibitor books from Boston, which is many more miles from Stamford than it is from New York.

"On the other hand," continues Mr. Lee, "if Connecticut were taken from this territory it would leave a big gap which would be impossible to fill in order that the territory might remain on the given percentage basis. That would be precedent. In short, the territory would be so depreciated as to render it next to worthless unless the entire country were proportionately divided to as balance the scales. In a word, the Motion Picture News has the plan which can be effectively applied—namely, to systematically map out the United States, and eventually the world, so as to render justice to all and privileges to none.

"Get to the root of the evil, go back to the beginning. It would be impossible to change this one condition without serious detriment to that territory. Therefore this territory is set off in the only way possible under the present system, and must stand unless a country-wise revision is made. The producer suffers, the buyer suffers, and the exhibitor suffers, so it is time to get back of this movement and push."

"The New England territory is only an example. The same reasoning applies to all others where betterment in conditions is needed. On a 100 per cent production the producer of today expects in the neighborhood of 7 per cent, to come from this territory. It is perfectly obvious then that if Connecticut were taken from the territory this 7 per cent. could not be realized. But if the producer would lower his figure of percentage and the difference between it and 7 be added to another territory which had been proportionately increased by the proportion division, there isn't a reason in the world why Connecticut could not be withdrawn and added, let us say, to New York, without visiting injustice on the New England territory. By this reasoning we come back to the important purpose—a countrywise division of the national divisions."

"In my talks with different members of the industry," continued Mr. Lee, "I have had a number of them hint indirectly that when the producer is planning the distribution of his product, he bases his territorial divisions on population. This would never do, and I will tell you why."

"Any one who suggests such a move has failed to take into consideration that we have a large part of the country lying below the Mason and Dixon line, and that when we get below that line we have two states, Delaware and the District of Columbia, and thereby justify himself with the public in demanding fair admission prices."

"There isn't a reason in the world," said Mr. Lee, "why a small territory, which has li.ili li. liu li. i. I li. nnan. comprising Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island, is destined, I believe, to be one of the most lasting branches of the industry."
Frohman Plan of Service to Buyers in Effect

Jesse L. Goldburg in Charge of Special Department Starts Three Months' Tour to Assist State Right

In conformity with the recently adopted policy of The Frohman Amusement Corporation to assist the State Rights Buyers of super features produced by that company, President William L. Sherrill announces the completion of his plans in that direction, whereby he is now prepared to put into active effect a practical and technical assistance in the matter of exhibition of the Frohman Corporation's productions.

"I have been working on a detailed plan ever since the completion of our last production, 'God's Man,'" said Mr. Sherrill, "and our Service Department commences operations beginning with that production. For this special Service Department we have engaged Jesse L. Goldburg.

"As a part of our plan of operations, Mr. Goldburg has left on an extended tour of the United States, planning to stop off at exchange centers in the largest cities. He will interview all of the reputable and responsible State Rights Buyers in each of these cities, essentially for the purpose of discussing in general methods of booking and exhibition and to render such other assistance as may be requested of him.

"I think that a special individual attention and devotion of new ideas is necessary for the proper and successful handling of our product, consequently the Frohman Service Department is to keep abreast and a step or two ahead with ideas, working at all times in harmony between this office and our clientele of purchasers. Thus it may readily be seen that conforming with our motto, 'Service to the State Rights Buyers,' every Frohman release is to receive its own individual and special attention from our Service Department.

"Mr. Goldburg's trip will extend over the better part of the next three months. He will be kept constantly advised of the progress in our production department and our plans with respect to forthcoming productions, the details of which I am not prepared to give publicity at this time excepting to say that we have selected a story and are giving it a treatment and a cast which form a most unusual and exceptional combination.

"Mr. Goldburg's office will be to assist not alone the purchasers of 'God's Man' and other Frohman productions, but also to prepare for and to let them have every benefit and idea for exploitation at his command for all productions of the future."

Exhibitors Commend Standard Film for High Class Service

GENERAL commendation of the system of service given by the Standard Film Corporation of Kansas City is contained in letters which this firm has received recently from many exhibitors. Standard is distributor of Art Dramas in Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and several other states.

The manager of the Savoy theatre, St. Joseph, Mo., is quoted as follows:

"Art Dramas are really too good to run during the week, and as soon as I can make an opening I am surely going to play them on Sundays. I do not care to praise one production or any company, but if Art Dramas can keep up this kind of pictures it will surely be great."

The manager of the Columbia theatre, Kansas City, Mo., says this in his letter:

"I feel it my duty to inform you of the pleasure I have every time I show an Art Drama in my theatre. Thursday it poured rain. I had the pleasure of seeing a great attendance. Friday, more rain than ever, and still greater crowds. The drawing power of your pictures surely has been demonstrated during this inclement weather, and there is no other program I know of that gives me the assured feeling that there will always be a profit."

The Grand theatre, Chanute, Kansas, reports as follows:

"I have often written to different film exchanges in an attempt to get better service, but I have never taken the time to thank you for the good office. After seeing the first two Art Dramas I have run I cannot help congratulating you."

Many other letters written in similar vein have been received by Standard.

KANSAS PASSES "Sin Woman"

An announcement was made last week by W. A. Bach, sales manager for M. H. Hoffman, Inc., that the first George Backer production, "The Sin Woman," has been passed without eliminations in Kansas. This fact is regarded as significant because of the strict censorship regime in that state. The second Backer picture is to be begun within a few days.

Lawhead Is General Agent for "Submarine Eye"

Rex O. Lawhead has left New York to act as general representative for the Williamsons. He will handle "The Submarine Eye" throughout the Middle West states, with headquarters in Chicago.

En route he stopped in Detroit and gave a private showing of the picture to a selected list of exhibitors. The Detroit showmen were enthusiastic over the production, and written expressions of their opinions have been received at the New York office of the Williamson Brothers.

Hoffman Offices in Throes of Busy Season

Prints of "Who Knows," the Bernstein production, have arrived at the M. H. Hoffman offices, and a trade screening will shortly be given of that subject. Preparations are being made for the second Backer production also.

"Humility," first of "The Seven Cardinal Virtues," has been completed, and a print of the picture is expected to reach the East any day. Following this will come "Loyalty," "Chastity," "Justice," "Truth," "Courage," and "Honesty." This is a series in which the pictures are not dependent on one another. Each is said to contain a dramatic story which is away from the idea of preachment.

To Handle IVan Film in Northern New York

Thomas Dooley, who up to May 1 of this year was New York upstate manager for the General Film Company, has established his own exchange under the name of the Super Film Attractions, at 455 South Warren street, Syracuse, N. Y., the same location where the General Film Company was formerly situated.

Moss Finishes “One Hour”—First Showing June 11

After four months in preparation and exploitation, “One Hour” has been finished by B. S. Moss, and is now in course of editing by John S. Lopez, preliminary to its initial release on June 11 at the Moss theatres around New York. A trade showing is now being arranged.

“One Hour” is a sequel to “Three Weeks” and “One Day” of the Elinor Glyn series. Zena Keefe and Alan Hall co-star have capable supporting cast.

In his effort to make “One Hour” a proposition worthy of the attention of the industry’s foremost state right buyers, Mr. Moss states he has made an outlay that has cut into five figures and he feels that he has turned out a picture that will boost his stock immeasurably.

Hatch Buys “Submarine Eye” for New Jersey

In line with their policy of dealing with experienced showmen, the Williamson Brothers, producers of “The Submarine Eye,” announce that they have sold the New Jersey rights of their underwater drama to the J. Frank Hatch Film Company, of 284 Market street, Newark.

Mr. Hatch has the reputation of being one of the biggest and most successful showmen in the country. He has fathered the motordrome portable track for racing, has operated film exchanges in Cleveland and has operated film exchanges in Cleveland and Pittsburgh, and other big ventures.

Selznick Buys King-Bees for New York State

New York state rights to King-Bees comedies have been acquired by Lewis J. Selznick whose activities in buying many big features of late have attracted attention.

“There is a tremendous demand in the open market for really good comedies,” said Selznick, “and these King-Bees productions are just what exhibitors are clamoring for. I have seen the first three pictures and they are great.”

Says Average Producer Misdirects Advertising

Frank J. Seng, “Parentage” investor, declares money is wasted in ads which are vague and do not let exhibitors know points of film.

“The exhibitor today wants good pictures, and it doesn’t matter a great deal who is in the cast if the picture itself is what he thinks his audience wants to see. I think this was manifested in ‘The Barrier,’ ‘The Bar Sinister’ and ‘The Manxman.’ It is such productions which have made the open market. I know, because I was the first exhibitor in this country to go into the open market for my pictures.”

Feature Film Office Opens Under Kahn

Mike Kahn, for the past two years connected with the Universal Film Company’s Milwaukee office as booking manager, has severed his connection with that organization and on May 28 will open a feature film office on the fourth floor of the Toy Building.

The Quality Film Service is the title his organization will go under, and he will make a specialty of a commercial service of one, two and three-reelers, together with five-reel state right features.

Another King-Bees Ready

Early in June King-Bees’ third comedy, with Billy West as the chief merrymaker, will be released. Edith Burton, Babe Hardy, Leo White and other well-known players are announced as being in the cast.

The plot and its resultant action are cast around a bakery, and the farcical complications that ensue are said to well maintain the standard of the two previous releases. State right buyers are reported bidding in lively fashion for these comedies.

Sun Projection Room a Model

Beautifully appointed, and with accommodations for sixty, the Sun projecting room, 218 West Forty-second street, New York, is announced as ready for patronage under the management of Sam Erflus.
Studio Work on "The Auction Block" Ended

With the exception of one scene, which will be taken in the steel mills of Pittsburgh, "The Auction Block," second production of the Rex Beach Pictures Company is complete. Director Trimble will shortly start his task of cutting and titling the picture which will be ready for release September 1.

The big gambling house scene, showing a raid, was the last scene to be filmed in the East. This is one of a number of promised sensational views. An exact reproduction of the Ziegfield "Midnight Frolic," with the show going on and an audience present is another big scene which is presented also a view of a chorus girl dinner given by a Pittsburgh millionaire which reveals New York's fast set at its merriest. In the gambling house raid realism is said to be carried to the furthest, and a score or more of "strike breakers," engaged in a rough and tumble fight sustained broken heads and other injuries.

A phase of "The Auction Block" which it will tell will cause unusual interest is that a number of the characters are famous Broadway figures. For instance, the theatrical manager in the picture is a thinly disguised impersonation of Fio Ziegfield, while another character is modeled after the "Hammered Jim" Brady. Another prominent character is founded on a Pittsburgh millionaire, who is notorious for his Broadway escapades.

Long Propaganda Film Started

Jack Gorman has leased the Crystal Studio to produce his next feature in seven reels. The title of the subject will be "Corruption," which was formerly a well-known play of which he is the author. "Corruption" is announced as a propaganda feature. Mr. Gorman will direct and release under the firm name of "Super-Art Film Corporation."

The cast for the picture includes: Helen Marten, John J. Dunn, Henry Sedlcy, Florence Hackett, Arthur J. Dickens, Lucille Dorrington, Miss Stephenson.

Newark Takes to "Sin Woman"

Lee Gainsborg, who has taken over the Northern New Jersey rights on "The Sin Woman," reports that the first week's showing of this picture has amply proven that this picture has a splendid future before it as a popular attraction. The Goodwin Theatre, Newark, which ran this first week the George Backer Productions, played to capacity houses practically the entire week, according to reports.

Irene Fenwick, the star, is a particular favorite in Newark and many favorable comments were heard upon her initial screen appearance.

"Cabiria" to Be Shelved

The Mammoth Film Corporation announces that after June 15 D'Ammunisco's "Cabiria" will be removed from the market. They have followed this announcement by getting out special one-sheet to that effect, and bookings all over their territory in New Jersey and New York state are reported lively.

A. H. Jacobs

"Her Fighting Chance" an A. H. Jacobs Production

The offering to state rights buyers of the new Jane Grey feature, "Her Fighting Chance," calls attention to the latest activities of Arthur H. Jacobs, well known in motion picture circles as the head of several producing corporations. Mr. Jacobs made his debut as a producer in Chicago with the Cosmos Feature Film Corporation. Later he came to New York as president and general manager of the Triumph Film Corporation, and was soon also identified with Crystal Films, Inc., as vice-president of that well-known organization. It was not long before he decided to establish himself in the business on a larger scale and started "A. H. Jacobs Photoplays, Inc., to produce special pictures under contract with Hearst's International Film Service.

"The world rights for "Her Fighting Chance" were purchased by Frank Hall, who recently bought the much discussed Edgar Lewis feature, "The Bar Sinister," and is offering both attractions to state rights buyers from his new headquarters in the Longacre Building, New York.

"Handle Feature on Commission Basis with Owner"

J. E. Kirk, manager of the Fontenelle Feature Film Co. of Omaha, Neb., one of the big state rights houses of the Middle West, came forward last week with a plan well worthy of note.

"Up until now when we want a feature we have to go out and pay out cash for it," said Kirk. "I don't see why we couldn't handle it on a commission basis with the owner. Our house is the only one to buy his feature for this section. The others are too small to handle it. We don't like to walk into his office and lay down the money, losing the use of it. If he will deal with us on a commission basis, figured from what such pictures usually do, his picture will be shown here and we will make something from it. Until that plan is worked, we cannot buy the picture and the money it would make in our states will be lost to the owner."

Eight-Part Wharton Feature Has First Showing

"The Great White Trail," in eight reels, first feature produced by the Whartons for state right release, will have its initial showing at the Broadway theatre, New York, on June 1. The subject is entirely the work of Leopold D. Wharton, he writing and directing the photoplay—a story of New York and Alaska.

Varied phases of life and the love of life are presented in the play, which has its beginning, with all the problems of city life, the noise and jangle and rush of New York, only to swerve to the great silent stretches of the Klondike, where the muckers trail their way along the snow-covered passes in their search for gold. And it in this place of silence and frigidity and primeval surroundings that the threads of the problems are gathered and the skein completed.

Doris Kenyon is featured in the production. She is supported by Thomas Holdin, Miss Roberts, Paul Gordon, Edgar Davenport, and a large cast. The showing is to be by invitation.

Photographic Difficulties in Filming "Curse of Eve"

Several difficult photographic feats were necessary in the taking of the Corona Cinema Company's production, "The Curse of Eve," which contains a modern story introduced by a Biblical prologue dealing with the creation of the world.

William C. Thompson, the man behind the camera, had trouble in the Garden of Eden scenes through the necessity of double exposure through the entire frame in one continuous dissolve. This necessitated taking each scene at the same diaphragm aperture, regulating the exposure throughout by the shutter opening, a process which cameramen will recognize as being next to impossible when continuing dissolve in a large number of scenes.

Considering the difficulties encountered, it is expected "The Curse of Eve" will be judged as quite a triumph for the photographer.

Eastern Feature Company Handling Terry Subjects

Herman Rifkin of the Eastern Feature Film Company, reports that his firm has made arrangements with the A. Kay Company to handle their burlesque cartoons of big subjects made by Paul H. Terry. The Eastern Company will also handle from its Boston office the Terry Human Interest Red cartoons, five hundred feet of cartoon and five hundred feet of scenic.

"The Web of Life," produced by the Gold Medal Company, has also been purchased by Mr. Rifkin's organization and with the Ivan productions also gathering bookings. Eastern is not complaining about war slackness.

Sell Australian Rights

King-Bee Films Corporation have disposed of the Australian rights of their Billy-West Comedies to Clement Mason's Superpictures of Sydney. New South Wales, Australia.
Well-Known Comedy Team in Hoyt Subjects

James Harris and William Fables are the new comedy team which is starring in the Hoyt Comedies, released by the Selig Company in K-E-S-E. They will appear in ten or more of the Hoyt Comedies, including "A Hole in the Ground," "A Brass Monkey," "A Day and a Night," "A Rag Baby" and others.

Harris, born in San Francisco, has starred in the John Robinson and the London circuses, played in "Eight Belts" and created the role of "Rollo" in vaudeville for two seasons. For five years he starred in vaudeville.

William Fables scored successes in Rice's "The Silver Slipper," in "1902," with John Curt in "The Alaskan," and in other well-known stage productions. He starred in vaudeville and has also appeared with leading burlesque companies.

Fannie Ward in Dramatic Role in "Her Strange Wedding"

A dramatic role which surpasses in suspense anything she has yet portrayed is allotted to Fannie Ward in "Her Strange Wedding," according to advance reports from the Lasky Company. The story is by George Middleton, and concerns two brothers who both love the same girl.

One is a physician, extremely studious, and the other is a sufferer from heart trouble, though a charming and attractive chap. Lee, the invalid, marries the frivolous girl, Corinne. There are many dramatic instances, including a shooting affair between the two brothers, and finally Lee dies during a heart attack.

Jack Dean and Tom Forman have the leading masculine roles. George Melford is the director.

Extra Prints Necessary to Fill Demand for "Womanhood"

A record demand for prints of "Womanhood, the Glory of a Nation," is reported by the V-L-S-E offices. Heretofore, it is said pictures released by these exchanges have reached their maximum demand within forty days of release date, but precedent in this case has been upset, as instead of a decrease in demand, the increase has been so great that within ten days it has been found necessary to order fifty-two extra prints from Vitagraph.

Upon delivery of these there will be one hundred and forty-six prints of this unparalleled picture working through the United States.

New Subject for Miss Saunders

Jackie Saunders is working on the last scenes of "Betty, Be Good," her next feature to be released through Mutual, and will start immediately on her new production, entitled "Ebb, the Fixer."

Essanay Offers Only Light Subjects During War

President Spoor Announces Revival of Program for Summer and Winter—Sees Depression in People—Purchases Many Comedies

In anticipation of a depression that will sweep the country as a result of war, Essanay has rearranged its entire program for this summer, and probably for the winter to come. George K. Spoor, president, announces that practically all future Essanay feature releases will be of the straight comedy or comedy-drama type. The sole aim of these pictures will be to make people laugh and forget the sufferings of their relatives in the war zone. Acting along this line, Mr. Spoor has purchased rights to many fiction stories written in light vein.

Among the stars both of the screen and stage who will appear in these productions will be Taylor Holmes, late of the stage success, "His Majesty Bunker Bean"; Bryant Washburn, creator of the "Skinner" of the screen; Jack Gardner, musical comedy favorite, who already has been launched in a series of screen comedy-dramas of far Western life; Margarette Clayton and others.

"Moving pictures will play an essential part in this war and our country is now engaged," said Mr. Spoor. "The sooner exhibitors come to a realization of this fact the better they will be enabled to meet the demands of their patrons."

"I have just received elaborate reports from our offices in London and Paris. These reports carry the changes which the war has wrought in pictures in those countries. Whereas photodramas which tore at the heart and unfolded the depressing conditions of life were in vogue prior to the opening of the war, the fact is just the reverse now. The people have enough to depress them with the suffering which their kinsmen are undergoing on the battlefields. They demand pictures which will ease their minds momentarily. Comedy-dramas and straight comedies are what they want, and are about the only pictures they will patronize."

"Filling His Own Shoes," presenting Bryant Washburn in a screen version of a novelette by Henry B. Rowland, will be the first of Essanay's program thus outlined. This comedy-drama of the adventures of an American shoe clerk in a Turkish harem will be released June 11.

The first of the Essanay-Westerns, featuring Jack Gardner, will follow. "Land of Long Shadows" is its title. The release date will be June 18. "The Man Who Was Afraid," a feature with Bryant Washburn in the lead, will be next.

Following these at the rate approximately of two per month will come "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship," presenting Taylor Holmes in his debut on the screen. This feature will be a picturization of the story by Clarence Buddington Kelland in the Saturday Evening Post, then "Skinner's Baby," the third of the Skinner pictures, with Bryant Washburn, supported by Hazel Daly and the original company; "The Range Boss," the second of the Essanay-Westerns; "The Golden Idiot," "Lost Paradise," and others.

The Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service will release all those films, and already has opened its bookings on them and reports business good.

Hayakawa This Time Has Part of Mexican Bandit

Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese actor, who has starred in a number of successful Lasky-Paramount pictures, adds another characterization to the already lengthy list which he has presented upon the screen when he plays the Mexican bandit in "The Jaguar's Claws." Hayakawa has been seen as a Japanese, a Chinese, a Hawaiian, and East Indian in various Lasky pictures, but this is the first time that he has ever donned sombrero and chaps.

The story of "The Jaguar's Claws" was prepared for the screen by Beatrice De Mille and Leighton Osmun and directed by Marshall Neilan. The cast includes Marjorie Daw, Frizelle Brunnelle, Mabel Van Buren, Tom Moore and Tom Forman.

The story tells of a powerful Mexican bandit who terrorizes American oil men on the border. He is finally killed by a Mexican sweetheart as he is attempting to make advances to the fiancée of a young oil man whom he has captured.

Mutuals Booked Before Work on Them Is Started

Julia Sanderson, just signed by John R. Freuler, president of Mutual, to appear in a series of productions, is reported to be breaking records for premature bookings.

Even before the subject has been chosen for her first picture, before her director has been selected and before studio arrangements have been completed, her picture has been booked on the Goldstein Brothers' England circuit.

V-L-S-E Forging Ahead

All existing booking records of V-L-S-E now is new distribution only the productions of Greater Vitagraph, and has not the advantage of the combined footage of four manufacturers as was the case when the company was first organized.
Uncertainty on Distribution Method of "One Law for Both"

No definite plans for the exploitation of Ivan Abramson's super feature, "One Law for Both," have yet been adopted, according to a statement issued this week by the Ivan Film Productions, Inc. The production is still playing to excellent business at the Lyric theatre in New York City, where it is engaged for an indefinite run. I. E. Chadwick, general manager of the Ivan Company, speaking of that company's plans for the production, said:

"We have not yet finally decided what method will be pursued in the exploitation of "One Law for Both." We have received a number of requests for information from managers of legitimate theatres, and the owners of important motion picture circuits, who wish to book the attraction. Of course, a great number of state rights buyers, especially those who purchased the rights to "Enlighten Thy Daughter," the last Ivan production, have also asked for information regarding our plans. However, nothing definite has yet been determined on. Careful consideration is being given a plan for direct routing of a number of shows to play extended engagements in legitimate theatres and in the larger motion picture theatres. Such a plan is a possibility, as is the selling of territorial rights. I expect to be able to make a definite statement of the plan to be followed within the course of the next week."

A surprisingly large amount of bookings have been offered this company from circuits in and around New York, as well as from circuits in all parts of the country. From present indications "One Law for Both" will exceed the bookings on even "Enlighten Thy Daughter" by far.

Clara Laughlin's Works to Be Screened by Wholesome Films

WHOLESALE FILMS CORPORATION, the newly organized producing and distributing company of Chicago, is to present the literary works of Clara E. Laughlin, recently interviewed in Motion Picture News.

A series of daily articles is being contributed to metropolitan newspapers by Miss Laughlin at present, and the subject matter of these as well as the writer's novels will be screened.

"We believe that the film presentation of Miss Laughlin's novels will bring to the vast American picture-loving public a new standard of screen wholesomeness," declared M. J. Weisfeld, general manager of the Wholesome Films Corporation. "Miss Laughlin's works are typical of what we shall offer on the Wholesome program."

Starting at the age of eighteen, Miss Laughlin has had a noteworthy literary career. Her contributions to Harper's, Ladies' Home Journal and other big magazines quickly made her known. Her first novel, "Fidelity," was published in 1907. In 1910 she completed "Just Folks," and a year later "Children of Tomorrow." The latter part of 1911 Miss Laughlin wrote "Everybody's Lonesome" and a year later followed this with "The Penny Philanthropist."

There are two more books by Miss Laughlin now on the presses. In August of this year I. P. Pulvain Sons will publish "The Heart of Her Highness," and in October of this year George H. Doran will bring out what Miss Laughlin calls her most important novel, "The Keys of Heaven."
Locale for "Modern Othello" Taken Over by U. S.

With the completion of all the exteriors for the next Robert Warwick picture, "The Modern Othello," the famous Billings estate, Cars Neck Farm, at Richmond, Va., which has recently been turned over to the United States Government, will become a matter of historic record. The military activities at the Billings farm will no doubt change the aspects of the estate and the beautiful mansion, overlooking the St. James River, in which many of the interior scenes of "The Modern Othello" have been laid, so that this film will probably be the only authentic record of how the place looked before the war.

The opening scene of the photoplay shows Mr. Warwick on one of the famous Billings horses. A race between Elaine Hammeisen and Mrs. Warwick on the famous blue bloods, Harvester and Lou Dillon, is followed by the camera all over the farm, which consists of 5,000 acres.

12,000 Attend Opening Day of Fairbanks Picture

According to William H. Clune, owner of Clune's Auditorium, Douglas Fairbanks in his initial Arclacraft release, "In Again—Out Again," played to over twelve thousand people on the first day of its showing in Los Angeles, and a like record has been uniformly maintained at each succeeding showing.

Mr. Clune had originally intended to exhibit "In Again—Out Again" at his Broadway theatre, which seats about eighteen hundred people, but contemplating record-breaking business, decided to open the Fairbanks film at his large Auditorium theatre, which has a thirty-five hundred seating capacity. He is running the picture on schedule time, four performances a day, in addition to a one-reel news film and an elaborate musical program.

Douglas Fairbanks was present at the second performance on the opening night, and addressed the audience.

First Atlas Production Is Under Way

The Atlas Film Manufacturing Company has begun making its first film at its newly completed studio in Newton. Work was begun May 14, following a meeting of stockholders which was attended by sixty-five. At the executive meeting Leon Daman of Boston, was elected president; E. Helly, clerk; J. C. Morse, treasurer. The board of directors is composed of F. H. Miller, J. J. Leaman, F. Mason and Eugene Turner. The formal opening of the studio will be held Monday, May 28.

Great Activity in New Jersey World-Brady Plant

Carlyle Blackwell and Arthur Ashley Both Directing and Playing

Little Madge Evans to Be Featured Kitty Gordon Hard at Work

ACTIVITIES are at their height in the Fort Lee Studio of World-Pictures Brady-Made, where at least one interesting experiment is being made, engaging the services of two of the foremost male players of this organization.

Both Carlyle Blackwell and Arthur Ashley, who have confined their attention hitherto to acting for the screen, are at present directing new plays in which they will also appear prominently—Mr. Blackwell as star and Mr. Ashley featured.

Mr. Blackwell's play is called "Jack, the Good-for-Nothing," in which he has the role of Jack Burkshaw. Associated with him in the cast are Evelyn Grecley, Murid Ostriche, William Sherwood and others.

The piece being produced under Mr. Ashley's direction is titled, "The Guardian," and will be the second of the series in which Montagu Love is to have the star role. The young woman of whom Mr. Love is the supposed guardian in this photoplay is personated by June Elvidge.

Kitty Gordon is also at work in this studio upon the third of her present list of World-Pictures, this time under the direction of George Archainbaud. The feature play carries the title "Frenzy for Short," and the full name of its juvenile heroine is Geraldine Carmichael. Harley Knolles is the director for Little Madge.

Kitty Gordon

Other picture plays upon which the final touches are being made are "Dandy Dick," directed by Mr. Brady in person; "A Self-Made Widow," starring Alice Brady, director of Travers Vale, and "The Wastie," directed by Romaine Fielding.

Increased Arbuckle Bookings

With the second Paramount-Arbcuckle comedy, "A Reckless Romeo," still but a week old, there has been reported to Paramount Pictures Corporation, by its exchanges, an increase of over 35 per cent in contracts over the first two-reeler made for Paramount by Fatty, "The Butcher Boy," which was issued one month ago. These two-reel comedies are being released by Paramount to all exhibitors on the open booking plan.

Notre Dame Subject of Topical

"Mutual Tours Around the World," scheduled for May 29, shows views of Notre Dame, the great church of Paris and intimate views of its gargoyles, expensive Gothic structure and the clock gallery. Another section shows Teneriffe, one of Spain's Canary Islands, and still another a pretty Bavarian lake, Koenigsee, with its picturesque banks, with luxurious foliage hiding the cozy nooks along its banks, and the distant views of the landscape are wonderful to behold. It is a scenic masterpiece.
BEN WILSON CAUSES RIOT IN NEW YORK

Popular Star of “Voice on the Wire” Serial Appears in Person at Many Theatres and Receives Ovation

NEW YORK — A near riot was caused in the vicinity of a number of the Marcus Loew circuit theatres in Greater New York early in the week which must have been gratifying to the innocent cause. The occasion was the personal appearance of the popular Universal star, Ben Wilson, who greeted the fans at the conclusion of an episode of “The Voice on the Wire,” in which he plays the lead. Owing to delayed trains Mr. Wilson had no time to rest after the tedious journey from the Universal Studios at Universal City, Cal., but was hurried to the New York Theatre at 45th and Broadway to greet an immense throng whose interest in the current episode of the popular mystery serial was heightened only by his presence. Later the American, another downtown Loew house, was visited, and from there the round of the Loew circuit was begun. A continuous ovation greeted the popular player, who promptly forgot the fatigue of his long journey in the evident sincerity of the warm greetings extended to him.

The entire circuit of Loew theatres covered, Mr. Wilson began a round of visits to the hundreds of theatres now showing “The Voice on the Wire” in the territory near New York City. With this Eastern section behind him, he will begin an itinerary which includes all the principal cities of the United States, the route being now in preparation. Rarely have cold New York audiences risen to an occasion in the manner which marked Mr. Wilson’s appearance. The combination of the most popular serial ever filmed and the presence of its leading character proved an irresistible attraction and augurs well for the reception of this brilliant player in other cities on his proposed route.

SAVED THE SHOW

Universal Screen Magazine Sends Fans Home Happy in Spite of Poor Feature

LOS ANGELES, Cal. (Special Correspondence). — The Los Angeles Tribune of a recent date said: “No doubt the patrons of the Superba Theatre are delighted that the last spasm of (mentioning a widely advertised serial—not Universal) has been gone through, and they don’t have to figure on coming late or leaving early to avoid it. That defunct serial engendered a spirit of preparedness, but it was not of the type that the authors intended. In its place the theatre now shows The Universal Screen Magazine—a most interesting film of educational type. It covers a wide range of subjects and is very entertaining.”

BOOST BOND SALE

Popular Universal Animated Weekly Gives Impetus to Sale of “Liberty Loan” Bonds

NEW YORK.—The Universal Animated Weekly’s latest big move was launched in the current issue and involves a widespread co-operation with the U. S. Treasury Department in the floating of the “Liberty Loan” Bonds. To this end there have already been shown Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo presenting the first check for $200,000,000 to Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British Ambassador, and other intimate views of interesting details connected with the raising and application of the money secured through the “Liberty Loan.” Information regarding the progress of the bond flotation, together with inspiring cartoons by Hy. Mayer, one of which is shown here, are also included in this big “Animated Drive.”

“FRANEY FANS”

Popular Joker Comedian Acquiring Tremendous Following Throughout the Country

PHILADELPHIA (By a Staff Correspondent)—Franey's fans forget when Franey's funny films appear. That's the very latest screen news from this town which is rapidly losing its reputation for slowness thru its appreciation of these superb Joker Comedies, its record breaking enlistments in the Army and Navy of its subscriptions to the “Liberty Loan.” Local Exhibitors say that never in the history of films have single player leaped into universal popularity in such a short time. It has taken for William Franey's name to become a household word. Every Joker since Bill Franey began showing that a fall can be funny, and that there is more humor in his spontaneous freshness than there is in a tremendous reputation, has as much to commend it as the Universal who produce the Joker among other brands of comedies. Franey is the most original comedian that ever concealed a regular set of features beneath a ludicrous make-up. Exhibitors are eagerly waiting for the Universal Programme which contains the first, last and middle of the Universal Program. It's the kind of programme the people like because they can slide into a seat any time convenient to them, and know they won't leap into the middle of the tale-end of a feature. Get the point? Then, ACT!

SPECIALS

REGULARS

On the Universal Programme Week of June 18

VICTOR—“A PIRATE BOLD” (One-Reel Comedy) Pat Rooney.
VICTOR—“PUPPY LOVE” (One-Reel Comedy) Ruth Stonehouse.
REX—“HELEN GRAYCOW'S STRATEGY” (Two-Reel Comedy Drama) Irene Hunt, Malcolm McGregor and L. C. Spaulding.
VICTOR—“SHE MARRIED HER HUSBAND” (Two-Reel Comedy Drama) Matt Moore and Jane Gail.
BINGE—“JOSE LARRY” (Two-Reel Comedy Drama) Eileen Sedgwick, Kingsley Benedict.

BIG L—“THE TWO-GUN PARSON” (One-Reel Drama).

When you book the complete Universal Program you get two kinds of punches for your show—the “specials” and the “regulars.” These regular, one, two and three reel dramatic and comedy subjects are brilliant and powerful, and don't make the mistake of thinking otherwise. They can be booked separately if desired.

Here are specials that are the cream. They cost a slight advance, just as cream costs more than milk. And they are worth the little extra because they are the money magnets that make the nimble coins change from the crowds' pockets to your cash-box. They can be booked separately if desired.

Song Hits in Photo Play—A Hit on the Screen

NEW YORK—The general manager of exchanges in the Universal Office report that “Song Hits In Photo Play” is the firstsplit reel that has ever jumped into the popularity of a long feature. Exhibitors report, too, that the fans say “It's hit.” They are crazy to see a moving picture of their favorite song. Universal Exchanges report big bookings.

Widely Known Editor Heads F. P.-Lasky Scenario Department

Robert E. MacAlarney, former city editor of the New York Tribune and well-known short story writer and playwright, succeeds Hector Turnbull as head of the Famous Players-Lasky scenario department on June 1. On that date Mr. Turnbull will resign his position as head of the producing organization's scenario department in order to devote himself exclusively to the writing of original photoplays and to the completion of several plays for which he has contracted.

The motion pictures which emanate from Mr. Turnbull's pen are to be produced upon the screen by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in accordance with an arrangement entered into by Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the corporation. Though Mr. Turnbull has written a number of original scripts which have been produced upon the screen, he will be chiefly remembered as the author of "I by Cheat," a motion picture which created a furore when it was presented by Jesse L. Lasky, with Ennie Ward and Sessue Hayakawa in the leading roles. Metro's Women Stars Begin Work on Four New Productions

Four of Metro's most scintillating stars began work on as many plays last week.

Ethel Barrymore is busily engaged in the picturization of Basil King's popular novel, "The Lifted Veil," Mabel Taliaferro returns to the screen in "The Will of the Wise," the novel of Katherine Kavanagh. Emily Stevens is rushing work on William Christy Cabanne's romantic story, "The Slacker," and Emily Welten is to be seen in "The Trail of the Shadow," written by O. C. Land, and adapted for the screen by June Mathis.

Miss Barrymore will be assisted by William B. Davidson and by Frank Gilmore, who makes his debut in this play. George D. Baker is directing. The role is said to allow the star the widest latitude for the exercise of her talents.

As Sheila Desmond in "The Will of the Wise," it is believed Miss Taliaferro will add many to her large list of admirers. Her leading man will be Thomas J. Carrigan.

Others in support are: Samuel J. Ryan, Nathan Sacks and Chica Hanshaw. This will be the first Metro Picture directed by Tod Browning.

Walter Miller, Leo Delaney and Dorothy Haydel are among those appearing in support of Emily Stevens in "The Slacker," which is a play such as is indicated by the title.

Emily Welten, in what is said to be the biggest part she has yet had, has a cast which included Eugene Strong, Frank Carriere and De J. Alma West. Edwin Carewe is directing.

Elaine Hammerstein Again in Support of Warwick

Elaine Hammerstein, who has just finished the third Warwick Production, has been engaged by Mr. Rapf to support Mr. Warwick in the next forthcoming production, "The Road to Love."

Miss Hammerstein's work in "The Argyle Case" was of such nature that Mr. Warwick wanted Miss Hammerstein for all future productions, and those who have seen "A Modern Othello" on the screen at a private showing are of the opinion that it is the best thing Miss Hammerstein has done, and her work will soon bring her in the front rank as a star.

Miss Hammerstein comes of a theatrical family, being the daughter of Arthur Hammerstein, the theatrical manager, and granddaughter of Oscar Hammerstein.

The first of the series of Terry Human Interest reels will be shown at the Strand theatre, New York, on June 3.
Mary Garden to Return for Film Work in July

According to Goldwyn Pictures, word has been received from Mary Garden that she hopes to leave Paris the last week in June or early in July, and come to America to begin the screening of "Thais.”

Miss Garden's opera engagements end this week. In the event she arrives in time, she intends going to Chicago to open the annual exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League.

The diva states that three famous members of the French Academy have spent two months designing costumes for her motion picture debut under the Goldwyn banner, in "Thais.”

Edna Goodrich Prefers Screen to Stage

Edna Goodrich, who is one of the late additions to Mutual's list of stars, has become so fascinated with her work before the camera that she has almost decided never to return to the legitimate stage.

"I never realized before," said Miss Goodrich, "how difficult the work for the screen was. I had rather an idea that anyone could act before the camera, but find that it takes all the talent I possess, and I am working a great deal harder to gain the right effect on the screen than I ever did to make the success I have on the legitimate stage.”

New Leading Man in Emmy Wehlen's Next Metro

When Emmy Wehlen appears in "The Trail of the Shadow,” a forthcoming Metro play, she will have a new leading man in the person of Eugene Strong.

Although this is his first appearance in a Metro feature, Mr. Strong is well known to patrons of motion pictures. He was cast as Robert Clarke, the artist, in the serial, "The Crimson Stain Mystery." He was starred in "In the Hands of the Law,” and was the featured artist in "Infidelity.”

New Order of Production Reigns in Vita Plants

Snappy Work Now the Rule in Order to Have Pictures Scheduled Far in Advance; Temperament Forgotten in Interests of Harmony

A GENERAL speeding up in production is evident both in Vitagraph's Eastern and Western studios. Employees of the company have been informed that enough pictures must be completed to allow the sales end of the organization to announce a list of releases at least sixteen weeks in advance. In order to attain this schedule, it is necessary to finish on an average of two five-reel pictures a week for several weeks.

During the past fortnight four five-reel features have been completed, have been criticized by the sales force and are ready for release. These pictures, which have been in the making for several weeks, are "The Soul Master,” starring Earle Williams; "The Magnificent Meddler,” co-starring Antonio Moreno and Mary Anderson; "The Question,” with Alice Joyce and Harry Morey; and "The Maelstrom,” featuring Earl Williams and Dorothy Kelly.

Other pictures well underway and which probably will be completed within the next two weeks are: "Mary Jane’s Pa,” with Marc MacDermott and Mildred Manning; "A Son of the Hills,” with Antonio Moreno and Belle Bruce; "Richard the Brazen,” with Alice Joyce and Harry Morey; "Lincoln by the Nile,” with Earl Williams and Corinne Griffith; "The Message of the Mouse,” starring Anita Stewart, and "The Lady Sheriff,” starring Antonio Moreno.

A seven-day-a-week working time with night work as extra was found to be necessary owing to the manner in which the Executive Board of the sales force of V-L-S-E, refused to sanction the release of pictures until they were beyond criticism.

As a sample of the new order of things, it is related by V-L-S-E that during the past five weeks four five-part Blue Ribbon features have been entirely thrown away after thousands of dollars had been expended in the making. The Executive Board took the stand that the pictures were not up to standard. In two instances it was said the stories were old and hackneyed, in a third the plot was not clear, and in the fourth one of Vitagraph's stars had been cast in a role unsuited to him.

With these and other upsets in the producing end, it was found that the announcement that V-L-S-E would rotate its stars in five-reel features, and have the productions far in advance, meant a general upheaval in methods of production in fact, that the plan to rotate the stars would have to be held in abeyance for a short time at least.

It is said that for the first time the production and sales end of Vitagraph V-L-S-E are working in harmony. Temperament of directors and stars has been relegated to the background, as has also the "chip-on-the-shoulder" feeling of the business end of the organization.

Owing to the termination of the contracts of several more or less well-known motion picture leads within the last few months there have been rumors that Greater Vitagraph purposes to discontinue contracts with all stars and engage well-known players for the parts in each feature. The Greater Vitagraph management feels that it should be unnecessary to deny this story owing to its absurdity. And the only comment that will be made regarding this statement is that Greater Vitagraph is in the market at all times for motion picture stars.

"Road to Love" for Warwick

Harry Rapf announces that Robert Warwick's fourth Selznick production will be "The Road to Love," from the original story by Leonice Prever, work on which was begun last week. Elaine Hammerstein will again play opposite Mr. Warwick.

It is announced that this book has many humane points, all of which have been taken full advantage of in the filming.

Universal Star, Ben Wilson, to Make Countrywide Tour

Ben Wilson, actor and director, who has achieved new honors by his work in the Universal mystery serial, "The Voice on the Wire," will make a transcontinental trip, appearing in person at the leading photoplay houses in connection with the showing of this picture, which has been accorded a welcome everywhere.

As John Shirley, the criminalologist, in "The Voice on the Wire," Mr. Wilson added to his popularity, and there was a demand from exhibitors for him to personally appear at their theatres, that their patrons might see the hero of the serial as he really is. He had planned to take a needed rest, but the repeated requests for his appearance following the completion of this picture were such that he could not deny them.

Mr. Wilson will begin his countrywide tour in New York, appearing at the entire Marcus circuit in the metropolitan district, where "The Voice on the Wire" has proven to be a big success.

From New York Mr. Wilson will go to Philadelphia, and then south to Washington, and then west. He will appear in the leading theatres in forty-seven cities in all parts of the country, planning to make this the most comprehensive personal appearance tour ever made by a motion picture star.

Another Baby Osborne Picture Announced for June 24

"When Baby Forgot," the Pathe-Gold Rooster release for June 24, is the first Baby Marie Osborne Picture made by the La Salita. Much interest has been shown by admirers who have been wondering how the infant star would conduct herself under a different director and in different surroundings.

It is felt that "When Baby Forgot" will be a most effective answer to speculation. W. Eugene Moore is the new director of the little star.

Mixed in with much pathos and human interest there is said to be some delightful comedy. Where the baby wanders into the colored church in search of some one who can tell her the prayer her mother taught her, but which she has forgotten is illustrative of this. The funny little pick-anony playmate is another instance. This fat little chap with his sunshine grin and white teeth literally and figuratively gives color to the scenes he is in.

Fitzmaurice Picture by Pathé on June 10

A fast action picture is promised exhibitors in "Blind Man's Luck." She detects the crook and escapes--The police follow her, thinking her the accomplice of her guardian--The story is that of a young girl who is the ward of a crook. She detects the crook and escapes--The police follow her, thinking her the accomplice of her guardian.

The picture is directed by Pathe and distributed by the Pathé-Gold Rooster for release June 10.

"Forbidden City," from Pathé

Never before shown views of China's "Forbidden City," holy of holies, ten thousand Chinese troops in a great military spectacle, Chinese Army Aviators, in a country more progressive "in the air" than our own country, with many other interesting subjects completed in a comprehensive trip taken by official invitation of the Chinese Government, are being shown in split-reel series with International's Pathe releases. C. H. Hubbell spent nine months in China to get these pictures.

Pearl White's Next Serial in September

Announcement is made by Pathe that a new serial starring Pearl White is now being produced by Astra for release some time in September. "The Fatal Ring" will be the title of this serial.

George B. Seitz, author of some of Pathe's serial successes, is directing "The Fatal Ring." It is stated that this serial will have one of the greatest all-star casts that has ever appeared in a continued production. Two of the other prominent members of the cast are Warner Oland, the villain of "Patria," and Ruby Hoffman, who has appeared in vampire roles in a great many important productions.

The serial is adapted from a series of stories by Fred Jackson, which appeared in one of the popular magazines.

Cinema War News, Nos. 3 and 4

Marshal Joffre's visit to New York, drilling of the Harvard students by French officers, visit of West Point Cadets to Columbia University Reserve Corps Officers, and a sham battle between motorcycles and armored cars, are the featured sections of Cinema War News No. 3; Dedication of American Red Cross new headquarters, President Wilson presiding, views of the U. S. Flying Service Patrol at New Orleans, a 'scoop' showing the U-boats leaving for France, and Marshal Joffre in Massachusetts comprise another reel of all-war-news "No. 4."

WHAT WAS THE LADY OF HERCULES?
Vita Players Gain Publicity Posing for Music Cover Designs

The Witmark Company now possesses additional illustrations from Vitagraph which are in the process of being colored and will be ready for release in about two weeks. One is a scene laid in an Irish locale depicting Adele DeGarde as a beautiful daughter of Erin going to a well and will be used for a Gachie melody called "Somewhere in Ireland." The Witmark Company predicts that this number will score one of the greatest hits of any popular song ever placed on the market.

The other cover design was posed by Kathie Jensen, Harry Morey and Mary Maurice, and will be used for a patriotic melody named "For Your Country Needs You Now."

Noted Author Joins Paramount— Play for Billie Burke

Famous Players-Lasky has engaged W. Somerset Maugham, author and dramatist, to write especially for its photoplay productions. The motion picture rights to Mr. Maugham's successful play, "The Land of Promise," have been obtained by the producers, and will be adapted for Billie Burke by Mr. Maugham himself. This will constitute Billie Burke's second Paramount picture, as it is planned to have "The Land of Promise" follow the adaptation of Gekett Burgess' "The Mysterious Miss Terry," which is now being produced under the direction of J. Searle Dawley. The selection of "The Land of Promise" as Miss Burke's second picture is of singular interest in view of the fact that she has already starred in the stage version of the play when it was produced at the Lyceum theatre a few years ago. Joseph Kastman will direct the adaptation of "The Land of Promise."

Among the more notable of Mr. Maugham's plays are: "Mme. Zampa," "Lady Frederick," "The Explorer," "Mrs. Dot," "The Hero" and "The Magician."

Babbling Tongues," Ivan Film, Almost Ready

Cutting and titling of Ivan Films picture, "Babbling Tongues," is about completed. William Humphrey considers the subject to be the best he has ever directed, attributing this to the free hand he had in production. The story is based on verses of the third chapter of St. James: "The tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity. It setteth on fire the course of nature and is set on fire by hell."

The cast is composed of Grace Valentine, James Morrison, Arthur Donaldson, Paul Capellani, Louise Beaudet and Carolyn Birch.

Another Feature with Theda Bara Completed

Theda Bara has just finished work on a new super de luxe production for William Fox. This is the fifth picture made by the "vampire woman" since Mr. Fox inaugurated his super de luxe features.

"The Heir of the Ages," a Pallas-Paramount picture, starring House Peters, has two distinct phases; one which concerns only the Cave Man era and the other pertaining to present-day conditions in a Western mining town. The cast supporting Mr. Peters includes Nina Byron, John Burton, Henry A. Barrows and Adele Farrington. John Burton will be remembered for his extremely clever character interpretations and Adele Farrington is well known for her clever work in support of numerous Famous Players-Leslye stars. Miss Byron and Mr. Barrows have also appeared in previous pictures, the latter most recently in "The World Apart."

The prelude to "The Heir of the Ages" shows all the characters in the Cave Man era and pictures the strong man making love after the peculiar fashion of the Cave Man and doing battle against his rivals. The main body of the story shows the same characters in a present-day setting—a Western mining town.

Pantages Houses Take Pathe's "The Neglected Wife"

A full week's run in the Pantages houses in Portland, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles will be given the Pathe serial, "The Neglected Wife." Announcement is also made that negotiations are under way to show this serial in the Pantages houses in Spokane, Tacoma, Oakland and Sacramento.

Tom Mix in "Movie Stunts"

In a private view of the special two-reeler Selig release, "Movie Stunts," featuring Tom Mix, a committee of General Film executives voted this one of the most interesting short-length subjects ever received by this company for distribution. The film is heralded as a succession of quick, snappy cowboy stunts. Roping, riding and shooting feats follow in quick succession.

Farrar Starts Film Work Soon

Geraldine Farrar, who recently arrived in California to appear in Aircraft pictures, will commence work on her initial offering under the direction of Cecil B. De Mille, July 1. Director De Mille, who is at present staging the new patriotic Mary Pickford subject, "The Little American," at the Lasky studios, will shortly conclude his work on this film, upon which he will take a vacation.

Forthcoming Gold Rooster with Mollie King

Mollie King, star of the Pathe serial, "Mystery of the Double Cross," is the featured player of the forthcoming Gold Rooster play, "Blind Man's Luck." With her in the cast are Earl Foxe, William Riley Hatch, Zelma Tilbury, Helen Chadwick and Francis Byrne.

"Blind Man's Luck" was directed by George Fitzmaurice of Astra. Briefly it is the story of a girl born into a family of somewhat shady connections, but who hates the atmosphere of ill fame and fear of the police in which she lives. Though innocent she is sought by the police as an accomplice in a crime. To escape them she is forced by a strange chain of circumstances into marriage with a wealthy young man who has been spending his time and money in folly. This is really the beginning of her adventures and not the end.

Moreno and Mary Anderson Co-Starring

"The Magnificent Meldler," Greater Vitagraph's release for June 4, will serve to introduce to filmdom a new co-starring combination, Antonio Moreno and Mary Anderson.

The story is of the Great West, and depicts the attempt of a breezy easterner, of indomitable spirit, to uplift a corrupt Western town, where he is the proprietor of a newspaper. The opposition which he incurs, and his ultimate triumph is said to make a thoroughly absorbing play, the appeal of which is enhanced by a charming romance between the principals.

The play was written by Lawrence McCloskey.

Another Broadway House Takes Art Drama Program

Directly following the announcement that Loew's New York theatre had decided to add Art Dramas to its regular bill comes the news that Proctor's Twenty-third street house will also show this program every week. At the Proctor House, the pictures will be shown for three-day runs.

Two other Proctor houses, the one in Schenectady, and the one in Yonkers, are also about to show Art Dramas. As only two features are shown weekly at the Proctor theatre, one for the first half and one for the last half of the week, it is considered a distinction that this comparatively new program should be selected from the many on the market.

Bessie Love Starts Work on Second Ince Play

Bessie Love, under the direction of Charles Miller, has begun production of her second Triangle-Ince play. This is a story by J. G. Hawks, in which Miss Love will be seen as a poor orphan in Ireland, who, after many romantic misadventures, comes into her own.

The many quaint characters in the production will be played by a large supporting company, including Frank Borzage, Charles K. French, Walter Perkins, William Jeffers, Walt Whitman, Aggie Herrington and Alfred Hollingsworth. The action calls for many beautiful exterior settings with true Irish atmosphere.

The first Ince production starring Bessie Love lately made at the Culver City Studios and soon to be released on the Triangle Program, is a story of the circus.

Atlanta Fire Depicted in Mutual Weekly

Excellent pictures of the great Atlanta conflagration have been secured by Mutual Weekly and are shown in its issue No. 126. The views are said to be of the most varied nature, efforts having been made by the camera men to get away from the stereotyped.

A war picture of interest presents General Pershing, who will head the first troops sent to France. Scene of Roye, a town around which the opposing armies have been surging in France, are shown in this issue of the weekly.

WHAT WAS THE LABOR OF HERCULES
June 9, 1917

V-L-S-E Will Call in Any Unsatisfactory Film

A recent conference of members of the executive council of the selling organization of Vitagraph it decided that V-L-S-E would withdraw from the market every Vitagraph picture that does not meet with the approval of the exhibitors.

In order to get the opinion of the exhibitors on pictures all branch shipping clerks of V-L-S-E all over the country, have been instructed to deliver with each booking a printed slip upon which there are spaces in which the exhibitor shall designate just exactly what he thought of the picture and what his patrons thought of it.

If forty per cent. of the exhibitors who have presented a picture condemn it as being either "only fair," "mediocre," or "poor," the picture will be withdrawn from the market.

In coming to the decision V-L-S-E realizes that it is giving to the smaller exhibitors of the country an advantage over the big first run houses which book V-L-S-E pictures chiefly upon the decision of the executive board of the V-L-S-E, which passes on every picture before it is released.

It is the opinion of the V-L-S-E officials that should audiences announce their disapproval of a picture by remaining away from their theatre showing it, the picture be withdrawn and the exhibitors protected in as far as possible.

Just as soon as the decision to withdraw pictures without the drawing power was reached thousands of blanks were distributed to exhibitors who have been presenting Greater Vitagraph pictures.

Replies from several hundred theatre managers were frank in their approval or disapproval of the pictures, and in praise of the move made by the V-L-S-E.

$1,000,000 Worth of News Space Given Cartoons of Pathé

Three hundred of the largest newspapers through the country are publishing the cartoons which are released in animated form by Pathé and produced by International. The subjects are, "Bringing Up Father," by George McMann; "Happy Hoohican," by F. Opper; "Jerry on the Job," by Walt Holan; "Krazy Kat," by George Herriman; and "The Original Katzenjammer Kids."

The cartoons are published in such papers as the New York Journal, with its immense circulation, with a line calling attention to the animated cartoons released by Pathé and showing at leading theatres. This means that the hundreds of exhibitors running them are cashing in on the immensely valuable advertising. They are printed in strips measuring about four inches or sixty-four lines deep by eight columns wide, and a conservative estimate of the value of this space is more than fifteen thousand dollars a week or nearly a million dollars a year.

It is estimated by Pathé that $1,000,000 of this worth of space is given to these cartoons, and for this reason it is felt that the exhibitor who does not run them is missing something worth while. Where they are not published it is suggested by the film concern that exhibitor and newspaper get together, and the Pathé Exchange promises to cooperate in an effort to secure them for the paper while the exhibitor runs them on the screen.

British Army Officer Aids in Pickford Production

In order that every detail in connection with the intimate war scenes of Mary Pickford's forthcoming Arclerata production, "The Little American," should be correct, Cecil B. De Mille, the director, inducted Captain Ian Hay Beith of the British Army, and author of the story, "The First 100,000," to personally supervise these scenes.

Captain Beith happened to be in Los Angeles on a lecture tour, and hearing that Mr. De Mille was staging Miss Pickford's new patriotic story, "The Little American," immediately offered to put his knowledge of modern warfare at the disposal of the director.

The scenes depicted the French army being driven back by the invading Germans through a French village.

Washburn’s Next June 11

June 11 has been fixed by Essanay for the release of Bryant Washburn's next feature, "Filling His Own Shoes." This picture, which has been adapted from the novel of that title by Henry C. Rowland, the noted light fiction writer, has been completed and will be given wide showings at all Klein-Edison-SELIG-Essanay branch offices within a few days.

To Exhibit Costumes Worn by Metro Stars

Displays from the wardrobes of Metro stars have been sent to Chicago for exhibition at the National Photoplay Exposition, which will open in that city on June 4.

W. R. Van Courtland is the managing director of the exposition. He left New York last week for Chicago to arrange the final details of the exposition. With him he took many costumes worn by the artists who have made Metro pictures popular. Included in the lot were gowns worn by Viola Dana, Mabel Talafaro, Emmy Wehler, Emily Stevens, Ethel Barrymore and Beverly Baynes.

Following an exhibition of ten days in Chicago, the exposition will be taken intact to the principal cities of the United States. Cleveland, Philadelphia, Boston, New York, St. Louis and Cincinnati will be visited in the order named.

Triangle Picture with Child Players Starring

A late announcement from Triangle-Ince Studios, at Culver City, details the beginning of a new production ... which was written by L...

Although the story is primarily for children, it is said that there is plenty in it that is calculated to interest and amuse grownups.

Film Men Aid Benefit Show for Theatrical Hospital

At a benefit performance given at the Auditorium theatre, Chicago, on Sunday afternoon, May 20, nearly three thousand dollars was cleared for the American Theatrical Hospital Association. Alfred Hamburger, prominent film man of the Windy City, is vice-president of this organization, and scores of other film men are interested in it.

The performance was made up of vaudeville acts and specialty bits by performers from the various vaudeville and legitimate houses in the city, together with several reels of motion pictures. Fred C. Eherts, manager of the Majestic theatre, was chairman of the arrangements committee.

The American Theatrical Hospital is located on Irving Park boulevard, near Broadway, and was opened just a couple of weeks ago. It provides a place for the sick and indigent people of the stage and motion picture studio.

Alfred Hamburger donated the equipment for a delivery room in the obstetrical ward.

M. P. Editor of Herald Thanked for Boost Efforts

H. C. Holch, head of the Motion Picture Department of the Chicago Herald, has been the recipient of thanks from the National Convention committee and many other men in the motion picture field for the "booster" letter that he has sent out to more than a thousand exhibitors and managers in all parts of the country. The letter, while offering the cooperation of the Herald's services to exhibitors and manufacturers in making their preparations for the coming convention, contains an urgent message to these men as to the importance of this next annual event to be held at the Chicago Coliseum the week of July 14.

Reel Fellows Entertain

The Reel Fellows Club of Chicago gave themselves another boost on Wednesday night, May 20, when they attended a performance of the Dan Coleman show at the Columbia theatre in a body. After the show they entertained the members of the troupe with a buffet luncheon and speechmaking at the clubrooms.

George Offerman of the Sunshine Film Company was toastmaster, and he called upon a dozen of the prominent members of the Reel Fellows and invited city officials present, who delivered addresses of greeting and welcome to the guests. Dan Coleman responded on behalf of his company, and several of the members of the troupe showed their gratitude with songs and instrumental music that went to top off a pleasant evening.

New York Firm to Dispose of "Should She Obey?"

The Arizona Film Company, of Chicago, who made the multiple reel divorce film, "Should She Obey?" now having a run at the La Salle theatre, announce that they have placed the film in charge of the renowned Picture Corporation, 1600 Broadway, New York, for the state rights market.

Abba Weinberg is head of the renowned Company and is said to have very good luck with state rights propositions.

The selling of the rights for the entire United States, with the exception of Illinois and Indiana, will be under their sole direction. The Indiana rights have already been taken by Greiver and Herz, a newly organized exchange in the Windy City circles. The Arizona Company will take care of the Illinois end. They report having already signed up fifty theatres throughout the state.

Plan Auspicious Showing of "Screen News Magazine"

The "Screen News Magazine," put out by the American Bioscope Company, will be honored with an auspicious debut at St. Louis, where it is to be shown to the delegates attending the Ad Club's convention there the week of June 27. The first issue is to get a daily showing to the assembling delegates. In addition to this, J. E. Willis, president of the American Bioscope Company, has made arrangements for a regular nightly showing of the magazine that week at the New Grand Central theatre, of which William Siever is manager.

LEAKS IN THE LOOP

The following selected list of visitors to the Rothacker studio during the past ten days prove by their number and worth that both Watson and his film plant make its reappearance in the popular parts of the community. Let your eye rove: R. E. Norman, Jackson ville, Fla.; former Lieutenant Governor of Illinois Barratt O'Hara; James Quirk, of Photoplay Magazine; Walter Early, Ralph O. Proctor, of Artcraft; Jack Luit, Sydney Cohan, Mel L Vary, Don Bell, of Bell-Howell; Hobart Henley, Norman Manning, of Horsley; Harry Carlin, Chaplin's general manager; Leo Wharton, of Wharton, Inc.; Don Meany and others.

Greiver and Herz, the new exchange that have established themselves in the Loop, have purchased the Indiana rights to "Should She Obey?", the Arizona Film Company's divorce preachment.

The wife of Peter J. Schafer, one of the theatre owning firm of Jones, Linick and Schafer, was buried last week, following her death as the result of a lingering illness.

The Williamson underwater picture, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Below," is to make its reappearance in the Loop at the La Salle theatre this week. It was seen before at the Studebaker. Aaron Jones has the state rights for Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky.

Hobart Henley began last Saturday to make a tour of the Hamburger houses. He is meeting the audiences and doing some propaganda work for the Parentage film.

"Within the Law" will make its Chicago premier at the Ziegfeld theatre. Three employees of the Rothacker studio, calling themselves the Rothacker Film Company's Pleasure Club, are to give a dance at the Hamlin Park Refectory. A special plate glass and steel compartment, practically a roof within a room, has been made at the Rothacker laboratory for the assembling of negatives.

Jones, Linick and Schafer announce a revised scale of prices at their Rialto theatre. Matinee prices, beginning last week, were raised to 15 and 25 cents and night prices are 20, 30 and 35 cents. The Rialto plays a continuous program of vaudeville and pictures.

Watson Rothacker has been invited to address the Ad Clubs convention at St. Louis in June on his favorite subject, "The Motion Picture as an Advertising Medium." He will also show the film he has made on the method of making the modern motion picture.

The third edition of the Motion Picture News Studio Directory has been placed on five newsstands in the Loop for sale. They are: Powners, Postoffice News, Chicago News, Sherman Hotel, and the Antiquarian Book Shop.
Interest in West Increases in National Convention

As the time draws nearer for the seventh annual exhibition and convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, to be held in Chicago, beginning July 14, the various committees in charge, working at the Chicago league headquarters in the Masonic Building, find that their work is piling up on them in greater quantities each week. Manager Ludwig Schindler is kept on the jump arranging for his space contracts for the exposition and the allotments and payments for the 150 exhibitors, 85 film companies, and 160 film business people expected to attend.

A communication has been received at the Chicago headquarters during the past week from Edward J. Fischer, secretary of the Washington Theatre Manager's Association of Washington. He states that the Exhibitor's League of America has offered a booth for the Red Cross at the coming convention, free of charge. The publicity department at the league headquarters announce that they are anxious to hear from exhibitors all over the country in regard to any new or novel idea that will increase the attractiveness of the convention.

War Takes Pathé Men

The Pathé Philadelphia office has lost three men who have heard the call of Uncle Sam and enlisted in the regular army. They are: Wm. B. Bran, the poster man; J. J. Keating, the shipping clerk, and Albert Spein. The Pathé organization is now represented in the Army, Navy, Naval Reserve and National Guard by a considerable number of its employees.

Philadelphia Branch Notes

Robert Lynch, for several years manager of the Bluebird Exchange, Philadelphia, has become manager for Metro, succeeding J. D. Clark, who goes to Washington to manage the Paramount office in that city. It is said that Mr. Lynch is now the highest salaried manager in the Quaker City.

Vita Manager on Tour

W. K. Howard, manager of the Minneapolis Exchange of Vitagraph V-L-O-E, is making a tour of the theatres in South Dakota in order to become more familiar with his exhibitors in that territory. He is accompanied by Harry Rosenberg, a recent acquisition to his sales force and a film solicitor of wide experience.

Among the Exchanges

Three Western Selznick Exchanges Are Opened

Ben Cohn Completes Organization Work, Opening Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles Branches in Record Time

H. H. Hicks, who is to be manager of the Los Angeles exchange, has been affiliated with the film business on the west coast for the past four years, and is one of the best known exhibitors of the region. He was first manager of the General Film Exchange in Los Angeles from 1917 to 1919, and this position was promoted to the office of district manager, supervising all exchanges of the seven mountain states. This position he held until he tendered his resignation to go with the Selznick organization.

Mr. Cohn made a new record for speedy opening of exchanges when he arrived in Seattle at noon one day, had a lease written and signed by 2:30 that afternoon, and opened the office for business the following morning at 9:30, with furniture, telephones, advertising display and signs on the windows. The entire office staff was employed by the opening hour, and five minutes later he claims the first rent money was paid into the office, and the whole trade will agree this is a record.

Coast Exchange Briefs

E. H. Emick, of the Peerless Film Service, San Francisco, is shortly to make a trip in his machine from Frisco to Los Angeles, and will make a number of stops on his way, visiting theatres.

H. D. Naugel, western division manager for the Greater Vitagraph Exchange, left Sunday for a trip to Salt Lake and the entire territory west of Chicago. He will be gone about eight weeks.

J. J. Unger has resigned from his position as western representative of the Metro and has purchased the Metro franchise for all Canada.

G. H. Atwood, late of the International, is now connected with the sales force of the Los Angeles exchange of the World Film Corporation.

Dave Burston, manager of the Los Angeles California Film Exchange, has returned from a week's vacation, which he spent at Big Bear Lake.

Reid Shifted to Toronto

William J. Reid, who has been in charge of the St. John, N. B., office of the Regal Films, Limited, since its establishment several months ago, was last Saturday transferred to Toronto to assume the management of the head office. Mr. Reid is succeeded in St. John by Edouard Soursnes, formerly manager of the Midway theatre, Montreal, and until early in May manager of the St. John office of the Fox Film Corporation, Limited.
THERE is the secret of the public's curiosity about the name of a new Universal coming out this week. The leading lady's name will be vastly appreciated by the trade, for instance. Pat Sullivan, cartoonist extraordinaire, is married. Asked who the lady was, he replied, “Mrs. Pat Sullivan.” Well, to coin a phrase, we wish the couple all happiness on the sea of matrimony.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS celebrated his thirty-fourth birthday last week. A lengthy telegram from Bennie Zieiman to the Articrat headquarters in New York, which indicated the amazing bit of intelligence. Mrs. Fairbanks had plans for a surprise party and members of the Fairbanks’ producing company congregated early in order to spring it. But some way, somehow, Doug went wind of the situation and surprised everybody else in the surprise party intending to surprise him by not showing up. He had gifts ready for every one, while as a present from the company he received a pair of silver spurs engraved with his own smiling countenance.

THE following entitled, “To My Favorite,” comes to hand from the inspired typewriter of D. F. C, who wishes the leading lady to run the gamut of human emotions.

THE great mystery surrounding the identity of the author of Douglas Fairbanks’ coming picture, “Wild and Woolly,” formerly known under the title of “A Regular Guy,” has been cleared. Horace Carpenter, a motion picture actor, has claimed and proven authorship.

WIN THANHouser tells this one on himself: “Of course, we haven’t given much publicity to those in the ‘literary’ end of the game. The press agent who takes three pages to tell that...”

“I think I’d better wait. I say this because I think Emperor William will be out of a job soon, too, and then you could offer him and Romanoff a chance as a ‘team.’ Things of the double advertising! Dick Thanhouser and Bill Ayres had a thrilling film, ‘Did They Fall or Were They Pushed?’—why, Thanhouser and Pathe would get so rich they wouldn’t notice more.”

For the well-known United States Government is going to tax the pictures in every way in all probability and we wonder if it will take a few suggestions offered free of charge. For instance, what a film studio could be collected if the Government taxed every closeup of a baby! How its treasury would be swelled if every time a character drew a gun from the recesses of his desk drawer, the producer paid two and a half cents! What a gold mine it would encounter if the domestic animals used in closeups were taxed! And there would be lucrative returns if every scene with the ingenue playing with a canary bird were taxed.

For, if the producer decides, the taxes might shift to those in the “literary” end of the game. The press agent who uses superlatives in every story would soon send out readable stuff if the “greater” and “greatest” were assessed. The press agent who takes three pages to tell that Exhibitor So-and-so has finally decided to use this-and-that program could be taxed severely. To say nothing of a tax on the reviewer who insists that a picture “holds the interest from start to finish” and that the leading lady “runs the gamut of human emotions.”

LOCAL NEWS

Geo. Purdy printed a wicked, nefarious, malicious, libelous story in his hospitality page last week, which he knows to be so libelous that we strenuously deny every word of it, particularly that part which refers to our connection with Farragut, which we must and never will have.

Nebraska Houses Suffer from War Excitement

Business in Nebraska is just "a little bit off" because of the war excitement, exhibitors complain. A trip from Omaha last week, showed this situation. Nearly every exhibitor, while not suffering a great loss, found cause to complain. The patriotic campaign to save, to work gardens and to farm is having its effect.

One instance, one evening in Aurora, Neb., when a patriotic meeting was held, one house had twelve people in it and the other house had twenty-two, when, under normal conditions, they would have been crowded.

The manager of the Opera House in York, Neb., has turned this spirit into a profit, at the same time showing the spirit of patriotism. At each performance the house is darkened and one lone light in the rear shines on a five-foot flag, fanned by an electric fan. The orchestra starts "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the audience arises. At every show the patrons yell, sing, clap their hands and in other ways show their patriotic enthusiasm. As a result the theatre has received the commendation of the military authorities and is decidedly popular with the people of the town.

British Film, "Labour Leader," Widely Heralded

From England come reports of great interest, manifested in the first British-made super production of International Exclusives, Ltd., "The Labour Leader." In view of the fact that it is the first production by Thomas Bentley since "Milestones," the screening of the story is awaited with interest. The players include Owen Nares, Fred Groves, Lauri de Frece, Fay Compton and Christine Silver.

St. Louis Airdromes Open for the Summer

Beginning May 19, a number of the large and pretentious airdromes of St. Louis, began to spruce up with an air of general freshness caused by new decorations, the greenness of many plants and generous displays of three and six sheets in front announcing new photoplay features to be seen on the inside.

The Crystal Feature Dome, across the street from the Pageant theatre and under the same management, that of the Skromas Brothers, was a close follower of the Maple. On Monday, May 21, the Lyric Skydome at Delmar and Taylor, and the Delmar Airdome at 4936 Delmar Boulevard, both under the management of Mrs. J. W. Cornelia, were opened for the season.

Buffalo Women Say Censor Deletions Are Disregarded

A committee headed by Mrs. Frank Stryker, representing the Federation of Women's Clubs of Buffalo, called on Mayor Fuhrman on May 22 and demanded that drastic steps be taken to censor films shown at the local theatres. Complaint was made that certain parts of pictures ordered cut out by the National Board were run in Buffalo without deletion.

Mrs. Stryker asked that an inspector be appointed by the mayor. Harry W. Killeen, representing motion picture owners and film producers, said every effort would be made to comply with the restrictions of the National Censor Board.

Newark Folks Demand Kid Shows

Residents of Newark and vicinity are asking for special shows for children. Representatives of the Parent Teachers' Association of Summit makes a like demand. The Board of Education is asked, too, to have shows fit for them, says the chairman of this committee.

Managing New Theatre

Joseph A. Murphy, long manager of the Ruby theatre, Philadelphia, has left to assume a similar position at the New Family theatre, Broad and Market street, considered one of the finest small theatres in the Quaker City.
WITH a script which called for a great deal of astral work, Metro had to resort to much trick photography in the photoplay "Abbadon's Other Lamp", in which Viola Dana is starred. The gentry is seen in the background, and novel double exposures were resorted to by photographer John Arnold.

It is said hundreds of feet of film were spent before a scene, wherein one room was dissolved into another, was satisfactorily taken.

THERE was no hint that the "taking" of Fatty Arbuckle's picture "A Reckless Romance" had anything to do with it — but the title of the subject is mildly suggestive. However, Frank E. Williams, cameraman for Keystone, has become a victim of Cupid, the ceremony being performed May 19, at the Little Church Around the Corner, New York. Midsred E. Hansen of Los Angeles is the bride, and the marriage was performed a few hours after her arrival in New York.

Williams will continue his work with Arbuckle.

MAUD HILL has been engaged for the part of Margaret Palmer in the Metro production of Basil King's "The Litled Veil," in which Ethel Barrymore will star. Miss Hill was seen in Lionel Barrymore's Metro feature, "The End of the Tour," as the haughty leading lady in the barnstorming troupe of the story, playing Camille to Mr. Barrymore's Armand. She is considered one of the most versatile of the Metro family of players.

THEDA BARA is doing her share in a novel way, toward aiding the floating of the Liberty Bond issue. The Fox star herself has subscribed to the issue, and is urging all Americans to do likewise. She has had a rubber stamp made with the following inscription "Buy a Liberty Bond and Help the Cause of Humanity. Theda Bara." In receipt as she is of about five hundred letters a day asking for photographs, the Fox "vampire" in replying is stamping each likeness.

ADJECTIVES of the most complimentary nature are being bandied about regarding the work of Beatrice Joy, ... recently joined the ranks of comedienne, and appears in Black Diamond Comedies under the Paramount banner.

And it does seem that Miss Joy deserves all the nice things being said of her. For four years she has followed every angle of silent work, and though but twenty has the pleasing knowledge that her success, while not of the spectacular, rapid-rise variety, was deservedly won by hard work.

S. RANKIN DREW, son of Sidney Drew, the popular Metro comic star, has made his father proud in sailing for Europe, where he will join the American Ambulance Corps and see service on the Western Front.

Rankin Drew directed and played the leading part in Metro's "The Belle of the Season."

MARQUERITE MARSH, who appears in two of the earlier Goldwyn Pictures and sister of Mae Marsh, was suddenly stricken with appendicitis ten days ago, and was operated on at a private hospital in Sixty-sixth Street, Manhattan.

Her recovery from the effects of the operation has been very rapid, and her return to work is expected soon, after a short rest at Lakewood.

PAULINE FREDERICK, who is perhaps as well-known for the beauty and "versatility" of her wardrobe as any star on the screen, has been relegated to the mop and pull in her next famous Players-Paramount Picture "The Love That Lives." Casual visitors at the studio, if they can elude the watchdogs at the entrance, will find the delightful star rapidly accumulating callouses on her knees as she industriously scrubs the studio floor.

JOSEPH A. RICHMOND is the director in charge of the Hoyt Comedies, released in K-E-S-E by the Selig Polyscope Company. He has appeared in "Ben Hur", played in stock at St. Louis for two seasons; has also appeared in the support of Amelia Bingham, James K. Hackett, Virginia Harned, Henrietta Crossman and other players.

StUDIO records were recently broken at the Metro New York Studio, when eighty people who appear in support of Viola Dana in the forthcoming Metron, wonder-play, "Abbadon's Other Lamp," worked continuously for nineteen hours without leaving the studio or changing from their costumes to street clothes. Three meals, one of them served in the Metro dining room, the other two served on the studio floor, were brought in from a nearby restaurant.

The occasion of the long stretch of work was the taking of scenes in a balloon set which required the entire floor space of the studio. Trick photography and double exposures lengthened the task. Forty-eight scenes were taken.

IN view of the fact that Ann Pennington is dividing her time between the New Amsterdam Roof performance and the Famous Players Studio, Director Francis J. Grandon has been forced to find locations for his exterior scenes at distances not too remote from the studio. As a result, he is transporting much Mexican atmosphere over the mesa of Long Island. This is quite contrary to Mr. Grandon's recent experience in staging "Heart's Desire" when he went to Florida, and was forced to cut down much tropical vegetation before he could so develop the surrounding scenery as to make it appear realistic as a setting for Brittany.

GEORGE ARCHIBALD has "signed up" with World-Picture Brady-Made to direct a new series of photoplays. He has just completed "The Brand of Satan," in which Montagu Love makes his first appearance as a star, to be published June 18. Mr. Archibald's next World Picture will be "Partnership," in which Arthur Ashley, Gerda Holmes and Edward Langford have the leading roles.
ALTHOUGH no official announcement has been made to the effect that Henry McRae is to be general manager of Universal City, nevertheless, Mr. McRae is now handling affairs pertinent to that office. Arrangements have been made to increase production by the addition of about twelve new companies in the immediate future. President Carl Laemmle who, at present, is at the West Coast studios, will remain here for two or three months.

Jacques Jaccard, J. D. Davis and Jack Ford are three new directors on the Universal roster. Jacques Jaccard, who will be remembered as the director of Marie Walcamp in the Universal serial "Liberty," and of Mrs. Vernon Castle in the last five installments of "Patria," is back at the Big U to direct Miss Walcamp in a new patriotic serial, "The Quest of Virginia." J. D. Davis will take the direction of Helen Gibson, formerly featured by Kalem, in "Hazard of Helen" and "The Daughter of Daring," serials, and direct Miss Gibson in a railroad series.

Col. Brady, for months scenario editor for the Vitagraph, and who went to New York after organizing the Universal scenario staff, is back again, and is now managing the scenario department at U City. Jack Cunningham is scenario editor.

Lynn Reynolds has completed his filming of "Back to the Primitive," and will undertake his second Alice Hegan Rice story. Mr. Reynolds produced "Romance of Billy Goat Hill," by this author satisfactorily some time ago, and will film "Mr. Opp. Myrtle Gonzales, Arthur Hoyte and George Hernandez, will be in the cast.

CARMEL MYERS, former leading woman with the Fine Arts and Fox companies, has just signed a contract with the Universal Company, and will appear in features for that concern during the next two years.

W. W. Beaudine is directing a comedy "A Jungle Cruise." The story was written by Charles Wilson and Pop Hoadley.

Ruth Stonehouse, now under the direction of Louis Chaudet, at the Universal plant, is starring in a five-reel feature. The production has shoes as its subject matter, but the title of the story has not yet been announced.

Director Roy Clements, after completing his comedy "A Proxy Elopement," has begun the filming of a hospital comedy "The Impatient Patient," featuring Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran.

"The House of Gloom" is a five-reel feature now under production at the Universal. The director is Charles Swickard. Jack Mulhall is being featured in a society comedy "Safe," which is being filmed by Universal Director, Elmer Clifton. The story is from the pen of Tom Gibson.

"The Innocent Plotter" is the name of a three-reeler, starring Neal Hart now under production at the Universal Studios. Jeanette Eastman will be in support of Mr. Hart, and the production is being directed by George Marshall.

"Into East Africa" is the name of a two-reel animal story, which is now being filmed at the Big U plant. The story is the combined effort of W. D. Pierson and Rex Hodge. Babe Sedgwick is featured with Fred Church and Frank Lanning in her support.

THE latest Ince-Triangle release, "The Faves of the Bear," by J. C. Hawks, will feature William Desmond, who has recently appeared in several screen successes. The story is one of plot and counterplot, involving a battle of wits between Russia's diplomatic corps and the secret service of America. The locale includes scenes in Belgium, Russia, France and the United States.

Desmond plays the part of Ray Rourke, a young American traveler, who suddenly finds himself an object of intense interest to several different governments. His love for the Countess Olga Ramnoff, a clever secret service agent of Russia, who is portrayed by Clara Williams, leads to many strange adventures. The role of the Countess is said to take delicate handling as the character is shrouded in mystery until the final scenes of the picture. The supporting cast includes Robert McKim, as Boris Drakoff, of the Russian secret service; Wallace Worsley, as Curt Schreiber, the diplomatic agent of the United States, and Charles French. Reginald Barker has directed the production, and the photographer is Robert Newhard.

BESSIE BARRISCALF has commenced work on her last picture at the Ince-Triangle Studios at Culver City. The story is by C. Gardner Sullivan, and Miss Barriscal's supporting cast includes Howard Hickman, Aggie Herring, Katherine Kirkwood, Jules Fringet and Melbourne McDowell, the character actor, recently engaged by Thomas H. Ince.

M. Doner, head of the sculpturing department of the Culver City Studios, for the past two years, has been appointed technical director. Mr. Doner is a sculptor and artist of international reputation, and has been awarded prizes abroad.

Ruth McCord, who is traveling to the four corners of the United States to meet Ince-Triangle exhibitors, was escorted from Los Angeles by a company of U. S. Cavalry, and two aeroplane scouts sailed over the property until they arrived at San Diego, their first stop.

Mary Jane Irving, known at the Culver City Studios as "Hart's Sweetheart," is playing an important part in the forthcoming Ince-Triangle feature, presented by Ince. Mary Jane is only two years old.

Emid Bennett, who recently appeared in the Ince-Triangle release "Happiness," appeared at a leading Los Angeles theatre this week, which was running the photo.

SHREDDED WOODS

CHAPTER XV

She talks like a magpie, sings like a mockingbird, and whistles like a blackbird. She's a bird! Her name is Kathleen Clifford. (The End)
"Poppy"
(Norma Talmadge-Selznick—Eight reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"Poppy" makes its way to the screen through a variety of channels. The novel by Cynthia Stockley first furnished the foundation of a play written by Ben Teaf and John P. Ritter, and this in turn was adapted for the screen by Edward Jose who served also in the capacity of director. As is the case with the majority of pictures which run above five or six thousand feet "Poppy" is more or less episodic, covering as it does a variety of phases in the life of its titular character. It works, not to one climax, but successively to several and of a necessity the interest falters somewhat after each major event but picks up again rapidly as the incidents of the following episode accumulate.

Indeed, "Poppy," judged on the principles of the narrative is, on the whole, a most worthy picture. Well produced and enacted by a cast that is thoroughly competent it may easily rank with the best of the pictures coming into extra reels. And inasmuch as the very character of the story immediately suggests the unusual, as the interest of the spectator, though it is juggled with particular in the latter reels, is never allowed to fall far from the center of action.

Norma Talmadge, as Poppy Destin, gives at first a remarkable portrayal of a young girl still short of days, and later scores equally as well as the grown woman who believes herself intentionally wronged and neglected. Frederick Perry, as the heavy, gives a most thorough performance, and Eugene O'Brien as Carson is a dominating figure. Mr. Jose's direction is realistic from first to last. In the print shown for review the photography was rather blurred.

The Story and Players
Poppy Destin (Norma Talmadge), a mistreated orphan, runs away from her home in inland Africa and becomes lost in the jungle. Pursued by a native, she is rescued by Carson (Eugene O'Brien), but refuses to stop long enough to make his acquaintance because of her fear. She then takes refuge in the home of Luce Abinger (Frederick Perry), a man who has little respect for women. Under the pretense of adopting her he marries her, the ceremony being spoken in French, which Poppy does not understand. Luce goes away on a trip. One evening, Carson, suffering from fever, slugs into Luce's garden, meets Poppy and they swear their love. When he recovers his mind, he only recalls the meeting as a dream.

With the birth of Poppy's child Luce is infuriated. She runs away from him and takes passage for London where after numerous trials and tribulations, including the loss of her through an accident, she blossoms forth as a successful novelist under an assumed name. Returning to Africa, she again becomes acquainted with Carson who tries in vain to recall the exact circumstances of their former meeting. Luce, his better nature asserting itself, agrees to annul the marriage and Poppy finally accepts him after she has explained and he has repented the incident which transpired in Luce's garden.

Jack Meredith, Dorothy Rogers, Edna Whistler and Marie Haines head the supporting cast with capable performances.

"Wolf" Lowry
(William S. Hart—Five reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

William S. Hart's latest characterization is bid in an exciting, to say nothing of an appealing, western drama written by Charles Turner Dazey. Mr. Hart always appeals, his deeds always thrill, but it is seldom that he impersonates such a sentimental character as "Wolf" Lowry. The situation wherein he discovers that Thorpe is not the half-brother of the girl he loves but her long lost sweetheart is one full of paths that will certainly cause all eyes in the house that are open to become wet.

The romance of Lowry which refuses to terminate conventionally puts an entirely different complexion on the picture and distinguishes it sharply from other Hart pictures which have gone before. True, there is his sudden reformation when he first sets eyes on an innocent girl, there is a fight that causes one to sit breathless and there are other incidents common to all Hart pictures, but these we have come to look upon as being distinctly a part of the actor. Without them the magic spell of Mr. Hart might not cast its loo-k in the storm. But on the surface "Wolf" Lowry" does all comparison with his other work in the past. It is an all-absorbing feature and one that the followers of Mr. Hart will most assuredly enjoy.

The western atmosphere has been faithfully reproduced and the supporting players enter into the spirit of the picture with a sincerity that raises realism to a high degree.

The Story and Players
"Wolf" Lowry (William S. Hart), owner of the Bar Z Ranch, becomes wrathful at the fact that a settler has squatted in a log cabin on his land. The settler turns out to be Mary Davis (Margery Wilson) and Lowry's anger vanishes. He grows to love her. Buck Fanning (Aaron Edmonds), a real estate agent, journeys to her cabin one night and attacks her. She is rescued by Lowry and a fight ensues in which he is dangerously wounded. Nursed back to health by Mary, Lowry clumsily declares his love and she accepts him. Preparations for the wedding are in order when Owen Thorpe (Carl Uffman), a lover, who Mary has given up for lost and who she tells Wolf is her half-brother, appears. It is not long before Lowry discovers their true relationship and though broken in spirit he sees them married and then departs for north leaving them in possession of the ranch.

"Bringing Home Father"
(Bluebird—Five reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

This comedy, presenting Franklyn Farnum and Brownie Vernon, though some bits of it register to good effect, is rather stilted on the whole. The trouble can be traced to a too slight story and the fact that the producers relied upon certain personalities that are not magnetic enough to carry a picture minus the twists of plot and the complications usually present in a successful five-reel comedy. The idea contained a number of possibilities that, omitted, appear in the same light as errors of commission. Looking at the finished production there seem to have been plenty of chances to get more laughs from the first meeting between Drake and Mrs. Swazey, the parade and many of the subsequent episodes.

"Bringing Home Father" also has the disadvantage of being based upon the mooted question of prohibition. Not that this is no legitimate topic, but the champion teetotaller of the lot, Mrs. Swazey concludes her appearance tippling. Such an episode would seemingly be beyond reproof on the stage, but when screened it appears that it gives offense for some undeniable reason.

H. O. Davis is author of the story and Bess Meredith scenarioized it for William Worthington's direction. Mr. Farnum and Miss Vernon appear to pleasing but never striking advantage while the support is of the same character.

The Story and Players
Drake (Franklyn Farnum) in order to allay the suspicions of Mrs. Swazey (Florence Mayon), ardent supporter of prohibition and suffrage, whose daughter Jackie (Brownie Vernon), he loves, poses as an anti-vice crusader. He is forced to lead Mrs. Swazey's campaign parade and is given charge of Pa Swazey (Arthur Hoyt) with instruction to reform him. Quite the contrary Drake and Mrs. Swazey proceed to drink a certain bar dry and the former ends in jail at being accused of burglaring the Swazey's home while Pa gets away with a bluff. Drake is released through the good services of Mike Clancy (Dick La Reno), Mrs. Swazey's political opponent, upon condition that he forer her to withdraw from the prohibition ticket within a certain time. This he accomplishes by doctoring the prohibitory punch and disgracing Mrs. Swazey before her supporters. Then Drake and Jackie make haste toelope.
“The Undying Flame”
(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

SIMPLECTE itself in plot development, this is none the less a most extraneous in production, and we believe will appeal to audiences generally. It does not mark the tenses pitch of dramatic realism, and what might have been one of the most effective scenes of all was spoiled by the writer by a too obviously “staged” closing of the tomb, burying the hero alive at the close of the “first act” but artistic beauty as a production, with Madame Petrolou in the most impressive role have we have yet seen in, clearly enters this picture to first rank.

Two distinct “episodes” are told in five reels. The action does not drag for a moment, and indeed the transition from the early Egyptian days to the present-day Egypt is smoothly accomplished, as only a capable artist like Tournour can do it.

The settings are lavish and most impressively chosen, the usual wonderful lightings characteristic of Lasky plays aiding materially in putting over the “atmosphere” which really makes the picture all it is. Without Tournour’s mastery, Petrolou’s art, and many subtle indications of most painstaking editing, the exact balance between dramatic requirements and scenic embellishment could easily have been lost. As it stands, this picture is both forcefully told and unquestionably artistic.

The story has its obvious difficulties in telling dramatically. To the writer these appeared splendidly overcome, and this play can be brought to the screen with “fad of contradiction. None will question the sincerity of the man who produced an exceptionally fine offering, even though to some the heart appeal may not appear of the strongest.

Mahlon Hamilton makes a very fine hero-lover, first as a shepherd, later as an English army officer.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

In ancient Egypt a Princess (Madame Petrolou) loved a simple Shepherd (Mahlon Hamilton), to the great displeasure of the King (Edward Mordant), who ordered the offending lover buried alive. For four years the Shepherd to the Builder of the Temple (Herbert Evans). Breaking a double scarab in twain, the Shepherd and the Princess each keep a broken half, a pledge that their souls will be reunited in death.

Centuries later, Captain Harry Paget, of the English garrison at the Soudan, is greatly attracted by Grace Leslie, daughter of Sir Hector Leslie (Warren Cook), in command of the garrison. Mrs. Harvey (Violet Reed), wife of a brother officer (Charles Martin), is also in love with Paget, and while he is toiled to a false meeting on the desert by this jealous woman, a surprise drill is called. Grace hears from her father the intended surprise, and savvies Paget from disguise, telling him, thus interrupting the meeting with Mrs. Harvey; Paget volunteers for a dangerous outpost duty in desperation, but Mrs. Harvey explains, and Grace falls into her lover’s arms and announces she will go to the desert with him, alone; when it is singularly discovered that each possesses a piece of a broken scarab which just match. Are these “souls reunited”?

“Blind Man’s Luck”
(Astra-Pathe—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

“BLIND MAN’S LUCK” is constructed on the plan typical of other features produced by the Astra, Company. It launchers straight into its subject, and the narrative begins to weave on atmosphere of mystery about one of the leading characters—in this case it is the heroine. It then proceeds, touching only the high spots, disregarding much pretense at character development, but laying more than the ordinary stress on action. Action, indeed, is the main element in practically all of the Astra features, and “Blind Man’s Luck” is no exception. It contains fully as much action as do five reels of a serial, and as in a serial, considerable attention is paid to thrills while the detail of the story is left to care for itself.

The conventional plot, made the basis of “Blind Man’s Luck,” has benefited largely by this treatment. The twist of mystery injected at the very outset by keeping Eileen’s relationship to Crow in the dark arouses much suspense and serves to make one forget and condone the fact that the actual story is merely another version of the “woman with the past” idea. However, it must be confessed, the final reels are not near as snappy and sustaining as the introductory two. The Guidance Hand discovers Eileen’s exalted position in society, after believing her dead for four years, the observer knows full well that he will attempt blackmail and in all probability be killed at last to leave the way unobstructed for the happy ending.

Eileen Cavetly has given the picture a production in accord with his usual fine work. Mollie King is a charming heroine, Earle Foxe a pleasing juvenile with a good sense of comedy, while William Riley Hatch and Goffs Tillary are pleasing in the prominent character parts of Mr. and Mrs. Guerlon.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Eileen Cavorley (Mollie King), escaping from a smuggler, boards a train, the north. Boby Guerton (Earle Foxe), a disenchanted son of a millionaire, has terminated a carouse by marrying a certain young lady, and they also board the train. In a wreck the newly made wife is killed, and Eileen, to save herself from the police, takes her place. Boby, so drunk the night before, fails to penetrate the deception and only congratulates himself on his fortunate selection of a wife. Four months later he discovers Eileen and his child prove to the means of reconciling Boby with his father. Crow, the smuggler, turns up again and attempts to blackmail Eileen, but is killed by Boby, who believes him a burglar. It turns out that Crow was Eileen’s guardian.

Essanay’s “Do Children Count?” Series

(THE GUIDING HAND,” “THE WONDERFUL EVENT,” “STEPS TO SOMEWHERE,” Two Reels Each)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

These three pictures of Essanay’s two-reel series featureing little Mary McAllister, to be known under the general title of “Do Children Count?” reveal themselves as average numbers. The presence of the pretty little lead, who monopolizes a large number of closeups, will probably win more than the usual amount of success for pictures of such length, even though it is at times rather artificial in her attempts to luminous self-consciousness. Particularly will “The Wonderful Event” score, because of the appearance of a baby, who shares a number of scenes with little Mary. The picture also has the most natural story of the three shown, and has an abundance of comedy.

In the case of the other two, “The Guiding Hand,” and “Steps” to Somehwone,” the author, James Mortimer Peck, has resorted to situations and characters that are rather unreal, and at times even foolish. In “The Guiding Hand,” for instance, none of the Apperson family give evidence of possessing much intelligence. In their scramble to secure their old relative’s fortune their affected sincerity, punctuated by their lapses in writing, is due to fail to convince, due to exaggeration. The two Apperson girls, of about fourteen and fifteen years, never act in the least like real children.

"The Guiding Hand" presents little Mary McAllister as Billy, an orphan, the ward of Bell (Grant Foreman), an old man whose whole interest centers on the child. His relatives, the Appersons (Mabel Bardine and John Costar), pay him a visit, accompanied by their daughters, and feign great affection for him. Bell tricks them into showing their real selves by pretending to be at death's door. They mistreat Billy and commence an inventory of Bell's fortune. With this the old gentleman makes known his bluff and drives the schemers from his home.

"The Wonderful 'X'" offers the little star as Jane, daughter of the Wiltons (John Costar and Mabel Bardine). Jane wants a baby brother, and on being told by her mother that she was found on a park bench she sallies forth alighting. She finds a baby and takes it home. The frantic parents finally discover the retreat of the robber and regain the baby, which happens to be the baby of the Wiltsons. The villain (Mabel Bardine) disagree over her and separate. At her grandmother's Jane is tied in a chair and left to contemplate her sins. She has a dream in which she sees herself at the gates of a play-room full of children, but these into the life of a big city when. When she awakes a wave of reform comes over her and she effects a reconciliation between her father and mother.

"The Night Workers" is very much of a newspaper story. Stories of the newspaper are generally recognized as hard to put over satisfactorily to the laity, because so little is understood about this great estate. But J. Bradley Smollen, the author, and J. Charles Haydon, the director of this feature, have succeeded very well in this attempt. As a newspaperman, we liked the picture, but are also pleased that the picture-going public will also like it, for its exposition has been so carefully handled and threaded with themes of love, temptation, sorrow and a final triumph. Essanay said to see it is to book it, and so would we say to the exhibitor.

"The Night Workers," as its title might also imply, gives a realistic and yet not sordid glimpse into the world of newspapermen. As the mine superintendent and model young man who neither drinks, chews nor swears, apparently, in a rather rough community—and who tries to exert his personal influence more or less by force to keep the boss's son in the same path of virtue, without success, Wallace Reid does the best he can with a colorless role. The hero can use his fists, and that saves the story from being very bad. The villain's only variety of accomplishments as shown in the picture are losing money at poker games and falsifying bank accounts in a way so crude he appears to be very stupid—not even an interesting villain.

We don't mean to say this is not good entertainment. For remember there is a punch at the beginning and the end of the film. And Miss Stedman, as a sweet heroine, and John Burton does all he can to make a good villain part out of little. We like the acting and the production, but the story is weak. Without the clever Morosco titles and big mining camp scenes and other things that make us forget it is only an average story, we would say it was a very ordinary offering. With the popularity of Wallace Reid and Miss Stedman to carry it, we know it will "go over," and the stars have pleasing roles.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Bob Fulton, mine superintendent (Wallace Reid), wins the love of Rose De Braisy, dance hall girl (Florence Carpenter), and the hate of Jack King, the dance hall owner (Henry Barrows), by assisting the mine girls in reforming the dance hall. He then goes West to reform, after secretly marrying Beth Hoover (Myrtle Stedman). Bob tries to reform the town. He is nursed back to health by Beth, and a posse shoots Roland, freeing Beth to a more worthy lover.

"The Crimson Dove"

(Work Film—Five Reels) REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

I t takes one rather by surprise to see Carlyle Blackwell featured in this picture as a fighting minister. He beats up two bullies in a northern lumber camp, whose combined avoidipous must easily total four times his, and though the fisticuffs are well staged they are not at all convincing from the scientific point of view.

"The Crimson Dove" has, as one reviewer so aptly remarked after the private exhibition, just about everything it could have. The cabaret of New York, the pleasing landscapes of the Southland and the rugged timber country all have their places in the five reels. The melodrama laid in this varied setting is crammed with action, so much so in fact that a murder is parentively referred to in a subtitle. The action very often soars to heights not altogether convincing, in the main this seems to be caused by the inactivity of the players. Romaine Fielding, who directed, might have supposed certain members of the cast to better effect.

"The Crimson Dove" is hardly worthy of ranking with the ripe, old-fashioned ten, twenty, thirty melodrama, because if those pieces had a fighting hero he was pretty sure of being physically superior to his rivals, and if Blackwell doesn't appear so. His performance, however, is good, and June Elvidge in the opposite part does varied and appealing work.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Brand Cameron (Carlyle Blackwell), a minister, due to his attendance on a regenerated show lady, Adrienne (June Elvidge), is asked to resign from his church. He secures a position in the north woods spreading the gospel in a community of crude timbermen, while Adrienne becomes a settlement teacher. Faro Kate (Marie La Varre), nursing a hatred against Cameron for bringing about the capture of her lover, a murderer, accuses him of being the father of her child. The men, believing their fighting minister to be no more than a four-flusher, set fire to his church, thinking he is inside. However, the only occupants of the burning building are Kate's baby and a half-witted boy. Cameron rescues them both at great risk of his life. Kate retakes her lie and the minister becomes the idol of the place. His happiness is made complete when Adrienne joins him.

"The World Apart"

(Morosco-Paramount—Five Reels) REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

This story, by George Middleton, gives Wallace Reid a chance to show his physical prowess again by rescuing a dance hall girl from the too violent attentions of a dance hall owner, and again by a fight in the dark with the villain of the piece, who has turned burglar. These "punches" are furnished at the beginning and the end of a well-knit heart-interest theme, using the always available worthy young man protecting the girl from the worthless skunk situation as its main idea.

As the mine superintendent and model young man who neither drinks, chews nor swears, apparently, in a rather rough community—and who tries to exert his personal influence more or less by force to keep the boss's son in the same path of virtue, without success, Wallace Reid does the best he can with a colorless role. The hero can use his fists, and that saves the story from being very bad. The villain's only variety of accomplishments as shown in the picture are losing money at poker games and falsifying bank accounts in a way so crude he appears to be very stupid—not even an interesting villain.

We don't mean to say this is not good entertainment. For remember there is a punch at the beginning and the end of the film. And Miss Stedman, as a sweet heroine, and John Burton does all he can to make a good villain part out of little. We like the acting and the production, but the story is weak. Without the clever Morosco titles and big mining camp scenes and other things that make us forget it is only an average story, we would say it was a very ordinary offering. With the popularity of Wallace Reid and Miss Stedman to carry it, we know it will "go over," and the stars have pleasing roles.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Bob Fulton, mine superintendent (Wallace Reid), wins the love of Rose De Braisy, dance hall girl (Florence Carpenter), and the hate of Jack King, the dance hall owner (Henry Barrows), by assisting the mine girls in reforming the dance hall. He then goes West to reform, after secretly marrying Beth Hoover (Myrtle Stedman). Bob tries to reform the town. He is nursed back to health by Beth, and a posse shoots Roland, freeing Beth to a more worthy lover.

"The Soul Master"

(Valsh—Five reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

NEITHER great heights nor great depths are reached in this domestic drama of a lonesome man of wealth, whose life is contrasted with those of happy ones in earthly raiment but richer in real happiness. The story has the stereotyped beginning of the woman marrying the wrong man, and the early sweetheart returning to ruin the home. The little child makes these scenes of home-making and home-breaking pathetic and beautiful. Albert Howson as the other man and Billie Billings as Arline, the unsatisfactory wife, will thrill with skill and a restraint characteristic of Vitagraph refinement of production.

When, years later, the scene shifts back and forth from the luxurious loneliness of the flickering grate to the happy household of Mrs. Brundy, with Ruth and Peter and bright little Mildred, sympathy for the lonesome chumman whose time is spent with traveling social routes is felt. At several points strong melodramatic situations are indicated which do not develop, because this is a story of sentiment and sadness, punctuated with acceptable acting by all the principals—a notable cast, with Earle Williams in a role of quiet dignity, dramatically effective to those who will not require to be deeply moved by "puddings" and "climaxes."

It is a play that will appeal to clean sentiment and the home-loving instinct.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Robert Travers (Earle Williams) and his wife, Arline (Billie Billings), and their children (Elwart Ellis) are seen in their happy home, when Forest Crampton (Albert Howson), whom Arline had loved in early girlhood, returns wealthy and still in love with Arline. Robert, returning unexpectedly, sees Arline yield to Forrest's passionate pleadings, and an encounter ensues, in which Robert is knocked senseless and the other man and wife take the child and leave.

Years later, Robert, a "man without a soul," strangely loves and wants to protect a salesgirl in his employ, Ruth (Katherine Lewis). Ruth loves a working boy, Peter Grant (Donald Cameron), and is happy in her humble home with Mrs. Brundy (Annie Broady) and baby (Mildred May). Robert encourages this romance, being the keynote of the action. Molly Fitzhugh (Denton Vane), who enlists a sportsy widow, Laura Wilson (Julia Swayne Gordon), to help him meet Ruth by pretending to employ her as a "companion." Monty acts like a beast and Ruth faints. Robert and Peter arrive at the same time, and discovering from a picture of her mother that Ruth is his daughter, Robert takes her in his arms for the first time and then gives her to Peter.

"The Book Agent"

(Powell—Five reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THIS is the kind of picture we believe the public like to see. It is a distinct relief from the ordinary type of melodrama, though it is decidedly spectacular, George Walsh doing some starting with roughhouse in a young ladies' seminary, and ending with the winning of a million-dollar inheritance for quick wit and extraordinary action.

"The Mystery of the Double Cross"

(Pathe—Thirteenth Episode)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

AS the serial draws to a close the author has taken good care to plant the finale and even suggest it at odd moments. "The Face of the Stranger" derives this title from the fact that Philippa learns the identity of the mysterious Masked Stranger. It will be remembered that Annessley is acquainted with him also. Hale is left completely in the dark, while his suspicions are further aroused by the announcement of the engagement of Philippa and Annessley.

"Oriental Love"

(Triangle—Two reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE funniest thing about this picture is a butting ram who butts all the players without fear or favor. He is brought in at the psychological moment, as it were, just when his appearance is not at all expected and consequently the resulting laugh is very large and fat.

The picture also contains some fine Indian scenery brought about by excellent double exposure work and a fair-sized story that is supported with the usual number of hilarious gags. The Keystone tank and some girls scantily clad are brought in for good measure and naturally a number of the principals end up in the water.

Ora Carew heads the cast while Baldy Belmont, Joseph Calhoun, Nick Cogley, Sid Smith, Andy Anderson, Ed Kennedy and Blanche Payson have good parts. Walter Wright directed.

"Like Wildfire"

(Butterfly—Universal—Five reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THIS picture of small town finance, romance, and a little plotting is given just the right touch of comedy to put it cleanly over. It was written by Louis Wainwright, scenarized by Karl Coolidge and directed by Albert Parker. It has seen to it that the comedy high lights are well emphasized. He never lets an opportunity slip by to play for a laugh and he hits the mark often. Much of the humor results from clever subtitle writing as is the case with the majority of comedies and comedy-dramas produced nowadays.

Tommie's experience as messenger boy in Potter's Five and Ten Cent Store with a high powered racing car as his means of locomotion on his various errands is indeed a very pleasing sort of comedy. The manner in which he shows his father how to do business is naturally an episode that tickles the risibilities to a great degree. Again his trip on the train after a little wine party is fraught with a good many moments that come as a result of the dialogue inserted in the subtitles.

Herbert Rawlinson, with his undeniably attractive personality, puts a lot of that which is generally termed "pep" into his part. Neva Gerber is the heroine and she might have looked prettier had she dressed her hair in the way she did in former pictures. The supporting cast is well selected and the setting given the picture is satisfactory.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Nina (Neva Gerber) operates her father's Five and Ten Cent Store in a small town. Tobias (Howard Crampton) wants to marry her and when she refuses, he arranges with Buckman (L. M. Wells), owner of a large chain of such stores to open one in opposition to Nina's. Buckman sent his son Tommie (Herbert Rawlinson) to look into the matter. He promptly falls in love with Nina, finally becoming manager of her store and watching with great glee... the failure of his father's opposition enterprise. Nina has an invention which she gives Tommie to place on the market. He sells it to his father and when Nina sees it on sale and hears nothing from Tommie, she believes he has deserted her, but quite the contrary, he reappears again with her royalties and with Buckman and all three go into partnership together.

William Wayne, Burton Law and Johnnie Cook are others.

"The Mystic Hour"

(Comedy-Short 5 reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

THE MYSTIC HOUR," produced by Apollo and released on the Art Drama program never approaches the high-water mark of dramatic action nor does it rise to the heights which its strong title would indicate. The scenario offers strong possibilities by virtue of its originality but many of these possibilities were apparently overlooked by the director who was obviously handicapped by the unconvincing nature of the subject matter.

Psychology, the basic principle of the story, is the one sustaining "prop" for the superstructure of its five reels and it is the one point which the director has left until the last reel to bring out and then in a half-hearted manner which fails to register. The story as told in the first four reels gives no indication of a "mystic hour" to follow, but we are not disappointed because a most interesting light drama is screened in these four reels with a touch of the everyday life which is so characteristic in the lives of our indigent social classes.

Alma Hanlon, who has the leading feminine role, presents a dainty picture of youthful girlishness. Charles Hutchinson in the role of the artist, is fine, but as the victim of suppressed desires he does not register. John Sampolski does some fine acting in the role of the rich idler. The photography is good. Richard Ridgely directed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Guido (Charles Hutchinson), an artist is obsessed with the desire for the death of Clavering (John Sampolski) who has married Margaret (Alma Hanlon), the girl he loves. The thought accompanies him in his work, his sleep and all his every movement. One night he awakes from a dream in which he has murdered Clavering. In the morning he goes to Clavering's room and finds that he has been murdered and he is forced to flee. That he may rid himself of the thought he paints the picture revealed to him in his dream. The butler at the home of Clavering is ordered to move Guido's belongings from the studio atop Clavering's home. He sees the painting, which is a picture of his master lying on a bed dead. The butler, who has committed the murder for his master's money, is so horror-stricken that he loses control and admits that it was he who killed Clavering.

Two Educational

(Comedy-Short 5 reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE first of seven reels photographed by Al I. Smith to be offered by the Educational Company under the general title of "Alaska Wonders in Motion" will be released shortly. It takes the form of an introductory number and gives various glimpses of Eskimo life and shows a number of interesting points. Some pretty waterscapes come toward the end of the reel, not the least marvellous of which is the scene showing a wave, five feet in height, sweeping across a swiftly running river against its current.

"Surgery at the Zoo" is a Dilmars number, showing first the bandaging of a monkey's injured limb, second the rather uncanny process of assisting a huge python to shed its skin, and third, treating a sprained muscle in a young deer's knee.

"The Whispering Smith"

(Comedy-Short 5 reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

BASED on one of the "Whispering Smith" stories by Frank H. Spearman, scenarized by William Parker and produced by Henry McRae, "The Whispering Smith" offers a tale at times stirring of high adventure, with its complications being many and its considerable portion of suspense results from the various entanglements the principal characters weave about themselves. A mildly strenuous chase is offered in the last reel, when a running fight takes place between the pursued in an engine and the pursuers in an automobile. A couple of men fall from the engine to the cinders before it is over.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

A run takes place on the bank of which Fuller (Don Bailey) is president. He favors settling accounts with the depositor immediately, but Simmons (M. Everett) disagrees. He plans to have Fuller and Williams (Alfred Voslberg), the cashier, accused of embezzling, owing to the fact that he covets Ethel Fuller (Mary Maclaren), who favors Williams. The presence of a dishonest doctor (Rex de Roselli) and "Hartford" Red (Eddie Polo) cause his plans to go astray, and when Whispering Smith (Charles Mailes) gets on their tracks the three are forced to flee. They are overtaken, however, and made captive. Simmons breaks down and confesses his guilt.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS 3623
Mutual Program

"Flirting with Danger." (Vogue. Two reels. Sat. May 26.) Larry Haines, Paddy McGuire et al. This is a very entertaining piece of work on two staffed reels, which are more devotional to the dam design and Vogue production, but, if an audience wants to have a good laugh, it is all the more apparent cause then this film will please. The plots are of the crudest description and are unable to run on account of their prodigious amount of profanity, but with various means is a sample of the author’s idea of comedy in this picture.

"Bluffing Father." (Strand. One reel. Wed. May 2.) Billie Rhodes, also directed by Jay Holm. But this comedy over in great part is the biggest. This is a good film and the film will raise a laugh wherever shown.

"Sugar." (Paramount. One reel. Tues. May 1.) A very well directed picture for the children. The parents, who have promised five thousand dollars to their son, who is born today, are taken by a man and five others. He claims to have assisted them in their work and is later found in the same situation as the children. He is later found to be a swindler and the parents are able to reclaim their son. This picture is a good one for the children and will be appreciated for the same reason.

"Mutual Tours, No. 29." (Gaumont. One reel. Tues., May 27.) — Cactus, the largest motor sport of the world, has been added to this series. The story of the tour is taken from the book by the same title. The film is well directed and the acting is excellent. The picture will be enjoyed by all who appreciate the beauty of motor sport.

"Reel Life, No. 52." (Gaumont. One reel. Thurs., May 19.) Several interesting subjects are covered in this film, including the work of the Wives in Bar Harbor, a story of the life of a small boy, and a story of the life of a small girl. These subjects are well handled and the acting is excellent. The film is well directed and will be appreciated by all who appreciate the beauty of life.

"Rioting." (One reel.)(—)In this comedy picture, Peter Morley, Rosemary Tache take to a farm for rent and Louise Givens. They find that rioting, with its rainy night, lazy roots, leur and proper, is not what they are looking for. They are not interested in the beauty of the country and the beauty of nature. They are interested in the beauty of the country and the beauty of the farm. The film is well directed and will be appreciated by all who appreciate the beauty of life.

"Copper Industry, Arizona." (Combine.)—This picture is full of the beauty of the country and the beauty of the copper industry. The picture is well directed and will be appreciated by all who appreciate the beauty of life.

"Quine." (International. Split reel. —) One of the most beautiful and characteristic views of this Chinese province recently comes under the cast of Japan. On the same reel with "Quine." This picture is well directed and will be appreciated by all who appreciate the beauty of life.

"Jumping Jealousy." (One reel.)(—)This comedy, with Harry Myers and Rosaline Roscoe, concerns a jealous husband and an equally jealous wife. Each suspect is a variety of stories to make the picture a much more interesting and a much more entertaining one.

"Police Protection." (Mayer-Thelma Comedy. One reel.) This is an amusing comedy, based on the discovery of an identity, due to the use of a wife left alone to have the house quietly guarded. She is a woman for the detection of the genuine and the genuine guardian all get into a much more serious trouble. Her husband, already tried, gets "some scare," but finally right thinking is explained. Good clean comedy and really funny. This is a picture that will be enjoyed by all who appreciate the beauty of life.

"Lonesome Luke, Plumber." (Robin Comedy. Two reels.) — This must be in the preferred class of comic, if it is not the very best one yet. "Something new under the sun," without this the story becomes far out as funny as it is. Two trained boys, one real, one real. Luke is protected under an overturned bath-tub and is really mistaken for the shop for repair. The scenes where Luke keeps pace with a last running street car, hanging onto the rear and trying to outwit the electric thrill worth special mention. This release is a sure hit.

Universal Program

"A Burglar by Request." (Nestor. Week of June 4.) — "That, in this plot, is a sure request. The husband tells his wife a lesson by having a burglar come to steal her jewels. Made fast and funny by the introduction of a apology by various artists and the introduction of various artists.

"Dry Goods and Dam Depeds." (L-Ko. Two reels. Week of June 4.) — A second title might be "Fun in a Department Store." A shop in love with the beautiful and the beautiful sewing machine. It is a fast and furious ending, in which the heroes and the heroines are saved and the place flooded, the picture with a beauty and a charm.

"Simple Sapho." (Joker. Week of June 4.) — A comedy written by Jack Cunningham and produced by Frank MacQuarrie. The changes in the usual joke, and the humor of the usual joke, and the humor of the week of May 21.) — Western melodrama. A young man who is made to do a fake Injun and after a number of gags, the end of the bundle of gas pipe, is the end of the bundle.

"The Almost Good Man." (Gold Seal. Three reels. Week of June 4.) — A pleasant little comedy made even more pleasant by the appearance of several little children. Ruth Stoneman also produced from a scenario written by Tom Grunick, the inimitable and J. A. parcel store worker and loved by the sons of her employers. It is a picture full of human appeal and spiced with real comedy, Chester Bennett, Wadsworth Harris and Lydia Veasnam in the supporting cast.

"Tacky Sue’s Romance." (Reel. Two reels. Week of June 4.) — A pleasant little comedy made even more pleasant by the appearance of several little children. Ruth Stoneman also produced from a scenario written by Tom Grunick, the inimitable store worker and loved by the sons of her employers. It is a picture full of human appeal and spiced with real comedy, Chester Bennett, Wadsworth Harris and Lydia Veasnam in the supporting cast.

"Doomed." (Trap. Week of June 4.) — Short and serious production that tends to lend a man, extract from him a confection of his tender heart, yet tender hearted man as the heroine. A sad story of a delicate man who has a much more interesting and a much more entertaining one.

"The Scrammy." (Bison. Two reels. Week of June 4.) — Written, produced and starred by Jack Ford, this picture offers a fast moving story that has a very good ending and a lot of laughs.

"Calling His pals a general fight ensues and the general gets some good."

A 40-Caliber Mystery." (Gold Seal. Three reels. Week of May 27.) — Western melodrama, somewhat different from the cut-and-dried, hinging on a technicality that carries with it more than the average supply of suspense. The usual central character, receives support from Claire Allen and Frank MacQuarrie.

"Lash of the Whip." (Foster Pegg and Bill Getling and Root Gibson.

$m: Money's Mockery." (Lantern. Two reels. Week of May 24.)—Chained by a character study of an English clergyman, this picture shows a lonely church leek who learns to love his son's wife after many years of hatred, but in so doing he must part with his faithful servant, and he does this, too, but only in his heart, for he is not handicapped by an export tax, he can raise the necessary money from abroad and so charge the American importer for the film. But he does so and the entire cost of production had to be extracted from the importer. He then succeeds in dividing the picture industry into separate sections, each of which is run by a separate individual, and the section run by him still live. The American motion picture industry is like a giant bee, which ranges over the world, and if one of its wings is cut off the entire industry will fall. The section run by him will not be able to do the same thing, and he will be able to divide the picture industry into separate sections, each of which is run by a separate individual.

Dropped From the Clouds." (Bison. Two reels. Week of May 24.)—The story of a life which is unappetizing, but which becomes more interesting as it is told. The ending is a bit weak, but the acting is good. The picture is well produced and directed.

Mary Ann in Society." (Victor. Week of May 24.)—This is a really clever comedy, and it is entertaining. It is a story of a poor little girl who is taken into society by her father, who is a rich man. The picture is well produced and directed.

Uneasy Money." (Joker. Week of May 28.)—One of Jack Cunningham's best, this comedy presents the usual characters, but with a new twist. The picture is well produced and directed.

Practically all the tax-free houses have been closed down, and the industry is now paying the full tax. This is a disaster for the industry, and it is a disaster for the producers. They are not making money, and they will not be able to continue to make good pictures.

ONE TAX AT THE BOX OFFICE IS THE ONE MIGHTY PRODUCER.

This method is one tax at the box office. Remove all other taxes from the industry, and if the producer will pay the tax, the industry will be able to continue to make good pictures. This is a disaster for the industry, and it is a disaster for the producers. They are not making money, and they will not be able to continue to make good pictures.

One of the reasons why the producers are not making money is that the government is collecting too many taxes. This is one of the reasons why the producers are not making money.

Another reason why the producers are not making money is that the government is collecting too many taxes. This is one of the reasons why the producers are not making money.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America suggests (and we believe they are correct) a tax of two cents per admission. This will not be enough to pay for the industry, but it will be enough to keep the industry going. The industry is like a giant bee, which ranges over the whole world gathering honey. If you chop a wing off this giant bee, it will die; but take the wing off another giant bee, and it will live.

The proposed bill would tax the producers and importers, but not the exhibitors. This is a fair tax, and it will not be too burdensome for the industry. The exhibitors have been selling too cheap to their public. This is one of the reasons why the producers are not making money.

Any way you look at it, the tax on five-cent houses is not fair. The government should not collect more than the seven cents per admission. The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America suggests that the tax should be reduced to five cents. This is a fair tax, and it will not be too burdensome for the industry.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTER TO MR. WELLS FROM H. B. VARNER
N. C. M. P. E. L.

"Lexington, N. C., May 7.

Here Mr. Wells,

I am sure you will appreciate the importance of your letter of May 2nd, also your numerous telegrams. I am very glad to see that Lee Ochs and Harry Crandall and that crowd will not go up the machinery that they will prevent us from getting all the tax that is due. I am hearty in favor of the exhibitors paying their taxes. I think that is the primary duty. But a tax of ten per cent on gross receipts will defeat the object and is inequitable. It will cut 70 per cent of the theatres; hence they will be unable to pay any tax and the tax would only be a benefit to a few large theatres in the hands of Mr. Wells. New York is so anxious to have it said that they did it that they will agree to anything. You will remember that the New York Motion Picture Trade Review that they are advocating the big and the rich to pay the tax and the small and the poor to take the load. But in Washington to get their idea correct. I think that we have to put the small exhibitor in that category, think of the trouble that is going to spring up in that quarter. And in that will permit the theatres to run and all be successful.

I am glad that you have written to the North Carolina Congressmen urging them against the proposed tax. Keep the good work up and let me hear from you.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) H. B. VARNER"

PRESIDENT WELLS'S LETTER OF PROOF TO WAYS AND MEANS AND FINANCE COMMITTEE

Hon. Lee S. Overman,

"May 3rd, 1917.

Dear Sir:

Representing the owners of more than two hundred motion picture theatres and two million citizens of the State of North Carolina, who get their cheer leadership at the motion picture theatres, we feel justified in expressing an opinion, if not a protest, just as strongly as it is possible to do so, against any measure that may result in the proposed tax to the theatres of the country ten per cent on the gross receipts.

In beginning, I wish to warn you that before you take the word of any man or set of men who purport to represent the National League of Exhbitors upon a concurrence to any such measure, take the opportunity to examine the proper credentials of representation. I am sure you have heard of a situation which is positively not true there unless there be a movement organized to represent the interests of the small, who can evert some unseen influence, and would sooner have the reputation of the nation wiped out.

The theatre of the American democracy, the every motion picture theatre in the United States is more deeply interested in the cause of this crisis. They are already becoming the strongest factor in the recruiting game, and right here in Wilmington I am devoting space and time on my screen for which I could get real money, to the free exploitation of the different recruiting stations. Therefore, while I believe the theatre owners of the States will gladly do their share—aye, more than their share—in order to help America maintain our world supremacy, I am the impossible, and the measure referred to would force the theatre owners in the State of North Carolina to lose the legitimate taxes they are now deriving from their theatres, a tax of 70 per cent almost halting of the theatres in this State would be forced to close.

If you gentlemen could see in its true light the overburden of taxation under which we are labored. I am the impossibility of the theatre owners of the State of North Carolina paying any more than they are now paying, as already stated, the State of North Carolina is contributing around $421 annually in special taxes to State and National Treasuries besides the State taxes which are assessed against the property, and this in addition to the average annual profit on a motion picture theatre. I sincerely trust that you gentlemen, in whose hands so many grave responsibilities rest at the present time, will find and to thoroughly investigate this matter before taking any hasty action. We realize that extraordinary occasions demand extraordinary measures, and again, I repeat, the theatre owners of the State of North Carolina will gladly pay their share.

Very sincerely,

P. W. WELLS.

President North Carolina Motion Picture Exhibitors League.

ASSOCIATED PRESS STORY TO AFTERNOON NEWSPAPERS, MONDAY, MAY 14

"Henry B. Varner, representing the Exhibitors' League of North Carolina, consisting of 250 independent owners of small pictures in North Carolina, immediately after appearing to protest against the proposed 10 per cent tax on gross receipts, said that it would be impossible to continue our theatres in operation. We are not trying to dodge taxes, he said, "but we are trying to do what is right, and don't take all the profits," he added."

A New York Motion Picture Showman organization, said, "It is impossible to pass the tax on the playing cards, unless it becomes possible to make the change." (These gentlemen were the only ones named as appearing for the exhibitors.)

BRIEF SUBMITTED TO THE FINANCE COMMITTEE BY HENRY B. VARNER AND A. F. SAMS FOR THE NORTH CAROLINA AND SOUTH CAROLINA MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE

PRESIDENT WELLS'S LETTER TO THE FINANCE COMMITTEE UNITED STATES SENATE

We represent the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of North Carolina, consisting of 250 independent owners of small pictures in North Carolina and operators of nearly three hundred and fifty motion picture theatres located in small towns and the average seating capacity of these small houses, located in small towns and the average seating capacity ranging from two hundred to three hundred seats. Our admission prices range from ten to twelve cents in a few instances, while special prices are displayed, as much as twenty to twenty-five cents, but in the main our regular prices are five cents for children all day, and five cents for afternoons performances for adults and ten cents for adult evening admissions. Our houses are limited as to patronage because of the strictly local radius of competition is such as to demand the display of some feature which will, in our opinion, give our exhibitors, for flee and free time, far from pupilage. The exhibitors, who are being asked to pay the tax on admission, are the most successful house merely returns good interest on the cost of the theatre.

The payment of one cent on a ticket in accordance with the terms of the House bill became an immediate physical impossibility. During the last twenty minutes and making change in one of our small houses where excessive summer heat cuts the year to an average of a hundred thousand persons and where the Run Line so complicates the period of summer when the audience, the profit at best cannot be large enough to pay the tax. A successful house merely returns good interest on the cost of the theatre.

In conclusion, we desire to state that, with the few exceptions herein mentioned, are we are satisfied with the provisions of the bill and are happy in the belief that this is presented on behalf of about 16,000 theatres out of a total of 24,000 in the United States."

MEET AN OLD FRIEND
Through the Pages of
The Dramatic Mirror of the Stage and Motion Pictures
FRANK E. “SPEC” WOODS

Needs no introduction to the motion picture industry.

Nearly ten years ago as editor of the motion picture department of The Dramatic Mirror, he played a large part in moulding the photoplay into something of art and meaning.

The Spectator’s comments were discussed and remembered. That many of the ideas advanced were correct has been proven by subsequent development. They have come true.

Since that time The Spectator has himself taken a hand in making pictures.

He has been a part of the changes that have come about, and in a series of special articles written for the Mirror, he will give his opinion of these changes and what they mean.

The first of these articles appears in the issue of June 2nd.

Producers, exhibitors, exchange men, everyone in fact, concerned in the motion picture business, allow us to present an Old Friend, who is much the same, but more interesting than ever.

Mr. A. Hickman, of Local 219, M. P. O., Minneapolis, Minn., says—

In traveling for the Birth of a Nation Co. I used two MOTIOGRAPH machines, and I want to say that I operated these machines, set them up in 106 towns, took them down after the show each night and used them every day and during the period I did not have one stop.

There was never a hitch in my show and the up-keep on the two machines was 75c for one set of tension springs, which really were not necessary, but as I was under instructions to keep my equipment up to the highest standard of perfection that I could, I made this purchase and I really could have finished my trip without them.

SIMPLICITY OF OPERATION

STEADY ARC OBTAINED WITH SILVERTIPS INSURES MINIMUM ADJUSTMENT

Those exhibitors who have been subjected to the annoying necessity of frequently adjusting their carbons to obtain an intense white light on the screen, are now finding relief in the arc-steadying, small diameter Silvertips. Not only does the small diameter insure an arc held perfectly steady, but in addition the operator knows that the heavy current carried by the copper plating will give a maximum brilliancy of light. These two virtues—inherent in Silvertips—are helping a great deal in the realization of ideal projection.

Recognizing that the light is the foundation of profitable movie business, it is little wonder that exhibitors have pronounced Silvertip the standard negative carbon.
Pictures vs. Music

One of our regular contributors to the Music Department wrote us the following letter, which states conditions so clearly that we publish it herewith for the benefit of those who may be interested.

We had a similar condition brought to our attention recently, except that the musician, instead of trying to make the picture realistic in the various scenes, changed the whole thing into a comedy. This was done very cleverly and without the audience realizing what was happening. It was so well done that when they left the theatre they wanted to know from the exhibitor when he was going to run another of those comedies. The picture was a melodrama.

In this case, however, our correspondent points out the impossibility of musicians trying to make a real picture out of something which was evidently beyond repair:

Motion Picture News:

I was just ready to get my next article on music to the typesetter when my eyes fell on an article in a certain paper written apparently by a producer, claiming how a recent feature he viewed was about ruined by the wishy-washy music of the orchestra. I have known that all stage artists when the audience fails to appreciate their performance immediately lay all the blame on the music, but it is a new statement that if an audience fails to warm up to a picture that the music is to blame. Of course, there is never anything wrong with the picture.

It may be that the producer is right regarding this particular instance. I'll not say. But possibly on the day before, the orchestra had played to a certain picture. In that case the company should be glad the musicians were still alive.

The article goes on to state that the producers are spending much money to produce costly features and then when shown on the screen they are ruined by indifferent music. I'll admit the producers are recognizing more and more the value of music to the picture and are getting out specially prepared cue sheets, etc., to aid in giving the picture a good musical setting. But never in editing the pictures is the slightest attention paid to the musical possibilities of the picture. Flash-backs and many other things are scattered helter-skelter through a picture without any attention to the effect on the musical setting.

In another recent picture there is a low cabaret scene where the cheapest, trashiest music must be used to properly carry out the atmosphere, when suddenly the scene shifts for a few feet to the old father watching and longing for the return of his missing daughter, which calls for sympathetic music. Knowing probably that an orchestra could not make the quick change, I noticed Mr. Winkler provided a piano solo through this part of the picture, as in the cabaret scene only a piano is used. This is just a sample of how hard some of the editing of the pictures makes it for the musician. I believe such little scenes are uncalled for, as they add nothing to the picture and mean nothing. The fact that the producers are beginning to realize the value of music undoubtedly means that more serious attention may be given to this in the future, as there must be cooperation at both ends.

The producers, however, should aim to produce such pictures that by the time they are screened the second time for the day the orchestra does not feel like going to sleep or rushing for the nearest bar. The spectator, if it gets too bad, can get up and go out, but the musicians must take their medicine, as they have not that privilege. Very truly,

It is absolutely impossible for any musician to make a good picture out of a bad film. All that is possible is to smooth over the rough edges and try to make the audience think they are having a good time so they will come again. The musician as well as the operator must bear in mind that in order to keep pictures where they are now both must be always on their toes, for either can ruin the best picture ever produced and together they can do a great deal toward improving the worst picture.

Producers are beginning to realize that there must be something beside the plot which should always be the best which can be secured. The outside agencies must be reckoned with. Music must be right—cue sheets properly prepared, by men who know how, and every other aid possible given to the theatre man to make the particular picture which he is showing a success.

Very often we have gone into theatres and made the discovery that the music so far excelled the pictures that it was far more pleasant to listen to the orchestra and let one's eyes wander around the audience instead of watching the screen.

Orchestral accompaniments for pictures have improved much in the past few years, but improvement has been gradual. The difference can be appreciated by anyone who occasionally views pictures in music-less projection rooms, or, worse still, visits the old-fashioned theatre where a lone pianist beats the keys in a sleepy fashion, without regard to time, tune, or audience.

E. K. Gillett.
Up-to-Date Projection Room in New Bedford's Half-Million Dollar Theatre

WHAT is probably one of the most complete motion picture installations in New England is located in the new half-million dollar Gordon Olympia theatre at New Bedford, Mass., a city of 100,000 population. This theatre seats 2,000 and contains all that is new and modern in theatre construction, the projection equipment being complete to the smallest detail and the current supply protected against common interruptions. The operating room, located in the rear of the top gallery, is 24x9x9, giving the operators ample room in which to work. The walls are painted a dark color, and ventilation is taken care of by an opening in the front wall of the theatre, to which a vent flue leading from the operating room is connected and through which the air is exhausted, keeping the operating room supplied with a constant current of fresh air. The vent flue is 18 inches in diameter and located in the ceiling, directly over the projection machines.

Illustration No. 1 shows a partial view of the operating room and arrangement of the projectors, which are the latest Powers 6-W's, further augmented with a dissolver of the same well-known make. Automatic control of the arcs is maintained by Speedco arc controllers, located one under each machine. A Kiegl spot light is also part of the operating room equipment. This and the ballast resistances, as well as the operating room switch, are better shown in Illustration No. 2.

The control is most complete, and also in Illustration No. 2 we see the switchboard panel, and at the left of the board, at right angles to it, is an enclosed cabinet containing switching equipment. On this panel are located the ammeter, voltmeter, transfer switch, snap switch for remote control of motor-generator set, two snap switches for arc controllers, and field rheostat.

In the basement is located a 90-ampere Westinghouse motor-generator set, generator being driven by a three-phase 60-cycle, 550-volt motor, A. C. characteristics. This is shown in Illustration No. 3. In this illustration you will also note located adjacent to the motor-generator an automatic controller, as well as a hand-operated auto-starter. The auto-starter is installed merely for emergency service.

Another interesting point is brought out in this illustration, showing a D. C. stage lighting circuit, this being used in connection with stage work where direct current is required. It is well to note also that all equipment and circuits are plainly lettered, which makes it less possible for the operator to make any mistake. A mistake that might prove costly—to him if he did not watch his step when invading the “electric zone.”

Evidently no expense has been spared in making this installation, and the results obtained should be perfect, as they no doubt are. The expense should never be considered, for it is always worth while when perfect results are obtained.

Toronto Licenses

A NEW law has been put into force in regard to issuing operators’ licenses in Ontario, and that is that each license card must bear a photograph of the owner, a duplicate of this photo being kept on file at the City Hall along with the duplicate of the license. The reason for this is that so many licenses have been lost, and it is very difficult to determine the real owner when they inquire at the City Hall for a new license. This proposed new law is to avoid anyone getting a license who should not have one.
When a "Union" Is Not a Union

WHAT is in the idea of the writer one of the most desperate attempts to convey a false impression upon the minds of the theatre-going public is being perpetrated by a large exhibitor of motion pictures in Greater New York. The Theatrical Federation of Greater New York, whose members are Local 310; the American Federation of Musicians, and Locals Nos. 1, 4, 35, and 306 of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Manuscript Pictures Machine Operators have requested the members of the Amalgamated Stage Employees of Musicians and stage employees of Local 1, 4, 35, and the motion picture machine operators of Local 306, all members of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada, the only bona fide labor organization having jurisdiction over the theatres in the United States and Canada. Therefore the statement that "We employ only union labor" is absolutely false, for there are no members of the Theatrical Federation of Greater New York employed in any one of these theatres.

It is hardly conceivable that a business man would make these attempts to deceive the public knowing that sooner or later it would be called to his and their attention. Whatever has caused the gentleman's antagonism to union men we do not know, unless it be they ask a trifle more for their services than those who are not members of a labor organization. The fact that Mr. Marcus Loev, who operates and controls the largest chain of motion picture theatres in the United States, was willing to meet and deal with the Theatrical Federation and who finally decided to unionize all his theatres throughout the country is a matter worthy of consideration. In New York City these theatres are not members in operation, which are unfair to other theatres and it is greatly to be hoped that a victory without conquest will be attained by the members of the Theatrical Federation.

Some Stunt—Not an Ad

Jack Melcher, Sioux City, Iowa: writes: Brother Sherman—Discovered what I consider some stunt. This, I think, will help out the boys who are using double arc transcrrenters. When wired for two lights, of course, you know that the carbons are alive at all times, and one is compelled to work on mats, or take quite a jolt. Well, I stepped off mine by mistake and could not figure out why I did not get it until I happened to think that I was wearing a pair of shoes soled with "neolin." Have thrown the mats out, and believe me, they are not coming back, as I was always tripping over them. If you care to pass this along I think that the other boys will soon throw their mats out. Believe me, it is a blessing to have a floor which is clear.

In Reply: I am passing it along, Brother Melcher, but if you are getting a commission from the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company you might have made a good job of it and said that you wore "neolin" on one foot and "ked." As good results could be obtained from shoes that are "O'Sullivanized." While it has nothing to do with keeping the floor of the operating room clear, you could have gone still further and said that you wore hose of Luxite and Boston garters. Seriously, old man, many thanks for the suggestion. Come again.

Main Switchboard, Spotlights and Ballast Resistors in Operating Booth, Gordon's Olympia Theatre

Comment: This system should be a welcome otic to the operators of Toronto and throughout Ontario. It is an improvement upon the method of setting up the switchboard wires and reproducing the signature on the license to prove beyond question that he is the rightful owner.

"That's What They All Say"

CHARLES WATTS, theatre owner and manager, Columbus, Kan., writes: The News always was the best, but it is now much better than three years ago when I first began to read it. Please enter my name as an active member of the Anti-Misframe League. (They will be done.—Ed.) We have had a run of misframes and bad patches. At a whole the film comes in excellent condition.

In Reply: Thanks for your words of commendation. Far be it from us to deny the statement made in the first paragraph of your letter. "like wine, improves with age." You know the saying. I take pleasure in placing your name on the Roll of Honor, and welcome you to the ranks of the Anti-Misframe League. Operators in this territory are not troubled to any extent by punch holes, but occasionally we have a bad run of misframes and bad patches. As a whole the film comes in excellent condition. (Signed) R. H. Thanks for your words of commendation. For let it from us to deny the statement made in the first paragraph of your letter.
We Go Visiting

On last Thursday, having a few idle moments at my disposal (remember moments, please), we decided to go visiting. Not to weary you with details as to how we reached our various destinations, will say that we first called upon Mr. Weidner, a member of Local 306 and operating at the Pictorium theatre on West Seventy-eighth street near Second avenue, arriving there at 3 P.M. The Pictorium is owned and managed by Messrs. Gannon and Solke, and gives five shows daily, each showing consisting of eight reels of film at a 5 and 10 cent admission. Occasionally, when big features are shown, the admission is raised to 15 cents. The charming young lady in the box office was so solicitous that we reach the domain of Brother Weidner safely, and we were given a "safe conduct" to the operating room, where we found Brother Weidner with a Powers Six A to the right of him, a Powers Six A to the left of him, both motor driven, a Mirror Screen to the front of him, and a large window opening directly on to Seventy-eighth street bringing up the rear.

Brother Weidner is enthusiastic over the Anti-Misframe League, and during my visit was busily engaged in his spare moments (?) in removing misframes, etc., from a five-part feature. Projection at this house was really surprising by reason of the fact that not over 25 amperes of current were being used and that the Mirror screen, which had been better days, and which was a two-piece screen with a seam showing perpendicularly in its center, was also in a bad state of disintegration. National and Silver Tip carbons were being used, and the screen illumination was perfect, or nearly, which was due to the careful handling of the illuminant on the part of the operator.

Brother Weidner, who is of an inventive turn of mind, has "invented" what he probably thought was something new, and that is perforated shutters for his machines (this type of shutter is being perfected by Messrs. Myers & Weil, of New York City, and we have something to say concerning them in the near future) over which he is quite enthusiastic, as he claims, and will bear him out in his claim, that he gets more light on the screen by their use than with the regular type of shutter, and with properly proportioned blades to eliminate the flicker, this is quite noticeable while the machines were running below normal speed, which should be entirely absent no matter what speed the projection machine was being operated, it is conceivable that he might obtain equally as good results with 15 amperes of current, which has heretofore been said is an impossibility. All in all, our visit here was a most pleasant one, and as we made our exit to the strains of the Waltz from Funst, which was being wrung from the baby grand by the lady pianist, we congratulated ourselves that we had not use for the "hammer," as there was nothing that called for severe criticism.

We next visited the Odeon theatre, at Eighth avenue and Forty-third street, for the purpose of giving the once-over to a reel and reelband, the invention of one of the operators employed at this theatre. After a tortuous climb up under the caves, we found Brother L. L. Sollish in the operating room surrounded by two Baird projectors. Surmounted is the word. The machines towered in their massiveness over the operator so that they appeared as giants, and if it were not that they were equipped with Speedco Arc Controllers it would almost be necessary for the operators to use a step-ladder in order to feed the arc. Saw the creation of Brother Sollish's brain and will try to do justice to it in a separate article. Projectively speaking, this is one difficult theatre in which to obtain perfection, through no fault of machines or operators, however, but from the fact that the pictures are projected at such an acute angle that absolutely perfect definition of the picture over the operator's entire field of view is an utter impossibility, even though the screen be tilted. The operators, Brothers Morris, Ratiner and L. L. Sollish, are to be especially commended for their observance of "cleanliness is next to godliness," the machines looking spick and span and as if they had just been received from the factory. I was surprised when Brother Ratiner informed me they were awaiting the arrival of two new Baird mechanisms. But, of course, this is probably for the reason of the added improvements upon the newer mechanisms. He is an ardent devotee of Baird projectors, so any further words from me would be superfluous.

Leaving Harlem we crossed the river and entered the wild and wonderful West, and noticing that "Within the Law" was being played in conjunction with vaudeville at Loew National theatre, 144th street and Bergen avenue and being desirous of seeing the picture, we purchased our ticket, which, by the way, cost us 35 cents, and entered. The Bronx is either the other theatre mad or else the picture was a superlatively attractive film; for at this hour, 8 P.M., the theatre, which I should estimate seats about 2,500 people, was packed from pit to dome, the lobby was crowded with those trying to gain admission, and many were turned away. The mystery is, How was I enabled to obtain a seat? But I did and was greeted by a colored song and dance team that reminded me of the colored minstrels featured at Huber's Museum on Fourteenth street some years ago. The style was so different. The colored entertainers at Huber's could and did sing. The dancing of the male member was well received. This team was followed by a singing trio, after which Universal's serial, "The Voice on the Wire," was shown. Ben Wilson is evidently a favorite with Bronx audiences if one is to judge from the thunderous applause which greeted the introduction of this picture. Following the showing of this a comedian appeared upon the stage with an act on the style of that of the late Cliff Gordon, and while not a riot, finished big with a plea for humanity, a recitation dedicated to the present situation of this nation upon our entrance into the war. He was followed by a novelty musical act which was really good and was the hit of the show. Then came the piece de resistance, Alice Joyce and Harry Morey in the Vitagraph production "Within the Law," a photoplay which held the attention of the spectator from start to finish and which at frequent intervals brought forth rounds of applause. It is surely one with a punch, and the Bronxites allowed themselves to run out of their emotions, from tears of laughter back to tears of joy. The tears were caused for the reason that it seemed almost impossible for the operator to maintain a steady light, there being hardly any one of the eight reels which we could honestly say was perfectly projected. Whether this is due to carelessness on the part of the operator or not we do not know, but it is something we have noticed in not a few of the houses on this circuit in recent weeks, and if, as was the case in a number of these theatres, are controllers are used there seems to be no reason why the light should not be maintained steadily throughout the entire projection of at least such a masterly production as this greater Vitagraph. I forbear mentioning the names of the operators, who are not observing closely their screen illumination, but if they are who are guilty read this it is to be hoped they will effect a remedy and that our idle moments which ended at 11:30 P.M. that evening will not have been in vain. In Trouble

J. E. B., Conn., writes: "Am writing you concerning several things. First of all, put my name down for the Anti-Misfire lamp. I always fix every misfire before running, and have spent from one to seven hours in so doing, and I used to stay after the show on nights we shipped the reels away in order to personally clean each reel of any dirt or oil that happened to get on it. The question I wanted to ask is: I had been operating near here for over three years and delivering results that built our house up from nothing to a good thing. Now the union came to me about taking a position here in ----. I gave up my former position and came here, for more money, of course, with the understanding that the position was open to me as long as I wanted it. I made good on the job and everything has gone along fine until last Saturday I got my two weeks' notice without any reason at all. The manager, I have found out since, is closing his other house and going to bring the operator back from that house to the one I am at. He has told other people that he likes my work very much better than the other fellow's, but having employed him longer has got to take him back. The union says I can get other work to do and can wait around until they feel like giving me another position. The way I feel about it is after one has spent a long time studying a trade, you cannot take up another one without losing the knowledge you have already gained in your chosen profession. The union has nothing in view, and, as I understand it, you cannot go to another locality to look for work until you have been in the locality for two years. I have moved my family over here (am married and have an invalid mother to support). Now, would you please inform me if I could advertise in your paper and the amount it would cost. Have been a subscriber for two years and always found it fair and square. I hope you will excuse me for this lengthy letter and am sincerely yours."

In Reply: The fact that you have been operating and delivering the goods is something that should be taken into consideration, as well as the fact that you are the sole support of a wife and invalid mother. And if the manager prefers your work to that of the other operator there is no reason why you should not be retained in your present position. Of course, it is reasonable to suppose that when a manager has had an operator in his employ for a long time he naturally wants to look out for him, but unless the other operator is in similar circumstances you should be given the preference. It is much easier for a single man to obtain a position which will at least furnish him his room and board than it is for one burdened with a family. As far as the union saying you can get other work to do is concerned, that is a matter that is purely and simply up to the local. If it is that local of which you are a member, it seems to me they should be able to secure positions for their members and not take in more men than there are positions for. Your understanding with reference to going to another locality to look for work is just a little bit off. According to the International constitution and by-laws, "An operator is not permitted to go upon the road until he has been a member of the International Alliance for at least two years." This has nothing to do, however, with transferring to another locality. For instance: You may join 999 today and continue your membership for one, two, or three months, and then, desiring to affiliate with some other local through your intention of moving, we will say, to that local's jurisdiction, it would be necessary for you to pay up all indebtedness to Local 999 and take out a transfer card, stating your intention of joining the other local. This card will hold good for a period of ninety days, and should be presented to the local you are desirous of becoming affiliated with for acceptance or rejection. Action must be taken by that local within sixty days from time your transfer is presented to them, and if you are rejected you still have left thirty days in which to deposit your transfer card into your own local, thus continuing your membership therein. I do not believe that it is advisable for you to advertise in a trade paper, but will be glad to send you in any way that is in my power if you will send me a letter giving references and salary at which you will be willing to work. I have, as you will note, placed your name on the Roll of Honor of the Anti-Misframe League, and wish to compliment you in taking the time to see that each reel of film leaves you in the best possible condition.

The light from an Alternating Current arc lamp alternating from both positive, while from a Direct Current arc is always same from the same current. The Direct Current arc can therefore be arranged so that the maximum amount of light always passes through the lens, while it is impossible to do this with an Alternating Current arc. A Direct Current arc also gives off less light than the same current than an Alternating Current arc.

A Movie Operator's Heroism

D OCTOR, they told me I would have to be operated on before I'd be accepted as a recruit in the army. Look me over and do your duty, will you?"

The above words, uttered by George Miller, of 104 Garden street, Hoboken, N. J., moving picture operator and member of Local 384, to one of the interns at St. Mary's Hospital some few weeks ago, caused the said intern to open his eyes in amazement at the grit and determination on the part of this young man, imbued with the spirit of patriotism and a desire to obey the summons "Your Country Needs You." Miller, who was evidently born with a chip on his shoulder, has since the declaration of war been more than anxious to do his bit, but was prevented by physical disability; a disability which could only be overcome by undergoing an operation where the chances were one in fifty that he would recover, resolved that nothing should stand in his way and appeared at the hospital ready for the sacrifice.

We are pleased to state that Brother Miller was operated on most successfully and has been discharged from the institution. While he has not entirely regained his former prodigious strength, he is, however, on the rapid road to recovery, and with spirit undaunted is still determined to obey the summons and give his life if need be for his country, the U. S. A.

Local 453 Elects Officers

LOCAL 453, Westchester County, N. Y., at their annual election, held recently, elected the following officers to preside over their destines for the ensuing year: Louis Goldshlag, president; A. Martin, vice-president; T. W. Dougherty, recording secretary; E. Kesseler, financial secretary; F. C. Lamb, treasurer; Bert Le Roy, business agent (B. A.); E. A. Bell, sergeant-at-arms; M. Orlack, press secretary, and three trustees consisting of W. Walker, chairman; C. R. Davis, and C. L. Jackson.

ARGUMENT

ARGUMENT WITHOUT PROOF IS USELESS—WITH CORROBORATION, IT CONVINCES AND JUSTIFIES PREJUDICE AND PRACTICE.

WHEN WE ARGUE IN FAVOR OF "SPEER PROJECTOR CARBONS," WE ARE WILLING TO PROVE EVERY STATEMENT.

THE FACTS ARE:

That a combination of a Speer "Cored" upper and a "Hold-Ark" lower will improve your projection.

That the hard core of the "Hold-Ark" assures absolute steadiness of the arc.

That ghosts and aggravating shadows are eliminated by the brilliancy of the light.

That every carbon is uniform and can be depended upon for efficient results.

That a mere trial of "Speer Carbons" will cause you to use them unhesitatingly thereafter.

That samples will be supplied willingly, to those who desire additional proof of the foregoing arguments.

"The Carbons with a Guarantee."

SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PENN'A.
This local, while not yet having attained its first birthday, is nearly a 100 per cent. local. Every one of its members is employed. And under the able leadership of Brother Goldshlag, who is, by the way, a young man possessed of great executive ability, there is no doubt that the 100 per cent. will be attained before they celebrate their first anniversary on July 17. It was he to whom is given the credit of making Local 366, also of Westchester County, what it is today. Both locals are a credit to the I. A., and with their membership living up to the slogan "All for one and one for all" great progress is to be expected. Brother Le Roy, the business agent, has business agenting reduced to a science, therefore he was re-elected to the office, which he has held since the inception of this live wire local. Formerly a member of 306, he has profited by the things learned there and, filled with enthusiasm, is determined to do all in his power to put Local 453 in the first division of bustling, wide awake, progressive, and live wire locals of the International Alliance. Here's wishing you all success.

"Anti-Misframe League"

Pledge

As a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart, and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practiced in the operating room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return film to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remove all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way cooperate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

The Roll of Honor follows:

Editor's Note: To Brother Pastre belongs the honor of heading the roll, for it was he who proposed the "League." Names of operators will be added as fast as they are received, and copies of letters will be sent to the various film exchanges asking their support.

The Right Idea—Nicely Expressed

W. A. S., Providence, R. I., writes: I have been a subscriber of the Motion Picture News for two years, and, believe me, I am pleased when it arrives. I am a firm believer in the Anti Misframe League. I have the pleasure of operating in a theater where we project first-run films, so you see I can't kick on misframes, but believe I have seen some and all other troubles in the ten years I have been in the game. My only trouble now is small patches. (Continued on page 3644)

Color Sensitizing

IN the course of our writings upon “Color Cinematography” we have endeavors to consider such phases of actual work along this line, as would be of practical value and interest to workers on the color processes.

Of articles and formulae on the subject of rendering plates and films sensitive to light of all colors there is no end, but up to the present the subject has not been treated with regard to the requirements of the color cinematographers, and it is undoubtedly a fact that the lack of suitable panchromatic negative film has been more or less of a stumbling block in the path of most workers in the field of color cinematography.

Abundant as is the literature on color sensitizing, the valuable scientific contributions on this subject are widely scattered, and are, perhaps, in numerous instances, inaccessible to workers on color photography. Believing as we do that the possession of exact and detailed knowledge is a factor in successful experimentation, we shall endeavor to set forth in collective form some of the more interesting and important data relating to color sensitizing, and the dyes used in the preparation of so-called “panchromatic” negative film.

Unlike most other articles upon the subject this will not be a presentation of varied formulae; in fact we hope to traverse our entire subject, without the presentation of a single quantitative sensitizing formula. For good and sufficient reasons, not the least of which is the present scarcity and prohibitive price of sensitizing dyes, it would be idle for us to advocate experimentation with any given formula or set of formulae, but with a knowledge of the constituencies and properties of the various sensitizing dyes, the intelligent worker, will be enabled to select and formulate the combinations best suited to his specific requirements.

To describe, compare and investigate the more important sensitizing dyes is the province of the present article, and as a result of comprehensive examinations on a practical scale we shall limit ourselves to the consideration of that group of modern dyes known as the “isocyanines,” for experience has shown that the older dyes used in color sensitizing do not well lend themselves to the production of color selection negatives at extremely short exposures, such as are required in practical color cinematography.

Finally we shall consider how the isocyanines, as a class, differ from other dyes as regards their chemical constitution and mode of preparation. While there still seems to be some difference of opinion among authorities as to the exact chemical reactions, which result in the formation of true isocyanines, we cannot do better than quote Dr. E. König in this connection. As the Research Director of the photographic division of the Hoechst Farbwerke, in Germany, Dr. König has long been recognized as the leading authority on the isocyanine color sensitizers, and the following notes on the constitution and characteristics of the isocyanines are translated from König’s Fifth Edition of Vogel’s “Photochemie” (pages 325-330).

THE CYANINES

CH₃

which constitutes the mother substance of the Cyanines. The preparation of the solution of Lepidin-iodylates and Quinolin iodylates (Quinolin is likewise contained in the raw materials employed by Williams) is the first step in the formation of Cynain. E. König drew attention to the fact that singularly enough Lepidin quinolin amlycyaniniodiide had been used for decades as a sensitiser, for better or worse, although this particular Cyanin, on account of its characteristics, must be said to be very unsatisfactory for photographic purposes. The great difficulties and the many failures in working with Cyainin (bathed) plates caused many sensitizing formulae to be devised, but, nevertheless, none of these proved entirely satisfactory.

The use of Cyaininiodiides was especially recommended instead of the Iodides. The Chloride was produced from Cyaniniodiide by steaming with Hydrochloric acid. E. König (loc. cit.) proved that the iodine contained in the dye was not changed through this treatment, and that at best only a purification of the impure dye was brought about by the Hydrochloric acid.

By treatment in conjunction with silver salts cyaniniodiide may be easily converted into Cyaninichloride, bromide, sulphate, nitrate, etc. According to E. König (Handbuch III, 182), these salts do not act differently than Cyaniniodiide. E. König recommended instead of the Amycyanines (the Cyanines) the use of the previously manufactured Ethylcyanin (Lepidin quinolin ethyl-cyaniniodiide), which was much easier to purify, and much more readily soluble in water than the older Cyanin. The latter is readily soluble in alcohol, but practically insoluble in water. Ethylcyanin dissolves somewhat less freely in alcohol than Amycyanin, but quite easily in water. The alcoholic solution is a beautiful blue-violet, the solution, when dissolved in water is considerably redder in color. By the addition of a small amount of acid to the solution it is decolorised completely, as is the case with all the Cyanines, but upon the addition of ammonia the color reappears. The alcoholic solution can only be decolorised by large quantities of acid. The color free acid salts of the Cyanines (and isocyanines) are freely soluble in water and by constant steaming they are partly condensed into colored salts, undergoing a loss of one acid molecule (see E. König, “Photo. Korr.”—1904, Page 111).

Water solutions of Cyanin are extremely sensitive to light and become rapidly discolored in bright daylight; the alcoholic solution is somewhat more stable.

Cyanin strongly sensitizes Bromide of silver collodion, as well as Gelatino-bromide, for yellow, orange and red. In spectrograms the slightest effect (minima) is seen to be between E and F in the green; the sensitizing action extends as far as C² B. A considerable reduction in total sensitiveness resulting from the use of Cyanin (according to “Eder’s Handbuch” III, Page 182, to 1/3 or 1/5 of the original sensitiveness) was not found by the author (König).

As a red sensitizer Cyanin is being steadily replaced by Pinacyanol (this was printed in 1906.—En.).

DICYANIN

This dye is produced by the action of caustic potash on an alcoholic solution of alpha-gamma-Dimethylquinolinium salts; the assistance of atmospheric oxygen is necessary to the formation of Dicyanin. (This dyeing gets its name from the fact that it contains two Lepidin atoms.—En.). The dyes stuffs forms in glittering green crystals which dissolve in alcohol with a pure greenish-blue color; by diluting with water the solution becomes colored somewhat redder, due to traces of acid. Dicyanin sensitizes Bromide of Silver-Gelatine up to the a line, but the spectograms show a deep minimum between E and F with.

The sensitiveness of Dicyanin (bathed) plates behind a red filter is less than that of Pinacyanol or Pinachrome plates, although the sensitizing action extends much farther into the red. For scientific spectrum photography Dicyanin is one of the most valuable sensitizers. For three-color photography Pinacyanol deserves preference, as a sensitiveness extending so far into the red is not necessary for this purpose.

Silver-bromide collodion is also very strongly sensitized by Dicyanin. A Von Habi discovered that without the use of a color-filter red would be more strongly recorded in the negative than would blue (meaning that collodion emulsion is isochromatic without the use of a filter when treated with Dicyanin —Ed).

Plates sensitized with Dicyanin work entirely free from fog, even while they are being handled, not even the darkest red light is employed. Dark green illumination may be appropriately employed.

Photographic Optics
Mr. R. C., Chicago, Ill., Writes:

In your current issues you review numerous treatises on photographic optics. These all seem to be of such a technical nature that the layman would have difficulty in understanding them. Is there anything published that treats of these subjects in such a way that the uninstrated mind can grasp their import and gain at least a slight knowledge of the subject? I await your reply with interest.

In reply.

Here is a letter which doubtless expresses the sentiment of scores of photographers and cameramen. It is regrettable to state that there have not been many treatises on photographic optics published in English, but we believe that our bibliography takes cognizance of all the works (in English) which treat of the fundamentals of optical imagery. It is not difficult for even the uninstrated worker to see that a positive lens (for instance a photographic objective) produces a real image, which may be received upon a focusing screen or upon the photographic film or plate, and by means of diagrams and text photographs the effect of various aberrations of a lens upon the definition and accuracy of the image can also be shown.

The study of these effects (or defects) cannot, however, be said to constitute even a superficial knowledge of, or training in, the science of photographic or geometrical optics, for all importance is the knowledge that under certain conditions a lens produces an unsharp, or a distorted picture, if the cause of the aberration and the means of correcting it are unknown to the student. Unfortunately for those who have not received an adequate mathematical training the subject must be left at first glance an unapproachable one, for when the construction and action of lenses and lens systems is considered, it is at once apparent that the entire proposition is of a geometrical nature, and that mathematics must play a dominant part in the science of optics.

How, for instance, could an optician produce a lens capable of fulfilling conditions that are obtained by the relations (such as focal length, relative aperture, size of image, etc.), without recourse to mathematical calculation, and how could he make a duplicate of the original objective unless certain numerical constants relative to its design had been established?

The study of lens aberrations by photographers is to be encouraged by all means. But after a certain point is reached the limitations of empirical trial are apparent, and further ground cannot be gained without recourse to mathematical reckoning. By this we mean that progress in the optical phases of cinematography, and more particularly motion picture projection will not be apparent until some of the "experts" and "engineers" (so called) have acquired the scientific training necessary to the intelligent treatment of the subject, and have furthermore fortified themselves with the study of good books on the basic theory of optics—such, for instance, as those reviewed in our photographic bibliography.

We hope that in commenting upon the subject in this manner we will discourage no one who sincerely desires to become well versed in technical optics. Some one has wisely said that "it is never too late to learn," and the science of optics is undoubtedly interesting enough to justify the necessary study and training.

This will be readily apparent to any photographer or projection-man after an intensive study of Lummer's "Photographic Optics" or Nutting's "Outlines of Applied Optics," and we recommend the perusal of these works as a preliminary in the acquisition of accurate knowledge upon the optics of photography and the theory and use of optical instruments.

When we say that Eastman Film is dependably uniform, we are not making a claim but stating a fact. Look for the stencil mark "Eastman" in the film margin.

In using this diagram the brother is enabled to operate from either rectifier, economizer or rheostat. Should anything happen to the A. C. line all that would be necessary to continue the show would be to manipulate the switches according to the key, and operate with D. C. through the rheostat. The advantage of such a wiring scheme is obvious, and the throw overs on rectifier and economizer should enable the operator to maintain at all times, as near as possible, direct current at the arcs.
MUSIC AND THE PICTURE

Good Musical Program Suggestion from Correspondent

EDITOR MOTION PICTURE NEWS:

DEAR SIR:

I am enclosing cue sheet I have used twice for Paramount Picture of Pauline Frederick in "The Slave Market," and knowing there are many musicians, like myself, who are glad to have a good musical program for pictures, I send this one, trusting it may be of assistance to some of your readers of the "Music and the Picture" department. Enjoyed very much the reading of the two different selections of numbers that were used for a "Truant Soul." There is a place for popular music just the same as there is for any other kind of music. I have in mind a Russian story that was played at one of the theatres in this city some few nights ago, "The Dancer's Peril." The piano player used a great amount of popular music through the picture. I noticed one in particular that was entirely out of its place was the song "Aloha Oe." At another place in the picture when the drunken Pavlov is killed by Lola and lies stretched across the bed, the song "Mother" was played. Another important thing, especially where only one musician is employed, should be that he be provided with a good instrument. I had to use an instrument last summer where the back of the theatre was damp, and had to put a 60-watt carbon lamp near the action to keep it dry, as the hammers would stick and make it nearly impossible to get anything out of it. In playing a different picture every day I have all the orchestrations for each country or nation in a separate folio, so that today if I have an Italian picture I can pick out the following named "Italian" and have all the music ready that gives an Italian atmosphere to the picture. If there are other numbers that are in other folios or books that can be used, I mark them down on the inside of the cover. Also have a special line of song arrangements, as nine out of ten pictures should be closed with a good love song of the theme. In my experience with moving picture theatres I have found that good music would bring the crowds and business better than anything. I have noticed in your valuable magazine in letters from musicians that some of them favor popular music. Well, one reason that the managers want popular music is that a certain class of people, particularly the young dancing boys and girls appreciate this style of music and very often they will go out and sing one of the popular numbers played by the orchestra. How many would have been satisfied after paying $1.50 to see the "Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance," etc., if it had not been for the music.

The "Dumb Girl of Portici" is a fine picture of eight reels, but I have seen people get up before the picture was over and leave and call it rotten (a favorite word with movie fans), but it would have been altogether different had a good orchestra played it using excerpts from the orchestra and the music of the opera "Masaniello." There are a great many other little items that I might write that would interest some other musicians but will finish by giving my list of numbers for Pauline Frederick in the "Slave Market.

Musical setting for "The Slave Market" (Paramount Program).

1. Opening Bridal Tour Overture (Cundy), play through to last Allegro until S: "Bastian brings bird to Ramona.
2. Segue Mi Amo (Spanish once through as written Cue "Pirates")
3. Segue Overture Die Schone Galatea stop at 6/8 Allegro Scene Ramona leaves convent.
4. Segue Viscayan Blues (Spanish once as written Cue "Hispania")
5. Segue-finish of Overture from 6/8 Scene on ship.
6. Segue A. B. C No. 10 a. i. Stern until

8. Romantique Overture (Fischer).
9. Segue Ripples (Spanish Serenade) Stern till "O Lady Don't."
10. Anita Serenade (Jacob), mance S. Pirates in cave.
11. Ein Marchen Fantasia (Fischer), S. Ramona at window after title "Firebrands sudden return."
12. Canonetta (godard (Fischer), repeat S. "The Market place."
13. Broken Melody until end (about twice through).

I did not use any theme for this picture as it hardly called for it. I would be pleased to have brother musicians try out this program if they have the opportunity and let me know their success with same.

Thanking you for publishing this at earliest convenience, I beg to remain,

Yours for better music,

Nelson A. Heffener,

Installs American Fotoplayer

PROFESSOR A. G. TRAVERS, owner of the Maplewood theatre, at Eighteenth avenue and Fifty-fifth street, Bath Beach, has recently installed an American Fotoplayer, Style 40, in his theatre. The instrument was sold to him by the American Fotoplayer Company, who have offices and showrooms at 62 West Forty-fifth street, New York City.

The Maplewood is one of the most modern and up-to-the-minute theatres of that section of Brooklyn. It shows only first-run pictures, has a seating capacity of 600; admission prices are ten and fifteen cents.

"Stenopaic" Glasses Save Eyes—Claim

The latest in inventions arising from the motion picture industry's sudden growth is "stenopaic glasses," so-called by their inventor, Dr. F. C. A. Richardson, who makes wonderful claims for his invention as relieving eye strain in a recent issue of the Optometrical Record.

These "glasses" are not glasses at all, but shell eye-glass frames, with cardboard "blinders" where the glass would be, with a narrow slit through which the picture is seen. Properly adjusted, they shut out all extraneous light, yet the picture can be seen clearly. The Stenopaic Optical Company, 437 Fifth avenue, New York, manufactures these novel "glasses."

Engage Musical Expert

REALIZING the importance of appropriate music in the correct presentation of the motion picture of today, the managers of the Plaza and Poli theatres have engaged in services of W. Winkler, of New York City, to attend to the adaptation of music scores for each and every feature, booked in the future.

The first production performed with Mr. Winkler's musical arrangement was Mary Pickford in "A Poor Little Rich Girl," the second will be Geraldine Farrar in "Joan the Woman."

Pyle, of Bartola, Has Successful Trip

CHARLES C. PYLE, General Sales Agent of the Bartola Musical Instrument Co., who has been in the East for the last two weeks, reports a most successful trip. He claims that the majority of motion picture exhibitors are not being affected by the war and are showing their confidence of the future by purchasing musical instruments.

Mr. Pyle has sold six large sized Bartolas on this trip, two in Philadelphia, two in New York City, one in Montpelier, Vt., and one in Boston.

T. D. Waits, who has been representing the Bartola Company in the East for the last three months, has returned to the Chicago office and is being succeeded in the East by a well known musical instrument salesman.

Popular Philadelphia House on Site of Nickelodeon

The Poplar theatre, at Sixth and Poplar, Philadelphia, is one of those modern houses with every up-to-date equipment that has risen, phoenix-like, on the site of the old nickelodeon.

It was in the summer of 1916 that the owner of the Poplar, A. Stiefel, had his old five-cent theatre razed to the ground. On the same site by early autumn of the same year had risen this substantial structure of brick and concrete, 65 by 165 feet, of which Carl Kruger of Philadelphia is the architect.

The theatre is heated by steam, has a direct lighting system and perfect ventilation, having two large exhaust fans, twenty smaller fans, twenty doors and windows, with a disinfecting of the whole once a week.

There are 1,000 seats, all on one floor. A Rembrandt Crystal Gold Film Screen, two Power 6B machines with Gimball lenses No. 2, a throw of 165 feet, and Lou Gravel as chief operator ensures a good projection. The lobby is only 15 by 40 feet, detracting somewhat from the otherwise pleasing appearance of the theatre. The effect of the lobby will, however, be much enhanced when the contemplated improvement of enclosing it in glass doors is effected. The lobby is neatly stenciled in buff and green. There is a ticket chopper, and the ticket taker, as well as the young men ushers, are in maroon and gold braided uniforms.

In the interior of the theatre the general color scheme of green and gold is carried out in the attractive stencils and frescoes. Fifteen employees are needed to care for the well-being of the house, which is situated in a residential district. There are two performances each day except Saturday, when five are crowded in. Seven reels are shown with a price of ten cents. Children find the house especially likable.

N. Stiefel, the young son of the owner, is the manager of the Poplar, and also of the Fairmount, another house owned by A. Stiefel in the immediate vicinity. Another son assists in this family affair management.

The same program is run at both the Poplar and the Fairmount, and the same conditions in regard to children prevail. The Stiefels pride themselves especially on two things in their Poplar house—one is the superior lighting effects and the other the $10,000 Barioli organ, the first to be installed in Philadelphia. There is also an echo organ, with every attachment possible.

Lloyd Crew, a well-known musician, is the capable organist.

Fox, World, Vitagraph, Mutual releases are used with Keystone and Drew comedies. Advertising is done through a mailing list, window cards, a display wagon and billboards for special features.

High Class House in Small Town Draws the Crowds

The Duchess theatre, of Warren, Ohio, is owned and operated by J. A. Reeves. The theatre was completed during 1914, the plans and specifications for the structure having been drawn up by J. L. Decker, and architect, with offices in Youngstown, Ohio.

The theatre dimensions are 44 feet in width by 152 feet in depth. It is constructed of steel, concrete and brick. The lobby, which measures 11 feet 6 inches in width by 52 feet 6 inches in depth contains numerous one, three and six sheet poster frames and several photo frames. The box-office is equipped with a National Cash Register ticket selling machine which saves a great deal of time in handling crowds.

The interior of the theatre is neatly decorated, the walls being adorned with beautiful oil paintings. The theatre has a seating capacity of 600; comfortable opera chairs having been furnished by the A. A. Andrews Company.

A Buffalo Forge ventilating system used in conjunction with a steam heating plant keeps the theatre well heated and ventilated at all times. The semi-indirect lighting system is used in the interior.

The projection room, which is located above the lobby, contains two Powers projectors. The length of throw is 100 feet onto a Mirror screen. The music for the picture is furnished by an American Fotoplayer which was installed at the cost of $10,000.

There are four performances daily consisting of seven reels each. The weekly program consists of Paramount, Fox, Artcraft, Pathé, Bluebird and other high class productions.

The theatre, being located in the business district of the city, advertises extensively in the daily newspapers and on billboards throughout the vicinity. The management expends approximately $500 each year on improvements and in this way retains its old patrons and gathers many new ones.
New Crown Theatre Opened

THE new Crown theatre, which recently opened at Crown Point, Ind., exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the promoters, for at each showing on the opening day the S. R. O. sign was displayed. This theatre, which has a seating capacity of 530, is arranged and equipped in such a manner that patrons' comfort seems to have been a paramount feature of construction.

The heating and ventilating systems, both of latest design and proven efficacy are giving the best of satisfaction, and Cyrus Haydon, the proprietor, is being congratulated on all sides. The screen is of the latest, most approved style, and the projection room wherein are installed two machines are a joy and a comfort to the operator.

East St. Louis' New Theatre Acme of Uniqueness

THE new theatre now in course of erection, by Maurice V. Joyce, at East St. Louis, Ill., will, according to Architect George Pfeifferberger be a model of uniqueness. It is to be constructed of steel, stone and concrete, 50 x 100 feet in dimensions, facing on Main street, abutting Broadway, and will have exits on all four sides.

Not only will it be available for motion picture pictures, for a large stage and necessary accommodations for vaudeville shows are to be installed. It will be two stories in height, and every conceivable device is being utilized to insbre its being as nearly fireproof as is possible to erect such a house, and the convenience and comfort of patrons is being studied from every angle.

The estimated cost is $25,000, and special efforts are being made to have it ready for opening early in September.

The plans call for a roomy, well ventilated projection room to accommodate two machines, and the screen selected is of the most modern make.

New Theatre on Site of Hotel Recently Burned

THE new theatre, in course of construction at Burnsie, Ky., is fast approaching completion, and when completed will compare favorably with many of the picture houses of much larger towns.

The site of this theatre is the old Dobbs Hotel, on Fifth street, which was recently destroyed by fire and will face the Seven Gables Hotel.

L. M. Lloyd, the owner, is personally supervising the construction, which will be of concrete floor and walls, with an iron roof, and will be 80 feet long by 25 feet wide. On the first floor will be a confectionary and candy store, and on the second will be the cloak and toilet rooms. Other conveniences will include smoke and rest rooms.

ACCESSORY NEWS SECTION

Vol. 15. No. 23

Work on the vaudeville and motion picture theatre to be erected by the Blankers' and Brokers' Association upon the site of the old Apollo in Chicago will begin next week, according to an announcement made by E. H. Harang, representative of the ground lessees, realistically.

According to the slightly revised plans, the new theatre will cost in the neighborhood of $65,000. It will have a frontage of 85 feet and a depth of 100 feet. There will be 600 seats on the first floor and 760 in the balcony.

After reserving a space 26 x 26 feet for the lobby there will be room for four store rooms, each 14 feet wide by 30 feet deep.

All store rooms have been spoken for, and Mr. Harang was embarrassed by the number of applications for these rooms, there being barely half a houger for each of the four rooms available.

"The stage will be of standard dimensions," said Mr. Harang. "We will be equipped to present first-class vaudeville in conjunction with motion pictures."

ILLINOIS

Carl Pearson opened the new Princess theatre at Rushville last week to good business. This new house was erected to replace the one destroyed by fire last winter. It is absolutely up to date in every detail.

A permit was recently issued by Building Commissioner George Guenther to M. V. Joyce to construct a theatre at 11 and 13 South Main street, East St. Louis, for the cost of $10,100. The plans indicate that this building, which is to be up to date in every particular, will be completed for the fall season.

KANSAS

The Royal theatre, owned and managed by E. H. Hollister, Kansas City, opened its doors to the public recently with Paramount Pictures. Kansas City has a population of 400,000 people, and Mr. Hollister has built in the town and the industry and invested about $10,000 in a new building and equipment. The new theatre is screened thorough and is equipped with the latest technical equipment.

Another community in Kansas has just reason to be proud of its brand new theatre. H. E. Crabtree, a native of the town, has purchased a new location and equipment of a theatre so that the people of Kansas would not only get a first-class program, but the presentation would be equal to the best.

KENTUCKY

The Masonic and K. of P. lodges of Cynthiana have purchased the building occupied by the light plant. They have bought the last lot before it was built on, so they have possession of the entire building. The lower floor will be used for picture shows and any other entertainment. Something of this kind has been needed badly here. The upper room will be used as a lodge room. The amount involved was about $4,000.

MICHIGAN

A new theatre is to be erected in Flint by Lester Matt, who now operates the Strand theatre. He reports that it will seat 1,500 and that work will be up to date in every detail. An announcement was made recently by the building contractors, the K. L. Ford and J. G. Smith, that the new structure to be erected in Flint by Lester Matt, who now operates the Strand theatre. He reports that it will seat 1,500 and that work will be up to date in every detail. An announcement was made recently by the building contractors, the K. L. Ford and J. G. Smith, that the new structure will be erected to replace the one recently destroyed by fire. The new theatre will have a seating capacity of 1,000, and will be equipped with the latest technical equipment.

MONTANA

Another community in Montana has just reason to be proud of its brand new theatre. R. E. Crabtree, a native of the town, has purchased a new location and equipment of a theatre so that the people of Montana would not only get a first-class program, but the presentation would be equal to the best.

NORTH DAKOTA

W. E. Kurke is preparing the plans for the new moving picture house for Moultrie to be owned by Sam F. Field, present manager of the Palace theatre, which will be located in the Rasmussen building on Front street between Fifth and Sixth streets.

This building will be remodeled throughout and the back of it extended to the present which will be used for car service, with 130 feet in width, and a seating capacity of 900. In the front part of the building will be the lobby, ticket offices, a cigar store and an ice cream parlour.

The stage will be 16 feet deep and 28 feet wide, and an indirect lighting system will be used.

NEBRASKA

The Nate Desks Loan and Investment Co., of Lincoln, Neb., have purchased the Opera House at Gothenburg, Neb. The company will expand between 350,000 and 400,000 in remodeling the Opera House, making it one of the best houses in Central Nebraska, with a seating capacity of 245 on the ground floor and 100 in the balcony. The Opera House will be redecorated and modernized from cellar to roof, with a new front to the building. The best motion pictures will be shown that the market affords, also read shows and vaudeville. As this theatre has a stage 36 feet, with fly galleries, any company can be accommodated. Other notable features will be a ladies' rest room and nursery, a gentleman's smoking room. The building as it stands is 50x100 feet.

OHO

William Gordon announced last week that he had purchased the old Hopwood property on the east side of Main street, just south of Fourth street, Middletown. This is one of Middletown's old landmarks and passes into Mr. Gordon's hands after being in possession of the Hopwood family for several years. Mr. Gordon plans to erect a modern open-air theatre similar to but more magnificent than his building on Second street, which was destroyed by fire two years ago. The expanse and high price of building material may prevent Mr. Gordon from starting on the structure this summer, but his plans will eventually be carried out.

PENNSYLVANIA

Frankford, a thriving suburb of Philadelphia, is to have a new theatre which, J. E. Rowan says, is to be the handsomest neighborhood house on the state. The same lady reports William Frechfeld, already interested in several large picture houses in the Quacker City, as the owner. It is positive that L. Tupper, associated with Mr. Frechfeld in the Frankford, Tunga, Coliseum and Uptown theatres, will be managing director of the new house.

It will be erected near the present Frankford theatre on the same block, in fact—and will be an 1,800-seated house, to cost $150,000.

The company has purchased the property of Charles Lang and Dr. W. G. Williams, forming the building. The theatre will extend from East Mifflin through to East Dayton street.

The new house will have a seating capacity of 1,988, which will make it available for conventions.

The plans for the theatre were drawn by George Rapp, Chicago architect, who designed the Orpheum and the projection theatre at Baraboo. It will be modeled on metropolitan lines, with a foyer extending from the entrance on Mifflin street to the alley, a distance of 132 feet long and 22 feet wide. There will be no balconies, but a number of boxes are to be installed.

The P. and H. Amusement Company, which will build the new playhouse, is present the operator of the Orpheum, Fuller and Strand theatres.

One of the largest theatres in Milwaukee, which was opened as a vaudeville house and is now being devoted part of the day to pictures and the balance of the time to presenting legitimate vaudeville. The house is the nearest rival house.—the Miller theatre. This huge theatre seats over 2,000 people, yet has found it advisable to play pictures for a certain portion of the day. And the strange part of it is that the house is always well filled for pictures. These people fill the theatre for all the hours of the day, according to the performance of the married couples and families, with the result that the house is always well filled for pictures.
THE movie theatre owner is responsible for his own success. He must provide two things to insure continuous patronage—good films and an attractive interior.

At reasonable cost, you can add to the decorative treatment of your theatre interior by installing Berger's "Classik" Steel Ceilings. The illustration shows the distinctive effect obtained by the use of these ceilings, which can only be duplicated by the most expensive plastic relief work.

The unequalled variety of patterns offers a wide range of treatment. Effects appropriate to any size or style of room are provided for, yet with harmony and consistency of style prevailing throughout.

Berger's "Classik" Steel Ceilings are also sanitary, easily erected, fire retardant and indestructible—cannot crack, chip or fall down. Aside from an occasional coat of paint, they require no upkeep expense. These ceilings will give you permanent satisfaction.

Real Service

Two years ago Motion Picture News foresaw the inevitable prominence of the state rights market and set about meeting it.

Data was compiled and a representative sent out over the entire country to visit the independent exchanges.

Today the State Rights Department of Motion Picture News occupies a strategic position. The data we have exists nowhere else. We are, moreover, in immediate daily touch with the entire state rights field.

To publish this information would require an entire edition of this paper.

This is impossible and unnecessary; but all this information, or most of it, is immediately available to any producer, distributor or exhibitor of state rights pictures.

We will tell any exhibitor, by return mail, anything he wants to know about any state rights picture—who handles it, and what kind of a picture it is.

Our office is headquarters for the makers and buyers of independent pictures. We offer to each a practical, complete and real service.

More than 5,000 exhibitors in America bear testimony to the superlative quality and drawing power of Artercraft productions and to the fairness of Artercraft's leasing policies.

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has acquired control of Artercraft and adjusted distribution dates so as to enable the exhibitors to play the great Artercraft pictures without having to pay for the Paramount features of the same release date.

Artercraft Pictures in the future as in the past will be distributed under the “star series” selection plan. The coordination with Paramount commencing August 5th gives the Artercraft exhibitor protection so that when he plays a new Mary Pickford-Artercraft feature he will not be in competition with one of her previous program releases.

Artercraft distributes the productions of the world’s most popular stars and directors.
“She is more vital to the success of a motion picture theatre than seats to sit in,” said a commentator about Mary Pickford.

He should have added that where her pictures play there are never enough seats!

Known as “The World’s Sweetheart,” Mary Pickford has been the most potent power for increasing patronage than any other single agency in motion pictures.

Her Artcraft releases include “The Poor Little Rich Girl,” “A Romance of the Redwoods,” “The Little American,” (for early release) and “Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm” (now in course of production).

There will be eight Mary Pickford releases during the coming year.
Douglas Fairbanks

Seven Productions

Douglas Fairbanks proved the greatness of men screen stars. His tireless vitality, teeming with good humor, won instant popularity. His name is synonymous with capacity houses.

His first Artcraft picture was "In Again—Out Again." A good title, since audiences throughout the country came again and again to see him. A typical Fairbanks photoplay, "Wild and Woolly," will be released soon.

Artcraft announces seven of his pictures during the coming year.
George Cohan is the man who made "Broadway" famous—the author and actor who has closely touched the hearts of the great American public and reaped the tremendous benefit of his joyous nature and "drawing power," both for himself and exhibitors showing Artcraft Pictures.

"Broadway Jones" has proved a tremendous attraction from the "box office" point of view and from the standpoint of satisfying and pleasing audiences.

His proved ability and "drawing power" demand all the pictures he can make, but his dramatic engagements only allow time for two great Artcraft Pictures for the year.
ELSI E FERGUSON
Seven Productions

One of the most beautiful and talented actresses in the world.

Since her earliest stage days she has always been a "box office" attraction that could be counted on anywhere in the United States.

Her great dramatic talent and successes, among which are "The First Lady of the Land," "The Strange Woman," "The Outcast," "Margaret Schiller," "Shirley Kaye" and brilliant revivals of the classics, and her position in American theatrical history as the successor of Mary Anderson and Julia Marlowe, demand at least seven Artcraft productions for the coming year.
CECIL B. DeMILLE
Four Productions

Master mind, genius, artist, the personification of directorship and founder of the Lasky School of Motion Picture Art. Master of photographic illusion and a man schooled by David Belasco, Artcraft Pictures Corporation has in Cecil B. De Mille's productions four great attractions.

"Joan the Woman" is still in the minds of all—as an example of the heights to which the motion picture can ascend when in the hands of a master of his art.

Mr. De Mille's four personally directed pictures do not include his two productions in which Geraldine Farrar will star.
Geraldine Farrar

Two Productions

America's most popular prima donna and one of the greatest screen attractions in America to-day.

Her histrionic ability, physical fortitude and courage, placed her in the enviable position of being the one possible living choice for the part of Joan of Arc in the great photoplay, "Joan the Woman," and the only actress who could have accomplished such a masterly piece of work.

Her triumphs in "Carmen," "Maria Rosa," and "Temptation" have made her pictures some of the most desirable attractions obtainable to-day.

Miss Farrar's grand opera engagements limit her pictures to two productions, each to be personally directed by Cecil B. De Mille.
The name of Griffith is a magical one in the motion picture industry. It means super-production, limitless imagination and directorial genius.

The man who conceived "The Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance" will personally direct six shorter, but no less tense, photoplays for release through Artcraft during the coming year.

These pictures will bear his name, a "capacity" mark for any theatre, anywhere.

Mr. Griffith will return soon from the European battle front where, under the auspices of the British War Office, he is recording for all time the greatest struggle of the ages.
Commencing August 5th next, Paramount and Artcraft Pictures Corporations will coordinate their systems of photoplay distribution, and the productions of both companies will be leased to exhibitors along identical lines.

This means that the opportunity to exhibit the great productions and unrivaled stars of Paramount Pictures is open to all exhibitors. Paramount's policy of fairness, cooperation and protection which has won and deserved confidence in the past will be enhanced in the future by a great effort to achieve even a higher degree of service.

On succeeding pages is additional data about the Paramount plan and the stars, old and new—with the number of Paramount Pictures in which each will be starred for the coming year.
The newest and one of the greatest of all Paramount's vast array of stellar attractions is Mme. Petrova.

Her world-wide tours in concert and vaudeville and distinguished theatrical engagements, and her many screen successes in which sheer dramatic power and histrionic force have carried her forward to personal triumphs, have created for her a host of patrons. Her following is one of the largest enjoyed by any screen star, as shown by the "box office."

Her first Paramount Picture has been by long odds her greatest screen triumph to date and its reception betokens great returns for future Petrova triumphs, of which there are eight scheduled for the next year.
This stellar combination has jumped to stardom in a remarkably short time by their ability to portray “youth.” They look it and they act it. They make you and me and the whole American public dream again the dreams of our youth.

Booth Tarkington’s “Seventeen,” Dickens’ “Great Expectations,” and Gene Stratton Porter’s “Freckles” have played to the largest number of “extra days” through the “big towns” of any Paramount Pictures for the same period since release date.

The famous authors and stories helped, but the “drawing power” and ability of these young stars to put their pictures over give exhibitors an opportunity to book eight of them in the next year. The Pickford and Huff pictures are the kind that make your patrons come back for more.
One of the best known character artists appearing on the screen today is George Beban. He stands without peer in character delineations on both stage and screen. Comedy and pathos are intermingled in such pleasing proportions as to make his pictures marvels of dramatic skill.

Since his first motion picture, “The Italian,” followed by “An Alien” and “Pasquale,” his pictures have been unequalled drawing cards in several of the largest cities and very popular the country over.
One of the most charming and versatile actresses, with a long string of stage successes, surmounted by a remarkable screen career, is Fannie Ward.

Best remembered as a comedienne on the stage, it was no wonder to her long list of admirers when she portrayed the leading role in “The School for Husbands,” a light comedy.

Fannie Ward is best known to photoplay patrons, however, as a tragedienne, and no one who saw her play the irresponsible society woman in “The Cheat”—branded by a Jap for selling him out, will ever forget it. This picture started photoplay history, startling the amusement world by giving to the stage its first play from the screen. The success of this picture was largely due to Miss Ward’s dramatic power and her subsequent successes have proved her right to a place with “the greatest drawing cards on earth.” Miss Ward will appear in eight Paramount productions during the coming year.
Unique in the American theatre, Julian Eltinge has won great fame and thousands of followers because he does one thing better than anyone else. As an impersonator of feminine characterizations, he has no equal.

After five years a headliner in high class vaudeville, Mr. Eltinge became a star in musical comedy and his successes, “The Fascinating Widow,” “The Crinoline Girl” and “Cousin Lucy,” have been seen in practically every city of size in America. In New York where his popularity has grown with the years, a theatre—The Eltinge—bears his name.

Paramount anticipates distinctive photoplays with Mr. Eltinge, of which three are announced for the coming year.
Vivian Martin, with her big appealing eyes, her blonde curls and her way of witchery, is one of the big stars of the Paramount Program. There is an illusive charm about her, a sort of mingling of shy youth and mature depth, that has placed her among the most popular artists of the screen. Miss Martin has appeared in "The Stronger Love," "Her Father's Son," "The Wax Model," "The Spirit of Romance," "The Girl at Home," and other photoplays, which have attracted and held public patronage. She will appear in eight productions for Paramount next year.
Wallace Reid is one of the most popular male stars on the screen today, who first attracted attention among screen patrons in "The Birth of a Nation."

When a fitting "Jose" was desired for Géraldine Farrar’s "Carmen" Mr. Reid was selected for the part. Again he appeared with Miss Farrar as Eric Trent, in the great masterpiece "Joan the Woman." His physical prowess quite as much as his perfection of feature has made him steadily advance in popularity, until without question he is one of the biggest stars appearing in Paramount Pictures.

Among his best known Paramount successes are "The Golden Chance," "The Yellow Pawn," "To Have and to Hold," and "The Prison Without Walls." Mr. Reid will star in eight big productions under the new plan.
Little "Ann of the Follies"—one of the brightest stars that twinkle on Broadway, or "The Great Right Way," no matter what the name of the town!

In "Susie Snowflake" the little dancer displayed a sincere, intelligent, gifted power of delineation that made a host of patrons, and proved when "The Rainbow Princess," her next picture, came along—by the number of rebookings and the gross business reported by exhibitors—that there should be at least two of her pictures for the next year.

With the superb quality of Paramount Pictures the variety of subject and appeal of such stars as Ann Pennington makes it a necessity for an exhibitor to book all the Paramount Pictures.
Sessue Hayakawa has brought to the American motion picture the mysterious, the magic and mystic of Japan. No foreign-born actor of a generation has won so many admirers as this brilliant young Japanese, whose interpretations of the problems of the Oriental in Occidental lands has given him a unique place in the motion picture firmament. His wonderful playing in “The Cheat,” “Alien Souls,” “The Soul of Kura-San,” “The Bottle Imp” and “The Jaguar’s Claws” foreshadows brilliant and popular productions, of which he will contribute eight through Paramount to exhibitors during the coming year.
Miss Burke's piquant beauty, her appealing femininity and the gentleness of her impersonations have made her name a household word throughout the land. Miss Burke has attained an enviable position as a screen favorite. She is undeniably America's premier stage comedienne.

Paramount is privileged to announce, by arrangement with F. Ziegfeld, Jr., three of her productions during the ensuing year. The first of these will be "The Mysterious Miss Terry," by Gelett Burgess, followed by a visualization of W. Somerset Maugham's great drama of the Northwest, "The Land of Promise," in which Miss Burke appeared on the dramatic stage. The greatest authors, directors and players will contribute their genius to her new Paramount productions.
No one who witnessed it will ever forget Pauline Frederick's last appearance on the stage in "Joseph and His Brethren." This was the climax of a successful stage career which gave her the enviable position of the leading emotional actress of the day.

At the height of her career Miss Frederick deserted the stage for the screen, where she appeared in the Famous Players' production "The Eternal City." From the beginning she became one of the biggest drawing cards on the Paramount Program. Her artistry has marvelous depth and power, and she has duplicated a brilliant stage triumph on the screen.

Pauline Frederick will appear in eight Paramount Pictures under the new plan.
Long will "Miss George Washington" and "Snow White" live in the minds of exhibitors as direct return boosters.

Each of Miss Clark's pictures seems to "outdraw" her last. The reputation she has built up with the aid of the superb Paramount Pictures and her long chain of successes have absolutely established her future "drawing power" as one of the leaders in that charmed circle of the "sure-fire," "rain or shine," dependable stellar attractions that "crowd" theatres.

With such famous plays as "The Amazons," from which her next picture is adapted, she will have even greater triumphs.
PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES

are the most famous travel pictures ever released, and are fast bringing the people of the United States to realize the truth of Mr. Holmes' famous slogan, "To travel is to possess the world."

The Exhibitor's Salvation:

"The feature picture cannot with any degree of certainty be relied upon for an evening's entertainment for all kinds of people. When such a condition arises the miscellaneous part of the program made up of short and diversified subjects, combined with a superlative musical program, has proven to be our salvation."

Harold Edel, Managing Director Strand Theatre, N. Y. (From Dramatic Mirror)

Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Pictures are sure to please. They are also "drawing cards" since thousands of people have read Burton Holmes' books and seen his lectures advertised for thirty years or more.

Get a few new people every week—and keep them all coming back—and soon you won't have seats enough to hold them.
“FATTY ARBUCKLE”

will make one of his two-reel famous laugh and money makers each month. They are unequaled, good, clean humor, and out and out “house fillers.”

Single Reel Comedies

Victor Moore

has lately been releasing a series of single reel comedies among which are “Flivvering,” “Moving,” “Bungalowing”—probably the best single-reel laugh-makers ever released. Each one of them has been selected from the thousands on the market for the famous Strand Theatre, New York, each week.

Black Diamond Comedies

are the last word in tricks, photographic illusion, and rollicking, riotous, screamingly funny one-reel comedies. In certain localities these pictures have proven the biggest drawing cards among the Paramount short subjects.

Paramount-Bray Pictographs

are the most advanced single reels released. It is a semi-comedy one-reeler, blending entertainment with education in a most palatable style. “The Magazine on the Screen” and the Bray Cartoons make one of the most popular and “best sellers” of the Paramount single reels.

Paramount Pictures

The “Star Series” System combines all the stability of the program plus the advantage of selective open booking.

Particular advantage to the Paramount exhibitor is the elasticity of the plan, whereby he may play the great attractions released through Artcraft without having to pay for the program pictures of the same release date.

He may choose for his patrons the stars he knows by past performances attract the greatest audiences and please the greatest numbers. Through the establishment of the finest service department ever created, Paramount will lend such aid and assistance as never before has been given to the exhibitor. Big and small—all will benefit. From national advertising to local circularization, the hand of cooperation will be untiring in the service of the Paramount exhibitor.

Goldwyn’s Exhibitor Policy

The policy of Goldwyn is one of sanity and cleanliness; of honor and dignity. It is a policy under which the Goldwyn organization and all exhibitors will meet as business men.

With this policy we feel sure all exhibitors will come to regard Goldwyn, from the start, as “the company that keeps its promises.”

Goldwyn proposes to eliminate much of the red tape of the picture industry; to remove many of the sources of irritation that exhibitors have heretofore encountered.

This should make all exhibitors feel that here, at last, is an organization that wishes to feel it is in actual partnership with the men who show Goldwyn Pictures to the public.

May we ask you to wait until our branch managers and other representatives in all sections of the country call on you before you decide upon any plans or contracts involving the future and the prosperity of your theatre?
Goldwyn Is Not Building On Sand

The rock bottom foundation of all Goldwyn Pictures will be the stories we purchase for production. We do not fear to tell exhibitors that Goldwyn ranks the story itself as the first essential.

Next, and of equal importance, is the manner of its production. A hundred skilled factors are contributing their talents and genius to every Goldwyn Picture.

The powerful personality of a popular star in every picture is Goldwyn's third element.

Goldwyn has not trusted to any one element to make its productions successful. We have combined three elements into one. By doing this Goldwyn utilizes every ounce of star values without placing exhibitors at the mercy of stars.

That sane critic, Mr. Hector Fuller, of Indianapolis, had uncanny foresight when, as long ago as last December, he wrote of Goldwyn as “the picture company with brains.”

“WRATH OF LOVE”

The Cast
Roma Winet......Virginia Pearson
Ethel Clark.............Louise Bate
Bob Lawson......Irving Cummings
Mrs. Lawmon......Nellie Statter
Dave Blake.........Frank Glendon
Caddy.............John McCann

Story by Mary Murillo

A splendid story of love and jealousy in which intrigues by international spies furnish the complications, makes "Wrath of Love," Virginia Pearson's newest production, of timely interest. This is the plot of Miss Pearson's coming release:

Roma Winet suffers from passionate jealousy but lives happily with Bob Lawson, whom she has just married. When war comes, she grows violently jealous of Ethel Clark, who has been left in Bob's care by Dave Blake, his chum. Dave has left to enter his country's service. When he returns on a furlough, he goes to the home of Bob's mother, where Ethel is staying.

While Dave is there, Bob joins them. He warns Dave that spies are following him. Just after Dave flees, Roma chances by and her finding Bob and Ethel together drives her frantic. Jealousy at subsequent events makes life almost unbearable for her. She sees Bob go on mysterious missions to the rear of his estate where Dave is hiding; then she sees Ethel go there. Roma does not know the girl is carrying important papers, and she upbraids Bob for his apparent attentions toward Ethel.

Roma persists in misunderstanding the motives of her husband until a hard battle with the spies in which Dave and Bob are successful, clears away the difficulties, and she realizes how unjust she has been. The woman is freed at last from her one besetting fault.

NEW KIDDIE FEATURE

Another marvelous picturization of a great story has been practically completed in William Fox's studios at Hollywood, Calif. Telegraphic advice from the coast are enthusiastic over this new product for the Fox Kiddie Features. C. M. and S. A. Franklin, undoubtedly the most capable child directors in the world, were in charge of the cinema and they have made a masterpiece.

The perfume Theda Bara uses in aiding her portrayal of Cleopatra in William Fox's coming release was made for her by Anne Haviland, famous psychic perfumist, from a 2,000-year-old formula. The fragrance is so strong that it would not be strange if it were detected on the screen when the pictures are shown.

There's not a dull moment in the entire five reels of "Some Boy!" George Walsh's newest production. The picture opens with a laugh and it ripples along in smiles. It closes with a hearty chuckle. Doris Pown, one of the prettiest girls in pictures, again appears opposite "Smiling George." The others in the company are known widely among film fans.

“SIX CYLINDER LOVE”

"Six Cylinder Love," the current Fox film comedy release, is two reels of jollification, two reels cheek-full of chuckles. Tom Mix, the world's champion cowboy, is featured in this laughbringer. Mr. Mix also directed it. This new comedy's release was delayed for a short time while a sufficiently large adding machine to count the laughs was installed. "Six Cylinder Love," is a fast riding, twin-six comedy in every way.

BARA HAS TRIUMPHAL TRIP

Famous Fox Artiste in Los Angeles This Week

Theda Bara's transcontinental journey to the William Fox studios in Hollywood, Calif., continues to be a real triumphal trip. When Miss Bara left New York on the Twentieth Century for Chicago, her private car was filled with flowers from admirers.

At Chicago, the world-famous William Fox artiste received a tremendous ovation. Miss Bara then proceeded to Kansas City, Mo., for a brief stop-over. Although her train arrived there at 8:45 a.m., the depot was thronged by crowds waiting to catch a glimpse of the world's best-known actress.

It is expected that Miss Bara will be at Los Angeles early this week. The Fox studios in Hollywood, Calif., have been put in gala dress in the star's honor.
An electro of this series of Pearson pictures will be supplied free to any Fox exhibitor upon request.

WALSH A PRESS AGENT

George Walsh, the effervescent William Fox star, has immortalized the down-trodden press agent for the silent stage. George’s peppery impersonation in "Some Boy!" is so "wild and wooly" that he has to disguise himself as a woman to overcome the effects of one of the stories he sends out. The plot moves with the rapidity characteristic of all of George’s features.

Motion Picture News

James Oliver Curwood's virile story of the Canadian Northwest has been given a magnificent setting by the producers. Several times was the invitation audience at the Broadway theatre moved to applause by the transplendent beauty of the scenes. In all respects "Her Fighting Chance" is a picture the likes of which are seldom seen. The story has one long, powerful vein of suspense. Technically, the scenes have been so arranged that the utmost has been gotten from this valuable property. Certain incidents are withheld from the audience just long enough, and when finally they are flashed across the screen their effect is thrilling, to say the least.

Morning Telegraph

This story of love and revenge in the North country is an intensely interesting feature, a thrilling and inspiring production. Acting, story and setting are superb and the film ranks among the most artistic and entertaining features ever produced. A novel double exposure introduces Jane Grey as herself and in character, and from the opening scene there is interest and action in the film and suspense held throughout. The wonderful Arctic country has been vividly pictured, and yet film footage is not taken up for the sake of scenery alone. The background of every scene is picturesque, and every scene a vital part of the story.

The Dramatic Mirror said: "Frank Hall should have no trouble whatever disposing of the rights in every territory. That makes it:

Unani

Controlled by Frank Hall Productions, Inc.
Three very important points that constitute a thoroughly entertaining photoplay are embodied in this production, namely, an interesting and consistent story, splendid photography and a high water mark in productive perfection. The locale is laid in the Northwest, which affords ample opportunity for some very realistic snow scenes, and in this respect not one point of value has been overlooked by the director that would in any way add to the thorough convincing atmosphere and realism that the photoplay undoubtedly contains.

"Her Fighting Chance" is an entertainment of value and one worthy of the exhibitor's attention. It lacks all sex elements and avoids the melodramatic, but sticks closely to consistency, making it all in all a production of merit.

New York Star

Edwin Carewe, under whose direction this film was produced, has seldom done anything better. In fact, all the way through, direction and photography stand out preeminently.

Jane Grey, for once in her life, has been properly cast, and her support, who include Thos. Holding, Percy G. Standing, Edwin Porter, Fred Jones and Wm. Cohill, capable artists, help the general morale of the picture. The story, an out-of-doors tale, will appeal to both old and young, and is quite refreshing in spots. The titles, toning and tinting are all that could be desired. "Her Fighting Chance" ought to be a corking State Rights seller.

Viewed purely on its dramatic side, the picture is an excellent example of what can be accomplished on the screen with a good story and a competent star and cast in the hands of a thoroughly capable director. The picture gets over on the strength of story and manner of presentation without resorting to the spectacular. The characters are well selected both as to type and ability. This also holds good of the minor characters, who furnish convincing "atmosphere" to Mr. Curwood’s virile story of the North woods. The novel is full of plot-action and permits of many tense situations, all of which have been retained in the film.

Released June 4th
FOR the summer months, when business ordinarily suffers a slump, Mutual Film Corporation offers exhibitors an unusual lot of five and six reel Mutual—"Big Stars Only"—Pictures. Exhibitors should plan to make their summer business their season of biggest profit taking. The announcement that Mutual Pictures starring such popular favorites as Mary Miles Minter, Nancy O'Neil, Gail Kane, Marjorie Rambeau and others of like name are on the screen at any theatre should pull capacity houses.

All Quality Productions.

Repeat Bookings

Prove Profitable

Exhibitors more and more are coming to realize the value of the repeat bookings. Practically every theatre that has played a return date on any of the "Big Stars Only" series of Mutual Pictures, has done an even bigger business on the second showing than when the production was first presented. Pick out your Mutual star most fitting your patrons. The nearest Mutual Exchange will be able to arrange repeat bookings for you. The second showing will reap a golden harvest from the seeds planted by the advertising on the first presentation.
ONE million, two hundred and ninety-five thousand dollars—($1,295,000.00)—has been invested in the Mutual Film Corporation’s Summer offerings listed below. This is an example of our faith in the coming Summer business. You need big stars in big attractions for big Summer business. Look this list over. These feature productions in five and six reels each—together with handsome posters, serviceable press sheets, cuts and all other accessories—are available now at your nearest Mutual Exchange.

IN

"PERIWINKLE"

A story with an intense heart appeal.
Fresh as a breeze from the ocean itself.
In five acts. Directed by James Kirkwood. Released the week of June 11th.

"On Wednesday evening Mary Miles Minter, at the new T. & D. Theatre, 11th & Broadway, Oakland, California, America's largest and finest picture palace, was welcomed by over 4,000 people. Miss Minter received an ovation seldom accredited to a star of the screen, for the people could not resist the sweet and appealing beauty and the unconscious charm of this little girl," says the Dramatic Mirror.

You can pack YOUR theatre with Mary Miles Minter—Mutual Pictures. Now available at all Mutual Exchanges are the following Minter five reel productions:—"Youth's Endearing Charm," "Dulcie's Adventure," "Faith," "A Dream or Two Ago," "The Innocence of Lizette," "The Gentle Intruder," "Environment," "Annie-For-Spite" and "Periwinkle." GEORGE OVEY

"Another of George Ovey's amusing comedies that will more than cement the good feelings already existing between Jerry and any audience before which he has made his debut. This reel is brimful of harmless, laughable incidents, which are bound to insure for it a hearty reception anywhere."

This can truthfully be said of all Cub Comedies, for they are consistently good. If you are looking for such subjects and are not already running Cub Comedies begin now. Your audience will like them and they will help your business. Book the next subject:

The most enthralling photo drama of to-day

HATE

By J. Walter Meade

A thrilling dramatic story based on the theme of pre-natal influence.

A question that has been perplexing the medical scientists and sociologists of the world.

A story crowded with big vital thoughts that hit hard and ring with truth.

Seven parts of stirring drama, interwoven with a charming love story and a mother's self-sacrifice for her boy, whom fate had made a victim of the heritage of hate.

Splendidly produced and acted by a notable cast.

Directed by Walter Richard Stahl

THANHOUSER PERFECTION AND PATHE PUBLICITY ARE IRRESISTIBLE!
By the Critic of the NEW YORK TRIBUNE:

"The Strand chose Benjamin Chapin to present the whole pictorial programme. It is divided into four distinct stories, 'My Mother,' 'My Father,' 'Myself,' 'The Call to Arms.' The most sweetly tender of these is 'My Mother,' where Mr. Chapin plays Tom Lincoln, the father of the President. It seems incredible that the father and the son were played by the same actor, for as Tom Lincoln Mr. Chapin has managed to suggest a character quite different from that of Abraham Lincoln. Even physically he seems totally different, but this is art. Mr. Chapin has gathered together a splendid cast."

By the Critic of the NEW YORK AMERICAN:

"The 'Lincoln Cycle' is something more and higher than a picture-play. It is at once an inspiring appeal to the patriotism of the nation, a page from history red-lettered with great things, and a public document of inestimable value."

By the Critic of the NEW YORK GLOBE:

"The faithful portrayals by Benjamin Chapin which are thrown on the screen at the Strand give the audience many glimpses of the purposes, the struggles, the aspirations, and anxieties, and open, so to speak, the window of Lincoln's great soul."

By the Critic of the NEW YORK EVENING SUN:

"The 'Lincoln Cycle' justifies the moving picture. It is by all odds the most sincere and most uplifting feature picture ever seen at the Strand, or at any other theatre, for that matter. Benjamin Chapin and the other players lived their parts like real human beings."

By the Critic of the N. Y. EVENING TELEGRAM:

"The 'Lincoln Cycle' is a big epic film. Here is shown a life history, with its comedy and tragedy, its struggles and failures, and its mighty triumph, so graphically portrayed that the audience is held spellbound."

ENDORSED BY EVERY N.Y. CRITIC

By the Critic of the NEW YORK SUN:

"Benjamin Chapin is said to have devoted five years to the finishing of the 'Lincoln Cycle,' shown at the Strand yesterday, or longer than it took the great emancipator to settle the Civil War. The verdict of an impartial judgment is that both endeavors were worth the total elapsed time. Chapin has welded various incidents of the martyred President's life into a coherent, dramatic story."

By the Critic of the NEW YORK TIMES:

"Patrons of the Strand should be condemned to seeing trashy modern photoplays all the rest of their days if they do not flock to see the 'Lincoln Cycle.' The pictures, made by Benjamin Chapin, are replete with episodes, humorous, and full of pathos, of the humble life of the Lincolns."

By the Critic of the NEW YORK JOURNAL (ZIT):

"There have been war pictures, sex pictures, melodramatic pictures, educational pictures, religious pictures—pictures that cost a million—pictures whose directors get more than the picture earns, but it has remained for Benjamin Chapin to give to the world a picture that will go down in history as positively the most artistic, most educational and most beautifully acted. Every theatre in the United States is going to play this picture. Thank goodness there is a picture being presented that hasn't any lovesick, mushy stuff, or a villain running around to stab another man in the back, and the hero jumping out and saving the girl. This is a picture that will go down in history as a tribute to the motion-picture camera, and if the managers and Benjamin Chapin don't make a million, they have the honor of presenting to the public an artistically finished piece of work, which in later years, when we are all dead and gone, will stand out when others have been put to sleep and buried. Be a volunteer and see the 'Lincoln Cycle.' Don't wait until Draft Day, for you may be ordered to see it."

as John Webster in "AMAN'S MAN," by Peter B. Kyne, whose "Cappy Ricks" stories jumped the circulation of The Saturday Evening Post by a quarter of a million—Oscar Apfel, another famous man, is directing the play.
THE motion picture exhibitor today is just as legitimate a mercantile as the local druggist or the corner grocer. He is entitled to exactly the same protection. Neither the druggist nor the grocer will promote the sale of any line of goods that is likely to be taken from him at any time. WHY SHOULD THE MOVING PICTURE MAN?

A LL experience in merchandising teaches that “Restricted Territory” and “Exclusive Sales Rights” are the greatest incentives to full co-operation by the retailer. The exhibitor is nothing more or less than a film merchant—a caterer in entertainment to the people in his community. Why should he spend his money making popular a certain program or line of productions that may be taken from him on a few days notice—or without notice at all—and turned over to a competitor?

UNDER the Paralta Plan an exhibitor owns and controls Paralta Plays in his own exhibiting territory for twelve months, with the privilege of cancellation on any two-productions notice. He can cancel but Paralta Plays cannot. He absolutely owns and controls them for twelve months. He has the satisfaction of knowing that he is working for himself from the moment he secures a Paralta Exhibiting Franchise. A Paralta exhibitor, working under a Paralta Exhibiting Franchise, “saves money and makes money the same day.”

NEW YORK THEATRES ABLAZE WITH LIGHTS ON "THE TRUFFLERS"

"'The Trufflers,' Samuel Merwin's beautiful story of Bohemian life in the city's Latin quarter, published in the Cosmopolitan Magazine, attracted great crowds at theatres throughout the city," says the New York American. "It was a wonderful success at its premier in the great chain of B. S. Moss playhouses. Nell Craig imparts a reality to the photoplay that will live long."

The Motion Picture Reporting Service says: "'The Saint's Adventure' is a drama of human interest, featuring Henry B. Walthall and Mary Charleson. Typical Walthall production, very well acted and story very well told. It will hold interest all through and go over good. Photography and settings good. Rated 90."

"'Skinner's Bubble,' a comedy-drama featuring Bryant Washburn and Hazel Daly. Equally as good as 'Skinner's Dress Suit.' CLEAN, WHOLE-SOME, ABSORBING and very PLEASING all through. Good plot. Will go over good with any audience. Acting, photography and settings very good. Rated 95."

Lee L. Goldberg, manager of the Strand Theatre, Louisville, Ky., says: "I desire to enroll myself with the great and ever increasing army of exhibitors who have pronounced 'Skinner's Dress Suit' the greatest attraction of the time. We also wish to place 'The Truant Soul' and 'Little Shoes' in the par excellence class."

Washington Wants Facts

As the week ends it is apparent that the industry has passed the first trenches of the gravest crisis in its history.

Last week a double war tax which would have annihilated the industry as certainly as certainty itself. The tax proposed by the Ways and Means Committee was an out and out confiscatory one. It was perhaps the most unjust and unscientific item of a bill which would have paralyzed business in general. Had it become a law its utter impossibility would have undoubtedly caused its repeal—sooner or later.

Today a bright light shines from Washington. The Finance Committee of the Senate has lifted the film foot-age tax, and exempted from taxation all admissions up to 25 cents.

The industry is breathing easily again; and there probably isn't a man who by this time has failed to appreciate fully the gravity of the situation which at least has been partially passed.

We wish to call particular attention to two phases of the situation.

In the first place the industry owes considerable gratitude to the men who have labored so hard in the behalf of all. It is fully evident that some very intelligent and forceful work has been done—for the entire industry.

Several factors, individual and otherwise, deserve much credit. But we believe that a full measure of such credit should be given to the National Association of the industry, its President, Special Committee and those members who helped.

We trust that the industry appreciates this work. It ought to. And it ought to evidence that appreciation by its immediate and continued support of the National Association.

This body stands for the organization of this industry. It represents all its branches. It works for the perpetuation of the industry. And it is only through such an organization that the threatened confiscation of the business can be met and successfully passed.

This means—business or a job and want its very existence made reasonably certain.

Do you belong to the National Association and do you contribute your due share to it? This doesn't mean money alone; it means your interest; it means your work.

The second phase is self-evident, but it cannot be over emphasized. It is this: see not by any means out of the woods.

From the Senate Finance Committee the bill goes to the floor of the Senate. From the Senate it goes, before final passage, to the Conference Committee of the Senate and House. A sharp fight is probable.

We need more effort; but the effort must continue to be united and intelligent.

This is simply a campaign of facts. Lobbying and ballyhooing are as inadvisable as unnecessary.

The double tax proposal is positively confiscatory. Let us show why—by plain statements of the present earnings and conditions of the business.

The ten percent admission cannot be collected at motion picture theatres in this country without killing the bulk of the picture theatre business. Show why—with figures on the present earnings and losses of picture theatres, their over-competition, the difficulty of collecting penny taxes, the history of admission tax in Canada and Australia.

A tax on motion pictures is distinctly a poor man's tax. The government does not want to haunt the poor man's face, nor lay the burden heavily upon his shoulders. The motion picture is his newspaper and magazine.

And finally let us—candidly and intelligently—explain away the million dollar salary bugaboo; let us put it in its right place, so far as the motion picture is concerned. Let us erase the buncombe of the business—strip it from the surface of the industry which, through our publicity, has been so literally plastered with it.

Let us maintain the excellent attitude so far observed; that the industry is patriotic, that it wants to do its full share and more; but in return we ask only the right to exist and keep our business doors open.

There is no reason for any division within the industry. Any tax proposed—save only a net profits tax which no one can object to, if reasonable—is a box-office tax. Whatever branch of the industry it is laid up to, it will have to be paid at the box-office window. We are fighting for the perpetuation of the box-office.

And finally, the right is on our side. Washington wants facts—to guide equitable legislation. Let us give them—from a united industry.

Attend Your State Convention

EXHIBITORS in the following States should bear in mind the State League conventions to be held, and make every effort to be present: Maine—at Bangor, June 7th; Michigan—at Grand Rapids, June 12th-13th; Iowa—at Des Moines, June 12th; North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia—at Wrightsville Beach, N. C.—June 14th-15th; Tennessee—at Memphis, June 19th-20th; Pennsylvania—at Philadelphia, June 25th-27th; Louisiana—at New Orleans, July 4th; Texas—at Galveston, July 9th-10th.

The big war tax may be escaped; but also there may be others. Organize if you want to save your business. Vote for uninstructed delegates to Chicago, and eliminate politics from the National League. Attend your State Convention. And go to Chicago yourself. This is organization year!

Pictures and Pepsin Gum

"MOTION picture films, jewelry and chewing gum!" Thus read the reports in all the New York newspapers respecting the recent action at Washington on the war Revenue bill.

This grouping may be a mere coincidence. But we have an idea that many a congressional mind considers motion pictures in just such a scrapbag of luxury and amusement knock-knocks. They fit in somewhere between a diamond necklace (this being a sub-conscious reflection of our million dollar salaries) and a five-cent package of gum or crackerjack.

The motion picture is the fifth estate. The motion picture business is the publishing business. The publicity power of the motion picture is greater in many respects than that of the press.

We—or many of us—know these facts. But we haven't told the public or the law-making bodies about these. In fact in all the mass of publicity on the motion picture presented to the public in the form of magazine articles, newspaper stories, scandal items and stock-jobbing literature very few of the real facts, if any, have been registered.

Next to complete organization the thing we need most this year is an educational campaign through the public press. Attend Your State Convention.

A Word for the Manager

"The manager of an exchange," writes a correspondent, "is a most important factor, yet he gets less consideration than any individual in this industry."

This, we are bound to admit, is often near the truth. The exchange manager is generally only the mouthpiece of the home office. His hands are tied; yet he is held responsible for the success of his office. His compensation is often less than that of his salesmen who have their expenses supplied; and the constant uncertainty of his position increases his living expenses.

He is too often the innocent victim of home office politics.

Good exchange managers are scarce; their cultivation ought to pay.

Where is Coxey?

TO the producers of state rights pictures who stop advertising them the moment the middleman buys, we suggest the following excerpt from the American Magazine:

"Twenty-one years ago Coxey's Army marched to Washington. All the papers were full of it. Mention Coxey to anybody over thirty-five years old and see the understanding in his face. Know Coxey and his blooming army? Well, I should say so! Now try Coxey on men and women in the twenties. It will open your eyes. Coxey? Who the blazes is Coxey? Looks of confusion and ignorance.

"Coxey, you see, quit advertising. That is, the Coxey publicity ceased. And the world has filled up with people who never heard of him. Millions and millions of them. That is the way with some advertisers. They speak up a few times and then go back to their factories. There, by George, we've told 'em! And, first you know, the world is peopled with new bosses, new buyers and new housekeepers who never heard of you."

The New Film Capital

NEW YORK, because of the war, has become the film capital of the world. That has a very significant sound. Yet it may mean very little.

Success in a foreign market means controlling that market.

The foreign market is in the same hands as before. After the war, if American producers don't show more enthusiasm than is manifested now, the world film capital will shift back to London.

It cannot move back if the foreign market learns to demand American films.

You as a producer—what are you going to do about it?

Conspicuous by its Absence

R. A. ROWLAND, in a recent announcement, says:

"In the Metro productions the sex picture will be conspicuous by its absence."

We hope that the entire industry can say this very shortly; and we believe furthermore that the Chicago convention will have something sharp and definite to say upon the subject, binding the industry to united action. The convention will fail of its most immediate duty if it does not take this action.

"Conspicuous by its absence" will then apply also to attempted censorship legislation.

Lincoln Made Real

BENJAMIN CHAPIN, in his Lincoln Cycle Pictures, has made a notable contribution to the fame of the motion picture. They stand for what the motion picture will eventually and pre-eminently stand for, namely, clean, heart-interest, instructional entertainment for one and all, presented in a manner beyond the power and scope of any other medium of expression.

Senate Committee Kills Tax on “Poor Man’s Theatre”

THE Poor Man’s theatre, if the latest amendment attached to the tax measure by the Senate Finance Committee goes into effect, will be exempt from tax. This decision, according to J. D. Williams, has been effected by the joint action of the members of the First National Exhibitors Circuit.

When the Ways and Means Committee put the bill through, Mr. Williams got busy with the typewriter. Every member promptly had the wires working to Washington, getting in touch with Senators who were personal friends.

As a tangible result, the Senate Finance Committee came to this important conclusion:

“Don’t burden the poor man’s theatre!”

The Senate Committee decided by a 7 to 6 vote to adopt the amendment of Senator Hole Smith of Georgia, exempting from tax those theatres which charge twenty-five cents or admission or less. It is said, that the entire committee is firmly opposed to taxing the “poor man’s amusement.”

Various tentative plans were proposed and voted down before the “twenty-five cent and under” amendment went through. The suggestion to tax all theatres charging five cents and over was killed.

The next proposal was to tax all theatres charging admissions of ten cents and under, and this went down to defeat also.

Then Senator Hoke Smith took the floor and in his characteristic way introduced the plan to “let the poor man off easy.” He wound up with the suggestion that all admissions under twenty-six cents be tax-free.

The next proposal was to tax all theatres charging admissions of ten cents and under, and this went down to defeat also.

Under the Smith amendment, theatres not showing films are not exempt. That is to say, a vaudeville theatre with admissions of twenty-five cents and over would be taxed.

In the last minute activity which is believed to have caused the favorable action is specifically laid at the door of Percy Wells, H. B. Varner and A. F. Sams, president, secretary and general counsel, respectively, of the National League of North Carolina, and the film interests of Philadelphia.

Picture men are giving a major share of credit to Secretary H. B. Varner, Lexington, N. C., who brought various members of the committee in accord with his proposition in the face of stern opposition.

Expelled League Members Form New Chicago Body

Frank and Choyinski, Ousted from Have Sixty-one Legitimate Theatre Owners’ League, Declare They

A NEW association of motion picture exhibitors for Chicago is already well on its way to formation. It is to be a rival organization of the Chicago Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League, which is now the recognized branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League of America.

The launching of the plans to organize the new league is the result of the internal disturbances that has shaken and threatened the Chicago League for the past six months and which came to a climax a fortnight ago when their Senator, Frank, former national exposition manager, Maurice Choyinski, Henry Schoenstadt and Adolph Powell were expelled from the Chicago body by a vote at a special meeting.

Leading with their efforts in the organizing of the new Chicago league are Frank and Choyinski. They claim that sixty bona-fide theatre owners of Chicago have already assented to aligning themselves with the new organization. It is to be called the Chicago Motion Picture Theatre Owners’ Association, and one of the first and most stringent rules for membership in the new body is that each one must be a bona-fide theatre owner or manager.

“Those are the words as they came from the mouth of J. D. Williams, and they leave no loopholes. They will appeal force-fully to the legislator.”

“They must not give him cause to rebel. In other words, such as this, you must ‘humor’ the mob.”

The Hoyt Company, operating some of the largest theatres in Australia, have sent a man over here to buy films, because when he tried paying the ticket tax himself, the exchanges cut off his films.

“Another of the arguments we put to the Congressmen is that collecting the tax, by tickets, means a tremendous expense to the Government. Moreover, I defy any one to show me how the Government can raise as much as $15,000,000 by it.”

Hays Williams, “Tell Your Congressman the Truth”—Advances a Bullet-Proof Argument

The bulk of the population of the nation, in flouting this war tax in his face every time he goes to the theatre, he is apt soon to rebel. You must not give him cause to rebel. In other words, such as this, you must ‘humor’ the mob.”

“Let me tell you that it has hurt business in Australia and, if it goes through, it is simply going to raise the devil with American exhibitors. That’s putting it pretty strong, but it’s true.”

Germany Grasping Control of Switzerland's Film Business

Frederick Burlingham, of Burlingham Films, Switzerland, Says Germany Is Throttling American Films

Among many interesting points brought out in a letter to Motion Picture News from Frederick Burlingham, of the Burlingham Films, Switzerland, is the information that Germany is creeping into that country and is attempting to get a strangle hold on the film business. Now is the time for American producers to get busy, enter Switzerland, and have the market for their pictures.

Mr. Burlingham’s letter follows:

"There is a loud cry over here for American films.

"The better class of them are clean human documents, full of ideals and original treatment, and people like the fresh air about them and their universal, democratic appeal.

"Cinemas are surfeited with films now, dramas, western mysteries, and what happens to the marquis and his mistress and the abandoned wife who has no more originality than to blow out her brains. What people want to see on the screen is not denounced, but the screen is. They have seen enough already—but real men and women bringing the message of eternal hope, and human failures with the courage to start fresh again. After the war, literally, nothing will have to begin life all over again—men with broken hearts—and the screen should play a part in this vast reconstruction. America, virtually untouched by the war, has this great opportunity.

"Europe just now is in need of films of crime, immorality and lurid sensation produced by firms probably hard pressed and looking for quick, easy money. It is up to America to prove that such films in that country are not made. My advice is that Switzerland, Holland, Scandinavia and the like have been selling them in Europe and have been selling them so well that the Swiss, who don’t like to spend money, have been kicking themselves ever since.

"The principal reason why Americans are now in the soup is because they turned over to the British all their foreign business. It is to the British credit that they worked hard and conscientiously to popularize American films in England and succeeded in building up a thriving business. Then came the war and the violent attacks by the powerful Northcliffe press on American films and overnight this vast industry was killed by the British Government for reasons best known to itself. British firms and independents both invested many thousands in London offices and printing plants, and both are now in the same pickle.

"Formerly free trade London was the clearing house for films which were re-exported haphazard from London all over the world. Now that both imports and exports have been virtually stopped by the British Government, it is evident at present that Americans don’t know where they are at. My advice is that America is not to be expected that they should do a rattling trade with American ones. The Britisher is a fine fellow when you know him, but when you go up to doing business on the continent he puts his foot in the pie. British and continental methods are entirely different. I have known British firms, with positives too badly printed to sell, to send them out as samples, which is one way of getting rid of duds. And I find that many exhibitors sent to Paris with French titles which the French could not read. The French, being used to the perfect printing of Gaumont and Pathé, insist on impeccable work, and La France wants good colors in tinting and toning while London is not overparticular about anything. The main reason, however, why British agents have failed on the continent is that they want their penny a foot, or 2 cents, for selling, whereas the big American houses are interested in distribution. Nevertheless the continental market, where American films are conspicuous by the absence, is twice as big as that of London.

"Just now, owing to the war, people are living on their nerves, and to relieve the strain and forget for a moment are crowding the moving pictures. Owing to the shortages, which threatens to become a famine, films many years old are being put out again as new on the market, and I understand the situation. Old Keystone, Ford Sterling, Hazards of Helen, and even poor old John Bunny have reappeared. In Switzerland they don’t know he is dead.

"The closing of the British import and export market, however, does not altogether explain the absence of American films. The British cannot sell their own films on the continent, so it is not to be expected that they should do a rattling trade with American ones. The Britisher is a fine fellow when you know him, but when you go up to doing business on the continent he puts his foot in the pie. British and continental methods are entirely different. I have known British firms, with positives too badly printed to sell, to send them out as samples, which is one way of getting rid of duds. Old Keystone, Ford Sterling, Hazards of Helen, and even poor old John Bunny have reappeared. In Switzerland they don’t know he is dead.

"What the people want, however, is America’s newest and best, and, in spite of the shipping restrictions, which are great, it is America’s opportunity, and if the moment may not be one for realizing fortunes, it is the time..."
Capital of Film World Shifts from London to New York

FOREIGN BUYERS TRANSPLANT ACTIVITIES TO NEW YORK—EXODUS MAKES NEW YORK "FILM CAPITAL OF THE WORLD"—PROTEST IS MADE AT WAY AMERICAN PRODUCERS MISUNDERSTAND FOREIGN MARKET

"NOW is the time for American film men to jump in and corner the market of the world. We are doing huge business in London any more; war conditions have become more and more oppressive, and the opportunities for securing films and disposing of them are so much better when conducted in America, that we have simply been compelled to transplant our offices to New York."

That is a summary of the statements made to Motion Picture News last week by prominent foreign film men when questioned regarding the astounding way in which London, as a film center, is being deserted for New York City.

New York has slowly become the capital of the film world. Films that were formerly shipped to the Orient by way of London now are routed via San Francisco from New York.

Within the past few months no less than a dozen firms have transplanted their activities from "film row," London, to Times Square, New York.

Among these concerns are Australasian Films, Ltd., controlling a powerful circuit of theaters in Australia; John Olsen & Co., the largest handlers of films for Scandinavia, Frank Brockless, of the South African Film Trust. There are many South American buyers now operating exclusively in New York. In this connection it is interesting to note that at one time South America would not tolerate American films. A friendly feeling in that section is responsible for the change.

The only markets now fairly healthy in Europe are Scandinavia and Holland, according to John Olsen, who has just removed his office from London to New York.

Olsen & Co., of Copenhagen and London, represent three of the largest renting concerns in Sweden, Norway and Denmark, including Fotorama, the Swedish Biograph and the Scandinavian Film Central.

Messrs. Olsen & Co. are exclusive buyers for the Scandinavian firms mentioned and will be in the American market from now on for the right to current film productions. John Olsen, the head of the firm, arrived last week, accompanied by O. Hemborg of the Swedish Biograph, and Ernest Mattson, who has been their London representative. The latter will remain in this country and will have charge of the American offices in the Times Building.

"All of the belligerent countries are taking a rather hostile attitude towards films," said Mr. Olsen to Motion Picture News. "They class them as luxuries, and Europe is in no mood now for luxuries.

"We can't ship into Russia, because it is against the law to send money out of the country in payment for luxuries. Spain is a poor market. Italy makes it very difficult to get film from England to Holland," said Mr. Olsen. "American films are in demand, but few of them are in circulation. The prices are too high, due to the fact that the films pass through so many hands. The only way to get hold of pictures is through the agent of the foreign firm."

"That producer immediately wanted to charge me a price based on the population. He did not understand ... The main fact is this: The Scandinavians are farmers, few of them living in the cities. The fifth largest city in Scandinavia has a population of 200,000. Compare that with your fifth city!

"The foreign markets, is a plum for American producers; but it is not a gold mine. Their rich field is the United States. Outside the boundaries of the United States should be considered as a sort of by-product."

Mr. P. Bishop, who is in close touch with Holland film conditions, told a Motion Picture News reporter that after the war Germany will have a strangle hold on the Holland market if American producers don't wake up and get there ahead of them with a supply of pictures.

"Holland has been relying upon England in the past, but it is now impossible to get film from England to Holland," said Mr. Bishop.

"American films are in demand, but few of them are in circulation. The prices are too high, due to the fact that the films pass through so many hands. The only way to get hold of pictures is through the agent of the foreign firm."

"Why, the Imperial Government gives film producers the run of the Kaiser's palace and of all the buildings of the no-American producers have neglected a fine opportunity in the Orient," said Mr. Howells. "Picture theatres are sprouting up like mushrooms."

The Hoyt Company, of Australia, has established a New York office for the purpose of buying films. Heretofore all of their buying has been done through London agents.

The Moss Motion Picture Corporation announces that Crossas and Company, of San Juan, Porto Rico, and Max Gluckman, man of Buenos Ayres, closed a deal whereby the Moss Producing Company received the exclusive rights for Porto Rico, Cuba, San Domingo and Venezuela (Crossas and Company); Uruguay, Paraguay, Chile and the Argentine (Max Gluckman).
Federal Buys Output of United Film Service

IT was learned last week that Edward Schwartz, president of the Federal Feature Film Company, had consummated a deal with the United Film Service of New York whereby he had secured the rights to that company's productions.

Why such important news was not made public to the trade before this was explained by General Manager Nat Nathan- son of the Federal in an interview.

"We planned to surprise the exhibitor," said Nathan- son, "but since some of them already know of the news, we may as well let all know now.

"The deal went through last week, and involved thousands of dollars, but we think that we got the best of the bargain. This taking over of the United Service exchanges should concern every wide-awake exhibitor in New York.

"We will now be able to send out a staff of salesmen to establish distributed to buyers.

Admission Increase Will Be Fatal to Exhibitor
Lower Production and Distribution Problems, Says Herman Fichtenberg

HERMAN FITCHENBERG, New Orleans exhibitor, and father of the Paralta plan of distribution, last week came out strongly against any proposition to increase prices of admission to moving picture theatres at this time beyond covering any per capta admission tax the Government may impose.

"To advocate any increase in prices of admission now, when the cost of living is so high and likely to go higher, is a bad proposition," said the big exhibitor, "especially when there is no actual necessity for it beyond providing to keep the barrier of a per capita tax on attendance off the now overloaded small exhibitor, should the Government require payment of such a tax.

"Instead of advocating increase in prices of admission, producers will do well to find a way to decrease rental charges to exhibitors.

"The exhibitor has a right to live as well as the producer and many producers may have cause to regret in time to come that they did not give more thought to keeping the little things and Fifth Avenue theatres alive. This is the real velvet of the producing interests. Unfortunately the number of picture theatres in this class showing a profit is very small indeed.

"These theorems in community propositions, most of them; and to raise prices of admission at this time would mean an appreciable falling off in attendance. I believe that if the Government adds a per capita admission tax, the people will pay it in addition to the present prices of admission without a grumble as a contribution to the cost of the war, but they will not stand to pay fifteen cents for what they now get for ten cents, or twenty or twenty-five cents for what they now get for fifteen cents. Why should they be taxed one cent by the Government and four cents or more by somebody else?".

"We all know the cheaper exhibitor is just pulling through. What would happen to him if he increases prices from ten to fifteen cents, and then people stayed away?

"Who, then, will save the situation? The producer and distributor? Hardly! The exhibitor will go to the wall as the result of an experiment tried for the benefit of those higher up, who could help themselves if they would only clean house, throw out the waste and stop the leaks.

"If the moving picture is to continue as the poor man's amusement, the greater part of the exhibition of pictures must continue to be done in the main on a ten cents basis of admission.

"The ideal situation is not higher rentals. It lies in decrease in cost of production and distribution on one hand, and increase in attendance in general on the other. Make fewer productions, and make them better at no higher cost by cutting out "rush" in the making. Work for quality rather than quantity.

"Three good pictures handled well will produce more money for all concerned than any six of the mediocre things we now see every week.

"To make each picture draw more money in longer runs with increased attendance as the result of its merit being personally commended by one spectator to another, and to show greater profit on the capital invested by producer, distributor and exhibitor is the real solution of the picture problem in these, or any other times."

Virile Story First Independent Kerrigan Production

J. Warren Kerrigan's first production as an independent star at the head of his own organization, will be a photo-dramatic version of Peter B. Kyne's first book-length novel, "A Man's Man." Mr. Kyne is best known as a writer of short stories. Several of them have been translated to the screen.

The scenes in this story are laid in the West and in a Central American republic, which holds a fabulously rich gold mine and an incipient revolution. Mr. Kerrigan will play the role of John Stuart Webster, a mining engineer, who goes to this republic to finance and help develop the mine discovered by a young protege of his, who had been his assistant in a Western mine.

Goldwyn Gets Alfred Weiss as Executive

Alfred Weiss, former Triangle executive, has joined the Goldwyn organization and will become one of the vice-presidents of the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation at an election to be held in a few days.

Mr. Weiss' resignation from Triangle thirty days ago was a big surprise to the few persons who heard of it. Immediately he started on a tour of the United States for Goldwyn, and has closed all of the realty contracts and leases for the opening of the Goldwyn exchanges in nineteen cities, covering every part of America.

"Parentage" Landed—Private View June 6

The private view of "Parentage" will be held at the Rialto theatre, New York, on Wednesday, June 6, at 10 a. m.

According to the producers, this film, presented in a clean wholesome manner will meet with wide success wherever shown. The story is said to be interesting throughout, and of a nature to arouse the sympathies of the most hard-hearted person.

Mr. Rothapfel of the New York Rialto, says: "It is the greatest exposition of types ever shown in one film, and is most entertaining."

Promise of Patriotic Theme in "Spirit of 1917"

Despite that there is little military or naval training or maneuvering depicted, the release within a short time of "The Spirit of 1917," a Radio Film production, is considered most opportune.

The dramatic action, which it is stated is contained in the subtitle, but has possibilities which may be imagined from the title, will it is thought make the blood of Americans tinge. As a matter fact Carl Strummer's portrayal of one of this country's artists, Carter B. Harkness, is heralded as an epic in itself.

Chautard's First Thanhouzer

"Fires of Youth," the Thanhouzer-Pathe Gold Rooster play, released June 15, is conspicuous as the first production directed by the veteran Emile Chautard for the Thanhouzer forces.

Under Mr. Chautard's direction in the new Thanhouzer-Pathe production are Frederick Warde and Jeanne E aggels.
Pay-as-You-Enter” Tax Boomed Business in Montreal

M. Kashin, Prominent Montreal Exhibitor, Relates Pleasant Consequences of Ticket Tax in That Region—Irwin of V-L-S-E Reports Canadian and British Investigations Show Business Is Booming

The “pay-as-you-enter” or ticket tax, which was applied in the Province of Quebec about six months ago, actually helped business, according to M. Kashin, manager of the Midway theatre, Montreal, who came to New York on a business trip last week.

“The only difficulty we had was explaining to the public the first few nights what the ticket tax was all about,” said Mr. Kashin to a Motion Picture News representative.

“I read in the News a couple of weeks ago that the Government helped by inaugurating a big publicity campaign. They must have inaugurated it pretty well under cover. I didn’t know about it. The tax measure was rushed through in a couple of days — so quickly, in fact, that we did not have time to organize and make a protest.”

“The first night or two I had to stand out in front of the theatre and explain to my patrons why they must pay one cent more for a five-cent ticket and two cents more for a ten-cent ticket. After that it was easy sailing.

“My ticket seller has the four reels in a rack above her, and she tears them off two at a time without any difficulty or inconvenience. We have no delay in making change in pennies, and our admissions exceed forty thousand a week. The receipts from the ticket tax are divided between the government and the hospitals. Rather, the government allows me as a commission for selling the tickets amounts to enough every week to pay the salaries of my cashier and doorman. Why should I kick?”

“The receipts from the ticket tax are divided between the government and the hospitals. Rather, the government receives the other half of the two-cent tax.”

For a few months following the declaration of war, conditions in Canada were chaotic. There were two reasons, they are as follows:

“First: Exhibitors became panic-stricken and stopped patron-getting campaigns, economizing on the extent of false economy. The second: In the first few months people talked and thought war to the exclusion of everything else.”

Wheels of Industry Well Under Way for Bond Loan

Frank Hall Launches Unique Campaign to Boost Loan

—Vitagraph, Fox, Metro, Lozky and Others Active

The wheels of the machinery governing the Liberty Bond activities of the Motion Picture Industry, which started with such telling effects last week, are at this writing well under way and are consistently gaining momentum, and gathering thousands of buyers of many more dollars with every revolution. A daily appeal is being made from the screen of myriad theaters in the most thickly populated sections and in the remotest corners of the United States. Trailers and slides are the means to the end — the purchase of Liberty Bonds.

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, launched forth its campaign with its representatives of theaters, seventy feet in length, to all theaters. These trailers contain patriotic messages and the slogan, “The Bond That Buys Us All.” An extract from President Wilson’s message is contained. Accompanying each trailer is a letter from William A. Brady, president of the National Association, Walter W. Irwin, P. A. Powers, B. N. Busch, Lee A. Ochs and Lewis Selznick are active in his movement. More than 500,000 feet of this campaign has been donated to the Government for this purpose by George Eastman of the Eastman Kodak Company.

Frank Hall, state rights buyer and seller, theatre owner and a representative of the motion picture picture, has his own ideas concerning the exploitation of the Liberty Bond loan. His plan is not only unique but will, as he says, afford an opportunity for picture-going people to subscribe in a most inexpensive way to this cause. His plan is simple and can be launched without preliminary precautions. It is best set forth in the following telegram which Mr. Hall sent to the executive heads of distributing organizations throughout the country:

“I am giving away a Liberty Bond at each performance in all my theatres for a period of one week, from June 21 to June 27, and the public will gladly help pay for them. I am mailing you particulars of this plan to the patrons of the theatres. The plan to give bonds away through the theatres is most feasible and will, I am sure, bring results.”

Mr. Hall’s campaign started yesterday at the Broadway theater, New York, where “The Bar Sinister” is showing. His theatres in Hoboken and Newark, New Jersey, are also scheduled for Liberty Bond Week.

More than a million dollars worth of Liberty Bonds will be taken up by the employees of the Greater Vitagraph and V-L-S-E distributing organization, when their plans to meet the weekly payroll in part by the distribution of bonds is perfected. As far as possible the fifty-dollar denomination will be used. It has been explained to all the employees that the Liberty Bonds are as negotiable as fifty-dollar bills and will be excepted as legal tender. Not only will Vitagraph meet their payroll with Liberty Bonds, but V-L-S-E has empowered all managers to accept Liberty Bonds in payment for film rental from exhibitors. The sales organization has received instructions to carry on an intensive campaign with a view toward making Independence Day the next Liberty Loan day in every motion picture theater in the United States. The plan, as well stated, is in line with methods employed by the large department stores, when they desire to “push” one or more particular articles. Advance tickets will be sold at a cut rate.

Instructions were sent to the Fox publicity department and to every branch manager throughout the United States last week by Mr. Fox, that every photograph issued by him be stamped on the back: “Buy a Liberty Bond and Help Humanity.”

Thousands of photographs of the various Fox stars are weekly sent out, the majority to newspaper editors, but many to the fans. Each of the Fox exchanges also mails out scores of photographs to exhibitors, and it can be realized that the plan adopted by Mr. Fox will prove effective.

In addition Mr. Fox has sent a circular to his employees urging them to take part in the subscription. Every star in the organization has already done so, it is announced.
Theatrical Federation Against Suggestive Film

When plans now under consideration by the Theatrical Federation of Greater New York are perfected, a method of censorship will be established and enforced in all motion picture theatres in the United States, where musicians, stage hands and operators affiliated with this organization are employed, which will require that all pictures to be shown in theatres employing the services of these men will first have to be passed upon by a central board representing the theatrical federation.

"The purpose of this censorship," said Harold Williams, who represents the Theatrical Federation of Greater New York, "is to raise an impenetrable barrier against the running of offensive films. It is not the intention of the federation to supplant any other form of censorship, but we have taken this step because we think that greater precautions should be taken along these lines. The active forces now at work cannot be too greatly augmented in numbers, and the membership of the federation think it not alone their duty but their right to step in and assist the forces already at work in the field of censorship.

"There are approximately 97,000 members of this federation in the United States, and it is expected that everyone will work together in this matter. The Theatrical Federation is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and we have the added support of a strong union organization. It is not our intention to take the initiative in placing the mark of disapproval on any one film, but we will follow as much as possible the dictates of the public. The federation is particularly opposed to the showing of pictures which reflect in any way on the religious beliefs of any one class of people, and we shall voice the opposition of our organization, as one, against the exploitation of films bearing these characteristics."

Superlative Pictures Corporation is Launched

Irv Cummings and Lois Meredith to Star in Own a Co-operative Proposition

2. Lois Meredith Pictures, Inc., of which Maurice F. Tobias is president, Lois Meredith is vice-president, and Arthur Blumenkrum is secretary and treasurer.

The voting stock is held jointly by the two companies, while the remainder will be divided among the individual members, pending increased interest. The stock corporation is subdivided into two parts:

1. Irv Cummings Pictures, Inc., of which Maurice F. Tobias is president, Irv Cummings is vice-president, and Arthur Blumenkrum is secretary and treasurer.

Harry Raver Brings Over Another Big Film

Successor to "Cabiria," Entitled "The Warrior," with Mariste

As Central Figure to Have Elaborate American Showing Soon

That the originator of the two-dollar movie in America is to introduce another important production, after a lapse of two years, was conveyed in Harry Raver's announcement today outlining the scope of the new offering. It was stated that the makers of "Cabiria," which created a sensation here when first presented at the Knickerbocker theatre, New York, have been working under severe difficulties during all this time in order to complete the picture in time for its premiere, simultaneously, in Paris and Rome.

"The Warrior" is the title of the new production, and it is issued in seven parts. The famous character creation of D'Annunzio, Mariste, is the central figure in the story which has for its atmosphere the Italian and Austrian Alps during the progress of the present war, divulging the difficulties experienced by the opposing forces on the Italian front.

Permission and co-operation of the Italian government was enjoyed by the producers, and the picture was being staged, and the directorial methods of the story were greatly enhanced by the local color of actual war maneuvers and combats. The grand Mariste as an Alpine soldier wins fresh laurels for himself and company, and it is expected that the novelty of the production together with its topical value and the popularity of the star in this country should duplicate "Cabiria."

Harry Raver will probably send "The Warrior" out as a big theatre attraction.

(Continued from page 374) at a large Brooklyn department store last week and disposed of more than $12,000 worth of bonds. Jane and Katherine Lee, known as the Lee Kids, also Fox stars, were with Miss Pearson, and sold bonds to the amount of $10,000.

The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has subscribed $100,000 to the Liberty Loan. Frederick G. Lee is chairman of the Finance Committee. Employees of the Lasky Studio in California have purchased $750 worth of bonds, under the direction of the command of Cecil B. De Mille, producing manager at the Lasky Studio, the Lasky Home Guard is rounding into military form and give a substantial demonstration of Lasky's patriotic zeal.

Metro is active in assisting the Government in the disposition of its Liberty Loan, and is putting forth every effort both within and without its organization to render the most needed assistance. Emery Whelen, a Metro star, subscribed personally for $5,000 worth of bonds, and is expected in disposing of bonds aggregating much more, from the Metro booth at McCrory's store. William Christy Cabanne, director for Metro, purchased a $1,000 bond from Millard Fisher, and other Metro stars, Ilean Hume sold 219 bonds, Lecy Hovey, Emma-Jean Parker, Aurora Platt, Frank Gilmore, Leo Delaney were others who were active at the Metro booth.

Mitchell H. Mark Realty Corporation, owning the Saxon and the Amex, has issued a statement to the employees that any who wish to purchase Liberty Bonds may do so on a small monthly installment.

King-Bee Booking Service

With a desire to assist exhibitors in obtaining information as to where King-Bee Comedies may be booked in any part of the United States, the King-Bee Films Corporation, Lonsagre Building, New York, is circulating a coupon for exhibitors to fill up and return to the company. In return for the names and addresses of exhibitors, the King-Bee Corporation undertakes to state where these comedies may be booked, the nearest state right buyers being indicated.

Several Offers for Services Made Marguerite Snow

Marguerite Snow, who has been making a picture in Trenton, Ontario, with Holbrook Blinn and Barry O'Neil for the Canadian National Theatre, Ltd., returned to New York last week. She is considering several New York engagements, as well as one from California. She last appeared with George M. Cohan in "Broadway Jones."

Report Rebookings of "Mutt and Jeff" Comic Strips

"Return engagements" are becoming frequent occurrences with exhibitors who book the "Mutt and Jeff" animated cartoon comedies. Among the many "Mutt and Jeff" attractions that have been recently requested are those that exhibitors say are of such a timely nature that numerous requests for repeat-bookings keep coming in.

Star Series Booking Feature of Paramount’s Plan

PARAMOUNT'S long awaited announcement of the policies resulting from the recently announced co-operation with Artcraft and the entry into the open market was made public last week. The keynote of the plan is a co-ordination of open market policies with those of program booking. Exhibitors will be enabled to contract only for those series of pictures featuring the stars they desire, or should they desire to eliminate all competition they may bide the entire output of both corporations. But it is the ability to select particular box office stars that is expected by Paramount to be the feature most acceptable to exhibitors.

This system will make it possible for exhibitors to give their public the stars they most desire. The popularity of stars fluctuates in different sections of the country, declares the announcement, and by this new method it will enable exhibitors to give their patrons all the stars they desire.

Under this plan, through Paramount, Mme. Petrova will make eight pictures; Margaret Clark, eight; Pauline Frederick, eight; Fannie Ward, eight; Jack Pickford and Louise Huff, eight; Susse Hayakawa, eight; Vivian Martin, eight; George Beban, three; Billie Burke, three; Ann Pennington, two; Julian Eltinge, three, and Wallace Reid, eight.

Other stars will be added to this list during the year to make series of pictures as it appears that their popularity warrants their inclusion.

Under the former Paramount plan of distribution a condition existed by which Artcraft and Paramount productions were competing with each other, in many of which the same stars appeared. For instance, the new and important Artcraft productions starring Mary Pickford met the national competition of the old Paramount Pickford productions, thereby making it impossible for exhibitors to obtain the fullest possible returns on these subjects.

Under the newly co-ordinated system the forthcoming Pickford productions will be booked without the opposition of this star’s previous releases, the latter appearing only where they will not interfere with the fullest returns to the exhibitor who presents the newer subjects.

To this end exhibitors will be enabled to choose their list of pictures for the forthcoming year. The producing companies have already formulated their entire schedule for the year, beginning Aug. 5, and the exhibitor may choose his entire program a week in advance, obtaining an opportunity to plan his exploitation further in advance than he was ever before enabled to do.

Commenting upon the new plan of distribution, Adolph Zukor said:

"The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation is in a very fortunate position in outlining its future plans for improved production and distribution of photoplays, because it feels that the trade believes its past endeavors in these directions to indicate the future progress we are determined to make. When we promise, therefore, to increase the cost of our productions and to make this increased cost buy its full measure of merit and artistic advancement in our productions, the promise is backed by five years of effort to present, consistently, the most meritorious photoplays in the world."

"We have the experience and the years of development behind us, besides the necessary organizations that come only of long duration in the business, to enable us to make any promise with the fullest assurance that it will be fulfilled.

"We have the stars, the directors, the scenario writers, the studio forces and equipment, and all the mechanical and personal resources necessary to the completion of the greatest series of motion pictures yet presented."

"We have already secured some of the greatest names in the world to form our star companies of the day as vehicles for our stars. We are constantly obtaining the exclusive original works of the greatest authors and fictionists throughout the world. Our own force of trained scenario writers is constantly adding the most talented and capable originators of screen creations."

Artcraft's Plans for Year on Ambitious Scale

"Little Mary," Douglas Fairbanks, Geraldine Farrar, George M. Cohan and Elsie Ferguson in List of Stars - Further Announcements Promised

COINCIDENT with the detailed announcement of the new Paramount- Artcraft system of "star series" booking, the latter corporation announced its production plans for the coming year. The number of productions featuring each star will be determined, which will be released in the coming year is detailed in the announcement, thus making it possible for Artcraft exhibitors to plan their campaigns many months in advance.

The plans of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation for the forthcoming year in accord with the new Paramount-Artcraft co-ordinate booking policy were officially announced last week. Thirty-six productions are already scheduled for release under Artcraft trade-mark for the coming year.

The star series selective booking policy inaugurated by Artcraft at its inception will be continued as in the past. The only change affecting the distribution of Artcraft pictures that will be experienced by exhibitors as a result of the schedule for the future will be evidenced in the fact that they will be able to present these productions without waiting for the exclusion of another film already contracted for, as hitherto. Artcraft and Paramount releases will dovetail so that neither will interfere with the other.

Mary Pickford, the first star to appear under the Artcraft trade-mark, will present eight productions on the new schedule. Seven photoplays will be released through Artcraft by Douglas Fairbanks, conceded to be the greatest male attraction in the world. At the head of his own complete organization, Fairbanks promises pictures that will duplicate the record-breaking business displayed with "In Again—Out Again," his initial Artcraft subject.

The acquisition of the phrase, "Tandy and Lynch," though no such firm exists, Mr. Tandy is a director in the S. A. Lynch enterprises, is not concerned in the Triangle move. The confusion arose over the use of the phrase, "Tandy and Lynch," though such a firm exists. Mr. Tandy is a director in the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., which has exclusive management contracts for Paramount and Artcraft in the Southern country, and will continue to devote his energies to that work.
Film Man Active in New Patriotic Movement

R. V. Rothermel, of Filmcraft Corporation, 220 W. 42nd street, New York City, has been selected as chairman of the 19th Congressional District branch of the Patriotic Service League, recently organized under the supervision of and at the suggestion of Prof. Ellery C. Stowell, of Columbia University.

The purpose of the league is to serve the Government in any way possible in its present struggle. The organization is now in its infancy but it is planned to have its influence felt by the end of the year. The motion picture theatre, it plans to have serve as a medium through which its intentions may reach the public and Mr. Rothermel says that he expects the motion picture field to play an important part in its activities.

This movement if carried throughout the country should prove of vast importance and assistance to the Government and it presents a true spirit of patriotism which will not be greatly assisted in many ways by the motion picture industry.

Mayfair Film to Have National Ad Campaign

Announcement is made by the America-Japan Film Company, 15 William street, New York City, that their 10,000-foot film, "The Land of the Rising Sun," is to be released as a ten-episode serial picture with a nationalized advertising campaign by the Hesser Publicity Bureau to back it up.

J. B. Millett, the creator and director general of the enterprise, has been known as an authority on Japanese matters for a generation, and has written many of the most delightful novels on the land of the cherry blossom and eternal loveliness. On his recent film-making expedition to Japan his attitude was entirely different from that of most people who start such an enterprise. He wanted to show the human side of Japan in all its quaintness and charm, and his ideal was to make a picture that, while treating of a nation, its customs and its people, could not in any sense be called a "scenic," "travel," or "educational" film.

100 Fox Features Released on Weekly Policy

In sending forth "The Broadway Sport" to its thousands of motion picture exhibitors and its great public Fox Film Corporation celebrates the release of its one hundredth photoplay feature since its adoption of the weekly release policy on Sept. 6, 1915.

At the time of the weekly release policy's inception by Fox Film Corporation the company had approximately a half-dozen directors and an equal number of stars. Since then Mr. Fox has increased his directorial staff steadily until he has gathered together thirteen well-known film-makers for his photodramatic subjects alone.

Roosevelt to Attend "Womanhood" Showing at Patriotic Event

Former President Theodore Roosevelt will take part in a patriotic evening unique in the country, where a majority of the exterior scenes for Mayfair's first production, "Persuasive Peggy" are being taken.

Knowing the interest Colonel Roosevelt takes in motion pictures, Miss Elizabeth F. Swann, who has charge of the affair, has arranged with V-L-S-E for a showing of "Womanhood, the Glory of the Nation," during the evening.

HATE is the name of a seven-reel feature drama, which the Fairmount Film Corporation of Philadelphia, will put on the market during the early part of June. The picture is said to answer the demand of exhibitors for stories involving a vital problem of momentary interest. The story has for its theme the mysterious workings of pre-natal influences on the human soul, a subject which has been occupying the attention of medical scientists and sociologists for years. Walter R. Stahl, who directed the production, is in New York making the final arrangements for giving the picture its New York premiere.

The story was written by J. Walter Meade, a Southern newspaper and magazine writer, and is based on an actual life tragedy which stirred Boston and other cities of the North and East several years ago. The action revolves around a young woman of the lower strata of society, untaught and unguided, who plans to kill her derelict lover. After the birth of her child, she learns to love the man who offered her sympathy in the dark hours of her misery, and just as she is about to realize the happiness she longed for, she notes in her son the growth of evil tendencies which were the result of pre-natal influences. The climax is said to drive home the truth of the old adage that the sins of the parents shall be visited upon the children.

Director Stahl selected his cast of players with the idea uppermost of selecting people to fit the characters, rather than to make the parts conform to the players.

Engage Players for One Picture Only, Backer Plan

George Backer, president of the George Backer Film Corporation, whose products are being marketed through the M. H. Hoffman, Inc., has announced his intention of engaging players only for individual productions, and not on contract.

Hoffman, who was interviewed on the subject, stated that both Backer's and his idea was that by this latter plan a union of theatre and even better professional players would be created, caused by having to pay salaries to players under contract when not working, and as under the ruling that all Foursquare Pictures (as the product which is being marketed through M. H. Hoffman is called) must be up to an unusually high standard, much time must necessarily be consumed in preparation, during which no use could be made of contract players.

The subject of the Geo. Backer production—the "Sin Woman"—is now being booked, and exhibitors are reporting excellent results. The second Geo. Backer offering—which is not yet named—will be ready soon.

Rural Drama for State Rights

Robt. Russell, president of the Monarch Photo Play Company, has decided to dispose of his interest in the five-reel rural comedy-drama, "Common Sense Brackett," and has appointed Hiller and Wilk, with offices at the Longacre Building, Forty-second street and Broadway, New York, as the sole selling agents. "Common Sense Brackett" is a drama of New England life.

Contradicting current reports that the motion picture industry in Minneapolis and the Northwest was generally depressed, W. K. Howard, manager of the Minneapolis branch of V-L-S-E, on a flying trip to the home office last week, reported that business there in his territory is better than they have been for some time. This report may be taken in part as an outgrowth of the strong movement for a permanent get-together organization, instituted by Fred Herrington, national organizer, on his recent visit to the Northwest.

Quite a number of theatres are closing, according to Mr. Howard, but in nearly every case this is due rather on account of lack of necessity for motion picture houses in particular localities than any lack of interest on the part of the public. "In the Northwest," said Mr. Howard, "the business appears to be finding itself. The period of disorganization has run its course, and the reconstruction period is well started. Successful exhibitors are adding to their theatre holdings, while the unsuccessful houses are closing. It is a fact that the chain house owners sometimes expect a cheaper film service because they rent for several theatres, but even in this case they have found extremely reasonable, and have obtained regular list prices for all of Greater Vitagraph's product. This is made possible by the fact that V-L-S-E's selling plans consider each theatre as a distinct unit, thereby giving the one-man house an equal chance."

Hit Snug—Age Limit Bill May Be Given Further Consideration

Representative Jefferson W. Smith, author of the bill before the Pennsylvania Legislature fixing an age limit for children attending motion picture theatres, who already had agreed to cut down the limit as prescribed in his measure from 16 to 10 years, has let it be known further that he is willing to lift the age limit entirely when applied to theatres located in summer tracts where such a provision is unnecessary.

This further concession was announced on May 29, the day on which it was proposed to have a public hearing on the bill. The hearing, however, was postponed, and it is probable that it will not now be held until June 6 to 8. This postponement, it was understood, was made at the request of Maurice J. Speiser, of Philadelphia, counsel for the exhibitors of that city, who has been in Harrisburg to testify on the subject. The session opens against the passage of the Smith measure. It is understood the theatre interests are determined to fight the ten years provision just as vigorously as they have been fighting the plan to make the age limit for children 16 years.

Of the bills proposing to impose taxes on the motion picture industry now before the Pennsylvania Legislature the George Plummer Baker bill is meeting with increasingly vigorous opposition. It places a 2 per cent, tax on gross earnings of all motion picture and theatrical corporations.

July 4 Set for Gathering of State Picture Representatives in New Orleans—Committees Appointed to Work Out the Plans

At a recent meeting of the Exhibitors' League of Louisiana, held at New Orleans, it was decided to make July 4 a big day for the exhibitors in the state, and every one will be invited to visit New Orleans on that day and be entertained by the M. P. E. L.

Finance Committee: E. V. Richards, chairman, Nathan Sobol of the Washington and Morris Huer of the Napoleon.

Entertainment Committee: Mr. Tansey, Folly theatre, Algiers, chairman, Ross Hardenbrook of the Royal theatre and Mr. Marx of Marx theatre.

Publicity Committee: B. F. Brennan, I berville theatre, chairman, Mr. Jacobs of the Poplar theatre, and J. Brunet of the Harlequin.

Invitation Committee: Nathan Earleich, Isis theatre, chairman; J. Akini, Famous theatre, and B. Kern, Happy Hour theatre.

The Smugger Amusement Company, through E. V. Richards, donated $50 toward the fund to entertain the visitors, and all members present donated to the fund. Up to date there has been over $1,000 subscribed, and the different committees are hard at work arranging entertainments for the visiting managers.

Part of the program will consist of an automobile ride all over the city, a dinner at one of the local hotels; passes to all local theatres and a moving picture taken of all the visitors as well as the members of the local organization.

The local F.I.H.M. Club will assist the exhibitors in entertaining the managers, and have several surprises in store for them when they reach this city for the convention.

Iowa Judge Rules Sunday Opening Is Legal

Municipal Judge Joseph Meyers of Des Moines Decides That Sunday Pictures Are Not Violations of the Law

Several score of exhibitors throughout the state were arrested last Sunday on a charge of violating the Sunday closing law—old “Blue Laws” that have been unenforced for the last seventy years. With very few exceptions the cases were all continued until word was received from Des Moines, the state capital.

The Des Moines arrests, made one week before the others, were test cases. Police and county judges throughout the state have been awaiting the Des Moines ruling before penalizing those arrested in their jurisdiction.

In nearly every Iowa town the picture shows remained open on Sunday, but the exhibitors were served with writs of summons before him for alleged violation of the Iowa Blue Laws, has passed down judgment in which he takes a favorable stand upon the Sunday opening of motion picture shows.

Priest Praises “The Crisis”

Twenty girls from St. Joseph’s Academy, Louisville, Ky., attended a performance of “The Crisis,” under the chaperonage of Mr. Father Murphy at a recent showing. Though not kindly disposed to pictures in the past, Father Murphy declared himself and the girls delighted with the picture.

Price raised to ten cents and “business rotten,” as a result, is the report of Dr. L. K. Hirschberg, Dream Theatre, Baltimore, Md., which changes programs every day. Douglas Fairbanks is his pick of the stars. Is going to stick to the new price.

From Battle Creek, Iowa, comes the news that the past Winter has been the worst season in six years at the Luna Theatre, J. D. Warner, manager. Louise Lovely, Ella Hall, and Baby Osborne are popular in the order named. Serials are not liked.

R. B. Wright, Mulvane, Kas., manages the Lindel Theatre. “Liberty” is the best drawing card he has run since he took over the management of this house last February. He paid a big price for the Castles in “The Wife of Life,” and runs other pictures “on the side.” Says the Castle picture was not worth the price charged.

Father’s “Shine Girl” and “World and the Woman” are the greatest pictures he has seen lately, says P. C. Smith, Ideal theatre, Clinton, Ala., and business is good. Perhaps this is because he also “co-operates with the ladies’ clubs and schools with appropriate pictures.”

The St.-Non Theatre, Demopolis, Ala., Harry Simon, manager, says his people enjoy Bennett comedies, but “couldn’t draw six people with a Chaplin.” After Marguerite Clark, Clara Kimball Young, Pauline Frederick, Vivian Martin and Douglas Fairbanks draw the best. Says, Paramount has shown a slump for several months, and he can’t get either reels in good condition or satisfactory advertising service from Triangle local exchange, though Triangle pictures are good. A five-reeler often runs about three and a half reels when it reaches him.

When high water does not delay his films, Manager R. H. Morris of Elk River, Idaho, can find nothing to kick about. Marguerite Clark, Douglas Fairbanks and Wm. S. Hart get the money for him. “Miss George Washington” went big. Business is fair, with two Paramounts, two Triangles, Universal serial and weekly and comedies as his program. “Nothing doing” with juvenile programs.

Barney Hatke, Sabetha, Kas., a little town of 1,700, is using every standard feature service with “big stuff” on Wednesday day only. Regular admission ten cents, varying price on the extra attractions, according to rental cost. He tries to make the attractions always worth whatever the charge is, and hopes his patrons appreciate his policy of never varying the price except on Wednesdays.
Herrington’s Organization Plea Strikes Fertile Ground

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

HE exhibitors of the country know that organization is a necessity. They feel, however, that the national body as now composed has not produced the results that were expected.

“There is too much selfishness—lack of faith—do the other fellow spirit—predominant among the theatre owners and managers,” said Mr. Herrington.

“If exhibitors will give more time to their own business, and less to that of their competitor, fifty per cent. of the imaginary evils will disappear.”

Back from his trip through the Northwest, Middle West and South, Fred J. Herrington, national organizer, who has left a trail of wholesome truths, better understanding, and organizations of exhibitors behind him, voiced these salient opinions.

Mr. Herrington was in New York last week in the interests of the Pennsylvania State Convention, which will be held in Philadelphia, June 26 and 27. The enlistment of his aid in promoting this gathering had brought him from his home in Pittsburgh, where he had gone following his months’ swing around the country.

Since April 25, when the national organizer left for Cleveland on the first lap of his tour, reports have come from the various cities visited of the intensified efforts put forth by him with most satisfying results among the wide-awake exhibitors.

At Cleveland, a most enthusiastic audience heard his plea for better organization and support of the National Association. By unanimous voice the exhibitors in the sixth city expressed their recognition of the necessity of having a powerful and united body, by voting to give their support to the National League.

“Turmoil, disturbance, and a house divided against itself is the condition in Chicago,” was the statement made by Mr. Herrington during his observations in the Windy City, as found by Mr. Herrington in a brief visit. From there he went to Des Moines, Iowa.

“I arrived on the evening of the meeting, which, however, was not held as scheduled, but delayed for two days,” said Mr. Herrington. “Attendance was not what was expected, but I was made to feel I was at home. The result was similar to that in Cleveland, the theatre men declaring their intention of getting back in line in the interests of a nation-wide organization. Best of all, they meant what they said.”

In St. Louis came one of the high spots of the trip—the grant of a charter to the exhibitors for the state of Missouri. Mr. Herrington is warm in giving credit for the rousing reception there to Mr. Mogler and Mr. Peemuzaglanz, leading exhibitors. From St. Louis, after the gratifying reception accorded his message, Mr. Herrington wired Mr. Newman of the Royal theatre, Kansas City.

It must be remembered that in the western portion of Missouri there is no remnant or semblance of an organization. In view of this the efforts put forth by the exhibitors, the sincerity displayed and the hopeful results attained, are considered by Mr. Herrington to make a bright page on the record of his tour.

Throughout his entire trip Mr. Herrington closely observed conditions among the exhibitors. He found a depressed condition general, due, he states, to the fact that there is not the slightest doubt, judging from his observations, that the exhibitors will change the management of many theatres, which are haphazard affairs, and that there will be a united organization in the Buckeye state.

In Minneapolis I attended the three-day convention, and feel it would be useless to say anything of the enthusiasm present, and the enthusiasm manifested was proportionate. I want to say the reception tendered me was most gratifying, and I was made to feel I was at home. The result was similar to that in Cleveland, the theatre men declaring their intention of getting back in line in the interests of a nation-wide organization. Best of all, they meant what they said.”

In view of this the efforts put forth by the exhibitors, the sincerity displayed and the hopeful results attained, are considered by Mr. Herrington to make a bright page on the record of his tour.

Following is the tentative itinerary of the tour of National Organizer Fred J. Herrington for June.

Mr. Herrington will endeavor as far as possible to fill in any vacant dates with visits to cities not listed.

June 4-5 Wichita, Kansas
June 5-6 Oklahoma City, Oklahoma
June 12-14 Galveston, Texas
June 16-17 Jackson, Miss.
June 18-20 Memphis, Tenn.
June 21-22 St. Louis, Mo.
June 24 Wheeling, W. Va.

There was no meeting arranged in Cincinnati, but nevertheless Mr. Herrington’s message reached home where it would do the most good. The officers of the exhibitors organization of the Chamber of Commerce, headed by John J. Hays, treasurer, and a number of the theatre men, including Charles Weyg, spared no efforts to aid the work of the national organizer. Of his visit here Mr. Herrington is most enthusiastic:

“I talked with many of the exhibitors,” he said. “It now looks possible for the first time in three years that there will be a united organization in the Buckeye state.”

A short visit to Pittsburgh was followed by a trip to Richmond. At a meeting arranged by the studio, Mr. Herrington wired Mr. Newman of the Royal theatre, Kansas City.

There is not the slightest doubt, judging from his observations, that the exhibitors will change the working methods of the National League, as now composed. A general feeling prevails throughout the country, he declares, that the organization in its present condition is not satisfactory and does not produce results—hence is lamentably lacking in force and purpose.

“I have made it a point in all my addresses to tell the exhibitor that if the organization is not what it should be, it is the fault of the exhibitor not getting in to give us one that is better. As I said before much of the exhibitor’s troubles is due to his own selfishness.”
The Mutual office calls to our attention a number of ingenious ideas that exhibitors are making use of. Let us have a look at a few:

SPARKS OF GENIUS

MANAGER SAMUEL PINANSKI of the Modern theatre, Boston, has just created an innovation for his patrons in the shape of a baseball schedule printed in his own print shop at the Modern. The card contains both the American and National League ball games played, both in and out of the city. On the reverse side is a theatre advertisement. This is only one of the many novel features made up on the Modern print presses.

C. D. BUSS, who manages the Third Street theatre, August, Pa., got in touch with the American Chicle Company, and found that the Artcraft Picture, "Broadway Jones" had something to do with chewing gum. The American Chicle Company obliged him with hundreds of small packages of gum which he gave away free in the lobby at showtime. As a return courtesy, Manager Buss ran a slide setting forth the merits of American Chicle.

THE REAL LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

The real live wire exhibitors always take prompt advantage of events in the day's news, twisting them, if he can, to apply to whatever productions he is playing. Charles Decker, proprietor of the Majestic theatre, Grand Junction, Colo., dressed up a boat to advertise the Selznick play "Pantheon," allowing his imagination to "dope out" Russian hunting costumes. It attracted attention, comment—and patrons.

ET A. RUSSELL of the Windsor theatre, Hampton, Iowa, publishes a newsy sheet in place of a program and calls it "Windsor Theatre Winds." While not as compact as the folded program it is a departure from the accepted rule. It measures about 12 by 12 inches, and contains cuts of stars, casts, synopses. Each "Wind" is numbered. Every week, certain numbers are posted in plain view at the box office. Holders of lucky numbers are admitted free.

Marie Gets the Business

Pueblo, Col., is witnessing the rebirth of the "Good morning, have you used Pear's soap?" idea, only "The Great Secret" is benefiting. Shortly after the telephone became a habit, the Pear's soap people called upon folks and asked them that. It was good advertising.

Out in Pueblo, the telephone will jingle, say, in Mrs. Smith's boudoir. Then comes a girlish voice.

"This is Marie," it says, "I thought you'd like to know what Francis X. does this week."

"Oh, yes, Marie," says Mrs. Smith.

"Well," gurgles Marie's musical voice, "he pulls the most beautiful rescue. He gets the heroine away from robbers—and and everything! Oh, Mrs. Smith, it's just grand!"

And then Marie goes ahead and tells just enough about the "beautiful rescue" to get Mrs. Smith aroused.

"Marie" is a professional booster for Pueblo's Princess theatre. In the four months she has been employed Marie has compiled a long list of names. She has them classified into those who love thrillers, gentle dramas or bounding comedies, etc. It is surprising how many people not only listen to her but who actually call her up. The plan was originated by Ward C. Robertson, the Princess's manager. The telephone costs $6 a month, and Marie's salary makes the outlay about $50 altogether.

Marie, the telephone booster, is one of the many innovations in the world of advertising.
The exhibitor will never shoot wild in any advertisement when he links up the name of a well-known producer with his theatre.

Through a campaign of several years, the Fox publicity bureau has emphasized the box-office value of the name William A. Fox.

This sign lured more than one hesitating ticket buyer into the Pitt theatre, Pittsburgh, to see "Joan the Woman." The statue is over thirty-six feet in height and could be seen for blocks. Unlike a great many of the "Joan the Woman" advertising stunts, this has the virtue of being dignified.

What City, Please?

Sometimes when we receive programs from exhibitors we are unfortunate enough to mislay or discard the envelopes in which they are mailed. At this moment, by actual count, there are, in our basket, seventeen programs, all worth commenting upon; but not a one of them bears the name of the city from which they came.

For Wife Beaters and Such

Edward C. Klapp, managing the Regent, Lyceum and Rialto theatres, New Amsterdam, N. Y., applies severe treatment to men who attend his theatres without their wives.

Mr. Klapp's method, which any theatre manager can apply, consists simply of distributing small envelopes among the unattended husbands. The envelopes contain this striking message:

I DARE YOU TO HAND THIS TO YOUR WIFE!

Investigation proved that nearly every guilty husband took the envelope home, carefully refraining from opening it, just to show that he wasn't as curious as the female of the species, and handed it over to his wife.

Friend wife found this loving message within:

Dear Wife: I confess that I have been very neglectful of late. It's about time I took you out for an evening's entertainment. Let's go to the Regent theatre tomorrow night and see E. H. Sothern in "The Man of Mystery." What do you say?

Your Loving Hubby.

This simple little message is said to have gained Manager Klapp much business.

An Athletic Comedy

Bloomers and middies, track suits, punching bags, foils, traveling rings, horizontal bars and bowling alleys are very much in evidence in "Flirting with Danger," the Mutual-Vogue release for May 26.

Many of the scenes are laid in a gymnasium and show the girls and men taking their various exercises. A quarrel between the owner of the gymnasium and his rival ends in a deep laid plot in which the bowling balls are filled with dynamite and the gymnasium wrecked.

To give "Maternity," Alice Brady's latest Brady-World release, a flying start at the Strand, Seattle, Manager W. H. Smythe ran this advertisement in the newspapers:

Wanted, 500 photos of the babies of Seattle. Free admission to the mothers who comply with this request up to Saturday night, May 12, and prizes to 15 of the prettiest. The picture opened on Mother's Day to fine business.

Innocent deception is often the means to an end which is not all agreeable to the one deceiving. It is natural, however, and what is practical. A young chemist and assistant to a very noted chemist, who has just returned from the receipt for which he has been long striving. Harry May, who he might die with the formula in complete, makes his will and leaves his fortune to his assistant providing he doesn't marry, for he wishes his assistant to devote all his time to experimentation. The young chemist loves Mary, that is thought, and Harry lights it will be changed and the couple are married, but an accident is kept to keep the newlyweds together. Reputation is lost and an old friend comes to see Harry May, and live together. The question is answered by Alice Joyce and Harry Morey.

"The Girl, Glory?"—Enid Bennett—Sure Glory and Her Granddad Are Both Here
(Paramount Five Reel Production) Did you see Enid Bennett in "Happiness" a few weeks ago? If you didn't, you might as well see "The Girl, Glory?" You will wonder why this world has not more of her kind, for she accomplishes through her own efforts what millions are seeking to accomplish today by their concerted efforts. What is it? She doesn't accomplish the impossible, she can't be made to act the impossible. It is all so perfectly natural that you will wonder why it has not been thought of before. This much can be said: Git it, and you can't have it. The simplest way to satisfy curiosity is to see the subject which has given rise to it. "The Girl, Glory?" on—of—week. Robert Warwick and Gail Kane in "The False Friend"—Three Stages in Life's Drama
(Paramount Five Reel Production) Did you see Enid Bennett in "Happiness" a few weeks ago? If you didn't, you might as well see "The False Friend". There is a fascination about this photograph which is bound to be adequately interpreted words. It is one of those subjects conveying a human interest which falls under an avalanche of descriptive adjectives. Its intense interest is so tightly wound around the characters portrayed that it is not subject to dissection. "Why", you will ask, "do we go further in the argument?" Because it is our desire to call to your attention, not the detailed value of it as a source of entertainment, but its importance as a lesson to all. If you would understand the delicate mechanisms of the machinery you would examine the subject of interest, not rely upon the descriptive picture, but some one's words. Therefore you are urged to see Robert Warwick and Gail Kane, the next day. You will see a new stage on the screen, in this Peerless-World drama "A False Friend". If you are looking for a lesson of honesty, if you are a poet, there is a lesson for you, and if you have been deceived or have deceived, this picture will be for you. The theatre will present Robert Warwick and Gail Kane on the screen in "The False Friend" on—of—week.

Triangle Rearranges Releases for Month of June

"Wolf Lowry," with W. S. Hart, Put Forward from June 10 to May 27—Charles Ray's Vehicle Also on Same Date—Other Close Releases

There has been a rearrangement of the Triangle releases scheduled for June. "Wolf Lowry," the William S. Hart production which was originally announced for release June 10, was put forward on the program two weeks and shown in first-run houses May 27, together with "The Millionaire Vagrant," in which Charles Ray is being starred.

The releases for June 3 remain unchanged, Jack Devereaux appearing in "American That's All!" under the supervision of Allan Dwan, and Bessie Bart- rice appearing in "Ewoks o' the Blue Rider," under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince.

Emil Bennett and Louise Glau are the stars of the Ince-Kay Bee productions for June. Leslie Iss Bennet will appear in a play by C. Gardner Sullivan, entitled "The Girl, Glory," while Louise Glau will be headlined in a silent drama of life among society's misfits, called "Love or Justice?"

A comedy with an interesting dramatic structure, "The Girl, Glory," deals with the troubles that were encountered by Glory Wharton, the pet of the village, in trying to reform her grandfather, whose capacity for strong drink seemed at times greater than his prestige as a Civil War hero. How the girl accomplished this laudable purpose by closing up the local fire-water hazzar, is said to be shown with many amusing touches.

"Love or Justice?" is the title of Louise Glau's starring vehicle, which is said to give her opportunity for the most forceful and vivid characterization that she has yet contributed to the Triangle program.

Wilfred Lucas, Eddie Millar and William Desmond will be starred in the Triangle Eastern and Kay Bee productions released June 17. "Her Excellency, the Governor," is the name of the play in which Wilfred Lucas and Eddie Millar are to be jointly featured under the supervision of Allan Dwan. Thomas H. Ince will present William Desmond on the same date in a Kay Bee drama from the pen of J. G. Hawks, entitled "Paws of the Bear."

"Her Excellency, the Governor," tells the story of an intelligent American girl, who is elected lieutenant-governor of her state. An unusual crisis develops when an appropriation bill designed to furnish war funds to the national government is about to be vetoed by Barclay, the governor, who has fallen under the influence of the hypostated interests. Wilfred Lucas takes the part of Barclay, while Eddie Millar is seen as Sylvia Marlowe, his lieutenant and good genius.

"Paws of the Bear," William Desmond's starring vehicle, is a story of plot and counterplot, in which the black art of Russia's diplomatic service is pitted against the droll Yankee wiles of our own secret service. The scenes of the story rapidly shift from Berlin to Russia, from Russia to Paris and through France to the United States, where the final chapters in this drama are worked out.

Pathé Buys New Serial

Pathé announces that it has bought a new serial, written by Arthur B. Reeve and Charles Logue, entitled "The Hidden Hand."

Astral Signs Antonio Moreno.

Antonio Moreno has been signed by Astra and will soon be at work in Pathé Gold Rooster plays. Moreno comes from a long engagement with Vitagraph, where he had leading parts in many of that company's best known pictures, among them "The Island of Regeneration," in which Charles Ray is being starred.

Moreno was born in Madrid, Spain, on September 10, 1885. He came to the United States at the age of fourteen, and much of his early education he acquired in the public schools of New York City. He began his theatrical experience in a summer stock company at Northampton, Mass. Then followed engagements with Mrs. Leslie Carter, Tyrone Power, Constance Collier, Winton Lackey, William Hawtry, and various other theatrical celebrities. Some of the plays in which he appeared were "Thais," "C.O.D." and "The Man from Cook's." Moreno joins the fast-growing company of Pathé Gold Rooster stars, a company which now includes Mrs. Vernon Castle.

Drew Comedy on June 4

Metro's June 4 comedy release is the Metro-Drew one-act screen farce, "Her Anniversaries," written by Miss Helen Duce. In this playlet, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew appear as Mr. and Mrs. Mason. Practical married life has never cured Mrs. Mason of her sentimental memories in connection with her engagement and honeymoon. Her life is filled with anniversaries of one kind or another, such as the day they met, their first visit to the opera, and other dates equally important, or more likely unimportant, to him, and she makes her husband's life miserable because he cannot remember them.
Wide Distribution Cause of Fox Particularity

The international scope of the productions issued by Fox is the predominant cause of the vast expenditure on the de luxe offerings by that company, according to a statement issued by William Fox last week.

"You must remember that Fox Film Corporation is distinctly more than a national institution," said Mr. Fox. "Its scope is international in the widest degree. Our potash plays are projected not only throughout the United States, in thousands of cities and towns, but also in every foreign country of any consequence.

Four Astra Companies Busy on Pathe Pictures

With the largely increased force of stars now under contract and two large studios in full operation, Astra, producing for Pathe, is exceedingly busy. Director George Fitzmaurice has just finished Mrs. Vernon Castle's first Gold Rooster play, "Sylvia of the Secret Service." Dexter Elliot, E. H. Gilmour and Suzanne Willa are also in the cast.

William Parke has just finished another Gold Rooster play in which Gladys Hulette stars. The working title of this play is "Seven Pearls." George B. Seitz is working upon "The Fatal Ring," a new serial starring Pearl White.

Burton King, the fourth of the Astra directors, is directing Mollie King and Creighton Hale in another Pathe serial known at present by the title "Seven Pearls."

High-Class Feature Array on Week's Pathe List

FREDERICK WARDE with Jeanne Eagles in a Gold Rooster play, two serial episodes, and a Lonesome Luke two-reel comedy are features of the Pathe program for the week of June 17.

Frederick Warde is seen with Jeanne Eagles in "Fires of Youth," a five-reel Gold Rooster play produced by Thanouther under the direction of Emile Chautard and written by Agnes C. Johnston. The story tells of a steel king who has given his boyhood and youth in exchange for his massive fortune, and the manner in which he finally finds happiness. The cast includes, in addition to Frederick Warde and Jeanne Eagles, Helen Badgley and Robert Vaughn.

Ruth Roland appears in the sixth episode of "The Neglected Wife," entitled "On the Precipice."

Mollie King stars in the fourteenth episode of "Mystery of the Double Cross," and is said to be tense with mystery well sustained. "Lonesome Luke, Plumber," is the title of the Lonesome Luke comedy, produced in two reels under the personal supervision of Hal Roach. The series is supported by Bud Jamison, Bebe Daniels and Harry Pollard. In addition to the two-reel Luke comedy, there is also a one-reel Myers-Theby comedy.

The 12th release of the "Know America" combination scenes is entitled "Southwestern Texas" and shows views of the wonders of our largest State.

An International split-reel cartoon and scenic release, and Hearst-Pathe News No. 50 and No. 51, complete the program.

Film Debut of Julian Eltinge to Be Made in August

JULIAN ELTINGE, impersonator of feminine roles, signed by Famous Players-Lasky, will make his motion picture debut under the new selective booking arrangement which is to go into effect on August 5.

The impersonator has but recently completed his second season in the comedy, "Cousin Lucy," in which he has toured the country.

Beginning his remarkable feminine impersonations as an amateur, Julian Eltinge soon found that they were very enthusiastically received. He then took part in a number of private entertainments given in the homes of various wealthy people of note, for which he received what was then considered very handsome remuneration. Then, after six months on Broadway, in his first real play, Mr. Eltinge heard the call of the vaudeville managers and played for two years on the best circuits in the country. He then went abroad; where he was received with delight and won instant recognition. After a few seasons abroad he returned to America and made the declaration that he would not re-enter vaudeville for less than $1,000 a week. As soon as the managers realized that he meant what he said, the offers were forthcoming.

The next turn of the wheel found Mr. Eltinge at the head of his own company—he has been there ever since. "The Fascinating Widow" was the immediate predecessor of "Cousin Lucy," which has just completed its second successful year. The title of Mr. Eltinge's first photoplay has not yet been announced, though it is understood that the story is one which will give him an opportunity to display his "dual personality" by assuming both a male and female role on the screen.

Many Mix-Ups in Current Bickel Comedy

The Bickel comedy subject for June 4, released through General, is entitled "A Mixed Color Scheme."

The action hinges around the efforts of the Caprioli family to replenish finances. The head of the family, the Warings, go to a nearby gypsy encampment and told their child will be returned. The gypsies, seeking reward, steal the child and take it to the Warings, only to find the youngster is little Rastus, of Ethiopian descent. Meanwhile Caprioli, reading of the reward, sets out to find the real child to the gypsies, who substitute the colored baby. Caprioli is, of course, "given the door," and the gypsies arrive with the right baby.

Erbograph banner in "Little Miss Fortune" in this latest unnamed picture, is said to have an appealing role which will please, June 7 is set for the release date.

Marian Swayne in Her Second Erbograph June 7

Postponement of "Charity Castle" to release on an indefinite date and the substitution of a subject as yet untitled is announced by Art Dramas, following requests from exhibitors for another Marian Swayne production. The star who made her debut under the Erbograph banner in "The Golden God," which tells a story of a man who becomes obsessed with the desire for wealth, and who sacrifices all else to his mad fever, is announced by Art Dramas, following requests from exhibitors for another Marian Swayne production.

In the supporting cast are Tom Moore, Marjorie Daw, Tom Forman, Mabel Van Buren, Lucien Littlefield and Horace B. Carpenter.

June Productions of Art Dramas Present Three Stars

TWO Lasky productions, "The Jaguar's Claws," featuring Scoube Hayakawa, and "The Inner Shrine," starring Margaret Illington, are offered on the June 11 Paramount Program.

Two Stars Appear on Program for Week of June 11 in Strong Subjects—Japanese Actor as Mexican Bandit Surrounding Pictures

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

TWO Lasky productions, "The Jaguar's Claws," featuring Scoube Hayakawa, and "The Inner Shrine," starring Margaret Illington, are offered on the June 11 Paramount Program. Marshall Neilan produced the Hayakawa vehicle, in which the Japanese actor is seen as a Mexican.

As the bandit, he captures two American girls, and the young American oil field manager, who is the bridegroom of one of the girls and the brother of the other one. Having the three in his power, El Jaguar gives the man the right to take one of the girls into safety, but the other must remain with him. The young American is at a loss what to do; whether to leave his young sister to the mercy of the bandit, or his bride of a few days.

How the problem is solved is said to be brought about in a most startling and unusual manner.

In the supporting cast are Tom Moore, Marjorie Daw, Tom Forman, Mabel Van Buren, Lucien Littlefield and Horace B. Carpenter.

The third production is an Erbograph, "The Road Between," starring Marian Swayne. The release for June 28, which will probably be from the United States Amusement Corporation, is as yet announced.

Choose Gail Kane's Next

"The Unafraid," an original scenario by L. Case Russell, has been chosen as the next vehicle for Gail Kane. This will be produced under the direction of Henry King, who has but recently joined the directorial forces of the American Company, and will be released by the Mutual Film Corporation.

Miss Kane is now working on the finishing scenes of "The Woman in Black."
Favorite Mutual Star Leads in Week's Offering

MUTUAL presents Mary Miles Minter in "Periwinkle" as the chief attraction on its program for the week of June 11. The little star appears throughout the greater part of the story dressed in old-fashioned clothing and with a child at her side. She is the wife of the star of the company, and pictures the many troubles he has to take because of her husband's exalted position.

The comedy for the week, featuring George Ovey, is "Jerry's Getaway," ready June 14. Louis FitzRoy, Goldie Colwell and Janet Sully assist in the comedy, which is said to be much in demand.

In the thirteenth story of "The Railroad Raiders," scheduled for June 15, Jimmie Dale at last meets the "face to face," but at the time he is partly unconscious from a blow and has only a dim remembrance of her face. Mutual Tours Around the World and Keel Life, with an issue of the Mutual Weekly, complete the program.

Dramatic Problem Offering by Vitagraph

Vitagraph's Blue Ribbon feature for the week of June 11, will be "The Question," featuring Alice Joyce and Harry Morey. It is a story of contemporary times, the theme of which deals with the question of whether the fulfillment of a life-long ambition should supersede love, and depicts the struggles of a woman, who found the solution through defying the laws of convention.

"The Question" was written by Lawrence McCloskey, and produced under the direction of Perry Vekroff. Supporting Alice Joyce and Harry Morey is a cast composed of such well-known players as Charles Kent, Gladden James and Edward Davis. The story tells of the struggle of a young chemist, John Stedman, who, according to the conditions of a will, is forced to choose between his work on discovery of a new serum, and marriage with the girl he loved. Illness falls upon him, and the girl realizing she needs him, and torn between the question of love versus convention, decided in favor of the former. The very climax comes a "dream" ending, and all is well.

Latest Pickford Expected to Break Booking Records

That the new Mary Pickford as disclosed in Cecil B. deMille's current creation for Artcraft, "A Romance of the Redwoods," has taken a firm hold on the heart of the country, has become an established fact, it is announced by Walter E. Greene, president of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation.

In confirmation of the splendid notices given this picture in the trade and daily press said Mr. Greene, "A Romance of the Redwoods" discloses another great triumph for Mary Pickford, which is borne out by the fact that this production bids fair to establish a new record in the way of bookings and extended engagements. One trade paper said: "Exhibitors will find this picture a certain drawing card, a picture of undoubted merit, with much human appeal." The production has more than fulfilled the prediction that it would be found a 'certain drawing card.' It has positively established itself as one of the greatest attractions of the cinema theatre.

New Character Introduced in Bray Picto Cartoons

In the seventeenth release of the Paramount-Bray Pictographics two new individuals have been introduced, the first being Wallace Carson, the well-known boxer, who has just joined the art staff of the Bray studios, and second "Otto Luck," a character which Mr. Carson has conceived, and which, if the initial cartoon in which he appears is a fair sample of his work, is going to take his place with "Colonel Heeza Liar" and the "Quack Doodle Family" as a prime favorite with motion picture fans. In this edition there are also two new kinks of the picture, the perfected results of experiments undertaken years ago by the plant wizard, Luther Bankhead, and which has made it possible to grow material value on the desert. Another very interesting subject dealt with is the school which is being conducted in New York for "the White Wings," for there is a right and a wrong way even to wield a common thing as a broom.

Forbidden City and Oppen Car- toon Pathe Split Reel

Released June 17, "The Forbidden City of Pekin, China," an International-Pathe split reel, showing various scenes of the city, most of chief interest being shots of ancient palaces. "Happy Hourigan, Around the World in Half an Hour," an animated cartoon by F. Opper, completes the reel. This is full of good stuff.

Boxing Pictures and U. Weekly

The only motion pictures ever made of Benny Leonard, who won the light-weights championship from Freddie Welsh, will be seen in the current issue of the Universal Animated Weekly. These pictures were made two days before the New York boy captured the light-weights title, and are the first pictures he has ever posed for the screen. It is stated on reliable authority that Benny, through his picture to the screen, shows up to great advantage in this picture.

Ten Thousand Chinese Soldiers Ready for World War

The first and only picture ever taken of Lieu. Col. Hu Hung, President of the Chinese Republic, has reached this country. After much effort, the necessary arrangements were consummated between Vice-President Feng and the International Film Service, and an American cameraman was cordially received at Peking. He visited the executive palace and secured a remarkable picture of President Li at his desk; in conference with his secretary and War Minister.

In the beautiful conservatory attached to the palace the President again invited the cameraman to review with him a body of ten thousand Chinese troops, "that the great United States may see how China is preparing," for her artillery and cavalry swept past the reviewing party in precise military array and engaged in a series of tactical maneuvers for the benefit of American and British officers. An aeroplane swept overhead and well-drilled companies quickly assembled field wireless outfits. The pictures prove in a marvelous fashion the efficiency of the new Chinese army.

They show an interesting commentary on the present world war. Before the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany the Chinese troops were drilled by German officers. Hence the seemingly incongruous Prussian goosestep of the Chinese infantrymen.

These remarkable pictures are now being shown in the International weekly split-reel, in conjunction with its animated cartoon comedies, released through Pathe.

Gaumont Featurettes for the Week of June 17

In Mutual's "Tours Around the World No. 33, released June 19, three wildly differing places in Europe are seen. First comes Nantes, France, a seaport on the western coast. This city, near the month of the Loire, is rich in buildings of picturesque value. Strange ferryboats depend on rafts on bridges far overhead. Pozzobon, near Naples, Italy, contains many pictures of architectural remains of the classical Roman period. There are several pretty temples and an amphitheater almost as large as that at Rome. A Russian village in winter makes plain as no description possibly could the beauties and miseries of the long cold season. The photography here is exceptionally beautiful.

Mutual Weekly No. 129, which is issued just at the close of the whirlwind Liberty Loan campaign, will contain the highly interesting pictures of the last days of the last "big push" for money to carry on the war. The release date is June 20.

The third "featurette" from Gaumont studios this week is "Reel Life," No. 60, released June 21. "Knitting Homely" takes spectators for a visit to a large mill, where every process is carried on before the camera. "Reclaiming the Everglades" shows America's richest farmland in the making. "The Perfect Child" shows the little girl who won the Panama-Pacific Exposition contest. "An Auto-Driven Train" is a picture of the latest transportation method at summer amusement parks. The management of the Rialto, New York's leading motion picture theatre, has secured "A Tilt Off the Water" from this reel. It is something entirely out of the ordinary, made in France, which will prove highly diverting and certainly interesting.

Alice Howell in a Comedy of the Circus

During her service to the screen Alice Howell, star of Century Comedies, has undertaken many pretenses to create laughable situations, but has never tried the circus as a "stunt" inspiration until, under General Director J. G. Blystone, she lately completed "Alice of the Sawdust," a two-reeler in which she impersonates a daring queen of the arena.

President Julius Stern, of Century Comedies, announces this subject as the release to be distributed on State rights, following the three features in which Miss Howell has already been announced—"Ballonatics," "Automaniacs," and "Neptune's Naughty Daughter." In these subjects Miss Howell made her initial appearances as a busy woman, taking her place in opposition to male stars who have hitherto had the comedy field all to themselves.

State rights buyers are reported taking a spirited interest in Miss Howell's Century animat-humpr-provokers. The marketing is done by President Stern from the Mecca Building, New York, Director Blystone operating in Hollywood, Calif., for the production end of the enterprise.

Burton Holmes in Ceylon

Burton Holmes in his seventy-first weekly tour around the world gives an interesting contrast between the rich and the poor in the Far East, under the title of "Bread Lines in Occident and Orient." No saying is more true than that "East is East and West is West," yet there is much that is similar in humanity all over the world, regardless of color or class, clothes or conditions. We hear of poor people and the East has its starving millions; even in far-away Ceylon there are great hearts breathing beneath their dark skins, and Mr. Holmes shows some of the methods of taking care of the people in his travels to Ceylon.

He faithfully depicts their characters and their habits.
U. B. O. and Exhibitors’ Circuit Take Ivan Film

“One Law for Both,” Going Into Twenty Big Time Theatres - Ninety-Nine Houses Will Get It from Newly Organized Board of Trade

FOLLOWING the run of “One Law for Both,” the Ivan Film Productions’ latest release, which is now being shown at the Lyric theatre, Broadway and Forty-second street, New York City, the picture will be shown in all of the theatres controlled by the United Booking Offices, and the newly organized Exhibitors Board of Trade, according to an announcement made this week by the Merit Film Corporation, of 130 West Forty-sixth street, New York City, the distributor for the production in New York and New Jersey.

The booking of “One Law for Both” in the entire chain of theatres controlled by the United Booking Offices is considered to be one of the most important bookings obtainable in the East. The circuit comprises over twenty theatres in and about the Metropolitan district. Speaking of booking the attraction in his theatres, J. J. Murdock, one of the executives of the United Booking Offices, said:

“One Law for Both” is the first attraction that we have booked for our entire circuit, since the adaptation of our new policy of showing only those motion pictures that could be considered first class attractions, even when in direct competition with the first companies of legitimate productions.

“We have had submitted for our consideration every big picture released since the formation of the rule— the greatest universal interest, in the discussion of the single standard of morality for the two sexes.

“Mr. Abramson, the author-director has handled the subject with the greatest tact and delicacy, without, however, sacrificing any of the dramatic strength of his story.”

One of the officials of the Exhibitors Board of Trade, which controls ninety-nine theatres in and about New York, expressed similar views with regard to the production.

Summer Runs of “Daughter of Gods” Planned

“A Daughter of the Gods,” William Fox’s $1,000,000 spectacle, is booking now for high-class theatres during the summer and season of 1917 and 1918.

This spectacular Fox fantasy, with Annette Kellerman in the stellar role, is probably the best summer entertainment that could be offered for the silent stage. The very nature of the production—the greatest aquatic film ever screened—makes it ideal for showings in the writing months.

Many of the biggest theatres in the country recognize the drawing power of “A Daughter of the Gods,” and instead of remaining dark through the summer, as they have in the past, they will project the Fox picture as a regular attraction.

To insure the standard of excellence observed in the past, it is announced that “A Daughter of the Gods” will not be booked at less than $1 top price.

Unprecedented Ad for “Motherhood” in Boston

“Motherhood,” the Brady Made World Film release which Manager Thomas Sorriero has booked for the Park theatre in Boston next week, has been getting some unheard of advertising in that city. For the first time in Boston’s history, a big advertising board has showed scenes of the picture on Boston Common.

Through the recruiting officers in charge of the army, navy and marine corps enlisting office in the city, Manager Sorriero arranged with Mayor Curley to allow the Park theatre to erect this big bulletin board on the Common. While some of the conservative aristocratic Bostonians registered a serious kick at first, they all agreed that anything that would aid enlistments was not only right, but Manager Sorriero has publicly been commended for his patriotism.

Photoplays the West Coast Is Taking to

The Williamson Brothers’ “The Submarine Eye,” which is being booked in Southern California and Arizona territory by William G. Colvin, opened Monday, May 21, at Trinity Auditorium, Los Angeles, and has played to fair business during the week, which is the length of the engagement. The undersea picture elicited many complimentary remarks from the Los Angeles photoplay critics, and it is very probable the subject will be shown at a more centrally located theatre at an early date. The prices for the opening engagement were from twenty-five to fifty cents.

Beginning May 28, the Triangle program will have two first run downtown houses in Los Angeles, Clune’s Broadway and the Woodley theatre. At the latter the Mack Smemett comedies are featured in connection with the Triangle drama, and a travelogue and a Mack Sennett novelty compose the bill.

Manager B. C. Cunningham of the Seattle Artcrafte Exchange, reports the first George M. Cohan subject, “Broadway Jones,” booked solidly until August 15. Mr. Cunningham recently took charge of the Seattle office, having been transferred there from the Philadelphia Artcraft Exchange, which he opened.

Demand for World-Brady Films in Washington Territory

Robert Smeltzer, manager of the Washington, D. C, World exchange, reports the Brady International productions greatly in demand in this territory. These feature the foreign stars, Regina Buldel, Albert Signer and Susan Grandais, and their initial presentation has been secured by Harry Crandall, directing manager of five large houses in Washington.

Sarah Bernhardt in “Mothers of France” and Alice Brady in “Maternity” are meeting with exceptional favor.

Every Gaumont Reel on the Rialto Program

A compliment to Gaumont Pictures was paid by the management of the Rialto, New York’s leading motion picture theatre, in the last week’s program. Every Gaumont single-reel was represented. “Tours Around the World” offered the palace at Versailles, France. “Reel Life” contributed “A Tilting Match on the Water,” and Gaumont’s Mutual Weekly entertains with late news.

Bernhardt Film Goes Strong

The house record for attendance for the past year at the Strand theatre, Toronto, was broken last week when “Mothers of France” stood them in line outside the theatre for the entire week. The Peerless Film Company claims to have sold bookings for two months in Ontario alone.
Edgar Lewis Starting on Next Production

While "The Bar Sinister" is running at the Broadway theatre, New York, its producer, Edgar Lewis, is completing preparations for his next special production, which is now well along toward the camera grinding stage. It will be another story by Anthony P. Kelly, whose creative genius is responsible for "The Bar Sinister," and like its predecessor, will depend upon its human interest rather than spectacular effects.

Many of its most important scenes will be made in the country surroundings, Ticonderoga, New York, where Mr. Lewis recently spent several weeks. Besides carefully selecting the locations for the picture he superintended the laying of plans for the building of a village street, which is now rapidly nearing completion, and plays an important part in the working out of the drama's novel plot.

The cast of Edgar Lewis' new production will include practically the whole company used by him in "The Barrier." Besides Mitchell Lewis, Hedda Nova, Victor Sutherland and other well-known members of both "The Barrier" and "The Bar Sinister" casts, Mabel Julian Scott will also be a prominent member of the company appearing in his coming production.

"Redemption," on Territorial Basis, Drawing Well

It was definitely announced last week that the big picture, "Redemption," featuring Evelyn Nesbit and her son, Russell Thaw, now playing at the George M. Cohan will be sold by state rights and will probably be handled from the sixth floor of the Putnam Building, 1493 Broadway, New York.

There is a big demand for seats at the Cohan, and during the past week hundreds have been turned away at each performance. It is said to be practically the only show in New York at the present selling out.

Intended for a two weeks' engagement at the Cohan, the run has been extended indefinitely, and at the present there is no sign of its decreasing in popularity.

TO THE EXHIBITOR:

C Often you are at a loss to know just who handles a state rights picture in your section—because of the lack of advertising that generally follows the disposal of territory.

C We have this information for you, complete and ready.

C Drop us a postal; and by return mail we will give you the buyer's name and address, our review, the cast, and other valuable and up-to-the-minute information. For the name of any state rights picture refer to our release page — "State Rights Releases — Current and Coming."

Markowitz Takes Up Other Angle of State Rights

D. S. Markowitz Discusses Proper Handling of Educational or Scenic Pictures—"Work with Exhibitor," His Advice

"THE handling of a state rights production depends a great deal on the subject matter of the picture," declares D. S. Markowitz, who has "Trip Through China," now showing at the Eltinge theatre, New York.

Mr. Markowitz discusses the state rights question from a new angle from that which is taken in the usual discussion of this question, taking the matter to the exhibitor and putting it up to him and the public in a manner which he says will guarantee success and leave no opening for disappointment.

"Before I dispose of a single territory," said Mr. Markowitz, "I am going to give the prospective buyer the benefit of the characteristics incident upon the proper handling of this sort of picture. For instance, I want to dispose of my product in a territory which has a city containing 500,000 population. I ask myself the question, 'what are the possibilities here?' Let us say that there are 10,000 teachers in this territory. Every one of those teachers will come and see a travel picture of this nature if the picture is properly exploited. If not, I dare say, that a third of them would not see it. Now, if these teachers see the pictures, this means that 50,000 pupils are going to follow in their footsteps unsolicited, but by virtue of the fact that their teachers have seen it and have recognized its educational value.

"In my opinion," continues Mr. Markowitz, "ten per cent of the population of every town will see a picture that is worth seeing at all. This percentage can be relied upon. In many instances, thirty and forty per cent. of the population are in attendance at one time or another. The seller of a state rights picture should not rest on his oars and be content with this deduction. He should endeavor to increase this percentage as much as possible. It helps him, it helps the exhibitor, and the next picture that seller has on the market is going to be taken up by the buyer and the exhibitor with no hesitancy, for that buyer and exhibitor can rest assured that the preliminary steps have been taken, and it only remains for him to bring it to the notice of his immediate public with the co-operation of the seller.

"The seller of a state rights picture," concluded Mr. Markowitz, "who is to have more than temporary success in his line, has to come to the point where he realizes that there is the exhibitor to be taken into consideration, and that this exhibitor cannot be dropped like a hot coal after the product has left the seller's hands."

Undersea Spectacle Exploited in Philadelphia

A new way of advertising "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" has been adopted by the Peerless Film Exchange of Philadelphia, which owns the rights in that territory. A vivid yellow submarine-shaped auto, carrying the advertisement of the theatres showing the picture tears around town at a rapid pace, a crowd quickly gathers whenever the machine stops.

The picture last week ended its run at the Garrick, where it is said to hold the record for pictures at this legitimate theatre since the "Birth of a Nation." Next week six neighborhood Philadelphia theatres will each have one week runs on the picture, with prices not less than a quarter.

Sociological Subject Finished

"Who's Your Neighbor," a seven-part production written by Willard Mack and described by the Master Drama Features Company as a realistic and convincing sociological play, was completed by Sidney Rankin Drew several days before he sailed for Europe to join the American Ambulance Corps.

The cast includes Christine Mayo, Evelyn Brent, Anders Randolf and Frank Morgan.
Postpone Premiere of “Jirso of MivSSKS, KI.ol’/ AM”

The premiere of “Jirso of MivSSKS, KI.ol’/ AM” has been postponed. The reason is not specified, but it is mentioned that some weeks will be necessary to break up the affair before it is placed before the audience.

Five-Part Feature, by Mysterious Director, Is Announced

MENSAH KLOPZ AND SPREIMER announce the entry of a dark horse into the state rights market in the shape of a five-reel feature, entitled “Whither Thomas Goed?” The mystery surrounding the attraction lies in the fact that it is claimed to be the work of one of the most famous directors in the industry, whose name for the present remains secret. Among other reasons the restrictions imposed by a contract with another company rendered it necessary for this gentleman to keep in the background.

The drama is described as thoroughly modern in every particular, embracing high society life, the atmosphere of stage and of the great West. Orin Johnson appears as the star.

The tale, briefly, deals with the love of the younger son of a wealthy family for a young actress. The prospective marriage is bitterly opposed by his relatives, among them an elder brother. The latter, informed by his physicians that he is suffering from a fatal malady and has only a few months to live, resolves to sacrifice himself for the family good and break up the affair.

With this end in view he makes love to the supposed siren, wins her consent to marriage, and, having willed her, goes with his wife to a Western ranch. There, music has been extended from his health and the new surroundings. He realizes that his wife is a worthy woman, whom he has learned to love and who returns his affection. His mother arrives at their home and is horrified at the turn things have taken. But her endeavors to separate the couple prove in vain, and all end happily for the devoted pair.

The picture has many homelike turns.

Postpone Premiere of “Curse of Eve”

“The Curse of Eve,” the multiple reel morality drama, produced by the Corona Company from the story of Wyeth, A. Hill, which was to have received its initial screening the last of May, will not be shown until the latter part of June, according to the announcement, last week, of the producers.

Several reasons have been given for the postponement of the premier of this cyclone screen document, the main one being the seriousness of the world-war situation, and based on the depth in which the United States will be involved.

The Corona Company, states it has already expended close to two hundred thousand dollars on this production, and it is estimated that an additional expenditure of another hundred thousand dollars will be necessary before it is placed before the public.

Buys King-Bees for N. J.

Nathan Hirsch of the Pioneer Feature Films Corporation, New York, has bought the King-Bees Billy West comedies for northern Jersey. He reports big business on “Back Stage,” the first of the releases.

Lust Exchange on Lookout for More Big Pictures

The Sidney B. Lust Exchange, representative of the Selznick productions and many state rights productions, has been increasing its output recently, taking over the territorial rights of some of the important films in different fields.

Lust controls “Twenty Thousand Injines” in his vicinity, and it is looking for long runs. “Civilization” is also being handled and is shortly going into the Auditorium, Baltimore, for three weeks. Rex Beach’s “The Barrier” is another big production handled, and makes its initial Washington appearance for two weeks. Special augmentation of the orchestra and a big music score is planned. The rights to “Mutt and Jeff” comedies for Washington territory have been acquired by Lust. Out of fifty-two houses, twenty-two have contracted for these comedies.

Billy West comedies and Ditmar educational, also “The Easiest Way,” are other subjects controlled and reported going well.

Matinee Policy” on “Birth” Is Successful

The policy adopted whereby “Birth,” the Eugenic Film Company’s first release, was made a matinee feature, is reported to have proved a boon to exhibitors in Greater New York. “A feature with a matinee profit” is the way the show men are now looking on this subject.

In twenty-one days, “Birth” was taken by the leading exhibitors on an average of three days each.

All the scenes in the picture were made in several of the leading hospitals in New York, and are exact in every detail. Each scene was taken under the direction of two leading physicians, whom are recognized authorities on babies.

Owing to the nature of this picture, the question of state rights has not been considered. However, territorial rights will be entertained from those, who will adhere to the policy that has been adopted for the presentation of “Birth.”

Merit Film Takes “One Law for Both” in Two States

Announcement was made this week by the Ivan Film Productions, Incorporated, that the rights to New York and New Jersey for its latest production “One Law for Both,” which was written and produced by Ivan Abramson, have been sold to the Merit Film Corporation, of 130 West Forty-sixth street, New York City.

Although the precise amount of money involved in the transaction was not made public at the time of the announcement, it is understood to be among the largest sums ever paid for the rights to the territory for any feature. The successful run of the picture at the Lyric theatre, Broadway and Forty-second street, New York City, is said to have done a great deal for the production in popularizing it among the public and exhibitors.

The Merit Film Corporation handles all the Ivan subjects in the territory, as well as a number of other important productions.
Why Does Man in Erie Buy from Branch in Philadelphia?

JOE FARNHAM, of Frohman Amusement Company, is not quite as optimistic as some others in the State rights field from which Motion Picture News has heard concerning the possibilities of dividing the country into distinct territories because as he puts it:

"So long as the sellers of State rights territory follow the personal dictates in this matter of selling territory instead of getting together and selling as a unit in regard to divisional territory, there is going to be confusion and each seller will have to look to himself for the decision on this phase of the business. A hundred or more representative State rights men working in this spirit which seems to prevail at the present, are not going to lay out set paths dividing any set territory from another, till they get together at that point unless they get together and systematically work it out as Motion Picture News has suggested.

"You go into a territory," continues Mr. Farnham, "and the buyer will say, 'sell me this and sell me that.' One doesn't an argument in the world to give him because the representative who had been there before with a State rights proposition sold him perhaps the very division which you think should not have been divided as it was. What are you going to do, lose that man's business because you think you should hold to a certain defined territory in the sale?

"This isn't right, of course, but it is just as right as it can be made under the present loose system of buying and disposing of territory. I am most heartily in favor of the plan as suggested by Motion Picture News and sincerely hope that it will receive the cooperation of every man interested in the State rights industry. When it does there is going to be a great change and one that will not alone place the buying and selling end of the business on a systematic basis, but will save time, expense and trouble to representation.

"System is the secret of all successful enterprise, for system means efficiency.

"Something should be done, that's sure. For example, let us consider the conditions that prevail in Erie in Pennsylvania and Buffalo, which is only a short distance away. The buyer in Erie by all logically reasoning should turn to Buffalo for his picture. But he doesn't, nor could he. The Frohman Picture Six and the Erie man, if he wants a picture, goes to Philadelphia, miles in excess of the distance from Erie to Buffalo. This is the evil that should be eliminated and it can be if only the line is preset and will work together. Of course, new branches will have to be established but first of all it must be decided where these branches will be set up in order to render the most assistance to all concerned.

"This is the step this is going to be taken and when it does it is going to work wonders. It is too bad that more earnest efforts have not been made before."

Jessie Goldberg, an associate of Mr. Farnham in promoting the Frohman interests, calls attention to a situation now prevailing in New Jersey which he states "should be rounded into a form which should at least take the semblance of a concrete proposition and not be shrouded in the abstract."

"I refer," Mr. Goldberg continued, "to the conditions now prevailing in Trenton and Newark. And this same condition doubtless prevails in other territories with which I am not so familiar.

"The buyer who wishes to purchase the rights to a production for the entire State of New Jersey, let us say, has a particular interest in these two cities in the exploitation of the picture which he has in mind. For the territory he bargains with a jobber in New York who holds the rights to the picture. 'Yes,' says the jobber, 'I'll let you have the rights to northern New Jersey, but the rights to the southern half or division of Jersey are held by a jobber in Western Pennsylvania.'

"Now this is all very well," Mr. Goldberg went on, "if one doesn't go back in his estimate and take into consideration censorship. The Pennsylvania Board of Censorship may pass adversely upon a picture which would be passed untouched in New York and vice-versa. Without further detail other than the above it is perfectly plain that this buyer has to keep a separate and distinct set of books in arriving at an estimate in round numbers of how he is coming out in the final reckoning, if not, where will he find himself?

"There he has New Jersey in toto but he has to see two different jobbers to obtain the rights, which fact in itself is not a hardship or even an appreciable inconvenience when compared to the situation which he is obliged to face when he considers the two boards of censorship. This picture which he purchases may have a record run in Newark and fall flat in Trenton, or again vice-versa.

"Isn't there some way by or through which this condition could be brought to point where concerted action could be taken and all concerned be given an open opportunity to meet face to face this proposition and figure accordingly. It will be said that this can be done now. Yes, it can be with a staff of efficiency experts and an equal number of bookkeepers who know New Jersey and Pennsylvania like a book. The idea in this business shouldn't be to see how hard conditions may be made but how simple and expedients.

"The Motion Picture News has inaugurated a campaign which in its comprehensiveness will no doubt clarify such conditions as the ones 1 describe, and I think it will. The right start has been made and co-operation is had at the State rights representatives work in conjunction with it, there will be a change and one for the better.

Brenon to Complete New Russian Picture in Ten Weeks

HERBERT BRENON, who but recently commenced operations on "The Fall of the Romanoffs," a picture which he stated would be one of the biggest and finest pictures he has ever done, is determined to have the piece ready in ten weeks' time.

Already he has taken many scenes with the exiled monk, Hlidor, the great opponent of the czar. Mr. Brenon is enthusiastic about his new picture and stated:

"'The Fall of Russia' will be probably the biggest picture I have ever made, and while, perhaps, not the most mature in as far as numbers and spectacles are concerned, it bears a far greater message and a deeper significance than any subject I have ever attempted. It depicts the struggle of a people over the tyranny of a corrupt court and the consequent triumph over autocracy. The theme is all the more gripping because it is true, absolutely true. Not a word of it is fiction."

Hlidor himself has either lived through all the incidents or heard them repeated from eye-witnesses. He was at the court, he had access to the Czar and Czarina. He knew their weaknesses, and he knows their power, the power that for so little of their own, his, has been a subject. I have had to do much research work for my picture, and besides consulting the Russian authorities, I have come into contact with Russians of all classes.

Many Important Western Houses Take Art Dramas

Word from the All-Star Feature Distributors, Art Dramas Exchange for several Western states, announces that the program is gaining ground in that district with unexpected speed. Sol Lesser, president of the corporation, says that the success of the program in his territory is far greater than he had ever imagined it would be.

Mr. Lesser has been actively exploiting Art Dramas for only four weeks. The Los Angeles office of the concern, under the management of Irving M. Lesser, has signed up thirty-four important houses in this territory. A whirlwind advertising campaign has been carried on.

This branch of the All-Star has succeeded in breaking into the best houses in such large towns as San Diego, San Bernadino, Riverside, Venice, in California and Phoenix, Tucson and others in Arizona. The San Francisco office has just announced that the program has met with hearty response in the finest suburban theatre west of Chicago, has booked Art Dramas and will show one a week from now on.
New Standard Branch Open

That Charles W. Stombaugh had been appointed manager of a newly opened branch office at 406 Film Exchange Building, Minneapolis, Minn., was the announcement made this week by the Standard Film Corporation, making a total of four offices handling the enormous territorial distribution of Art Dramas productions.

Stombaugh goes to the Standard Film Corporation after four years with the General Film organization, as manager of one of their largest exchanges. Mr. Stombaugh is very widely acquainted among motion picture men, and this, coupled with his ability and experience, will make him a real asset to the Standard.

Handling of Divorce Film Is Given N. Y. Firm

Distribution of "Should She Obey?" which has been crowding the La Salle theatre, Chicago, the past few weeks, has been placed in the hands of the Renowned Features Corporation, at 1600 Broadway, New York.

This subject brings to the screen an array of public men and women, governors, judges, clergymen, senators and social workers, in addition to a cast of well-known players of the Arizona Film Company.

The basis of the story is founded on investigations by Lieutenant Governor Barret O'Hara, who had the major part in making the picture. Mr. O'Hara was a member of the Illinois Vice Commission, and after the Chicago red light district was cleaned up he turned his attention to the divorce question.

Chance for Live Buyers in "Mutt and Jeff" Pictures

For the purpose of informing state rights buyers operating in the territories of Iowa and Nebraska, and in both the Kansas and Missouri sections his product was not receiving the proper distribution as compared with other territories.

"Undine" Producer at Work on Sea Story

Henry Otto, the producer who made the feature "Undine," has been engaged by a new syndicate, headed by M. P. Hanson, to direct the first of a series of features for the open market.

The story is an original one, savoring of the sea, and Mr. Otto considers it the best vehicle he has ever been handed to work from.

Big Crowd Applauds "Bar Sinister" on Opening

An overflow audience witnessed the initial presentation on Sunday night, May 20, of "The Bar Sinister," Edgar Lewis' photodrama, at the Broadway theatre, under direction of Frank G. Hall. Notables of stage and screen were present by the score.

Added interest was given to the picture by reason of the fact that practically the same cast that made "The Barrier," an artistic triumph, was seen in "The Bar Sinister," including Mitchell Lewis, Victor Sutherland, also of "The Barrier," and Hedda Nova and Jules Cowles have important roles in the new production.

A stage setting, specially constructed by Lee Lash and depicting a turpentine forest in Georgia, with darky cabins in the foreground, served to heighten the effect of the picture as all of the scenes of "The Bar Sinister" are laid "somewhere below the Mason-Dixon Line." And another interesting feature was the prologue, which ran for about five minutes prior to the start of the picture, and during which a group of negroes sang Southern melodies to the strumming of banjos and guitars.

Old Biograph Stars in Film Never Before Presented

The Special Attractions Company, 1339 Vine street, Philadelphia, has the entire state rights to the "Wheel of Life," a Biograph release, with Mary Pickford, Henry Walthall and Mack Sennett in the star roles.

Although made several years ago, this picture is just being released. It will have its first showings at the Keystone, Philadelphia, and at the Broadway, Camden, N. J., both Zimmerman houses. Each will run the picture a continuous week. Special music has been arranged for the picture, which treats of the civil war.

“The Immigrant,” Next Chaplin Comedy, Is Completed

Charlie Chaplin’s next picture has been completed, and is titled “The Immigrant.” No release date has been set. The work and care which has been put into the Chaplin picture has made it impossible to follow any set schedule in releasing the Chaplin-Mutuals.

Many of the scenes in “The Immigrant” are taken in the steerage of an ocean liner. Charlie plays the role of an immigrant, bound for the land of liberty. Arriving in America without funds, he discovers that money is not picked up on the street, as he supposed, and he begins the game of bluff to a high cost of living.

Charlie, penniless, attempts to get a meal for himself and the hungry Edna in a cheap “hash house,” and his efforts to stall off the check provide Chaplin with opportunities for the sort of comedy which constitutes the American way. He drinks cup after cup of coffee, and finally manages to secure a generous tip for the waiter, whereupon he is ushered out by the effusive waiter and smiling proprietor.

Shaping Production Plans for New McClure Series

McClure Pictures is rapidly completing its plans for producing the series of five-reel features that will follow “Seven Deadly Sins.” The scenarios for the first three five-reelers, in which Shirley Mason will be starred, are being whipped into shape, and production will begin within a few days.

McClure’s is being searched for several months for unusual stories that would be particularly suited to Miss Mason. The editorial staffs of McClure’s Magazine and The Ladies’ World have aided in the search and are acting as advisory boards in shaping the scenarios into plays of unusual dramatic appeal and charm.

A nation-wide advertising campaign, such as that behind “Seven Deadly Sins,” will be prepared as an aid to the exhibitor who shows the new McClure series.

Universal Re-Signs Paton

Stuart Paton, Universal director, has signed a new two-year contract with that organization.

Paton’s first big picture was “Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea,” the screen adaptation of Jules Verne’s work. He followed this with the serial, “The Voice on the Wire.” At present Paton is directing “The Gray Ghost,” a serial which promises to eclipse his previous efforts in this field.

Lew Fields with Selig?

William N. Selig is reported to have engaged Lew Fields to appear in “The Barker,” a Selig film feature.
Paramount Enlarges on Open Booking Plan

One Hundred and Four Subjects Placed on Market for All Exhibitors Number Includes Pictures of the Most Noted Stars

The success resulting from placing fifty-two Paramount pictures on the open market has led Hiram Abrams, president of that corporation, to direct all Paramount exchanges to place the first 104 pictures on the market for release to all exhibitors, irrespective of the restrictive feature clause in the Paramount contract which formerly made this impossible. These subjects will be classed as Paramount Preferred Pictures. New prints have been supplied all exchanges.

In this list of pictures there are eight Mary Pickford pictures, seven in which Muriel Ostriche Clark is starred, four of Blanche Sweet, three featuring John Barrymore, two in which H. B. Warner made great successes, four of the greatest successes in which Robert Harron was featured, three of the best Lois Weber productions, and others in which such stars as Pauline Frederick, Marie Doro, Dustin Farnum, William Farnum, Henrietta Crosman, Edward Abele, Karl Koenen, Bertha Kaliech, Sessee Hayakawa, Robert Eleson, Marion Ardinkle, Max Pickman, David Huggins, Charles Richman, Gladys Hanson, Tyrone Powers, Theodore Roberts, Adele Farrington, Mary Irwin, Bessie Barriscale, William S. Hart, John Emerson, George Rean, Florence Rees, Edith Taliaferro, Ada Desks, Fannie Ward, Carlyle Blackwell, Lenore Ulric, Laura Hope Crews, Violet Henning, Marshall Neilan, William H. Crane, Winifred Kingston, Wallace Eddinger, Kathleen Emerson, Elsie Janis, Ethel Wynn, Marion Moreland, Alice Dowe, Fritz Schell, Rita Jolivet, William Elliott, Betty Beirne, Victor Moore, Hazel Dawn, Ina Claire, John Mason, Henry Ainley, Edgar Selwyn, Myrtle Stedman, Manu Allan, Charlotte Walker, Samuel Bernard and George Fawcett appear.

One of the chief features that mark these pictures as of distinct value to the exhibitor, is that they are the pictures that most of this list of stars made their initial how to the public in.

Triangle Girl Progressing

Ruth McCord, the Triangle-free girl, who is traveling to the four corners of the United States on an Indian motorcycle, is well started on the first lap of her long journey, having left San Diego on May 13. Her route includes, for the first three months, Baker-field, Fresno, San Jose, San Francisco, Stockton, Sacramento, Calif., Portland, Ore., Seattle, Bellingham, Everett, Spokane, Wash., Butte, Pocatello, Idaho, Ogden, Salt Lake, Utah and Denver, Colo. Her appearance in each city and in each Triangle theatre is creating much comment.

New Farnum Picture Begins

William Farnum, Fox star, began work last week on a new picture, the first Farnum film at the Fort Lee studio since 1915. Frank Lloyd, who has directed all of the Farnum photodramas in California, will direct the new feature.

Marjorie Rambeau Ends Work on "Mary Moreland"

Frank Powell has finished the filming of "Mary Moreland," a picturization of Marie Van Vorst's novel of that name and the sixth of the series of feature pictures starring Marjorie Rambeau, which will be distributed through Mutual.

The surrounding cast includes Robert Elliott, Augusta Burmester, Agnes Eyre, Aubrey Beattie, Gene LaMore, Frank Ford and Fraser Tarbet.

Sinking of Teuton Ships Shown in "The Greatest Power"

Preliminary announcement from Rolfe Photoplays, states that the German high seas flotilla will be seen in action in a picture "The Greatest Power" released on Metro's program the latter part of June, with Ethel Barrymore in the leading role. This is said to be the only pictures ever made of the sinking of the Gneisenau, Spandau and Emden, German battleships.

Mr. Rolfe does not say where he secured the film, nor what the cost was.
In "Bab the Fixer," the production on which Jackie Saunders is now working for distribution through Mutual, the star will be seen once more in the midst of farm life.

Half of the scenes picture life on a ranch and the other half show the stock exchange, with its frenzy of financial strife.

Jackie Saunders is the child of a broker who lost his money and takes his family to a ranch. Bab falls in love with Sterling, the owner of the adjoining ranch, and is sent away to school to break up the affair.

Meanwhile, oil discovered on the ranch brings a fortune to Bab’s family but separates Mr. and Mrs. Porter. Bab starts in to fix everything up, and does so in the extent of nursing her father back to health, effecting a reconciliation between her father and mother and getting her own way in regard to Sterling.

Herz Has Laughable Part in Selig

Issued June 4

A Selig comedy-drama with Ralph Herz, "The Mystery of Number 47," is announced for release June 4 by K.-E.-S. E. J. Storer Cloumont was the author. In support of Mr. Herz appears Nellie Hartley, Louizeta Valentine, Edgar Murray, Jr., James Fulton, Fred Eckhart, Casson Ferguson and Lloyd Sedgwick. Ottis B. Thayer directed.

The story has to do with an elderly gentleman who collects china and writes of the minor poets of the Sixteenth Century. Without any cause whatsoever on his part, Fate snatches the gentleman out of obscurity, and he is described in the sensational press of two continents as a dastardly murderer. Great rewards are offered for his apprehension.

But the elderly collector of china accomplishes good in his misfortune for he is instrumental in punishing the Bishop of Bedford, and joining the hearts and hands of Lord Francis Phillimore, of the Horse Guards Blue and Eva Wilson, lady’s housemaid—she was no housemaid at all!

In "Girl, Glory," Margery Bennett Makes Debut

Margery Bennett, the younger sister of Enid Bennett, plays an important part in her sister’s latest screen success, "The Girl, Glory," by C. Gardner Sullivan, in which Enid is presented by Thomas H. Ince.

Margery has only been in this country for a few months, having left her home in Australia to join her sister in screen work, and this is her first prominent part since joining the Ince forces.

As chum of Glory Wharton, the granddaughter of a Civil War veteran, she is said to display marked aptitude in her rendition of the quaint characterization, which is enhanced by her appealing childlikeness.

Mrs. Vernon Castle as She Appears in Her First Patho-Gold Recess Play, "Sylvia of the Secret Service"
Goldwyn Accomplishments in Half Year Existence

Gathers in Big Stars with Ability, and Executives and Specialists Forms Distributing Organizations and Foot Completes Films

Looking back over the six months' period of its existence, Goldwyn Picture Corporation records with pride a progress rarely paralleled by a film producing organization. In reality, inasmuch as the first two months of the company's existence was devoted to internal organization, it might be said that but four months have been devoted to production.

A detailed account of the things accomplished includes the organization and operation of two studios; completion of five productions; organization of the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation; organization of the Canadian distributing body; booking of largest houses in the country for first runs; leasing of branch offices throughout America to open June 15 and preparation for foreign distribution.

Beginning with half of a floor in the Rogers Peet Building at 16 East Forty-second street (New York), for its executive offices Goldwyn has expanded into the occupancy of an entire floor and still finds itself crowded. These facilities do not provide the necessary space for the sheltering of Goldwyn's New York Exchange, which will have to find other quarters nearby.

One of the great advantages of the Goldwyn organization is that it is owned in its entirety by the men and women who are its officers and operating executives. Its policies and methods are shaped entirely from within, and are subject to no dictation from without. The financing of the corporation from within has been a big feat, especially when it is noted that twelve completed productions in advance of the first release in September involves an outlay of considerably more than $1,000,000, and the opening of a chain of exchanges in June involves an overhead till September 1 of at least half of that amount, aside from really leases that extend over other years.

Goldwyn's method of operation was planned before the announcement of the company's formation in December. Altered conditions in the industry have caused little or no change at all in the shaping of the company's future policies, for the Goldwyn owners foresaw the significant changes that were to come.

Most important of all policies from the exhibitors' standpoint is the Goldwyn adoption of the irresistible system of marketing pictures along lines followed by great merchants and manufacturers.

Announcement is to be made in a few days of Goldwyn's branch managers throughout the country, and of the address of the new chain of Goldwyn exchanges both in the United States and Canada.

Former Ziegfeld Folly Favorite in Screen Debut

Olive Thomas, the Harrison Fisher girl, will make her screen debut in the latest Ince-Triangle comedy, "Madcap Madge," by H. Cecil Smith, in which she is presented as star by Thomas H. Ince. Miss Thomas, joyously, fits through every scene of this story, which contains not a single tear.

As the play unrolls one sees the "Madcap" in a finishing school, where she is being polished to the satisfaction of her socially ambitious family. Then she is expelled, because of girlish pranks, and decides to join her family in Florida, where the older sister is endeavoring to capture an elusive title. The action is fast, and the pure fun derived from the escapades of Madge is said to be unlimited.

Charles Gunn, Dorcas Matthews, Aggie Herring, Jack Livingston, J. Barney Sherry, J. Frank Burke and Gertrude Claire are in the supporting cast.

O. Henry's Run Two Weeks

An unusual testimonial to a short length subject has been accorded the O. Henry pictures released by General Film. Originally booked into the Washington theatre, Detroit, for a week, "The Cop and the Anthem" was billed for a second week at the house. "Past One at Rooney's" was also repeated for a second week at the same house, while "Service in Love" was extended from four days to a whole week at the Madison theatre.

The Detroit branch manager of General, D. Prince, has already thirty-nine contracts per week for the O. Henry's in the Detroit district.

Mutual Releases "Heroic France"

Heralded as one of the most thrilling war pictures ever made, and taken by Photographer Merle La Voy during twenty-two months on battle fronts in France, "Heroic France" was made available June 4 by Mutual under their contracts with Mr. La Voy.

It is claimed there is nothing uncertain about these war pictures. Mr. La Voy made them under the authority of the American Relief Clearing House and he took the same chances in filming them that a combatant takes. Verdun was still under bombardment when the pictures of that ruined citadel were taken. Shells were bursting within less than a quarter of a mile of the photographer when he made the pictures.

La Voy's life wasn't worth a picayune to the First Aid Corps, because La Voy was a mere adventurer, making pictures. He had a "green pass," which means "let him alone." The young American was let alone and he got the pictures.

As an introductory to the eight reels the spectator is first taken to Paris, where closeups of celebrities in the war are shown. Among the famous men registered on the film are ex-Premier Briand, ex-Premier Georges Clemenceau, President Poincare, and Lord Herbert Kitchener—the latter being photographed a few weeks before his death in the sinking of the British cruiser on which he was a passenger.

Cameraman Accident Victim

While filming the battery of the New York National Guard drilling on the parade ground at Fort Slocum last week, A. Wertheim, Universal cameraman, was injured and had his camera smashed to bits when two teams of horses attached to one of the batteries bolted on a sharp turn.

Swayne Production Progressing

Joseph Levering has made considerable progress in the making of Marion Swayne's second Erbograph production, which is to be released on Art Dramas program late in June. Many prominent actors are in the cast of this picture, which is to be a comedy-drama of great heart-appeal.
Rosen Forms Company to Produce and Distribute

Quiet and without a word of his plans reaching the trade in advance, Irwin Rosen, who has been connected with several theatrical productions, has organized a new company to be known as the Progress Feature Picture Company. Associated with him are several men of wealth, according to the announcement, who have not before been connected with the industry. Offices of the company are in the Fulton theatre building, 206 West Forty-sixth Street, New York City.

The Progress Feature Picture Company will not only be its own manufacturer, but its own exhibitor. Roy L. McCordell, who is one of the best known picture writers in the country and a pioneer in the business, is one of the active heads of the new company and will have entire charge of the preparation of all scenarios.

The first picture to be produced and exhibited by the new company will be an adaptation made by Mr. McCordell of George Elliot's masterpiece, "Daniel Deronda." Dramatically and scenically, the picture, it is claimed, will be one of the most important of the coming season.

This will not be Miss Kirkham's first appearance with Mutual. She will be remembered as Marion Dane in "The Devil's Assistant," in which Margarita Fischer was starred.

Miss Kirkham made her screen debut with the Reliance company, and since that time has been seen in Balboa, Morosco, Clune, Pollard, Fine Arts and Universal productions.

French "Tanks" and Topicals in Mutual Weekly

Curiosity regarding the "tanks," which the French are putting in the field, is satisfied for all those who have seen Gaspard's "The Weakness of the Strong," which will be released through Mutual some time in July. Miss Kirkham has an important role in the production. She appears as an adventurous married woman who loves to play with fire, and is not content unless she is carrying on a flirtation with some young admirer.

Outline of World-Brady Activities for Summer

New Stars to Appear in Plays

Carlsile, Milton Sills and Jean Angelo--Florence Nash May Sign

Six-picture dramas simultaneously under way at the Peerless Studio, is part of the World-Brady summer campaign, which calls for the appearance also of several stars who are as yet strangers to the screen and of a number of players new to World Pictures.

"First of all," announced Mr. Brady, "Mary Nash will begin shortly upon the three pictures for which she was engaged some time ago. These will keep her going at high speed for the entire summer, as, in addition to studio work in the daytime she will continue in the leading feminine role of "The Man Who Came Back," at the Playhouse.

"I expect that Florence Nash, the other member of the gifted pair of Nash girls, will attach her signature to one of our contracts before long." Mary Nash, as leading man for Ethel Clayton, and he will make his first appearance in this capacity in "Chansons," which is about completed. The story of this play is laid partly in New York, but mainly in Georgia, and the scenes photographed in the South are of quite extraordinary beauty.

"The principal male character in Kitty Garvin's "The Divine Sacrifice," upon which we are now at work, is being interpreted by Jean Angelo, whose engagement as leading man with Sarah Bernhardt was interrupted by the illness of the star. M. Angelo is in America on furlough while recovering from the most recent of his wounds sustained in action.

"In addition to all this, we are starting upon a new play of Revolutionary times, called "Betsy Ross," in which Alice Brady plays the title-role. This will be a very realistic production, and many of the scenes will be photographed in and around the original Betsy Ross home. George Washington and other outstanding personalities of the period appear in the course of this story."

Essanay Players Busy on Productions for Early Summer

"Land of the Long Shadows," the next Essanay feature on K-E-S-E program will be released June 18. Jack Gardiner in this picture makes his screen debut.

Having completed "Filling His Own Shoes," which is released June 11, Bryant Washburn has started work on "The Man Who Was Afraid." This picture will be a version of the story by Mary Brecht Pulver, published in the Saturday Evening Post, and hinges on President Wilson's call for men.

Taylor Holmes is now engaged in the preliminary scenes of his first screen production, "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship." This is a comedy-drama, and will be ready sometime in July.

Aside from these features, Essanay is releasing through the K-E-S-E its series of child problem plays under the general title, "Do Children Count?" This series, which features little Mary McAlistair, was inaugurated June 6, and is being released at the rate of one unit a week. While all of these pictures hinge on vital problems concerning the rearing of children, each one presents a separate story, complete in itself and bears an individual title, each dealing with some distinct psychological feature, and all tend to a realization of the betterment of home environment.

"The Guiding Hand" was the first of the "Do Children Count?" series. This was followed by "The Wonderful Event," then "Steps to Somewhere." The next three of these productions, just announced, will be "The Yellow Umbrella," "A Place in the Sun," and "Where Is My Mother?" There will be twelve in the series.

"Mr. Pringle and Success," the latest of the Black Cat features, was released June 9.

Two King-Bees Each Month

King-Bee Films Corporation, in reply to numerous inquiries, announces that it will release two comedies a month until further notice. The fifth release of the series is in the hands of the cutter, but a title has not yet been assigned to the picture.

Billy West, principal comedian, is under a long-term contract with the company.
Second "Stingaree" Series is Near Completion

Kalem Has Completed Fifteen Episodes of Picture Under New Producing Plan Almost Same Cast as Was in Original Series

ALTHOUGH not a single episode of Kalem's new series production, "The Further Adventures of Stingaree," has been released, there are at present in the Kalem offices fifteen subjects of this series, cut, titled, and fully edited, ready to be handed over to the General Film Company for distribution. This rather unusual state of affairs is a result of the Kalem Company's policy to produce the entire series before releasing the first episode. Such a policy was adopted, despite the impatience of thousands of exhibitors for the return of "Stingaree," in order that the slightest detail would not be overlooked in preparing these stories, which, written especially for the screen by the famous English writer, F. W. Heming, cost the Kalem Company what is claimed to be a record price to secure.

The novel nature of Mr. Heming's new stories promises to be one of the features of the series. Each one, it is claimed, contains a strikingly original "idea," with a lot of heart interest, a dash of comedy, and big, thrilling moments of powerful drama.

As in the first "Stingaree" series, the cast will be headed by Todd Woodman in his original role of Stingaree. Exhibitors will remember the "hit" that this actor made with their fans in the picturesque character of the gentleman bushranger, and many have written that they are waiting patiently to see the familiar figure with the white coat and monocle, astride his famous white horse, Paul C. Hurst, the creator of the role of the black-whiskered, irrepressible Howie, will also be seen in the series.

With such high class stories, a capable cast and artistic direction, the Kalem Company feels confident that they have a worthy successor to the "Stingaree" series. "We have never been able to release a series of pictures with greater assurance of instantaneous success," said William Wright, an official of the Kalem Company.

Third Arbuckle Comedy Is "A Rough House"

"A Rough House" is the third of the series of Paramount-Arbuckle Comedies that Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle will appear in. The latest comedy was christened by the robust comedian. This picture will be released to all exhibitors.

Such was the success of the first two comedies, "The Butcher Boy" and "A Reckless Romeo," that it has been necessary for Paramount to increase the number of prints for the third picture. The phenomenal success of the first comedy was surpassed on the second, and the third is bound to break all records.

In this third picture, Fatty is said to have left nothing undone or untouched to make it the most hilarious production he has ever appeared in. He actually hired the largest cabaret in New York City to act in a number of the scenes. Then, too, he believes he has succeeded in getting a story that is wonderfully fitted for his characteristics, and one in which he has been able to pull more of his trick stunts than he ever did before in a two-reeler.

The story deals with Mr. and Mrs. Rough, who live in a little Rough House by the sea. Mrs. Rough's mother arrives on the scene. Rough is a gay blade when away, but the day after a "party" trouble begins.

The picture shows the activities of the American aviation squad and the hasty preparations of the United States naval forces to repel invasion by both air and water.

Ray Comedies Will Be of Original Nature

In the pictures in which Johnny and Emma Ray will appear, released through General Film, the male musical star is said to essay a type of screen portrayal absolutely away from anything heretofore attempted by the various film comedians.

The first film by the Rays is "Coughing Higgins," and will be released June 11. This will be followed at regular weekly intervals by single reel comedies. A large studio has been erected at Cliffside, N. J., for the production of these pictures.

The supporting company includes Billy Shane, Edward Boulden and Clare Irwin. Joseph T. Farrell, writer of many sketches and scenarios, has prepared the scripts for the Rays.

Finish June Caprice Film

June Caprice finished her eighth William Fox picture play last week, under the direction of John G. Adolfi. The screen drama was made at the Fort Lee (N. J.) studios. Its title has not yet been determined.
Strong Story Provided for Mrs. Vernon Castle

In Second Pathé Gold Rooster Play Will Have Part of Society Girl—Exhibitors All Over Country Praising Work

A BOX-OFFICE story of the first water, with a strong underlying theme, is the way Pathé describes the picture on which Mrs. Vernon Castle is now working. The picture is said to move fast to an intensely gripping climax and an interesting denouement, but the nature of the story is entirely different from "Sylvia of the Secret Service," Mrs. Castle's first Astra production. The latter is a detective story of international thieves and swift-moving events, with the star in the role of a secret service operative. In her newest production Mrs. Castle appears as a society girl who is suddenly brought face to face with a tragedy.

The cast supporting Mrs. Castle includes Edwin Hoyt, Frank Sheridan, Reginald Mason, Fred Tilden, seen on Broadway in one of the biggest legitimate theatrical successes of the season, "Upstairs and Down"; Frank Muuro, one of the members of the company that played "Cheating Cheaters" at the Longacre for a solid year, and Ethel Gray Terry.

The story is by Philip Bartholomae and Howard Irving Young and is directed by Frank Crane, who was recently engaged to alternate with George Fitzmaurice on the Castle pictures.

Splendid endorsement of the Pathé box-office policy is being received in letters and telegrams from exhibitors, congratulating the company upon the presentation of Mrs. Castle in Gold Rooster plays. Typical of the sentiment is presented the following letter from A. Gordon Francis, manager of the Hyde Park theatre, Chicago:

"I have always regretted that I did not have the theatre at the time the serial 'Patria' started, and as it was running at my competitor's it was not possible for me to use it.

"I have many requests for Mrs. Castle from my patrons, and I am delighted to learn that I shall have her in Gold Rooster plays from time to time, as I have contracted for these pictures.

"I congratulate Pathé on having secured this star for their program."

"Mrs. Castle seems to have a certain fascination that brings our patrons back for each instalment," says M. M. McFadden of the Lincoln theatre, Chicago, and Pathé believes also she will be a hit in Gold Rooster plays, which, according to reports from all territories, are going over big, with an added stimulus lent by Mrs. Castle's engagement.

K-E-S-E Will Handle Conquest Pictures in the Future

THE suspension of operations of Forum Films which has been handling the Edison Conquest Pictures will have no effect on the marketing of this program. It was announced last week that the Conquest subjects would in future be handled through K-E-S-E, which has exchanges in twenty-two of the largest cities in the country.

While a few weeks must elapse before the exchanges will be in a position to talk terms and bookings, inquiries addressed to them looking toward the use of the Conquest Programs in the near future, will receive prompt attention.

Because of its patriotic timeliness, the first Edison Conquest Picture to be made available for public exhibition, "The Star Spangled Banner," will be published as a separate feature, outside of the program classification, on June 10, to aid the activities of the United States Marine Corps during National Recruiting Week, June 10 to 16.

The production is from the story by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, and is in three parts, with the Flag and Marine Corps for its background. Copies of the picture will be available at all K-E-S-E exchanges by June 5.

Further announcements regarding the future of Edison Conquest Pictures will be made within the next ten days. For the present it is desired that these pictures will be no longer marketed, be firmly denied, for it is the intention of the management to continue.

New Phila. Concern Engages E. K. Lincoln

E. K. Lincoln, at present starring in the Mutual-Jimmy Dale serial, "The Grey Seal," has just been engaged by the S. & M. Film Company of Philadelphia to star in a picture of Canadian military life, "For Liberty," which will be made under the direction of Romaine Fielding in Canada and at the Lubin plant in Philadelphia.

Ira M. Lowry is general manager of the new film company and work on this production will begin in the near future. Mr. Lincoln will leave June 7 for Montreal, where the first scenes of the picture will be taken.

Karshan with Bud Fisher

Willia Karshan, formerly with Thomas H. Ince and the Universal Company, has taken charge of the publicity and sales departments of the Bud Fisher Films Corporation, handling the "Mutt and Jeff" cartoon films.

Jewel Carmen in New Company

Jewel Carmen will play an important role in a new production on which Gladys Brockwell has just started work in William Fox's Hollywood (Cal.) studios. Miss Carmen has been playing opposite William Farnum.
Popular Gouverneur Morris Novel Filmed by International

It is announced the International Film Service has made a seven-reel photoplay from Gouverneur Morris' story, "When My Ship Comes In."

Jane Grey, who has attained fame on the screen in proportion to her stage popularity, is the star. Nigel Barrie, Joan Sawyer's dancing partner, William J. Kelly, Frank Andrews, Eleanor Blevins and Lucia Moore are in the cast.

The story deals with McKay Heddcn, a successful but unscrupulous theatrical manager, who lures into his wicked life Silver Sands—a sweet and wholly unsuspecting girl, raised to womanhood in a storm-lashed New England fishing village. Silver loves Paul Grayson, whom she has rescued from drowning. Heddcn's knowledge of an unfortunate accident for which Silver's father was held responsible, renders helpless the unhappy parents of the girl.

Heddcn takes Silver to New York, makes a great actress of her and stars her in a play which he has stolen from Grayson, who, meanwhile, is in Mexico looking after his mining interests. Returning, he discovers Heddcn's duplicity but his love for Silver compels his silence.

Silver has become deeply involved financially with Heddcn and entirely in his power. Finally, one of his particularly scandalous intrigues in which Silver is compromised, is discovered by Grayson. It affords him the opportunity of unmasking Heddcn, receiving his just recognition as the real author of the successful play and finally winning Silver.

Mullen Proves Important Cog in Vitagraph Machinery

That the scenario editor is one of the most important of the component parts of motion picture production has been demonstrated by the Greater Vitagraph Company through its connection with Eugene Mullen who was appointed several months ago as editor of the Blue Ribbon Feature scenario department.

Mullen originally was engaged to write the scenario for "Within the Law." His work in this one production placed him in the forefront of scenario writers.

Mullen is the author of the first three-reel feature photoplay ever produced by the Vitagrapli in the days when a three-reel play was a history-making achievement. This play was "The Money King." It was an original picture, which he followed up with "The Christians," "Mr. Barnes of New York," a series of comedies from "Piekwick Papers," which were played by the late John Bunny; "Vanity Fair," "The Lady of the Lake," "Hearts of the First Empire," "A Florida Enchantment," and about one hundred original photoplays have made his name familiar to the devotees of the screen.

The Vitagraph man is not a firm believer that the best known authors write the best photoplays.

"My experience compels me to admit a painful deficiency in the matter of waxing enthusiastic over the emanations that are to be traced to the minds of some of our present day famous authors," he stated recently. "These men, on the strength of their fiction successes, submit stuff to our leading manufacturers that is often so inexpressively bad in treatment, childish in theme and senile in conception that the men into whose hands their attempts pass frequently express open disgust."

Gaumont Excellence

In the list of subjects of a single-reel character worthy of consideration by "better films" committees released during the first three months of the year, the Gaumont Company had 100 subjects. The next producer had only 43, less than half. The third had 24.

Bushman-Bayne Re-signed to Long Term Contract

Metro, through President Richard A. Rowland, has re-signed Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne to a long-term contract. The figures are not given out. For the present William Christy Cabanne will direct the players.

Bushman and Miss Bayne have been co-stars longer than any other artists. They have appeared together in more than 300 photoplays, according to figures given.

Bushman was on the stage in a number of plays and joined the Essanay company in 1911. It is said he engaged in thirty-seven vocations before finding the one that suited.

Like her co-star Miss Bayne began her screen career with the Essanay Company, just after completing a term at a Philadelphia finishing school.

Among the plays the two have been starred in are "Pennington's Choice," "Man and His Soul," "A Diplomatic Romance," "A Million a Minute," "A Virginia Romance," and "The Great Secret."

Cincinnati Ministers Comment "Vicar of Wakefield"

Under the guidance of W. S. Westling, manager of Pathe Exchange, Cincinnati, Ohio, a private screening of Pathé-Than- houser's "The Vicar of Wakefield," starring Frederick Warde, was given at the Orpheum theatre, that city, at 10 o'clock on the morning of May 26, to an attendance of twelve hundred and fifty-four.

After the exhibition of the picture, the manager of the Trade Extension Department of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Sorkowich, addressed the assemblage and put it up to them squarely that the people should support "The Vicar of Wakefield" and such pictures in order to create a demand for better photoplays.

The exhibition was attended by over five hundred ministers, representing all denominations, and members of the Cincinnati Federation of Churches.
Safeguarding the Sea Shown in Hearst-Pathe

In keeping with a reputation for timeliness which Hearst-Pathe News has earned, issue No. 44 shows the methods being employed in safeguarding the sea against submarines and mines, giving a new conception of an extremely hazardous occupation.

First are shown American mine sweepers. They draw apart with a heavy cable extended between them to comb the surface. Contact with a submarine or mine is quickly indicated. Then is shown the way in which mines are planted to protect a harbor, the method of holding up the cable from which the mines are suspended, and other interesting details.

Neat Sum Raised at Successful Picture Players Tableaux

Practically every player of any importance in the East at the time, many directors, film officials as well as society people of New York City attended the Dinner Dance and Tableaux, for the benefit of the Comfort Kit Fund, given under the auspices of the Motion Picture Players' Division of the Stage Women's War Relief at the Hotel Des Artistes on Monday evening, May 28.

It was estimated that at least a thousand dollars was netted and probably eleven hundred. The money goes toward furnishing kits containing various little luxuries for the American and allied soldiers at the front.

Something of a military atmosphere was lent the evening by the presence of Major Green and Lieutenant B. C. Hilliam in uniform. They have both seen much action and will return shortly. Lieutenant Hilliam was also one of the entertainers giving a pianologue.

The major portion of the credit for the arrangement of the program, and in fact the arrangement of the entire evening goes to Boss Meredith and Paula H. Blackton. They were assisted in no small measure by Mac Murray, Alice Wilson, Ruth Roland, Doris Kenyon, Alice Joyce, Jane Gail, Madaline Delmar and Florence LaBadie.

Universal Anounces Coming

EVERY effort is to be made to maintain a high standard of excellence in Butterfly productions, according to an announcement by Universal last week.

The Butterfly release for June 25 will be "Man and Beast," which has the wilds of Africa for its locale, and features Kingsley Benedict and Eileen Sedgwick. Harry McRae is responsible for the story and production.

In "The Adirondack Affair," Allan Holubar is seen at his best as the brilliant detective, who solves the mystery of the missing heiress, portrayed by Louise Lovely. The story and direction were also Holubar's. This Butterfly will have its first public showing on July 9.

Jack Mulhall has another opportunity to show his ability as a speed demon in "Speed," directed by Leo Sargent and scheduled for release on July 10. The story deals with newly-acquired wealth, a mother who would be a climber, an ambitious, but incompetent, count, "the girl" and a young stockbroker who would know nothing of social ambitions, if they stand between him and "the girl."

Current Butterfly releases are "The Field of Honor," June 11, with Allan Holubar and Louise Lovely, and "Fire of Youth," June 18, with Jack Mulhall.

Universal City Hums with Producing Activity

Universal City hums with producing activity. Two Bluebird subjects having Violet McMillan as star are to be made, probably under the directorship of Eugene Moore. Miss McMillan arrived in Los Angeles this week, after several months on the U. B. O. stage, where she presented a twenty-minute sketch showing scenes from photoplays and life in a motion picture studio. Upon completion Miss McMillan will return to the vaudeville stage.

William Worthington, who has directed for two years for the Universal, has left that organization and is now affiliated with Fox in the same capacity. Franklin Farnum and Brownie Vernon will now be directed by Elmer Clifton in a series of comedy dramas as stories by Jack Cunningham, editor of the U scenario department. The first to be filmed is titled "The Fourth Glove." The scenario for this was prepared by Waldamar Young.

George Marshall is directing a three-reel Western story which promises to live up to its title, "Speed," he having just completed "An Innocent Plotter." The new subject is said to have an Eastern and Western atmosphere, with phases of very known present day mode of conveyance. Neal Hart and Janet Eisman are the leads, and all Universal cowboys are helping to add punch.

High-Class Butterfly Subjects

California's Big Drawing Cards

Pickford, Clark, Frederick, Mary Miles Minter, Fairbanks and Marie Doro are the big drawing cards in that city. Manager E. J. Merlin, says variety in program and double features help fill his seats.

W. B. Pearson, who has served as a film editor, has been placed in charge of the producing company headed by Eileen Sedgwick, formerly directed by Henry McCracken. He is now making the finishing scenes for "Into East Africa," and will next film a story by Earl Hewitt, "Jungle Trails." Jack Wells is serving as co-director.

Herman Sims, who has been head of the property and wardrobe department at Universal for the past two years, is leaving the company the first of June to accept a similar position at the Loew Weber studio.

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran have completed the first half of their two-year contract with the Universal, the date of their affiliation being June 1 of last year. During the twelve months they have completed sixty-two Nestor Comedies, the most recently filmed being "Dodging Love."
Triangle Los Angeles Head Goes to Goldwyn

G. C. Parsons Resigns to Enter New Organization

In Coast Exchanges Three "Intolerance" Companies Going Big

G. C. Parsons, who came to Los Angeles in September, 1913, opened and has successfully managed the Triangle Exchange here, has tendered his resignation to become effective June 9. At that time he will take up the management of the new Goldwyn Distributing Corporation Exchange here, which will be located at 912 South Olive street, the former office of the International Film Corporation. The Los Angeles office will furnish booking for Southern California and Arizona. Albert Weis, vice-president of the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, who was here and made contract with Mr. Parsons, has gone to San Francisco and Seattle where other exchanges will be opened. It is the plan not to release any subjects on the Coast, at least, not until September.

General Manager Jack Lammon, of the Greater Features Company, Orpheum Building, Seattle, has recently added O. Wog, formerly with the De Luxe-Eskey Company to his staff of salesmen. Mr. Wog will make the territory in the interest of the

Pathé and World Look for New Boston Offices

S. R. Sedgley, business manager of Pathé Exchange, has been in Boston during the past week, looking for new quarters for his Boston branch office. Increasing business has cramped the offices of Pathé Exchange until it is necessary for much larger space.

Arrangements have been completed in Boston for the World Film Corporation offices removing into the General Film Building. Contracts have been drawn up and in a few weeks the World offices will occupy half of the General Film Building.

Philadelphia Branches Shifting

As soon as alterations can be completed, the Philadelphia Pathé Exchange will move into its new home on the second floor of the Belmont Building, 211-21 N. Thirteenth street. Here 10,000 square feet, three times the present space, will be available.

Fireproof partitions, metal poster shelves and an up-to-date projection room with a throw of thirty-seven feet will be part of the $10,000 improvements put in the exchange by Pathé.

Artcraft Pictures has moved into its new home in the handsome quarters of the Famous Players Exchange at 1219-21 Vine street, Philadelphia.

Artcraft, Detroit, Moves

The Detroit-Artemis Exchange has moved from the Peter Smith Building to the Paramount Building, 278 East Jefferson avenue.

subjects the Greater Features are now booking, the list including "The Witching Hour," "The Conquest of Camelot," "Where Are My Children?" the Pavlova subject, and others.

Fred C. Quimby, district manager for Pathé Exchanges out of Seattle, has contracted with Alexander Pantages for the showing of "The Neglected Wife" serial in twelve of the Pantages' theatres along the west coast. This is the third serial Mr. Quimby has booked through the Pantages Circuit in the past year.

General Manager M. Rosenberg, of the De Luxe-Feature Film Company, Seattle, who has the "Intolerance" rights for the Northwest Pacific States, has three companies out with an orche-stral of from four to ten pieces. The attraction is booked solidly until some time the latter part of July, with great prospects for a successful summer season.

"Intolerance" opened Seattle in this territory, and there played to exceptionally good business. The receipts were far in advance of those of "The Birth of a Nation," it is reported. Besides the orchestra the companies will have an operator, manager and advance press agent, who will arrange all details prior to the arrival of the companies, and nothing is to be overlooked that will tend to the culmination of a successful career for this great feature.

F. G. Sliter, Albany Mutual Manager, Ill

Fred. G. Sliter, Mutual star representative of the Mutual Film Corporation, Albany branch, is confined at the Albany Homoeopathic Hospital recovering from the effects of a serious operation. He would be glad to have his fellow representatives pay him a visit during their stay in Albany.

Mr. Sliter's affairs are being handled during his absence by F. D. Lawlor, serial representative of the Mutual Film Corporation, Albany branch.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

H. G. Siegel, of the Globe Feature Film company, Boston, paid a visit to New York.

Watterson R. Rothacker is stopping at the Baltimore.

Theodore Wharton came down from Ithaca to attend the showing of "The Great White Trail" last week.

Herman Riffkin made the trip from Boston on business.

M. Kashin, the Montreal exhibitor, arrived in the city last week.

Harry Charnas has returned to Cleveland.
JUST FOR FUN
By LONGACRE

MARIAN SWAYNE, of Erbograph note, has received a gift from Dato Panglima, of Mindanao. (Name and location vouch for, by Harry Edward.) Old Dato is chief of a tribe of Morobed headhunters, and the gift is a pair of slippers made from the skin of the foreheads of his numerous conquered enemies and decorated with the teeth of the various unfortunate. Although Miss Swayne has no intention of wearing these slippers, she wishes to announce that she will refrain from sending them back to gentle Dato. "I have other uses for my teeth and foreheads," says Miss Swayne, with great sublety.

CRANE WILBURL, imbued with the spirit of the times, has written a patriotic poem entitled "The Daughters." It consists of eighteen four-line verses, and as it is believed that long are heard from this page, for some reason not known to us, we can only print the first three verses. At that, it is rather a good plan. The suspense of the reader is immediately aroused, and should be desire the whole piece it will be forwarded him on application accompanied by a two-cent stamp. The entire poem, put in a lobby-frame, would make an ideal display (business of putting one over on the "Live Wire" department).

So you call yourself an American!
And when you hear them
That grand old hymn about your flag
Upon your feet you spring.
But I've often watched you as you stood,
Upon your lips a smile.
And I've wondered if you didn't do it
Just to be in style!
And I've seen you standing on the street
When our boys were marching by.
The men who really do the flag
Enough to do and die—

It can be seen that Mr. Wilbur is becoming every bit as good a poet as he is a motion picture actor.

EDITORIAL
There are all sorts of subtitles. Good, bad and indifferent. The explanatory, the spoken, the humorous, which is either of the former as well. It is only fair to all who employ them to see that the subtitles are not such as to be considered cheap shots. Take the one that brightens Keystone comedies. We understand, the whole staff gets together to dope them out. The better pictures need no load of introductory explanation. Again, when will some producers learn to quit using "She realizes what has happened," instead of "Realizing what has happened," or employing the snappy, the humorous which is either of the former as well. It is only fair to call attention to those that are unusual. Take the one that brightens Keystone comedies. We understand, the whole staff gets together to dope them out. The result, if they show for themselves. They are excellent. Almost every one gets as hearty a laugh as the gags in the acting. Those written by Dita Lee are other examples of comedy subtitles; those originating with Alan Dwan are also superior to the general run. The Ince writers always write theirs in the same "atmosphere" as surrounds the pictured action. We, for one, don't like a string of subtitles preceding a picture and telling all about the period in which it transpires. Too many tell too much. Thev confuse and the reader is immediately aroused and, should he desire the whole piece it will be forwarded him on application accompanied by a two-cent stamp. 26 SHOWS
IN SIX DAYS

New York, N. Y.—Ben Wilson, the popular star of "The Voice on the Wire," had a long legitimate experience before taking up screen work, so that it was no novelty for him to face audiences last week when greeting them in person at the Marcus Loew theatres. He established a record, however, in his swing around the circle, visiting at the conclusion of the current episode of the famous mystery serial in six days. Ben by Saturday it quite non-spend evening clothes, riding around Greater New York in a taxi. A sample of one evening's activities was the Wednesday night program. Starting at the 42d Street house at 7:30, he was at the Orpheum at 8:15, at the West End at 8:30, at the National at 9:00 and at the Boulevard at 9:30 p.m. Great crowds attested his popularity wherever he appeared. Mr. Wilson will shortly begin a tour of the United States on a similar errand.

Preparedness Pictures Prove Popular

Boston, Mass.—The popular news of the day is unquestionably the activities engendered by the "state of war." This was well evidenced at the burst of applause and the enthusiasm which greeted the showing of the popular Universal Animated Weekly—"first on the screen with the world's best news," at local theatres the past week. Recruiting pictures proved especially popular, as did the "Liberty Loan" views which included some intimate glimpses of activities in that connection in many parts of the country. Aviation scenes, preparedness movements, latest types of weapons of war—all were greeted with the closest attention. All of which proves that the people like to be informed while being entertained.

Increasing Popularity

Marks 25th Weekly Release of the Universal Screen Magazine.

New York, N. Y.—"The world's work in moving pictures every week," is the fitting slogan adopted for the Universal Screen Magazine, which had its twenty-fifth weekly showing on the current release date. Following closely the demand of the public, by keeping in closest possible touch with hundreds of Exhibitors, the editors have been more than ordinarily successful in increasing the popularity of the subjects shown during the entire period.

The First Serial Photo Play Ever Filmed From a SAT. EVE. POST STORY

Popular Universal Comedian Makes Laughter Grow In Burlesque Comedy.

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The current issue of the trade papers contain advertisements of a three reel Universal comedy that marks a new achievement in film fun. Headed by Wm. Franey, one of the best known of the Universal Comedy companies, and completed the filming of a screaming burlesque of the Universal's famous spectacular dramatic production, "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," four reels were made, and these were after cuts to three, consequently it is packed with swift action and moves at a stirring pace from start to finish. While direct bookings are being accepted at the Universal Offices, State Rights will also be sold. The title is "The Cross-Eyed Submarine," and every N. Y. reviewer has accorded it unstinted praise.

EMMA CARUS IN LATEST SONG HIT
"Let's All Be Americans Now," Features Popular Artist.

"Song Hits in Photoplay," the Universal split reel which is released every three weeks, announces as the current issue the tremendously popular patriotic song, "Let's All Be Americans Now." The featured player in this notable song hit is Emma Carus, the popular musical comedy and vaudeville star. Miss Carus has done more than her share in putting this latest favorite across, and it is fitting that she should play the lead in the moving picture of the story of the song. The fans have gone wild over this novelty release and Exhibitors who take advantage of the opportunity to run a Song Contest in connection with the showing are playing to capacity.

Watch for "The Gray Ghost" — first Saturday Evening Post Serial ever filmed.

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The lists of releases given below of the "specials" and the "regulars" on the weekly Universal Program give proof that this sterling service gives Exhibitors greater QUALITY and greater QUANTITY than all competitive programs combined. The many novelties among the specials are just what the wise Exhibitor is looking for to strengthen a weak show, help put over a weak feature, or to use as the foundation of an open booking program which makes the most popular form of moving picture entertainment in thousands of theatres today.

THE CROSS-EYED SUBMARINE — "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" (One- Reel Drama) — Eddie Lyons, Lee Strange and Edith Roberts.

THE GOLDEN BULLET — "The Great Dictator" (Three Reel Western Drama) — Harry Carey and Fritzi Ridgway.

HER DAMNING, CARING WAYS — "Two Reel Comedy" — Merta Sterling and Louise Hutton.

ONE REEL — "The Pointed Finger" — "One Reel Comedy" — Ernie Shedle.

HER CITY BEAU — "Two Reel Comedy Drama" — M. K. Wilson and Edith Roberts.

POPHAM — "Honey and Mystery" — "Two Reel Western Drama" — Kileen Sedgwick and Kingsley Benedict.

POPPIN — "Love's Turmoil" — "One Reel Drama" — Edna St. John.

These red-blooded dramas and unusually funny comedies are the sort of material that you need to lay a foundation for your program. The "specials" are the sort of entertainment that makes the fans say kind things about your show on leaving, and that brings them back the next night. They will cost you a slight advance over the pro rated rental of the complete program, but they are worth it, and will show increased profits for you.

A Pictorial Record of the World's Events That Are Making History

The first release of "UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS" was set for May 14. TWENTY-EIGHT LEADING NEW YORK THEATRES BOOKED IT FOR OPENING NIGHT. From 42d to 110th Streets nearly all of the leading picture houses on Broadway showed it on THE FIRST RUN FOR TWO DAYS.

The RIALTO—Broadway's newest and finest photo playhouse played "CURRENT EVENTS" for a solid week.

Scores of Exhibitors, including such men as the heads of the Poli Circuit, the Marcus Loew Circuit, the Fox Theatres, etc., have demonstrated beyond a doubt that "UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS" is all that is claimed for it and that it is a valuable addition to their programs.

In the largest theatres in Buffalo, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Indianapolis and St. Louis, and beyond, the biggest idea in news pictorials has found a permanent home. You can get full information from any Universal Exchange. Write today and find if there is an open release date in your territory. UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO., Carl Laemmle, Pres. Show Picture After Long Censor Holdup

Robert Goldstein's much heralded patriotic film spectacle, "The Spirit of '76," is now shown to Chicago audiences at last. Following a three weeks' fight with Major Funkhouser, head of the local police censor board, the picture was granted a permit by the Major on Saturday, May 26. The following Monday night it was shown for the first time to a crowded house at Orchestra Hall and, although badly mutilated, almost mutilated, by the censorial dictates and shears, it got away for a good start, and has been drawing satisfactory audiences twice a day since then.

A symphony orchestra of fifty pieces furnishing the accompanying music for the picture. The theatre is one of the finest in Chicago and within and without has been hung and draped with American flags. Male ushers are asked as minutes men of the Revolution, and the picture was given the picture as the result of its three weeks' stubborn fight with the authorities is attracting the crowds.

Bartola Sales Manager Gets Many Contracts

With a huge smile and a pockets bulging with contracts, Charles Pyle, sales manager of the Bartola Musical Instrument Company of Chicago, is back in his office after a business trip of a fortnight through the East.

In New York he sold a Bartola De Luxe orchestra for $50,000 to Manager Feischman of the U. S. theatre in the Brown's. Sam H. Trigger purchased one of the de luxe orchestras for his new summer hotel and cafe on City Island.

In Philadelphia Mr. Pyle sold a Bartola Special (De Luxe) for $10,000 to the Hippodrome theatre at No. 608 14 South street. M. Steidel, a theatre owner there, bought a Bartola De Luxe.

Reel Fellows Hold Another "Booster" Night

At another of their recently inaugurated "booster night" affairs, held Friday, May 25, the Reel Fellows Club of Chicago were hosts to the Sunshine Film Corporation of this city. All of the officials of the Sunshine Company and leading members of their aggregation of players were present. A buffet luncheon was served and a cabinet entertainment by talent from the various cafe revues topped off the evening.

Chief among those in attendance from the Sunshine company were Richard C. Travers, director general and star of the dramatic company; K. M. Scoville, general manager; William N. Buckley, director; M. G. Watkins, Floyd Williams, the fat boy comedian of the company, and others.

LEAKS IN THE LOOP

Harry Longhardt, general manager through the West for the Fox Company, is in New York in conference at the main office.

Bulahan-Katz, owners of the new Central Park theatre, being erected on the south side, have purchased a Bartola, of the $10,000 brand.

Artcraft's Chicago office, who recently purchased the state rights for "Joan the Woman," in Illinois and Indiana, have five prints of that spectacle working, and are booked solid until July.

Charles Jordan, a comedian from the State's Reven, has signed a contract with the Sunshine Film Corporation. He will appear in a comedy release.

Major Funkhouser, last week ordered the Crown theatre, showing "The Birth of a Nation," to stop selling tickets to children. He threatened the license of the theatre if they failed to obey. Counsel for the management, however, told the client to go right ahead selling to children.

Griever and Herz bought the Illinois rights of "Should She Obey?" from the Arizona Company last Wednesday. This young firm now controls the Indiana and Illinois rights.

Frank Keenan, back on the speaking stage again, and making a big hit in "The Pawn" here, has made the announcement that he has done with the motion picture business. "No more of it for me, I'm cured," he is quoted as saying.

J. E. Willis, of the American Bioscope Company, announces that the first issue of "Types," a picturized directory of players, is ready for release. It is said to carry a thousand views in action of many of the best known actresses, juveniles, ingenues, comedians and character people available in the mid-west.

The Arizona Company has gotten out an attractive publicity and advertising help for the exhibitor of their latest feature, "Should She Obey?" It is in the form of a full-sized newspaper with four sides and titled "The Evening Press."

H. J. Corbett, manager of the Harper theatre and known as a "live wire" in Chicago film circles, has been given the helm of the fashionable Beach theatre.

We have Terry Ramsaye of Mutual, to thank for an autographed picture of Mary Miles Minter, received from Santa Barbara, and now occupying a prominent place in the Chicago editorial section. And Miss Mary also.

The following pictures are keeping the turnstiles clicking in Loop theatres last week: "The Barrier" at the Colonial; "2000 Leagues at the La Salle; "The Soul Master" at the Regal; "The Silent Master" at the Strand's; "Heart and Soul" at the Rose and "The Millionaire" at the Alcazar.

Interest Increases in National Convention

One of the best of assurances advanced that the coming national convention and exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League at Chicago will be bigger and better than ever is the fact that twelve new states have been admitted into the National League since the 1916 convention.

All of these, it is reported, will be represented by their full quota of delegates. Rose Tapley of Vitagraph, who has been making a tour of the country doing propaganda work for the picture industry, called at the exposition headquarters in Chicago last week and paid her respects and announced that she will be on the ground once again this year to aid the cause. She stated that numerous exhibitors to whom she talked all over the country during her trip feel it their duty to be present at the coming convention to help fight the many evils confronting the industry.

Ludwig Schindler, manager of the exposition and convention this year, left for New York on another trip to secure contracts for exhibits at the exposition and to arrange for the attendance of some of the prominent Eastern picture stars. Replies are still coming in at convention headquarters to the contest seeking the best advertising feature or novelty stunt to make the coming show popular and successful.

Funkhouser Still Distressingly Active

Major Funkhouser, Chicago's chief of the police censor board, caused some more trouble and dissatisfaction in film circles last week when he refused a permit for the showing of "S.O.S."

The maiden feature picture of the Sunshine Film Company. The Sunshine Company is backed by Chicago money, and all of their production work since organization, not long ago, has been in that city. Several months ago they started work on the "S.O.S." picture, a multi-reel production with eugenics as its theme. Dick Travers, formerly an Essanay star, directed and played the leading role for the picture. Upon its being finished, a couple of weeks ago, all arrangements were made for a trade showing, and it was booked to open at the Bandbox theatre in the Loop.

The trade showing was given early last week. Then Major Funkhouser looked it over and refused a permit. "He had up for deliberation was all he said. Managers Watkins and Scoville were highly agitated at the turn of events. What's going on, they asked, just when Mr. Watkins threatened to come back at the Major with a mandamus proceeding he issued a permit, but made it a "pink one." As a result nobody but adults can now see the picture.
Mae Marsh is now working on her third Goldwyn picture, and by September expects to have completed two more. In order to make fast production the little heroine of "The Birth of a Nation" oftentimes works until late at night or early in the morning with her company at the studio.

The other Goldwyn companies are also extremely busy. Madge Kennedy is in hopes of having two photoplays complete by September, and possibly three. Jane Cowl will have finished two pictures by that date, and Mary Garden, commencing work in July, will have at least one.

A Jollification party that was a jollification party was held in the clubroom of The Lambs upon the occasion of the return of William Farnum to New York after an absence in California of a year and a half.

Augustus Thomas acted as toastmaster and related all he knew of his fellow member. Others present who spoke briefly were Dudley Field Malone, Eugene Presley, DeWolf Hopper, William Courtleigh, Raymond Hitchcock, T. B. Clark, the Grismer and George Hobart. The entertainment features of the program were in the hands of Pat Rooney, Donald Brian and Barney Barnard. To quote the original and epic expression of the editor of "Just for Fun," "an enjoyable time was had by all."

Fox players eagerly sought to do their share in behalf of the Liberty Loan, and foremost of all was popular Virginia Pearson.

This star spent one day in a large Brooklyn department store as saleslady in their Liberty Bond booth. Result—a sale of $12,000 in bonds. One of these was for $5,000, several for $1,000, and there were any number of smaller sales.

The Lee kiddies, Jane and Katherine, invaded the same store, and at the same booth succeeded in rolling up a total of $31,000 more in sales. In addition to this cash result, scores of persons signed tentative purchases with the kiddies and Miss Pearson, so the quantity of bonds which will be credited to them ultimately cannot be estimated.

Jack Sherrill in doing his part for the success of the Actor's Fund Fair appeared in roles opposite no less than five of the leading feminine favorites of stage and screen in as many days.

This piece of film clearly demonstrates the wonderful progress that has been made in photography. The area of the film is four times that of the film of the present day. There are no perforations on the film, which in those days can be friction, and cameramen who have seen this odd piece of celluloid say it is much lighter than the stock used today.

Mrs. George F. Wyre has been named successor to Louis Hoope as casting director of the Metro Studio. Hoope severs his connection with the studio so that he can go to Canada and enlist under the British flag. His successor is the widow of George A. Wyre, lawyer, and at one time assistant district attorney of Rockland County.

Mabel Ballin, who gave up art work to go into motion pictures as a member of the Famous Players, has left that organization to join the Vitagraph company. She was chosen by Director W. P. S. Earle to play the leading feminine role opposite little Bobby Connolly in the new Vitagraph feature, the Bobby Series.

A Shipbuilding department soon is to become a part of the studios of the Whartons, at Ithaca, and out upon the water of Lake Cayuga the good boats Elsie and Fredie are studio bound. The result of their arrival will be that scores of men will begin work upon them at once, to convert them into the full rigged sailing vessels of more than a hundred years ago, and after the practical sailing vessels are built, they will be sent out upon the lake and torn to their destruction to the shouting of directors and the clicking click of the cameras.

It all is to form a part of the new superfeature which the Whartons now are preparing to follow "The Great White Drama." The active taking of the picture will begin within a few weeks.

James Johnson, casting director of the U. S. Amusement Studios in Fort Lee, is hard at work recruiting among actors and employees in the four Art Dramas Studios, in hope of obtaining enough to make a noticeable contingent which can be turned over to the regular army.

He originally intended to do more than recruit, having been enrolled in the proposed Roosevelt division, in which he had the rank of captain. He had completed all arrangements for going to the front with that body, when it was learned that it would not be authorized.

Ethel Clayton in "The Stolen Paradise" plays her last contract for some time with Edward Langford as her leading support. Mr. Langford having gone off to the war. For some time to come Miss Clayton will have the assistance of Milton Sills as leading man. Mr. Sills making his first appearance in this capacity when "Chains" is thrown upon the screen for World-Pictures Brady-Made.

G. P. Hamblton, Jr., who plays the part of the sergeant in the forthcoming Metro wonderplay, "The Shack," has in his possession one of the oldest pieces of film in the world. It is part of a motion picture of the famous Jeffries-Fitzsimmons fight at Coney Island, eighteen years ago. At the time the picture was made its total length was seven and one-half miles.

This piece of film clearly demonstrates the wonderful progress that has been made in photography. The area of the film is four times that of the film of the present day. There are no perforations on the film, which in those days can be friction, and cameramen who have seen this odd piece of celluloid say it is much lighter than the stock used today.

Carllyle Blackwell is hard at work on "Jack the Good-for-Nothing," one of the far-ahead releases with which the shelves of World-Pictures Brady-Made are piled up systematically. In this play Mr. Blackwell has the aid of Evelyn Greciel, the beautiful and gifted young leading actress, and Muriel Ostrieche, also well known in association with World-Pictures.

Marian Swayne, who is featured in "The Road Between," her second vehicle for Erbograph-Art Dramas, now being produced by Joseph Levering, wishes to deny the statement that appeared recently in the newspapers to the effect that Miss Swayne was a sister of Julia Swayne Gordon. Miss Swayne has no sisters.

IN AND OUT OF WEST COAST STUDIOS

By J. C. JESSEN

ALL attaches of the Fox studio are standing at attention these days, for Theda Bara is shortly expected. J. Gordon Edwards, director of the Fox star, arrived on the Coast Friday, and advised Miss Bara was to leave the East within a few days. Before starting west, script for the next Barber was completed and forwarded to the Coast, and here preparations have been started on all sets needed prior to the arrival of Director Edwards. About half of the large enclosed stage, which is 100 x 400 feet in size, has been set aside for the exclusive use of the Theda Bara company. While it is not officially announced what subject will be made first, it is whispered about that it will be titled "The Gold Star." The setting, now being built indicate as much. It is understood Miss Bara will remain at the Coast for the making of two Fox pictures, and will then be returned to the Eastern studios.

R. A. Walsh is giving his attention to the filming of an underworld story, the second to be made by this director. It is spoken of as a subject that will surpass his "Regeneration," which was made almost two years ago in the East. Miriam Cooper is the star of the subject, with Charles Caryl playing the opposite lead. Dal Clawson is supervising the photography, and a number of new effects that will prove very attractive are included in the subject.

DUSTIN FARNUM and Winifred Kingston, supported by William Burress and other Fox players, are now working in a Fox film known at the studio as "The Spy." The scenario was written by Ben Cohn and the direction is in charge of Richard Stanton.

INCE Culver City studios took on the appearance this week of a new boys' convention, when more than 200 were taken to the big plant and there participated in scenes for the first Ince-Triangle kiddies picture, which has Thelma Salter and George Stone for stars. Director Irvin Willat had promised the circulation managers he would have the boys back in Los Angeles, Venice and Santa Monica in time for the noon editions, and when they were a few minutes late the newspaper offices all tried to call the Ince studio at one time.

The second Olive Thomas Ince subject is now being made by Lambert Hillyer, the first having been sent to New York almost as soon as the last scenes were filmed. In the coming subject the former Broadway favorite will play a part similar to her role in real life, it being that of a girl who goes to New York and becomes the idol of Broadway. In her career she has many exciting adventures in her attempt to win her former sweetheart. The mariglars of Paris Latin Quarter was reproduced this week for a story which has an Italian star. The photoplay is being directed by William Neill, who is familiar with Paris life, having spent several years there. The making of these scenes brought out many dazzling costumes, and the necessary music added life and zest to the usually quiet producing plant.

A new series of light or farce comedies are to be made at the Fox studio, featuring Willard Louis. Mr. Louis is the only remaining player who came to the Coast with the original Fox company, and since he has played everything from leading man to comedian and heavies. Billy Mason, of the smiling countenance, is to be one of the principal supporting players. The other members of the cast have not been selected.

Two Fox subjects were completed and shipped East this week. One is "The Scarlet Pimpernel," featuring Dustin Farnum, and the second a Tom Mix Western comedy, titled "A Six-Cylinder Courtship.

Abraham Carlos, general manager of the Fox Western producing studios, has decided to make Hollywood his permanent home, and with this in view has purchased a beautiful residence a short distance from the Hollywood Fox studio. The property has spacious lawns, and a number of gardens and courtyards are being built under the supervision of Mr. Carlos. Since his coming to Los Angeles, Mr. Carlos has made his home at one of the hotels, but tiring of this life, he sought the simple life on one of the palm-shaded streets of Hollywood.

It has now been arranged that Marshall Neilan, who has just returned from a short vacation spent in New York, is to direct Miss Pickford in her next subject. This change is made owing to Director General deMille taking up the filming of a subject in which Geraldine Farrar will be offered as star.

The past week saw the Lasky studio in Hollywood practically deserted, as several of the directors were away and the technical staff was busy in the construction of large sets for the new production to be put into filming during the coming week.

The Childrens’ Photoplay Company, under the direction of Ernest Butterworth, has begun the production of one and two reel subjects at a studio at 1321 Gower street, Hollywood. This company in the past made a number of subjects for the Universal program, including “The Broken Promise,” “The Children’s Influence,” and others. The child players who will take part are Ernest and Frank Butterworth, Jr., Phillys Shuster, George Rob, Mabel Lamb, Mildred Davey, Myrtle Dawley, Roy Thourman and others. Subjects made in the future will be sold on the open market.

The stage of the Bernstein studio this week has more the appearance of a theatre stage than of a motion picture one. The reason being that much of the action takes place behind the scenes and in the dressing-room of the star. A number of comedy scenes were filmed in the dressing-room of the chorus. A large number of extra players, including chorus girls and attachments of a theatre, are being used. Jack Pratt, who, prior to his motion picture experience, was in musical comedy, is feeling at home in the making of scenes of the type of amusement which he was affiliated with a number of years.

For appropriate services, the first bit of work in the new administration building for the Hollywood Vitagraph studio was accomplished this week, when Studio Manager W. S. Smith and Carol Halloway turned the first shovel of dirt in preparation for the excavation. The dwelling which has served as an office building since the opening of the plant, more than a year ago, has been moved to another corner of the nine-acre lot, and already the site for the building has been cleared, leveled, and the foundation partly laid. It is announced by the end of the summer the studio will be ready for the additional producing units which are to work there, according to plans made by President Albert E. Smith while here on his recent visit.

Director-Leading Man William Duncan, Carol Halloway and members of the Hearts of Flame Vitagraph Serial Company are home from spending several days at San Marcos Pass, near Santa Barbara, to which location they went to secure scenes of an automobile dashing off an eight-foot cliff into the Santa Ynez River below. The scenes were accomplished without accident, and those who have witnessed the initial projection speak very highly of the realistic scenes secured.

With no further delay, the Lasky Company has purchased $50,000 worth of the Liberty Loan bonds, which are to be sold to members of the producing organization. Mr. deMille purchasing them and permitting the members of the company to pay for them at their convenience.

All E. Christie has been resorting to all means, fair and foul, to get enough light for the filming of “Down by the Sea,” which, as the title indicates, is a beach picture. This story was selected several days ago because it was believed if pictures could be made any place, they could be at the beach, but clouds failed to stay in front of the sun, and beach parties have been a daily occurrence with the players. The story contains a love tiff between Betty Compson and Harry Ham, she resorting to the employment of a number of burles, whose duty it was to fall violently in love with every time her sweetheart was near, all because he insisted in trying to make her believe the girls just wouldn’t leave him alone.

Now it becomes necessary to add to our travelogue, a continental trip just like the scenes writers inject into the photodrama.

It was by the merest accident that Hookum Company Editor learned that some celebrities, Harold Howard and Fred "Bing" Thompson, were in the gay metropolis. The discovery resulted in covers for six at the Players Club, where the chair always reserved for Henry Irving and other notables at the historically famous round table, was designated as the place for yestereve. It was a wonderful little party, made sparkling by the wit of Earle Williams and "mine hosts."

Getting about in the film metropolis is a pleasure when introductions are made by Motion Picture News. The occupant of the News editor's swivel chair, Bob Welsch, has his Underwood trained finger on the film pulse at all times, but to President Carl Laemmle or Bill Andrews or Bill Barry, walking directors. The occupant of the News man's swivel chair, Aaron Bernd is just learning how inquisitive the public is, for the mere announcement by the public press that Theda was coming brought to him an avalanche of letters from the public.

Business Manager John Jasper, who succeeded Harry Caulfield at the Lone Star Chaplin studio, has made a number of changes there in respect to the executive staff. Ray Bagley, former auditor, has gone to the Garrick theatre, where he is serving as associate manager, and he is succeeded at the Lone Star by Ray Gammell, who was the publicity writer at the Newkley studio, who later toured to New York with J. Warren Kerrigan, has been engaged to supervise the publicity department, and he is now busy turning in terms of copy to Harlow Ramsay at the Chicago Mutual office.

The Baby Marie Osborne Company is now working its third Pathe release, and the Curb Comedy organization is filming "Jerry's Eugene Marriage," which has twice been "Ox" for a Lumetronian, and is generally accredited a winner.

The burst of speed caught such a lot of sand on his hat as to make his hat fly off. Mastbaum Lays Poor Work of Censors Before the Governor

The sentiment of the majority identified with the motion picture industry was voiced by Stanley V. Mastbaum of Philadelphia, one of the big figures in pictures, when on May 19, he filed a letter with Governor Rumbaugh of Pennsylvania, protesting the unsound performances of the State Board of Censors. Instances of the incompetence and inefficiency that has attended the board, according to Mr. Mastbaum, were specifically pointed out.

In particular he cited a recent case in which, when appeal to the courts was taken, the decisions were overruled, and it was decreed they had abused their discretion in making certain eliminations in a disputed film, which robbed the film of its strength. Some of the eliminations were, however, upheld, and in consequence it was ordered the picture be reconstructed so that it could be exhibited the following Monday. It was then found that Mrs. Niver of the board was out of the state, and that Dr. Oberliiter was also away. In consequence nothing could be done to hasten the exhibition of the film.

Mr. Mastbaum's letter closed in this fashion:

"I think this condition of affairs ought not to exist in a public office of this character when film companies and theatres are put to such a terrific financial loss."

New Theatre in "Hottest City in America"

Yuma, Ariz., is to have a new theatre, which will be opened about July 1. The theatre is built in connection with a hotel by J. Gondolfo, built from plans prepared by A. J. Crawford, of Los Angeles. The theatre will have a seating capacity of 650, and equipped with a stage to accommodate road shows and vaudeville. The seating is furnished by Hayward Bros. & Wakefield, and projecting room will be equipped with two Powers 6 B machines.

Yuma is referred to as the hottest city in America, and to obviate this bad feature and make the theatre more attractive, especially during the warmer months, Manager Gondolfo has had installed an air cooling system. The building was erected at a cost of $50,000, has three floors and basement which will be used for a bowling alley. The theatre will be known as the Gondolfo, and the management will use a four-piece orchestra.

Money-Making Nebraska Houses

Kearney, Neb., a city of 8,000 people, has only two theatres: the Crescent, operated by Paul Hoppin, and the New Swan, operated by H. E. Smith, both in business, both finished and classed as one of the most delightful houses in the state. The New Swan seats 740, and has a big organ, recently added to the equipment. Both run big features, charge 10 and 15 cents admission, and both are decidedly big money makers.

Ballinger & Son control all the theatres in York, Neb., a town of 6,000. Beside the Dean theatre and the Opera House, they have taken an option on another building, and will remodel it into a big new theatre, seating 900, which will be opened about September 1. It will have all the latest equipment. In all three houses the admission is 15 and 25 cents.

The above houses are among the best money makers in the state of Nebraska.

Iowa Judge Rules Against Validity of Blue Laws

Motion Picture Exhibitors in Des Moines are the victors in the first skirmish of the fight which they are waging against the enforcement of the Ancient Iowa Sunday Closing Laws. The first victory was the decision of Municipal Judge Meyers, who in deciding test cases held that exhibitors arrested Sunday, May 13, for violation of the Blue Laws were not guilty.

In making his decision Judge Meyers stated that innocent amusement on the Sabbath was a necessity, and that the labor incidental to this amusement could not be construed as a violation of the law.

Censors' Work Brings Ridicule on "Easiest Way"

"The Easiest Way," after its bout with the censors in court, brought packed houses to the Stanley theatre, where it had its initial showing in Philadelphia.

The Pennsylvania Censor Board did, however, succeed in changing several titles and also the original ending. The audience is reported to have ridiculed the ridiculous twists thus given the story.

Competition Rouses Trenton N. J., Exhibitors

The motion picture situation in Trenton, N. J., has reached a point of rivalry that has never been equalled in that section of the state, according to reports. The Grand theatre, burlesque house, has been taken over by the Charles C. Hildinger interests, and has been turned into the largest straight motion picture house, South of Newark. The seating capacity is 2,000. It is the intention of Mr. Hildinger to run all of the big productions at popular prices. He has booked the Paramount service, formerly leased by the State Street theatre, here and the Triangle features. His bill contains both shows for the one price of admission. The policy of the house will be to have four shows daily, two in the afternoon and a like number evenings.

The shows are placed by the Hildinger Booking Company of this city, who now has a string of fifty motion picture houses in this city and the adjacent territory. The managers of the theatres who are not in this combination are watching the new experiment with a great deal of anxiety. The State Street theatre is in the open market and refuses to be tied down to any particular program, the Metro, Selznick and Arctraft features are now being shown at that place.

The St. Regis theatre is also in the open market field and is using Fox, Vitagraph and a general line of films.

Rebuild and Open Burned House

The Old Mill theatre, which was partly destroyed by fire at Dallas, Tex., several weeks ago, was reopened May 20 to crowded houses. The building has been completely remodeled, and the cooling system doubled in capacity. Additions and more elaborate decorations have been made to the building, both inside and out, and now the Old Mill theatre is again an up-to-date playhouse for moving pictures.
SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"The Submarine Eye"
(Submarine Films—Eight Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"THE SUBMARINE EYE is "the something different." It is being received in that spirit at the Liberty Theatre. It smacks of science, skillfully adapted for screen entertainment, of photography, making for its vivid revelation of the mysteries of the deep sea, of an artful combination of the purely educational and strong, dramatic action, and of direction, done with all the foresight of an experienced photo-dramatic leader plus the inventive genius of J. Ernest Williamson and brother

The Williamson Brothers have not only given to the world an invention of inestimable, practical value, but they have brought into being a picture that will stand the exigencies of time without losing interest for it is one of the few limited number of agencies through which the public can get intelligible access to the mysteries which have lain concealed for ages beneath fathoms of water.

Nor does this picture have to rest solely upon the fact that it is a flawless exponent of a great invention, for its laurels—the value and resultant interest of the invention is a self-evident truth. It has in addition to its scientific value all the attractive characteristics of the screen adaptation of a work of fiction, exposing rapid-fire action and intrigued action of the main theme, which "something different" arrives at the psychological moment, leaving a time-space for relaxation of the nerves governing the "suspense" faculties and commencing again, only to weave a new thread, not distinct from the main theme, but serving rather to emphasize the strength of what has gone before, adding to the main theme a "hundred cubic." With a charm of technique and a grace of presentation the author, J. Ernest Williamson, and the director, Winthrop Kelley, have passed from the terra firma stage to the submarine with this terre-ne-subsea romance without a preceptible change. When the time arrives for the young inventor to descend to the depths of the sea, so natural and artificial have these two men reached the climax in the presentation of the picture that one accepts the descent not with a shudder, but with nerves tingling with anticipation. Its action is strong but simple—simple because the sensational has been made impressive without the "blare of trumpets." Its continuity approaches the ideal of power of perfection. There is neither a jump nor a stop unless prompted by natural, instinctive lines of demarcation. Full moments during the run of "The Submarine Eye" are conspicuous because of their absence.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

The picture opens with a prologue setting forth events which happen one hundred years before the opening events of the main theme, the time of which is the present. An exiled man is shown with his treasures, alone on an island. He has been banished there because his love for money was greater than his love for his betrothed. He bequeaths his treasure to him who shall find it and then drowns himself. Then comes the story of the inventors. The "submarine eye" is installed on his private yacht and the trip is made to "Treasure Island," where the mysteries of the deep sea are solved and the treasure found.

Chester Barnett, in the role of the young inventor, is fine. Barbara Tennant has due consideration for it. She presents a pleasing part. Buller, the Human Fish, as the program announces, has indeed the proprieties of the fish for water and performs remarkable feats of endurance under the water. To Harold Sintzenich, camera man, is attributable the unusually fine photography, especially in the chase scene, in the cast are Lindsay Hall, Charles Hartley, Edith Conway, Charles Slattery, Nell Slattery, Eric Wayne, Edward Butler and Gustave Fisher.

"The Girl Glory"
(Triangle-Ince—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

A MOST delightful combination of pathos and comedy is "The Girl Glory," a vehicle provided Enid Bennett, by C. Gardner Sullivan. It is a fitting mate to that other Bennett-Sullivan picture, "Happiness," which drew so much favorable comment. Miss Bennett's personality grows on one with each picture. She is a distinct type if there ever was one, representing in one, being young and above all a simplicity and refreshing charm that is not to be resisted. She never catches the slightest suggestion of sophistication in her work and it is free from even the smallest smattering of "sex."

"The Girl Glory" is a decided departure from the cut-and-dried and might appear forced and unconvincing if it were not for the self-effacing treatment accorded it by all parties concerned with its production. Mr. Sullivan handled his scenario in his usual, straightforward, clean-cut style. He weaves the action, characters so excellently planted that they move in an atmosphere realistic to a point that startles, and a handling of the crises and climax with an incomparable sense of their values, elements that stamp all his scenarios and which are by no means lacking.

Further, the direction of R. William Neill is of a high order. Attractive as Miss Bennett is in the plainest setting, she fairly enlightened the darkness of the projecting room posed with the light streaming through her hair. The light effects are, throughout, some of the best ever seen. Walt Whitman, as the old soldier, gives a fine character study, and J. P. Lockney as the avaricious saloon keeper gives a striking performance.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

The only cloud in the bright existence of Glory (Enid Bennett) and her grandfather, Jed Wharton (Walt Whitman), a veteran of the Civil War, is the latter's craze for drink. Several times he disgraces himself and these fits are an invariable feature of the play into his picture, to stamp it as distinctly apart from the usual five-reel photoplay.

Whether or not "The Girl Glory" will be appreciated by the majority of motion picture audiences is an open question. Certainly those present at the New York theatre last Wednesday were rather disappointingly surprised when Nora walked out into the night and the Bluebirds began fluttering around on the trailer. It seemed that they might have preferred the happy and Nora Helmer (Dorothy Philipps), wife of a well-to-do banker, Torvald (William Stowell), lives in fear of the past. She was obliged to forge her name to a security to provide money for her husband's operation, before wealth was theirs. Torvald discharges Nils Krogstad (Lon Chaney) from the bank owing to the fact that he was a forger. He makes his reservation that he has no regard for such people. Krogstad, possessed of Nora's secret asks her to use her influence for his reinstatement and she is successful he takes it to be Torvald with her act. Torvald fears for his reputation and upbraids Nora, but when Krogstad influenced by his old love, Christina Linden (Miriam C. Bolles), relents and places all evidence of Nora's guilt in her husband's hands his anxiety is gone. Nora, however, realizing the superficiality of Torvald's love leaves him.

Sidney Dean and Helen Wright are prominent in the supporting cast.

“A Naked Soul”

(Brady-International-World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. F. MALLEY

“A NAKED SOUL” in its opening reel, gives promise of a certain strength in its characters, a convincing plot and an original turn in arriving at its climax. But with the opening of the second reel, the characters, the plot and its action, minus strength, all seem to fade into beautiful backgrounds and natural, scenic effects. The direction lacks a commanding spirit in its presentation of characters. Two persons whose names are not mentioned in the cast do commendable work in character acting. Louis Mercanton and Rene Hervil, who are responsible for the direction, selected excellent settings.

The two main characters of the story, Susan Grandaisc and Brenton Marchville, are not convincing. The opportunities given them by the writer have not been utilized and in their acting, and just in their eagerness to “act.” Miss Grandaisc has a pleasing personality, but it is overshadowed by her consciousness before the camera. Brenton Marchville could have been a less ardent lover and more of a Prince. The thrill in the climax does not register, as it becomes apparent long before it happens. “A Naked Soul,” in part, rises to dramatic heights and affords excellent light entertainment.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

The story opens with Susan Daubray (Susan Grandaisc) talking with her father, a judge, who insists upon her reading law. Her brother, Robert, is her only real companion. She has a kind friend in Daddy Dorand, a goatherd on a neighboring island. Prince Michael, of Sylvana (Brenton Marchville), is visiting the Duke of Valdimere (George Treville), whose castle is near Susan's home. Susan meets the Prince and they become close friends. The Prince is called to Paris to meet Princess Sonia (Grace Derrill). He writes Susan, but his letter is intercepted by the Duke, who disapproves of the acquaintance. Susan, unable to bear the sorrow of the loss of her friend, goes to the Duke's castle to learn the reason why the Prince does not write. While in the castle she finds a ring which the Prince had given her is taken from her finger by the Duke and returned to its original owner, the Prince. The Prince thinks that Susan has forgotten the condescension of the Prince. A baby is born to Susan and she is told by her father to leave his house. She goes with the goatherd to live. The Prince then learns of the intercepted letter and finds Susan and they are reconciled, Susan, after reconciliation, is content to die in her happiness and drowns herself.

“The False Friend”

(Word Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE hero, who is a victim of villainy and who is terribly misrepresented in the eyes of the girl he loves, is the central figure of this melodrama, which has Robert Warwick and Gail Kane as the leading players. It is another of those little comedies of which is considerably far fetched as commonplace, which can be relied upon as sure-fire entertainment for Mr. Brady's usual audiences. The situation in which the villain attempts to make the hero a drug addict and in which he is successful in his plan to have him appear sick at least to be attempted to his owner, the Prince. The Prince thinks that Susan has forgotten him and he consents to marry the Princess.

We have seen the complications from a little white lie much more forcefully developed than in this story by Lois Zellner, and we cannot therefore say much for the strength of the plot. Miss Martin's handling of her part of the performance was, however, admirable in its naturalness. Further than expressing sorrow and remorse at her selfishness in being happy, when her father and mother were in real need, both of the money it took to keep her at boarding school and of her help at home, Miss Martin is called upon to express in a light and cheerful way the emotion. But she has certainly added to her accomplishments in the way of versatility some dancing that to the uninitiated eye at least looks as fancy as the real two-dollar a seat offering. We fully expected a “double” or some sort of trick in these scenes, but we are able to say that Miss Martin is a finished danseuse.

“Giving Becky a Chance”

(Morosco-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THE chief impression of all pictures with Vivian Martin is the daintiness of the personality of the star herself. This is very dominant in this latest picture from the Morosco Studios. We have seen the complications from a little white lie much more convincingly developed than in this story by Lois Zellner, and we cannot therefore say much for the strength of the plot. Miss Martin's handling of her part of the performance was, however, admirable in its naturalness. Further than expressing sorrow and remorse at her selfishness in being happy, when her father and mother were in real need, both of the money it took to keep her at boarding school and of her help at home, Miss Martin is called upon to express in a light and cheerful way the emotion. But she has certainly added to her accomplishments in the way of versatility some dancing that to the uninitiated eye at least looks as fancy as the real two-dollar a seat offering. We fully expected a “double” or some sort of trick in these scenes, but we are able to say that Miss Martin is a finished danseuse.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Becky (Vivian Martin) is sent away to school by indulgent parents (P. H. Sosso and Alice Knowlan), who can hardly afford the cost. Her wealthier schoolmates think “Rosemere” a “country home” instead of just a village house, and Becky's one accomplishment, dancing, is in keeping with the idea. When Christmas arrives, Becky is persuaded to visit one of her rich friends, and dances at an elegant party, there meeting Tom Fielding (Jack Holt), who adores her greatly.

When Becky's mother collapses from overwork, her father considers suicide from financial embarrassment and worries, and Becky arrives home just in time to realize her selfishness. Ross Benson, who has met the party, happens in just as Becky discovers her father need of money, and offers her $500 to open his new road-house as danseuse. She accepts two weeks' contract, and returns to be forgiven after being insulted by Ross and rescued by Tom, who forgives her for past selfishness and deception, which he had discovered through accidentally being called in to help the old folks.
A DAPTED from Edward Sheldon's play, "Egypt," this picture presents Ethel Barrymore in the featured role. One has just cause to look for something exceptional from such a combinaton of author and star as "The Call of Her People" offers, but regrettably neither one nor the other shows to striking advantage in this particular instance. At the Rialto theatre, where it was first shown in New York, a full sized Sunday afternoon audience failed to become greatly interested. The big moments of the picture, most of them supplied by Barrymore and director, failed to register effectively and some of them even drew laughs in place of gasps.

It seems that the main fault with "The Call of Her People" is that Ethel Barrymore, one of the producers of the film, has pronounced it to the leading role. The story is necessarily treated too much as the property of the great star, practically to the exclusion of the other players and the plot proper. There are a number of scenes, which in their individual composition fail to convince because of oversights in direction or too big gaps in the continuity. Of course, the special editing which the picture underwent before its Rialto showing, materially decreasing its footage, and the fact that the operator seemed to be in a terrible hurry at the performance the reviewer happened to witness, might have had something to do with the jerkiness of the continuity, but making such allowances, there is the fact first alluded to, briefly, that "Egypt" was never meant for the screen.

Miss Barrymore receives competent support. June Mathis prepared the scenario and John Noble directed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Egypt (Ethel Barrymore) goes through the gypsy wedding ceremony with Faro (Robert Whittier), another member of the tribe. The chief (Frank Montgomery) separates the two by telling Egypt to Lindsay (William Mandeville), supposed her father. A young society man, Van Kleet (William Davidson), is attentive to her and although realizing that her heart is still with the gypsy band, proposes to her and is accepted. Faro becomes chief of the tribe and plans to return for Egypt, believing her still faithful to him. In a brawl he stabs the brother of the county sheriff and, pursued, he takes refuge in Egypt's home. At first she refuses to have anything to do with him, but when he is made captive the call of her people asserts itself and with her assistance he escapes, she accompanying him.

Mrs. Allan Walker and Helen Arnold contribute good characterizations.

"The Jaguar's Claws"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THIS picture gets whatever credit is due it from the acting of its capable principals. Susse Hayakawa, as El Jaguar, the bandit, and Mabel Van Buren, as Marie, his Spanish consort, carry off the honors. Naturally, the carrying off of two American white women by a Mexican bandit, offers a tense dramatic situation, but we were at no stage of the plot impressed particularly by its unfoldings. It might be said to serve only as a vehicle for Mr. Hayakawa's masterful command of that Oriental expression of deep soulless emotion that "never forgets." The climax was very weak, the holding of a dagger ready to take her own life if necessity warranted being theoretically, perhaps, a tremendous suspense builder, yet even the arrival of the troops to the rescue was robbed of any possible thrill on the audience by having the villain neatly killed by a supernumerary character in the background. This plot indeed shows peculiar dramatic structure, to put it mildly.

In finally summing up this picture we should say it was better than average because of fine work by Mr. Hayakawa, strongly backed by Miss Van Buren and a capable supporting cast. We don't think it will live as one of the big accomplishments in Mr. Hayakawa's career, because the passions are not shown worked up to a white heat of intensity. It will not disappoint audiences—decidedly not—and will be considered a great picture of some—it is good enough for that—but opportunity to register big things was not offered by the plot.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

El Jaguar (Susse Hayakawa), Mexican bandit, takes vengeance for having his attentions to the oil well superintendent's sister roughly stopped. He kidnaps Beth (Fritta Brunette) and Nancy (Marjorie Daw) and takes them to his strongly fortified lair. Phil Jordan, the superintendent, rescues the women, with the help of troops from across the border, who ride in as the Mexicans ride away leaving their leader in the faithless treachery of one of his men. Marie (Mabel Van Buren) is El Jaguar's consort. Before the troops arrive, a native bride, whom El Jaguar has seized through a whim, kills him, and Marie kills herself.

"The Circus of Life"

(Butterfly-Universal—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE Circus of Life" has much in it to delight the fan hungering after thrills and comedy of both the low and gentle type. For instance, the audience at an East Side theatre in New York, where the picture was shown, loudly acclaimed its appreciation of the climax, in the form of a full complement of the episode wherein Danny's bandit suffers a harem full of roughnecks, and were quietly amused at the clever bits of acting and business contributed by Zoe Rae, the child star, who has been seen in many Universal program pictures.

On the other hand, the runaway, with its incidental perils for pedestrians, and its breath-taking climax when Daisy May is thrown from the wagon, is well done and rests with a high degree of sensationalism. There then is much suspense supplied by the raid on the gambling hall and the roof-top escape of Tommie. The melodrama is well balanced with its child actress, its swarthy hero and its villain masking under the guise of a free thinker and free lover, the latter character also being responsible for as much humor as moral niggles.

The story by E. J. Clawson is virtually of "the little child shall lead them" type, although the action is never allowed to become wishy-washy with sentimentality. Rupert Julian's direction is of a generally good order, with special stress being laid on the realism of the scenes. The cast is well selected, particularly in the case of Pomroy Cannon, than whom there could hardly have been a better type for the part of Danny.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Mamie (Elsie Jane Wilson) neglects her lover, Danny (Pomroy Cannon), for the attentions of Bouvais (Harry Carter), an artist who takes undue advantage of her confidence in him. Naturally, the carrying off of two American white women by a Mexican bandit, offers a tense dramatic situation, but we were at no stage of the plot impressed particularly by its unfoldings. It might be said to serve only as a vehicle for Mr. Hayakawa's masterful command of that Oriental expression of deep soulless emotion that "never forgets." The climax was very weak, the holding of a dagger ready to take her own life if necessity warranted being theoretically, perhaps, a tremendous suspense builder, yet even the arrival of the troops to the rescue was robbed of any possible thrill on the audience by having the villain neatly killed by a supernumerary character in the background. "Cactus Nell"

(Triangle-Keystone—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THERE have been better Keystones than "Cactus Nell," a burlesque on the William S. Hart type of western melodrama, but even so there are enough laughs in its two reels to supply thirty minutes worth of very fine entertainment. There is a considerale amount of rough-riding, just enough trick work to permit the observer to know he is watching Keystone, without looking at the trade mark and plenty of clever subtleties.

The plot has as central figures Cactus Nell, the sheriff, her large and fat lover, and a villain and villainess from the city who cause much trouble with their polished ways. Polly Moran, as Nell, gives a performance as fearless as it is funny, and receives typical Keystone support from Wallace Beery, Wayland Trask, Cliff Bowes, Mai Wells, Bob Kortman and Little Joey Jacobs. Fred Fishback directed.
"The Magnificent Meddler"
(Vitagraph—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

This story and play of Pemberton (Frederick Warde), an iron-hearted factory owner, refuses to enter into his spirit of play. In his house on the edge of a factory town little Billy (Helen Badgley), son of one of the factory workers (Ernest Howard), comes to play with him, not knowing his identity. Pemberton, under an assumed name, secures a position in his factory, living with Billy's family. He falls in love with Billy's sister (Jeanne Eagles), but soon finds that her love lies with Jim (Robert Vaughan). Pemberton, his eyes opened, leaves the factory for a day, but his plans are interrupted. Billy's old friend will be discharged, sets to work for him and is badly burned. Billy's father and Jim, taking this as the last straw, call the workers together and draw lots to see who shall kill Pemberton. Pemberton, himself, gets the fatal card and is about to commit suicide when the girl saves him. He is forgiven and makes the best of his position to his employees.

"Fires of Youth"
(Thompson-Pathé—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"Fires of Youth" is a rather sugary picture when the vital point of its plot is considered. Exactly when it comes to consideration of its surface qualities, there is more praise to offer and nothing to prevent it bringing money into the box office. There are Frederick Warde, Jeanne Eagles and Helen Badgley as stars, every one doing work that is pleasant to say the least. Little Helen has never had such a prominent part in a feature and her many appearances are certainly a joy. In her scenes with Mr. Warde she is excellent. The pair make a happy combination of Youth and Old Age. The interest awakened at the outset of "Fires of Youth" is never allowed to subside and there are several moments when the greatest suspense is derived from the story. Doubtless there will be any number of pictures and when little Billy is carried home from the factory where he has been seriously burned in an effort to complete Pemberton's work.

"The Thirteenth Labor of Hercules"
(Cinema Distributing Corp. Representative—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

The Cinema Distributing Corporation will release twelve reels of the San Francisco Fair of 1915, in weekly episodes of one reel each on the states rights market, of which five were shown for review last week.

The reels offer various scenes of the exposition, including the state buildings, the exhibits of many of the European nations as well as the smaller ones of the manufacturers and large concerns in the United States. There is a deal of night photography, taken during the celebration when a large amount of fireworks were set off. There are also a few panoramas of the city of San Francisco, glimpses of the harbor, naval maneuvers, land parades and the like.

Opening day of the fair is given prominence, and close-ups of ex-Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, governors and mayors of many cities and cabinet officers of the nation, while delivering speeches, enliven the reels. These pictures may be taken for granted will greatly interest those who have not seen them before. However, the weekdays of the past have recorded many of the events shown in "The Thirteenth Labor of Hercules." The cameraman on the job selected some interesting scenes and others of a more commonplace variety. He "pans around" to excess at times and his camera sometimes moves with a jerk that should have been eliminated.

"The Mystery of No. 47"
(Selig-K.E-E.B.—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

This play from J. Storer Clouston's story, directed by Oils Thayer, is a series of surprises from opening to finish, sustaining a thread of hilarious and constantly changing comedy that is quite funny. Ralph Hertz, as the respectable savant whose happy life is upset by the visit of an obtrusive old bishop, furnishes his character with a brand of facial twists, and all the members of the large cast give excellent performances.

To get the spirit of this story, which was a literary gem in its original novel form, was no easy task, and we cannot say that the characters appear to us as natural as the plot would have allowed. In fact, to have made the incidents of comedy flow from serious and dramatic characters would, we believe, have added materially to its effectiveness.

A good story has been given an excellent presentation in pictures, however, and we welcome it as a relief from the usual triangle of domestic unhappiness.

Louissetta Valentine is a decidedly attractive feminine foil for Mr. Hertz.

"The Story and Players"
Irwin Molyneux (Ralph Hertz), a savant whom one would least suspect of harm, is visited by an obtrusive old bishop, who insists on extending his visit until the return of Mrs. Molyneux (Nellie Hartley), because he believes the presence of a pretty young girl (Louissetta Valentine) a danger to which he should not leave the old man alone unprotected. The fact is, Mrs. Molyneux has turned cook, through necessity, on the death of the rector Jane. Finally, when Mrs. Molyneux fails to return, the bishop becomes suspicious and summons a detective from Scotland Yard (Fred Eckhart), who brings along a newspaper reporter (Casson Ferguson), and the "fun begins." Identities and probabilities are equally mixed, with a counter plot, in which Lord Philimore (Edgar Murray, Jr.) is in love

“THE GREAT WHITE TRAIL”
(Wharton, Inc.—Seven Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

“The Great White Trail” is a well-done melodramatic picture of the Klondike, written and produced by Leopold Wharton. Its action, while not condensed as much as it could be without working injury to the plot, is in general swift-moving, and is enlivened at times by the introduction of several thrills. The final climax, staged in the northland, in which there is much gun-play, rescues and the like, followed by a final reconciliation of the long-separated husband and wife, is handled deftly and draws the picture to a most satisfying ending.

In the construction of the plot Mr. Wharton has aimed for thrills and appeal, regardless at times of the manner in which he achieves his end. It was rather mechanical, first, to have Prudence lose her memory, and later, to have Carrington also suffer the same artificial process, even though the vast amount of action is inclined to make one forget it. However, Mr. Wharton has, on the whole, produced a picture that will instantly awaken the interest of the majority of picturegoers. It is a straight story, with no propaganda, and has all the elements of popular appeal.

The picture is beautifully mounted. The photography is excellent and the exteriors secured are most attractive. One sees long vistas of snow wastes, bits of film so striking that the invitation audience at the Broadway theatre burst into applause time and again.

Doris Kenyon, whose press agent has not termed her the prettiest girl in pictures, but who might justly do so, appears as Prudence, and does well with the part.

The supporting cast does very good work.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Prudence (Doris Kenyon) marries Carrington (Paul Gordon) in preference to Rev. Arthur Dean (Thomas Holding). Prudence's peacekeeper brother (Hans Robert) proves the means of their separation, as Carrington believes that his wife's clandestine meetings are with another man. Prudence, distraught, flees from her husband, leaving her baby in the woods. It is found and adopted by Dean. Later, Carrington learns that his wife was innocent and makes efforts to find her.

Years later Prudence goes to the Klondike as a nurse. She has lost all recollection of her marriage, owing to the separation. Dean is also in the Klondike as a minister. Carrington, obtaining a clue, sets off for the Klondike. At his journey's end he is attacked by a bandit and knocked senseless. Recovering, his mind is a blank, Marie (Louise Hoteling), Prudence's daughter, comes to join Dean, and is kidnapped by The Vulture (Richard Stuart). Prudence and Carrington rescue her. Dean is the victim of a stray shot. Articles of clothing worn by Marie when a child prove the means of restoring the memories of Prudence and Carrington.

THE SILENT MASTER
(Selznick—Seven Reels)
REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

Leonce Perret, a French director, lately engaged by Selznick, has given to the screen an unusual production in "The Silent Master." His knowledge of technique in the studio, of the Paris underworld and the life of the Apache is unmistakably reflected with striking correctness in this screen presentation of an adaptation from E. Phillips Oppenheim's novel, "The Court of St. Simon." It bespeaks painstaking and thoughtful consideration for detail working in collaboration with a powerful subject force for leagues.

It is M. Perret's first picture in America and promises much for his future.

Robert Warwick has been seen to better advantage in some of his pictures. He did not grasp some of the situations with his usual intensity in portraying other characters than that of Marquis de Sombrerelo. As the Marquis's alias, Monsieur Simon, he registers with the unaffected dignity of one who holds within his hand the destinies of "The Court of St. Simon." He makes a fearless Apache, an unrelenting and just judge, a true friend and a good sportsman.

Olivia de Havilland, who has the leading feminine role in support of Mr. Warwick, leaves a good impression. She has few opportunities to display real dramatic action. This is Miss de Havilland's second appearance in pictures. Princess Little, who has the role of the underworld girl who is made the protege of M. Simon, registers her usual high percentage and comes in for honorable mention.

Donald Calthorpe's work, which required all the dramatic efforts of a "heavy," is most commendable. Henri Velle, a French actor, exemplified the typical Apache leader.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

"The Court of St. Simon" is ruled by an eccentric, young millionaire, Monsieur Simon (Robert Warwick), known also as Marquis de Sombrerelo, whose only law is the moral code. As assistants, he has the services of a band of Apaches. He introduces a young American, Eugene Arlen (Donald Calthorpe), known as Eugene Presley, to the leader of the Apaches, Le Beau Robert (Henri Velle). Eugene is bored because of the lack of excitement and falls in with the leader of the Apaches. He becomes involved in a murder and betrays the Apaches.

M. Simon has as a protege a young girl, Jaqueline (Anna Little), whom he has saved from the underworld. He attempts to save Eugene, but his efforts fail. M. Simon leaves for America with Virginia Arlen (Olive Tell) and makes her his wife. Eugene is her brother, who does not know of the relation until she shows him a letter telling of Eugene's fall in Paris. The two leave for Paris and her brother, who has been freed from prison, meets them and accuses M. Simon of causing his downfall. His wife leaves him.

"The Mystery of the Double Cross"
(Pathe—Fourteenth Episode)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

This chapter, "The Hidden Brand," which is next to the last, brings startling developments. That both Phelps and Bentley suffers a fall from a window and is evidently killed, thus paving the way for a happy ending.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Hale (Leon Bary) and a girl, supposedly Philippa (Molly King), are lured to a room by Bentley (Ralph Stuart) and while they are in each others arms their picture is taken, revealing the mark of the double cross on her arm. Peter visits Philippa that evening and is surprised when she denies having been with him before. Angerly he tears the dress from her arm, but there is no mark. He rubs it with his handkerchief and the mark appears! Just as he is standing amazed, another girl (Molly King), hearing the exact likeness of Philippa, appears.

"The Neglected Wife"
(Balboa—Pathé—Sixth Episode)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

The house-boat continues to burn in the opening reel of this episode and after Margaret and Mrs. Kennedy have been rescued the flames are allowed to run wild and burn to the water's edge.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Margaret (Ruth Roland) rescues both Kennedy (Roland Bottomly) and his wife (Corene Grant) from the burning boat and later, exhausted, she is rescued by Norwood (Paul McCullough). At the hotel Kennedy is delirious and in his ravings gives way some of the secrets of his relationship with Margaret to his wife. Norwood is now plainly in love with Margaret, but she still prefers Kennedy.

Christie Comedies

"With the Mummies' Help." (One reel)—Conventional plot, well done on the whole and containing none of the loose ends, and all the dialogue and action is restricted to only the manner in which the wife cures her husband of his affection for the mummies. Written by Mrs. Pauline Konnen, directed by W. A. Horn. Eddie Harry, Ethel Lyne, George French, and Christie's new star, Margaret Gibson, have the leading roles.

"Father's Bright Idea." (One reel)—Fine comedy, written by one of Christie's leads, Neal Burns, and performed by the girl proprietor. Miss Burns is in her element on her prospective son-in-law and enlists a couple of masculine ladies to help him out. But the young man is wise, and the joke comes back on his master. Neal Burns has the lead, while Betty Compton, George French, and Steve Adams have the other leading roles.

"The Milky Way." (One reel)—Many complications in the home of the eccentric author, where an innocent girl is in the making of her native routine. Miss Burns is in her element on this particular plot, and the young man is wise. Much good stuff and well acted by a cast headed by Margaret Gibson, Eddie Harry, and Neal Burns.

Mutual Program

"Mutual Tour, No. 59." (Gaumont. One reel. Tour, June 1, 1921)—A story of the audience first to Teneriffe, in the Canary Islands, and its various adventures. Before the audience has a chance to laugh, the ship has met with an accident and all the passengers are taken to a prison, where they are subjected to a cross-examination. Much good stuff and well acted by a cast headed by Margaret Gibson, Eddie Harry, and Neal Burns.

"The Knotted Cord." (Signal. Chapter 8 of "The Railroad Raider" series. One reel. June 11, 1921)—Ever unctuated Helen Holmes pulls a mischievous trick on her husband, who, upon her return to New York, is introduced as the author of the play. Chester Hennett and Hayward Mack are in support.

"The Mysterious Outlaw." (Big U. Week of June 11.)—The ex-convict bent on ill-conceived revenge is put to flight by the police, who are not satisfied with the discharge of the alleged outlaw. Harry Carey is the heavy and is given support by Bill Gettinger and Jane Bernoudy.

"The Flopping Uplifter." (Victor. Week of June 11.)—In the picture and performs like a human. Ralph McCombs, Milton Sims and Eileen Sedgwick are the leads.

Universal

"The Stolen Actress." (Gold Seal. Three reels. Week of May 28.)—This drama, depicting the life of a Kentucky moonshiner and his subsequent conversion to a better life by a well-known nursery story, is set in a small town and has a nice touch of romance running through its three interesting reels. Ruth Chatterton is the heroine, after being kidnapped by an enterprising press agent who is exploiting a play which he wants her to read and accept. She is taken to Kentucky at the suggestion of the press agent for local color. The story is filled with suspense and is in love with a revenue officer, who, upon her return to New York, is engaged by the Chester Bennett and Hayward Mack are in support.

"To Be Or Not to Be—Married." (Nestor. Week of June 11.)—A Nestor comedy with all the players in straight roles. The married couple who happened to be in love with each other during the wedding. Edythe Lyons, Lee Moran, Edith Roberts and Molly Malone appear.

"The Thief Maker." (Imp. Two reels. Week of June 11.)—A Nestor comedy, containing the usual good gags and humorous situations. The story is set in the end with much perfect fire action. Phil Dunham, Lucille Hutton and Merta Sterling are the principals.

"The Flopping Uplifter." (Victor. Week of June 11.)—In the picture and performs like a human. Ralph McCombs, Milton Sims and Eileen Sedgwick are the leads.

A. F. WILLIAMS

144 W. Adams St., Chicago
EVERY MOTION PICTURE THEATRE OWNER AND MANAGER should read the following letter from Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Sirs: Many times I have been considered as a radical man in my views regarding the equipment that I use in the Sapphire Theatre, but the fact that I am compelled to run at such a high rate of speed and run so continuously from early morning until midnight, I feel that I must use only the equipment that gives the best results and costs me the least money to maintain.

In my experience in the show business (which started seven years ago), I have used every make of machine with the exception of one and until such time as you persuaded me to install the Motiograph equipment I had been buying new machine heads every six months and in many instances I had to have my machine heads overhauled thoroughly at an expense of from ten to thirty dollars. I have had the two Motiographs in service running at the rate of from five to eight minutes per reel for more than seven months; the expense so far has been eighteen cents, and from what my operators advise me they are good for another six months steady running without any more expense.

If any of your customers desire any further confirmation of this letter (that is if you show this letter to any one), have them write or see me, for I know good equipment when I see it and will be only too glad to assist any manager towards locating the most practical moving picture machine that to my knowledge has been manufactured.

Yours very truly,
A. E. Elliott, Prop.,

ARGUMENT WITHOUT PROOF IS USELESS—WITH CORROBORA-RATION, IT CONVINCES AND JUSTIFIES PREJUDICE AND

WHEN WE ARGUE IN FAVOR OF "SPEER PROJECTOR CAR-BONS," WE ARE WILLING TO PROVE EVERY STATEMENT.

THE FACTS ARE:

That a combination of a Speer "Cored" upper and a "Hold-Ark" lower will improve your projection.

That the hard core of the "Hold-Ark" assures absolute steadiness of the arc.

That ghosts and aggravating shadows are eliminated by the brilliancy of the light.

That every carbon is uniform and can be depended upon for efficient results.

That a mere trial of "Speer Carbons" will cause you to use them unhesitatingly thereafter.

That samples will be supplied willingly, to those who desire additional proof of the foregoing arguments.

NINETY GOLD STREET  NEW YORK CITY
The Heart of the Theatre

I HAVE operated a machine for about six years from three to six nights each week and have had but very little trouble—none with my machine, for I keep my screw driver on a HIGH shelf."

This is a statement made by one of our subscribers and a member of the Anti Mis-Frame League in a letter received today and is one of the most truthful reasons yet given for good results. It is certainly a text worthy of the attention of every man in this exhibiting end of motion pictures. It should appeal to the operator and the theatre manager alike. In many cases it may be taken literally, whereas, in others, it is another way of saying "don't monkey with the buzz saw."

When a man puts up a photoplay theatre he is erecting a place for motion picture entertainment. The principal item in this theatre is the projection room which may be properly placed or wrongly placed, but whichever is the case the picture on the screen must be as near 100% perfect as possible.

When the equipment of this projection room is referred to it must be remembered that the mechanisms when they are delivered from the various factories are adjusted down to a thousandth of an inch. These adjustments are made with mathematical precision and for the best possible operation. Every projection machine, every converter and every apparatus used in the theatre is the same. In other words when a machine is installed and adjusted to fit conditions it is ready to deliver the best results which can be obtained from the product of the given manufacturers.

As long as the machine is running smoothly there is no need of worry. It is only when the picture on the screen begins to go wrong that we find the mechanisms investigated and home-made adjustments being tried. It is at these times that the screw driver should be left on the HIGH shelf.

The best definition of a good chauffeur is the driver who knows when to change gears. No man who drives an automobile properly forces the mechanism on high speed when he should be in second speed. So with the projection, no good operator will run a machine on which the adjustments are wrong. Further than this, no good operator will try to make the minute adjustments himself unless he is past master at mechanics and has the proper tools. This means instruments and other equipment which must be on hand and must be used in order that the mechanism may again be put back in its original form. This means a machine shop or work room equally well equipped, not the average projection room equipment.

The picture on the screen must not be experimented with. It must be right. If it is the least bit out in any way it is wrong and every patron in the theatre knows it or feels the result of the error on his or her eyes. It is therefore an insurance for the theatre man to deal in every case with the dealers who can supply either complete repair service or who can loan a new head for a mechanism or other mechanisms, while the one which is out of order is being sent to the shop or factory for repairs.

The operator who knows when to go to his manager and report the need of repairs or the shipping of the mechanism to the factory is the man who should receive the raise in salary. He is the man who knows his own limitations and will not use the screwdriver when it should be on the shelf. He is the man who will oil the machine when it is necessary, tighten the take-up when it is necessary and otherwise care for the mechanisms which spell success or failure to the house.

The success or failure of the operator should not be measured by his mechanical genius alone, for no matter how good a man he may be in the factory where he has all the necessary tools he must not be expected to obtain the same results when away from them in a projection room. It must be remembered that the possession of a license card does not necessarily carry with it any detailed knowledge of mechanics, in fact every theatre owner should judge his operator by his ability to detect trouble and his being able to advise when and where to ship the mechanisms so that they may be put back into perfect order once more.

It is not meant that an operator should entirely overlook making certain simple repairs but merely that those parts of any mechanism which need minute adjustments should be left alone, for it is as impossible that they can be properly cared for in the theatre as it is that the average lay man could put a new main spring in his watch.

Let the members of the A. M-F. L. consider the importance of this as a principle and apply it when necessary.

E. K. Gillett.
Twinscope Projection Promises Saving of Film

WHAT is expected to revolutionize the projection of motion pictures, as well as to create a saving on the total footage of film used, and also to create the impression of more continuity of the story being told, is the invention of Wilfred Ledoux of Omaha, Neb, which he has named the "Twinscope." The apparatus is said to be very simple, and consists of two ordinary motion picture projectors, uniformly controlled by special speed device of Mr. Ledoux’s invention, the purpose of which is to show two pictures relating to the same subject on the same screen at the same time, in this way eliminating the many cut-backs which are used in the ordinary film production. For instance, the subject being shown upon the screen is one wherein a burlar enters a house with intent to rob and is discovered by the mistress, who phone in the police station for help. The ordinary way would be to show in the next scene the police leaving the station house on their way to apprehend the miscreant. Then there would have to be a change of time and place, and so on, and show the police drawing nearer to their quarry. With the Twinscope these cut-backs are unnecessary by reason of the fact that when the mistress of the house phones the police station the two pictures are shown simultaneously, on one half of the screen the burlar coming nearer to his home, while on the other half the police are seen on their way to apprehend him.

Of course, this scheme will, on account of the scenes being practically doubled on the screen, make it necessary to install screens double the present width of those now in use. But, contrary to what might be expected, there will be no division in the screen except that made by the rays from the projectors. Therefore ordinary pictures can be projected in the center of the screen when the Twinscope is not in use.

It is reported that a syndicate is busily engaged in making preparations to place the Twinscope on the market at an early date, all the mechanical parts of the invention having been perfected, and all that is now needed is a motion picture production made on the twin plan.

Not having seen the Twinscope in actual operation, it does not behoove us to pass an opinion upon same, but we will say that we are interested and would be pleased to receive photographs of the working parts so as to present them to our readers. Whether it is possible for the large film manufacturers to accept this apparently revolutionary idea or not, we cannot say, but we cannot be gainsaid that with its adoption there would be an enormous amount of film saved, and it would be possible for pictures that are now released in five and six parts to be condensed in such a way as to tell the same story with from three thousand to three thousand five hundred feet of film, as well as obviating the many annoying cut-backs. We wish Mr. Ledoux success with his new invention and await further particulars.

Censorship—War Tax—And Now This?

THE Electric Lighting Company, of New Haven, Conn., are evidently not familiar with the trials and tribulations of the motion picture theatre owners, or if they are they evidently care little so long as their expenses are covered. In connection with the censorship question, the war tax, and municipal regulation, the exhibitor has indeed had a hard row to hoe, but it remained for the Electric Company, at New Haven, to cap the climax by a proposal to change their direct current to alternating current. We do not know who is the originator of this scheme, and we care less, but we must say that this is a very injurious impertinence upon the exhibitor as well as the increasing expenditures which will be entailed by changing their direct current apparatus for apparatus that will give equally as good results when using alternating current. Alternating current can never compare with the direct as far as the projection of motion pictures be concerned unless many inventors are rectifying it, for some such device is used which will again transform the A. C. into D. C. This question is one which should call for unity of action on the part of New Haven exhibitors to most strenuously oppose any such proposed change unless, however, it is the intention of the Electric Company to supply to the exhibitors fans, motors, etc, for alternating current in exchange for those which they are now using on direct current, as well as supply them with apparatus that will produce as good results upon the screen as are now obtained. If this be the case, then, we have nothing more to say.

A Suggestion from Ida Grove, Iowa

JOHN H. THEOBALD, Ida Grove, Iowa, writes: "Although I am not working as an operator at present, I wish you would enter my name in the Anti-Misframe League. I think it is a good thing, and I am strongly in favor of it, although I have always taken out the mis-frames (or frame-ups, as I have always called them), I never had any idea of starting the league, as it happened that every one I ever spoke to about cutting out the mis-frames would laugh at the idea, and remark they were not film inspectors; they were operators, and even so they were not going to search for mis-frames, I say it is unnecessary to search for mis-frames; when the film is being run the first show I have small pieces of cardboard on the table of the machine, and whenever I see a mis-frame I put a piece of the cardboard in the lower reel; then when I rewind I can always find the mis-frame without any trouble. On account of this being my first offence, I hope this letter will get past the 'Board of Censors' and reach you O.K.

"With best wishes to the News and the success of the Anti-Misframe League. May it live long and prosper! Also congratulations to J. C. Pastre for suggesting such a worthy cause, and many thanks to the editor for helping him make it a success."

In reply: The suggestion you make is one which I used for a long time, and, as you say, it was never too late to find the mis-frames after the film had been run through the first time and was being rewound. The fact that those operators to whom you spoke concerning the removal of mis-frames, etc, laughed at you may be taken as an acknowledgment that they have no interest in their profession other than to do as little as they may and draw as large a salary as they can get. This plan will not get them very far, however, for exhibitors are always on the alert to find and secure men for operators who have the best interests of their craft at heart, and the ones who hold to the "don't-care-a-damn" belief will soon find their positions filled with men who do. Then it will be too late! You see your letter passed the "Board of Censors," and it is hoped that your "first offence" will not be your last.

All Operators Welcome

Oba Messenger, Pittsburg, Kan., writes: "I just wish to state that I am strongly in favor of the Anti-Misframe League, as I think it is a very good thing, and you may put my name on the Roll of Honor if it does not require one to be a "union operator," as I do not happen to be one at present, although I would like to be. I have been a subscriber to the News for over a year and find much of that is of help to me, in its pages. I always turn to the Projection Department first, as that interests me more than any other part, and I read it all from front to back. Well, I will close for this time, hoping that the Anti-Misframe League will prove a success and that many more operators will enroll."

In reply: The League is for all operators, whether they be members of the union or not, although we personally think that one who is active in any trade or profession where there is a union should by all means become affiliated with it. It is only by the formation of such organizations that the workers can be assured of a fair living wage, decent surroundings, and better all-around working conditions. We are pleased that you find the department of some value and trust that you will continue to be one of our regular readers. The success of the League, in a great measure, depends upon the support given it by the great army of motion picture operators throughout the country. Join and get others to join, should be the slogan of all interested in the movement.
"Anti-Misframe League" Pledge

A motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart, and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practiced in the operating room, I promise that I will do the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remove all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way cooperate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

The Roll of Honor follows:

Editor's Note: To Brother Pastre belongs the honor of heading the roll, for it was he who propose the "League". Names of members will be added as fast as they are received, and copies of letters will be sent to the various film exchanges asking their support.

ROLL OF HONOR

The following members of Local 307, Moving Picture Operators of Philadelphia, Pa., have signed the pledge of the League and become members:

Notice—Anti-Misframe League Members

In an editorial by E. K. Gillett, which appeared on page 3481 of the June 2 issue of Motion Picture News, speaking of the purpose of the Anti-Misframe League, Mr. Gillett said: "There are no strings of any kind attached to a membership except that every member must be willing to stand by the membership pledge.

There is, however, one "string" and that is that each member send to the department the following information which is for the purpose of enabling us to keep a record of our members:

Members Name, ..........
Home Address, .............
Name of Theatre where employed, .............
Address of Theatre and name of Manager, .............

On receipt of the above information, button and membership card will be sent to members without any cost whatever. In this way we hope to prevent those who are not bona fide operators from obtaining something to which they are not entitled. The expense of having buttons manufactured and membership cards printed is so small one and is being defrayed by the News for the sole purpose of trying to help overcome some of the most flagrant evils with which the operator has to contend.

Patriotism Increases Excelsior Business

The Excelsior Illustrating, 219 Sixth avenue, New York City, manufacturers of slides for features and merchant advertising purposes, announce that since the starting of their new patriotic department, about two months ago, it has increased its business over three hundred percent. Mr. Knoppelman, manager of the Excelsior Co., was one of the first manufacturers in the slide industry to realize the value patriotic slides would have in stirring up patriotism, by the use of the exhibitor's screen. Every method of giving service to the exhibitor is being carried out in this department. A special folder on Patriotic Slides has just been issued and mailed to the exhibitor immediately upon request. The number of orders recently received for patriotic slides, clearly demonstrates that motion picture theatres are playing an important part in recruiting men to both the army and navy.

Precision Machine Company Thanks You

F. E. BALDASSARI, Hamilton, Ont., Canada, writes: “Well, I am back again, not for information this time, though I need a lot, but to thank you for the advice you gave me some time ago, and to tell you a few other things. I received an answer from the Edison people, saying it was quite possible for me to make the change I contemplated, but after thinking it over I don’t believe that I will ever get as good a picture as the one I am now getting with my new machine. Remember my telling you that my employer was going to get me a new machine? Well, he did, shortly after I wrote you. He has promised me another one, so I will make the old Edison do until the other arrives. Believe me, I think one has to give credit to the Simplex people, for they make some machine. Now, coming to the point: I wish to say that I would like to join the Anti-Misframe League, and call it a darn good idea to have such a league if we all stick to our pledge. In the issue of May 19 Brother C. E. W., Indiana, says that he takes all the mis-frames out of a picture that has scenes which fade in and out, which is a good thing to do, but he doesn’t tell how to figure it out so that the one who doesn’t know will learn to make a patch without making a mis-frame. While I am writing I thought I would tell you how it is done. When I get a picture with a mis-frame in the fade out scene and there is no dividing line in that portion of the film, I take the mis-frame out by running the film back to where I can discern a dividing line, then I get a piece of old film with a dividing line (which I always manage to have), and place the old film over the other, and when the lines correspond, hold the film in one hand while with the other I run it along until I reach the fade out, thereby finding out where a dividing line should be, and cutting the film accordingly. If you think this will be of use to some brother, pass it along; if not, you know the place for it.”

In Reply: The suggestion is passed along for the benefit of those who may be unfamiliar with the method of patching film so that it will always be in frame. The Precision Machine Company will no doubt appreciate your kind words of commendation regarding your product. You bring out one good point in your letter, and that is where you say: “It is a good idea to have such a league if we all stick to our pledge.” Let us hope that every member taking the pledge will stick to it. If this is done it will be no time before the far-reaching effects will be felt by the film exchanges in all parts of the United States and Canada, and operators will be relieved in part of the nervous strain which is now put upon them by reason of not knowing whether they are going to get through their first show in safety or not.

Simplex Company Takes $400,000 Worth of Liberty Bonds

INSPIRED by the liberal manner in which the executive directors have contributed to the Liberty Loan, a special meeting of the twelve department heads of the Simplex Projection Company was held last week, when a committee was formed to solicit subscriptions to the Liberty Loan.

Including the amounts subscribed by the directors, the total already exceeds $400,000 dollars, and the manner in which the employees are responding indicates that a large majority of the makers of Simplex Projectors will be the proud possessors of Liberty bonds.

We Like Encouragement, Too

Albert M. Cooper and William S. Ellis, operators of Jonesboro, Ark., write jointly as follows: "We see in the Motion Picture News J. C. P.'s letter suggesting an Anti-Misframe League and heartily endorse it. It is a fact that some of our brother operators are very negligent in the care of the film sent to them, and we ourselves do not claim to be perfect, but the operator who does try to take care and put in better condition the film that goes through their hands should be encouraged. We like encouragement and know that others like it also. Therefore, we, with great pleasure, ask to become members of the Anti-frame League. Looking forward to the time when the League will be without bounds, we are, respectfully yours."

In reply: We agree with you. We are all more or less fond of encouragement. It is encouragement that spurs us on to greater efforts no matter what our work may consist of, whether it be pushing a crank on a projection machine, or pushing a pencil over paper to furnish copy for the Projection Department. The plan originated by Brother Pastre, of Gary, Ind., has received many endorsements, and we are glad to add your names also, which you will notice by glancing over the Honor Roll has been done. It is a fact "that some of our brother operators are very negligent in the care of the film sent to them," but, praise be, the operators all over the country are gradually awakening to the realization that the profession of motion picture operator entails something more than rewinding, threading the machine, feeding the carbons, and throwing in the motor switch. Efficiency—efficiency is the watchword in motion picture projections well as in all other crafts, and to become really efficient one must remember to forget to watch the clock; this one thing more than any other has caused operators, when things have gone wrong, to say "Oh, that's the don't-care-a-damn attitude of the operator." I admire your breezy frankness where you say: "We, ourselves, do not claim to be perfect." It is refreshing as a rule operators all make that claim whether it be with foundation or not, and I think with the assistance of such men as you appear to be, from your letter, the time will come when the League will be without bounds. Let us hope so.

Newman Equipment Louisville House

THE Newman Manufacturing Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, with a branch office at Chicago, Ill., who make a specialty of brass railings, poster frames, easels, ticket choppers, etc., for theatres, recently installed specially designed hinged poster frames to fit the columns and around the corners, for the Strand theatre, Louisville, Ky.

These frames were made to fasten permanently to the columns and building with the front glass doors to open on hinges, and were made to hold one and three sheet posters, also photographs. This type of frame is considered the latest thing in lobby display frames and Mr. Goldberg, the manager of this theatre, has also installed them in the Mary Anderson theatre, of Louisville, which he also manages.

Thinks It Is a Good Idea

Harry Everhart, Greenville, Ohio, writes: "I have been watching the movements of the Anti-Misframe League and I am ready for you to chum on me as a member. I think it was a good idea of Mr. Pastre to suggest it, as it will help many operators to secure better screen results. I have been operating for about six years and I am sure I could stand by the pledge. The first thing I do every day is to remove all the misframes and bad patches. I think every operator should do this whether his machine is motor driven or not. At the present time I am running a Powers' 64, with motor drive. Hoping to hear from you immediately and receive membership card, I am, with best wishes, yours truly."

In reply: We agree with you. It was a good idea of Brother Pastre to suggest the formation of the League, and if operators will determine to not only sign the pledge, but KEEP IT, there is no reason why much good should not be accomplished. The membership cards and buttons are now being made and will be ready for distribution in a very few days. Would call your attention to the notice in the department to members of the League.

The Success of the Marlux Projection Lens is due to the uniformly satisfactory results that it is giving all over the country.

Optically the Marlux embodies the very latest advances in the science of projection.

Mechanically it is correctly designed and constructed so as to focus easily and accurately, and as it does not rotate in focusing all possibility of a displacement of the image on the screen is avoided.

The quality of the workmanship is consistent with the high character of the lens.

What Murray Has Done Others Can Do

T has often been said that Philadelphia was a "city of the dead," but whether that be true or not it is a sure thing that the operators' organization of that city is far from being a "dead one." The following letter from Brother W. G. Murray of Local 307, proves conclusively that when they start something they go at it for all that is in it. Here is Brother Murray's letter, read it and go thou and do likewise:

I. G. Sherman,
Motion Picture News,
New York City, New York.

Dear Sir and Brother: I have been so busy the last few days that I have not had time to do anything but work. As I closed with "Civilization," on Saturday, April 28th, and signed with "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," on May 1st, which show opened at the Forrest theatre, this city, on May 7th, you will see that I have been stepping some. In looking over the News I see that a few have answered the call for members in our Anti-Misframe League. To say the least I was very much surprised at the small number that answered, and I took it upon myself to get after the Philadelphia operators. I appointed myself a committee of one and personally visited every operator in my spare time with the result that I have signed up the enclosed list and received the endorsement of our Fifth International Vice-President, Louis Krouse, whose name also appears on the list as a member of the League. The League also has received the endorsement of twelve Philadelphia exchanges. Let us hear from those operators who have organization ability and we will soon bring the League up to the position where it belongs.

Fraternally yours,
(Signed) W. G. Murray.

The list which Brother Murray enclosed was one containing the pledge, typewritten, and to which had been signed the names of fifty-two operators. A full deck of fifty-two cards as it were. These names appear in the Roll of Honor, and we want to most heartily thank Brother Murray for the efforts expended in promoting the growth of the League. As he suggests, let us hear from those operators with organization ability and see if we cannot make this an organization or society whose growth will be rapid and whose effect will be lasting. What Murray has done others can do, and if others have the same faith that our Philadelphia brother has, his and our hope that the League will soon be in the position where it belongs will soon be realized.

I personally wish to thank Brother Murray for the work done by the "committee," and also Fifth International Vice-President Krouse, and the Philadelphia exchanges for their endorsement of the League.

Admits There Are a Lot of Careless Operators

M. V., Norwich, Conn., writes: I am a regular reader of the Motion Picture News, and I find the department of great value to me. [Letter cut off, beginning "Thanks for them kind words."

I am an operator and member of Local 459. Have been in the business for sixteen years in all parts of the world. At present I am employed at the Auditorium theatre of this city. This week we are running "A Daughter of the Gods," and it is a great production. I look out, you'll make Mr. Fox angry.—Ou, and is projected in a first class way. I take the same care with all my projection. I am very glad that you started the Anti-Misframe League, and I hope this will do away with misframes and punch holes in the near future, although I don't believe all the blame should be put on operators. Last week we received a brand new print of "A Child of the Wild," which had never been in a machine, and I had to cut out twenty-five misframes in the five reels. This is where the operator had to do work for an exchange. Of course there are a lot of careless operators, but I hope there won't be any in the near future. I wish to be enrolled as a member of the Anti-Misframe League, and I will help to keep the good work up. You deserve a lot of credit, and I wish you and your paper every success.

In reply: On the strength of your last sentence I was tempted to ask for a raise in salary, but concluded that I would wait until warmer weather. I am pleased that you find the department of value, and hope that I may continue to merit your approval. Having been in the business for the past sixteen years... you evidently know your business, and with the experience gained in knocking about the world should be of great value to your present employer. When one sticks to a craft for such a length of time they learn to take the same care with all their projection for it has become an art by that time, and one is not satisfied unless he can find something to improve upon each day. Don't misjudge me. I have never put all the blame on the operator. It is more pleasant to toot a horn than wield a hammer. Many complaints have been received from operators regarding mistrames in first run films. This is the fault of the incompetent help which in all too many cases are employed in the assembling rooms, and it is distinctly up to the management to send you a letter of thanks, if nothing more, as well as to affect a remedy which will avoid a recurrence. It is with pleasure that I place your name upon the Roll of Honor, and extend you my thanks for your promise to help keep the good work up. For your kind expressions I thank you.

Come On In—The Water's Fine
Al Schieble, Ionia, Mich., writes: "Having a little time I venture to write you, never having had the nerve before, but that Anti-Misframe League was such a good idea that I could not help but try to find out if I could become a member, that is if it is not too much bother to put me on the list. Have read so much of your good work that I don't know how to thank you for it. I have always been a constant reader of the News and hope that you will keep up the good work. I have a few ideas of my own; don't know that they would amount to much, but if there is no objection on your part I will send them in. Wishing you the best of success with the Anti-Misframe League, I am yours truly."

In reply: Now that you have proved your courage and broken the ice it is hoped that you will let us hear from you frequently. You can become a member of the League, and you will note that your name appears upon the Roll of Honor. (Read the notice to League members.—Ed.) There is no objections on my part at all, brother, so get busy and let us organize a new department can be made worth while; operators must exchange ideas and be willing to impart knowledge which they have to their less fortunate brothers who have not the same facilities for obtaining such knowledge. Thanks for your kind words of appreciation of my small efforts to be of at least some benefit to those engaged in our craft.

Insufficient Data, Biwabik
William Domineck, Biwabik, Minn., writes: "I wish to ask you a question for which I thank you in advance for any help you may give me. I am having trouble with the projection of my pictures. I don't get a very good light, have some flicker and an unsteady picture. I am using a ——— machine, hand driven, with current 30 amperes, 60 cycles and 110 volts through a Mercury Arc Rectifier. Throw 78½ feet. Condensers 0½ and 7½, with the 7½ nearest the light. Would you advise me to get a motor, and would you suggest the use of Silver-tip carbons for the bottom? Again thanking you and awaiting an early reply, I am sincerely yours."

In reply: In your letter you failed to give sufficient data which might enable me to offer suggestions that would be of benefit to you. You did not state the size of picture or type of screen used. Neither did you mention in just what particular the picture was "unsteady." There should be no difficulty in obtaining a good light with the rectifier, unless the tube has been in use for a long period of time, when it may have become so exhausted that it was not delivering the amperage for which it is rated; this would cause flicker also, for the arc would not burn as steadily as it would if the full amperage were being delivered. It is also possible that your flicker comes from running the machine below normal speed. There is no doubt that a motor would be of assistance, for the human hand cannot work with the precision that a mechanical device can: You might try Silver-tips on the bottom, using a ¾ soft cored carbon on top and let me know the results. The thought has just come to me that it might be advisable to have an ammeter test made of your rectifier to find out whether it is delivering 30 amperes or not, and if not would suggest that you purchase a new tube, or if possible obtain one of the later type rectifiers of 50 amperes capacity. If this does not help you in your trouble, write me again giving all possible data and I will do my best to assist you.

We offer more real value for every dollar invested in Simplex Projectors, than any other manufacturer on earth.

THE FINAL TEST OF SUPERIORITY IS COMPARISON

Visit any distributor or dealer and examine each projector, part for part, and if you are the least familiar with absolute worth in material, you cannot help but truthfully agree that Simplex outclasses all other makes, and if it were sold at its value would command nearly double the price asked for other projectors.

TA KING up again the translation from Vogel's "Photochemie," we now come to E. König's remarks on:

THE ISOCYANINES

"The so-called Isocyanines are isomers of the Cyanines, and closely resemble them in their chemical properties. While the Cyanines, as we have seen, are derived from Lepidin (gamma-Methylquinoline), the Isocyanines are produced from Chinaldin.

While Ethylcyanin is blue in color, the isomer Ethylred exhibits an exquisite violet—red shade.

Concerning the chemical constitution of the Isocyanines nothing is conclusively established. Miehe and Buck endeavored to set forth a constitutional formula for this dye, but it was proven incorrect by E. König,¹ and W. König,² for important reasons.

Spalteholz produced the first isocyanine, quinoline-ethylcyaninethionin in the year 1883, the directions for the production of the dye are to be found in Beilstein's "Handbuch der Organischen Chemie," 3rd Edition, volume 4, page 308.³

According to Beilstein (loc. cit.), Spalteholz produced Diethylisocyaninodiole, having the formula C₁₅H₁₄N₄O₂, and produced the dye by adding aqueous solution of quinolinmethiodide and quinolinethionin in Alcohol, extracting the resultant compound with ether and crystallizing it with alcohol.—En.

Various investigators experimented with the Spalteholz dye, the credit for discovering its sensitizing properties belongs, however, to Miehe and Traube, who christened the dye Ethylred, and took out a German Patent (D.R.P. 142,536 (cl. 57b) 6/3/1902) covering its use in color sensitizing. In so far as the history of the discovery of Ethylred is concerned the statements of the two discoverers in this connection do not agree very well. (See Miehe's "Das Dreifarbenphotographie," Halé, 1904—Page 10, and Traube in the "Atelier des Photographes" 1904—Page 58).

Miehe and Traube demonstrated that Ethylred possessed satisfactory power as a sensitizer for green, yellow and orange. The color sensitiveness of Ethylred plates extends, with short exposures, to about D 1/3 C, with a slight "minima" in the green.

"Ethylred is an iodide forms in beautiful green crystals, which dissolve with some difficulty in alcohol and water and impart a violet—red color to the solution; the Nitrate and the Chloride are much more readily soluble.⁴

Ethylrediodide, like the iodides of all the Isocyanines and Cyaninodiole, can be converted into other salts by treatment with silver salts in solutions of alcohol or sulphuric acid; so the Bromide, Chloride, Sulphate, Nitrate, etc. of the Cyanin dyes are easily secured.

Many of the Cyaniniodioles are so uniform that they may be first converted into sulphates with concentrated Sulphuric acid, and from these other salts may be easily obtained by double transposition.° The sensitizing power of the various salts is not noticeably different, however, and the solubility in water.

We have previously mentioned that until the year 1902

α-Methylquinolin

Ethylred was the only known Isocyanine. As the red sensitiveness of Ethylred plates left much to be desired, experiments were undertaken in various quarters to produce blue Isocyanines, which would presumably be better sensitizers for red light. As matter of fact the dye manufacturers were soon successful in producing such new dyes of the Isocyanine group. Following shortly, one after another, the Hoechst Farbwerke issued Orthochrome, Pinaveredol and Pinachrome; following these the Elberfeld Farbwerke (Bayer) issued Homocelin, and the "Aga" Co. an Isocyanine derived from Naphthoquinalin. All of these dyes exhibit the advantageous photographic properties of Ethylred, which they, however, all more or less excel in red sensitizing power. While Orthochrome T, Pinaveredol and Pinachrome are chemically unit dyes, Homocelin consists of a mixture of Isoquinolinol with an Isocyanine. (Homocelin is said to be p—Sulfoquinolin—p—methoxyquinolin—ethylcyaninbromide.—En.)

The presence of Quinolin is readily apparent upon the addition of a small quantity of acetic acid to an aqueous solution of Homocelin. Orthochrome T is p—Toluidinquinolin—ethylcyaninbromide; Pinaveredol is p—Toluidinquinolin—methylcyaninbromide; Pinachrome is p—Naphthoquinolin—p—methoxyquinolin—ethylcyaninbromide. While Orthochrome does not differ appreciably from Ethylred as regards its color and action, Pinachrome is of a distinctly bluer shade, and its sensitizing effect extends with short exposures almost to the C line. The green sensitiveness of Pinachrome plates is fully equal to that of Ethylred for normal exposures behind a green filter, the red-sensitiveness is far superior to that of Ethylred or Orthochrome plates. At the present time (1906) Pinachrome must be considered as the best "Panchromatic sensitizer," if chemically single dyes only are under consideration.

It is by no means easy to find serviceable dye mixtures for panchromatic sensitizing. Even if no chemical change results from mixing the dyes, it is but seldom, and only under the most favorable conditions, that the sensitizing capabilities of the various components show their full value, and then only in spectrograms. When photographing by contrast filters the mixtures always exhibit a (color) sensitiveness inferior to that obtained when using the components separately.

Pinaveredol has been especially recommended by A. von Hubl as a green sensitizer for Silver bromide collodion emulsion.

"Pinacyanol is not a true Isocyanine; it is prepared, according to the Patent specification of the Hoechst Farbwerke, by the action of alkali on a solution of Quinolinium salts mixed with formaldehyde. The dye forms in fine glistening green needles, and slightly soluble in alcohol and water with a blue-violet or violet color respectively. The solution is not completely decolorized by the addition of even more than ordinary quantities of organic acid; to decolorize the solution relatively large quantities of inorganic acids are necessary. (The distinction between Cyanines and Isocyanines.) Pinacyanol is the most satisfactory red sensitizer of which we know; it sensitizes gelatin plates almost to the B line, but between E and F lies a deep "minima." A. von Hubl has demonstrated the sensitizing action of Pinacyanol by photographing a color chart ("Photo. Korr." 1906—P. 164).

"On silver-bromide collodion emulsion the dye also acts with extraordinary power. According to a private communication of von Hubl's a silver-bromide collodion emulsion, prepared with the aid of an ammonium ethylen solution, soon loses the red-sensitiveness produced by the addition of Pinacyanol. The silver-bromide appeared then to be no longer dyed as could be ascertained by centrifugalizing. On the other hand silver-bromide collodion emulsions prepared without the use of ammonia retained their red-sensitiveness for a long time.

GENERALITIES ABOUT THE USE OF THE ISOCYANINES

The Isocyanines undoubtedly seem destined to replace all other sensitizers (with the exception of the Eosins and Erythrosins), therefore a few general remarks concerning the use of these dyes seems to be in order. Up to the present (1906) plates for color photography have been sensitized by bathing in aqueous solutions of Isocyanines mixed with ammonia, and after bathing the plates were carefully washed in water. E. König remarked that ammonia hardly increases the color-sensitiveness produced, but that it greatly affects the keeping qualities of the plates. The only exception seems to be in the case of Homocool, which only sensitizes strongly when used in ammoniacal solution. Even though some kinds of plates may withstand the effects of the ammonia bath, the majority of brands of plates (and films) yield much better results when treated in a bath free from ammonia.

Hübli recommended dye baths of alcohol with water, which have indeed proven themselves exceedingly useful. In so far as the alcohol is concerned, denatured wood-alcohol may be satisfactorily employed. If the dye bath, after use, is stored in a tightly stoppered container, it remains serviceable for a number of months, when used in the dark, and only requires reinforcement, by the addition of a small amount of dye solution 1:1000, after being used many times. Plates (or films) bathed in alcoholic solutions of the Isocyanines and dried without washing can be kept for a long time (this refers to the sensitive material with which König experimented—Ed.) and are absolutely free from fog, streaks or spots. The keeping qualities, depend, in the first place, upon the virgin emulsion. Freshly sensitized with Pinacchrome or Pinacyanol all kinds of plates experimented with by the author (König) worked cleanly; some showed a slight veiling after only four weeks; others, as for instance Lumiere plates, were still free from fog at the end of 6 or 8 months. The result of these experiments shows that washing is by no means so necessary as is often claimed—by Miethe amongst others.

"Washing is therefore useless because water does not remove the strongly basic Cyanines and Isocyanines from the gelatin layer in the author found that the Chloride and Sulphate of Cyanin, which are readily soluble in water, were as little capable of being washed out of an emulsion as the comparatively insoluble iodide. With basic dyes, such as Phosphine, Acridine-yellow, Flavoein or Isoquinolin red, the Isocyanines and Cyanines may be mixed, without special precautions, in any proportion.

"But if an Isocyanin or Cyanin solution is mixed with Erythrosine an insoluble salt is precipitated, which indicates a combination of the basic Cyanine with the acid (dye) Erythrosine. If, however, the Cyanin solution is added to a saturated Erythrosin solution, the mixture remains for the most part clear. For instance, 2 c.c.m. of Pinacchrome solution (1:1000) can be added to 2 or 3 c.c.m. of Erythrosin solution (1:500) in 200 c.c.m. of water without getting a precipitate. The red-sensitiveness of plates treated with this mixture is much inferior to those treated with pure Pinacchrome, the green-sensitiveness is also not improved.

Wants Books on Emulsion Making

C. H., New York City, writes: "As a subscriber I have read your articles in the Camera Department with pleasure and profit. I have cut them out and put them in a looseleaf binder for ready reference.

"I wish to ask you if you know of any book or books on Gelatine Emulsion making. All I can find is Abney's emulsions, but that is dated 1886. I would like a modern book on it.

"I was emulsion maker in Paris at the time Abney's book was written, but would like to read up something modern on the subject.

"Is there anything up to date? With many thanks for your interesting article."

In reply:

While the study of the emulsification of silver haloids in gelatine is undoubtedly an interesting one, the literature on the subject has never been extensive. Abney's book, "Photography with Emulsions," is an old friend of ours, and is perhaps as satisfactory a history of gelatine emulsion as one could wish for. The correspondent is advised to consult a copy of Abney's "Instruction in Photography" (second edition in the "Photographic Bibliography"), where some further data on emulsion making is to be found. It is doubtful, however, if the information in Abney's "Instruction in Photography" is anyways more up-to-date than the text of his earlier work on emulsions.

What is generally conceded to be the best work on gelatine emulsions is Eder’s—“Die-Grundlagen der Photographie mit Gelatine Emulsionen,” published by W. Knapp, Halle a/S, Germany. This has gone through several editions; the last of which, according to our recollection, appeared in 1902. This work is of course unobtainable at present.

While the preparation of light-sensitive photographic compounds is undoubtedly an interesting chemical study, it should be pointed out that experimenters along this line can hardly expect any reward save the pleasure of the work.

In the works of the photographic manufacturers, the technique of emulsion making, and consequently the quality of the product, has far outstripped the science of even the best text books upon the subject, so it is practically impossible for workers, upon the experimental scale, to produce photographic materials that are in any way comparable to the market variety.

A much more profitable field of study for the ambitious photographer is the study of sensitometry. One does not go far along this line without seeing how scientific methods make possible the accurate estimation of the properties and limitations of light sensitive compounds, and the acquisition of such knowledge cannot fail to make the student a better photographer.

Those who are chemically inclined will surely find much interesting data in the books and papers upon Sensitometry, which we recently reviewed (“Photo Bibliography”) in the Camera Department. Professor Bancroft, for instance, has much to say on emulsions and their characteristics in his interesting articles; “The Electrochemistry of Light” and “The Photographic Plate.” Another good article, which treats of dry plate manufacture in comprehensive fashion, is: “The Photographic Industry,” by Dr. C. E. K. Mees, J.I., Soc. Chem. Ind., Vol. 31, page 307 et seq.

Brentwood Theatre, Garrick, Pa., Soon to Open

Among the new theatres under course of construction, the Pittsburgh branch of the United Theatre Equipment Corporation reports, is the Brentwood which will be ready for occupancy in a few weeks. Plans for this theatre were designed upon the latest and most approved methods known to the business.

The ventilating system, seating accommodations, and sanitary equipment are such as to meet with the approval of the most exacting.

Mr. M. Bluestone, proprietor, has purchased through the Pittsburgh branch, two new Powers 6-B machines with a Caille Ticket Seller and Ticket Chopper.

The Pittsburgh branch also reports the sales of two style “S” Simplex machines to the Elite theatre, at Homestead, Pa.

Simplex machines appear to be in wonderful demand throughout the Pennsylvania territory, due to the combined effort and good team work of their representatives.
MUSICAL SUGGESTIONS FOR MUTUAL PICTURES

BY TERRY RAMSAY

THE exhibitor realizes that proper music is valuable in making his show "Go over big." The music is being arranged for him properly cued to the production and yet many exhibitors still shy at the using of these cue sheets.

"In this attitude of being afraid of the cue sheets," said Joseph O'Sullivan, The Mutual Music Man, "The exhibitor is losing track of the full value of the service which is being offered to him."

"The one aim in planning the musical cues to accompany the Mutual Productions is to simplify this part of the program both from the standpoint of the musician and the exhibitor. To help keep down the expense we try to use the same music over again for the following features so that the first expenditure may seem large, the foundation of a musical library is then laid and the next time there will be less to buy and so on until a very comprehensive library is built.

"We also make an effort not to cue the pictures too closely—that is not have the music change with every scene, but choose some theme which will be appropriate for a longer period, two or three minutes if possible which makes it less difficult to follow. The music is arranged so that there will not be too many changes and at the same time it will catch and carry along the spirit of the story."

"In selecting the music we are careful to list not only the title of the piece, but also the tempo, so that if the musician has not in his library or cannot obtain the music specified, he can substitute something of the same character. Also we select music, which while of the best class—is well known and melodious, music with which the player and the ordinary audience will be familiar."

"The one idea is to make the cue sheet as simple and yet as effective as possible for only in this way can the exhibitor and musicians get the utmost value from this service."

Music Score for “The Submarine Eye”

A SPECIAL music score has been arranged by M. Winkler with the assistance of Mr. J. C. Springer for “The Submarine Eye,” the Williamson Brothers great Subsea Drama, now playing at the Liberty Theatre, West 42nd street, New York City.

Two special themes have also been composed for this score by M. L. Lake, and are published and obtainable from Carl Fischer, Cooper Square, New York. The first theme is entitled “A Deep Sea Romance,” an exceptionally melodious love theme, the second is entitled “Fourteen Fathoms Deep,” which depicts an undersea tragedy.

BUILDING AND FURNISHING

La Grande Theatre Up-to-the-Minute

Conneaut, Ohio, may well be proud of the La Grande theatre, one of the finest, most modern fireproof motion picture theatres in the state of Ohio. This theatre, without a doubt, is one of the most uniquely constructed theatres to be found in a small town.

The La Grande is owned and operated by J. C. Flack, who has had the theatre ever since its opening, during 1916. The plans and specifications for the construction of the house were drawn up by J. L. Wilson of Ashland, Ohio.

The theatre has a 45-foot frontage and a depth of 100 feet. It is constructed of concrete and steel, with a Canton rug brick front; trimmings are of white stone. The lobby is 22 feet wide by 12 feet deep. Above the entrance to the lobby is an elaborate glass marquee which is studded with stained glass. The decorations in the lobby are of green, mahogany, and white. The doors leading into the theatre are finished in mahogany, large French plate glass mirrors having been set into them. The semi-direct lighting system is used here. Display frames in which stills of the current and coming productions have been posted adorn the lobby. The box office is to the right as one enters.

The interior of the theatre is also neatly decorated in green glass tint; woodwork is of mahogany. A Berger steel ceiling has been installed here. The semi-indirect lighting system is used in the interior; the fixtures, being of the dome style, are studded in the ceiling.

The theatre has a seating capacity of 500; the opera chairs are everything that can be desired for the comfort of the patrons and were furnished by the American Seating Company of Chicago. The chairs are finished in silver gray, upholstered in green leather on the seat and back.

A steam heating system used in conjunction with a five-foot Bical fan, this fan being able to handle 10,000 cubic feet of air per minute, keep the theatre at an even temperature.

The projection room is equipped with two Power's 6B projectors, motor driven. The length of throw is 76 feet onto a Mirror screen. The projection is in charge of Raymond Carr, who deserves much credit for the results he has obtained. The theatre has its own electric plant, which consists of a 25-H.P. Poos gas engine and 10 K.W. direct current generator, which was manufactured by the General Electric Company.

The floors throughout the house are cement, the one in the lobby being of tile. A few of the many other attractions that make the house so popular are that it is absolutely fireproof, has a drinking fountain with circulating ice water, and the rest rooms provided for the ladies and gentlemen.

The music for the picture is provided by a four-piece orchestra, which is capable of handling the most difficult classical music with perfect ease.

Triangle, Metro, Selznick, Mutual and Paramount programs are used to make up the daily attractions. There are five performances daily, consisting of from five to seven reels each. The admission price is ten cents for both afternoon and evening performances. Clara Kimball Young, Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, "Fatty" Arbuckle and many other stars are popular here.

The theatre being located in the business district of the town, newspaper and billboard advertising are used extensively, and also special stunts are pulled.

Harkness Theatre a Model House

In Clyde, Ohio, is to be found one of the most modern and best equipped motion picture theatres for a town of its size, namely the Harkness theatre.

The Harkness theatre, which is owned by E. D. Harkness, has been leased for a number of years by E. S. Nichols, is operated under the management of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Nichols.

The Harkness first threw open its doors to the public on October 24, 1915, shortly after its completion, and through the earnest endeavors of the management to give its patrons the best—and only the best, the theatre has enjoyed two successful seasons and is now entering on its third.

The plans and specifications for the construction of the house were drawn up by J. Shively, an architect, with offices at Fremont, Ohio. The dimensions of the house are 33 feet in width by 90 feet in depth, and it is constructed of concrete block with a Canton Glazed brick front, whitemarble being used for trimmings.

The lobby, which measures 12 feet in width by 20 feet in depth, is in the center, a small store being on either side of it. The lobby is finished in white Vermont marble, and cream color, the marble running to the height of about 5 feet. Several display frames adorn the walls of both the lobby and front of the theatre, these taking one and three sheet posters and photographs. Brass railings have been used here, this adding to the cheerfulness of the already attractive lobby. The doors leading into the theatre are finished in mahogany. The box office, which is to the right as one enters the lobby, measures 5 feet by 6 feet, and is Mrs. Nichols comfortable repose.

The interior of the theatre is neatly decorated, although it is kept within the limits of simplicity. The walls are tinted a yellow which gradually fades into a cream color. The Berger Manufacturing Company installed a steel ceiling which is simple in design and fireproof.

The theatre is lighted by the semi-indirect lighting system, the fixtures being of chain-suspended opalescent glass bowl type and... is heated by steam used in conjunction with an indirect ventilating system.

The seating capacity of the house is approximately 300; there being 225 orchestra seats and several boxes which will accommodate 25 people. The opera chairs were furnished by the Grand Rapids Manufacturing Co., the chairs in the boxes are of Austrian make.

The projection room, which in charge of Robert Gravin, is equipped with two Motograph projectors, 1916 models, motor driven and a Hertert Converter. The length of throw is 77 feet onto a Silver Fiber screen. The screen when not in use is hidden from view by a handsome velvet curtain.

The music for the picture is furnished by a small organ and an Adam Schaff player piano. Pathe, Paramount and Vitagraph share the honors of the weekly program. There are two performances daily consisting of five reels each. Admission prices are five and ten cents except on Sundays when all seats are ten cents.

The management co-operates with churches, schools, lodges, clubs, etc., giving benefit performances for them. On Wednesday, May 30, Décorration Day, a benefit performance was given to the Boy Scouts of Clyde and this proved a tremendous success.

The theatre advertises extensively in the two weekly newspapers which are published in Clyde, also distributes programs among its patrons. Marguerite Clark, Baby Marie Osborne, Pearl White, Dustin Farumn, John Barrymore and Creighton Hale are among the stars which have proved to be money-getters. Annette Kellerman, “The Battle Cry of Peace” and “War Brides” played to capacity houses here.

“Cico Toodles” Disclosed as Advertising Idea of Cahill-Igoe

THE identity and objective of Cico Toodles has been established. The picture of this kewpie-like little kiddy, with a cowlick and pair of wooden feet, has been appearing throughout film advertising for the past several weeks causing much mystery and speculation as to his purpose. Every advertisement in which this queer little character appeared bore nothing but the cut of his smiling self on the march, and following a cryptic sign that merely said, “To The Movies.”

Back of Cico Toodles is the enterprising firm of Cahill-Igoe, of Chicago, program printers, and ally of the exhibitor. In their print shop at 117 West Harrison street, Cico was born and christened and his object in the life of thirty weeks that is being planned for him is to benefit the exhibitor. “To keep ’em coming” for the exhibitor is the sworn aim of his short career. And here is how Cahill-Igoe plan to put Cico Toodles on his job.

They have printed thirty sets of cards. Each one of these sets contains a colored drawing of Cico with his smile, cute cowlick and wooden legs. Garbed differently is he in every set, but always with his little wooden feet stepping out and obeying the dictates of the sign, “On to the movies.” The cards of every set will have printed on them a well-known nursery jingle, but always with the last two or three lines switched into a rhyme to suit the purposes of the exhibitor.

The idea behind it all is to furnish these cards to the exhibitors who contract for them. They will be instructed how to use them in the best way to increase their respective clientele. The cards in each set are to be given to children and adults attending the theatre each week. The first card, it is almost guaranteed, will bring them back for the rest in the series. Albums attractive in design will be furnished the exhibitor at a nominal cost. These can be either given away or sold to the patrons. This is thought to be one of the features of the proposition. An album and the first card of the set in the hands of a patron is a start that is expected to bring them back each week until the finish.

Nothing is being neglected by Cahill-Igoe to put these cards within easy reach of every exhibitor in the country. Many exchanges will be furnished with the sets every week, and those exchanges not having them on hand will order them on request. All or part of the thirty weeks’ service may be contracted for.

To each exhibitor contracting for them will be furnished a complete lobby display of posters fully explaining the stunt. On one side of this two-sheet poster will be a large colored picture of Cico Toodles. On the other side will be a reproduction of most of the cards in the series.
The Kids in Your Neighborhood Go to the Movies
Who Gets Their Money—You or Your Competitor?

Do you realize that thousands of exhibitors in the United States have greatly increased the earning power of their theaters by making friends with the kiddies? If you let someone else take the children's trade away from you, you not only lose their nickels and dimes, but the nickels and dimes of their fathers and mothers and sisters and brothers, because where the kiddies go their parents go.

Each ring comes packed in a neat envelope, bearing the name and address of your theatre. If you want to see your business begin to jump, let us hear from you at once.

Ten Per Cent Wage Increase Is Given Westinghouse Employees

THE Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Company has just announced the granting to its employees of a further advance in wages, effective May 16, amounting to 10 per cent. This will affect all of the workmen in the shop and practically all of the office force, except a few of the higher salaried employees.

This is one more of a number of raises in wages granted to the workmen of the shop, which raises represent a general increase, in a period of two years, of practically 40 per cent. This is one more of a number of raises in wages granted to the workmen of the shop, which raises represent a general increase, in a period of two years, of practically 40 per cent.

The Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Company has also subscribed for a number of Liberty Bonds, which it offers to its employees, permitting them to pay for same in small monthly or semi-monthly installments.

Statement from Independent Movie Supply Co.

J. Theodore Feigus, formerly manager of the Exhibitors Poster & Supply Co., has now associated himself in the capacity of sales manager, with the Independent Movie Supply Co., of 729 Seventh Avenue. This is the first move made by the Independent in introducing their new sales campaign, throughout the country, and in retaining the services of Mr. Feigus, they consider that they have procured a man who will be of unusual service.

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

ARIZONA

Manager Dave Burshen of the California Film Exchange reports a new cinema in construction at Yuma, Arizona, which will be known as the Elite. Earl Sikes is the builder and will be the manager. Earl Sikes spent a part of this week in Los Angeles purchasing equipment and made arrangements for the exclusive showing of Bluebirds in that territory.

A new 350-seat house at Somerton, Arizona, built by W. A. Gilmer and Mr. F. Carmon, was opened May 26th with a Bluebird subject furnished from the Los Angeles Exchange. The theatre has been named the De Luxe.

CONNECTICUT

Plays have been completed by Architect H. H. Becklin for a moving picture theatre and stores to be erected on Park street, near New Park avenue, Hartford, for N. J. Antasch. The building will be 43 x 136 feet, two stories high and basement, with pressed brick and terra cotta front, galvanized iron cornice and cornice and slag roof. The first story will be arranged for two stores and lobby and vestibule of the theatre, second floor will be arranged for a large pool and billiard room, 41 x 60 feet. These will have metal ceilings. The theatre entrance aisles will have composition floor with hollow tile partitions between the stores and lobby. The theatre will have a seating capacity of about 1,000 and will be provided with steam heat, vacuum cleaning system, electric wiring and ornamental plaster work.

Macdonald is soon to have a new theatre with a seating capacity of at least 1,500 people. Details of the project will not be made public for a few days, as those who will finance the undertaking prefer not to announce their plans at this time. It is known, however, that plans are now being prepared and that the building will be centrally located. Although the theatre will be primarily a moving picture theatre, it will also be equipped for vaudeville or shows, those back of the movement being the opinion that the theatre is not far distant when getting the attention of the people of the city.

The town at present has only two theatres in operation as the Palace has not been opened since the fire a few weeks ago. The seating capacity of the present theatres do not total 2,000 and there are many times when both are taxed to capacity.

ILLINOIS

The Henry building at Princeton, just west of Haag's grocery, is being put in shape and the interior fitted up for a moving picture house. A. R. Henry will change locations and in the new place will have better ventilation and a larger seating capacity. He will continue the Paramount pictures.

INDIANA

New Castle will not suffer for lack of "somewhere to go," even if the city park is not ready for use this year. Plans are being made for one place now in operation where moving pictures are shown, there will be two more in a very short time. The building which is at present erected at the corner of 18th street and Main has been leased by Ralph Brayton, who will conduct a movie therein. This building is 22 x 92 feet in size, and is almost complete.

A fine new brick building is being built south of the depot next to the Elgin Bank. Millard, it consists of three nice rooms and will be finished will be occupied by a restaurant, a moving picture show and Alfred Henry's barber shop.

MARYLAND

The McHenry theatre, located on Light street, near Cross, Baltimore, was opened a few days ago. Harry W. Webb is president of the Southern and Western Amusement Company, and it is due to his untiring energies that this picture house is now open to the public.

MICHIGAN

Charlotte is to have another movie theatre. William Oild has secured the former Temple theatre and the place is being remodeled, redecorated and put into first-class shape, and he has purchased two of the latest models of moving picture machines and so far has contracted with three film companies and will run a ten-cent show house. He has installed a new curtain, put in a new generator set for direct lighting and will have an up-to-date house.

James H. Kerr, manager of the Maltz Opera House, Alpena, reports the contemplated rebuilding of the theatre to render it suitable for showing pictures.

MINNESOTA

The remodeling of the building on the corner of First street and Central avenue, Duluth, to be occupied by the Unique theatre, will be commenced about June 1, according to Manager Crockett Brown. The roof of the present building will be raised and an addition built in the rear, and which, when other details are finished, will give Nashwauk a first-class show house.

MISSOURI

Contracts were signed last week by the Melba Amusement Company for the erection in St. Louis of a new $30,000 vaudeville and motion picture theatre, which will be the largest of its kind in the city, the ground floor alone having a seating capacity of 1,450. The structure will occupy the corner of Grand avenue and Miami street.

MONTANA

The new Bijou theatre at Butte, built and managed by the Greater Theatres Company of Seattle, was opened recently with the Artcraft Picture subject "The Poor Little Rich Girl" as the important feature of the bill. The house will be under the management of Claude V. Stewart, one of the organizers of the firm of Jensen and Von Herberg, which was succeeded by the Greater Theatres Company. In the building and furnishing of this 1,650-seat house no expense was spared in any particular. It is modeled after the Liberty theatre at Seattle, and is very elaborately finished throughout. A Hope Jones instrument was installed, and music is also furnished by a fourteen strong orchestra. The architect of the building was O. E. Ryan of Seattle, and Oliver G. Wallace has been engaged to supervise the music and operate the pipe organ. Girl ushers in blue and gold uniforms, a colored maid in the ladies' rest room, and a Japanese girl who serves tea during matinees to the ladies, make up the rest of the color scheme for the house. The building occupies a piece of ground 120 feet square, and in addition to having twelve storerooms on the first floor, a big restaurant in the basement, has thirty-two offices in the building. On the opening night Manager Claude Jensen was arrested on two accounts for blocking the traffic in front of the theatre.

NEBRASKA

The contract for the building of the new theatre at the corner of Lincoln avenue and Fifth street, York, has been let by E. B. Woods to J. W. McGinnis. Much work on the new structure will begin at once. McGinnis of Lincoln, architects, have made the plans and specifications which indicate a beautiful theatre. J. W. Bangle & Son have already laid the entire building for a term of ten years. The building will be 100 feet long on Fifth street and 60 feet wide on Lincoln avenue.

"A Paramount Picture" is a phrase that has come to have a special meaning to the motion picture patron.

It is the name of distinction—the mark that separates the great screen masterpieces from the photoplays of mediocrity.

Back of every Paramount Picture and Paramount Star are five years of successful quality picture-making and equitable business-like distributing.

The combination of the Paramount Picture, the Paramount Star, and Paramount Service, represents the utmost in production, screen personality and organization.

These three—Picture, Star and Organization—and the greatest of these is ORGANIZATION.

On August 5th, 1917

Paramount Pictures, Paramount Stars and Paramount Service will be available to all theatres. On that date—August 5th—Paramount inaugurates the selective "Star Series" plan of distribution.

The prestige of the Paramount name and the cumulative drawing power of Paramount Pictures and Paramount Stars are your assets.

"To travel is to possess the World"

Ask your exchange to show you a Burton Holmes Travel Picture. It's all right to talk about Quaint Japan, the Wilds of China, Queer Korea, The Marvelous Rocky Mountains — but that sounds like a scenic when these are actually personally conducted tours, in picture form, photographed cut, assembled, and titled, by Mr. Burton Holmes.

The most peculiar and useless hat in the world, the Parsee Helmet. Breathless and stiff, made of oil cloth with shiny gold spots. It offers little or no protection against the Indian sun. It was forced on the Parsees by the Hindoos 1,200 years ago and is supposed to indicate the hoof of the sacred cow pressing on the head of the wearer. Ask the Paramount Exchange to show you one of the new "India" releases.

‘WILD AND WOOLLY’

By Anita Loos--Directed by John Emerson

From Story by H. B. Carpenter

A typical Fairbanks play of rapid-fire theme that offers the energetic Douglas the scope of the great plains as his stage. Never before has the athletic idol of the screen had such opportunities to disclose a wealth of rib-tickling incidents as well as dare-devil feats that will draw the breath of the most placid audience. Bubbling over with the Fairbanks spirit, namely,—life, laughter and thrills, THIS PICTURE IS ONE POSITIVE ASSURANCE OF TURNAWAY BUSINESS.

Goldwyn

FRANK E. WOODS, a thoughtful factor in motion pictures and author of "The Spectator" column in The New York Dramatic Mirror, says in his article of June 9:

"Motion pictures will keep on improving. Having reached the limit of length, the producers will now improve in quality. Nothing stands still.

"Experience and the constant flow of new brains into the business can mean nothing but advancement . . . the late recruits are coming from the more intelligent of the public—the literary and the educated.

"It is this very fact—the coming of more enlightened brains into the field—that must tend eventually to crowd out the undesirables."

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, with its imposing array of competent, brilliant and successful specialists, takes pleasure in repeating Mr. Woods' sane comments through the medium of an advertisement.

Goldwyn Pictures will reveal to exhibitors and the public what tremendous advances can be made in this most wonderful of the modern arts.
Goldwyn's Call To The Colors

By way of answering thousands of exhibitor inquiries, Goldwyn announces that its branches throughout America and the six branches of Goldwyn Pictures, Ltd., of Canada, will open for business immediately after June 15.

Our Goldwyn representatives go on duty on June 11. They will at once be in possession of our contract forms and be ready to inform exhibitors of our policies.

Each branch manager will be informed and equipped to talk rental prices.

In specific reply to one universally-asked question:

Exhibitors will not have to book six, or eight or three pictures of any one Goldwyn star to obtain the one picture of that particular star they really want for their patrons.

JACKIE SAUNDERS IS AGAIN A HOYDEN IN "A BIT OF KINDLING"

The week of June 18th another five-act, Jackie Saunders-Mutual Picture will be released. It is entitled "A Bit of Kindling." Once more Jackie is a typical tom-boy and has a role in which she can ramp about to her heart's content and the infinite delight of the picture fans who seem to like her best in this sort of characterization. Sherwood Mac-Donald directed the picture, which is from the pen of Douglass Bronston. The cameraman was William Beckway.

A Fascinating Star.

Jackie Saunders and her sunny personality seem especially made for the sort of plays like "A Bit of Kindling." In this picture the fascinating star wears boy's clothes and allows her golden curls to peep out through the rags of a slouchy hat. She enacts the role of "Sticks," a girl newsboy, who is forced to don boy's clothing in order to stand an equal chance with the opposition "newies." Good looking Arthur Shirley has the role opposite Miss Saunders as a young civil engineer, whom drink holds fast in its grasp. "Sticks" and the young engineer are thrown together by chance and a quaint attachment springs up between the two. So quickly length the engineer turns over a new leaf and applies himself to hard outdoor manual labor, "Sticks" does much to aid him in his struggle back to honest life. She offers his complete reformation only to see him snatched away, later on, by the pretty city girl to whom the engineer had been engaged for months. Then the wheel of Fortune revolves again and little "Sticks" falls upon happier times. She is adopted by a rich old gentleman who educates her properly and ultimately she emerges as a regular butterfly girl. And then—but your satisfied patrons will tell you better than we can how satisfactory is the end of this five-act Mutual Picture.

Fourth of Series.

"A Bit of Kindling" is the fourth subject of the Jackie Saunders Series of Mutual Pictures. Already released and now showing to big receipts are "Sunny June," "The Wildcat" and "The Checkmate." Ensure your theatre good summer business by booking the entire series now at your nearest Mutual Exchange.

"THE DAZZLING MISS DAVISON" FEATURES MARJORIE RAMBEAU

A S THE fifth offering of the Marjorie Rambeau Series of Mutual—"Big Stars Only"—Pictures, Frank Powell presents "The Dazzling Miss Davison. This is an adaptation of Florence Warden's novel of the same title which has been read by hundreds of thousands of people. Mr. Powell himself directed it. It will be released in five acts the week of June 18th through all Mutual Exchanges.

A Mystery Story.

"The Dazzling Miss Davison" is a mystery story that keeps one guessing right up to the very end. Who is the dazzling Miss Davison is a question that will instantly occur to every one who witnesses the picture. She is a remarkably pretty girl—that is instantly evident, but what is her real occupation? Why does she appear and disappear in the most unaccountable manner? Who are the mysterious individuals she appears to be in communication with at frequent intervals? Why have they the authority to cause her to change her plans at a moment's notice? Is she an international spy of some kind? Is she a criminal? Just who and what is she? Every one of these questions will be raised during the run of the picture. And whether Miss Davison is finally disclosed there won't be one in a hundred of your patrons who will have guessed the answer. It's the kind of a picture that will cause a lot of comment—one of the kind that lend the critics to observe that motion pictures are constantly improving. The exhibitor who runs "The Dazzling Miss Davison" for several days will certainly discover that the word-of-mouth advertising will increase his patronage from day to day.

A Box-Office Asset.

Marjorie Rambeau, famous star of "Cheating Cheaters," who draws houses of $12,000 and $15,000 weekly at the New York theatres, is alone a box-office asset of untold value. When she appears in a picture like "The Dazzling Miss Davison" this value is still further increased. The week of June 18th is the release date of this, her latest picture.

Famous Rialto Theatre Runs All Gaumont Films

Manager Rothcup of the famous Rialto Theatre of New York City has paid a well deserved compliment to the Gaumont-Mutual subjects by arranging to run on his screen every one of the Gaumont single reels—"Tours Around the World," "Reel Life" and the "Mutual Weekly."

"THE DAZZLING MISS DAVISON"

Five stupendous acts teeming with mystery, gorgeous frocks and unexpected complications. Released the week of June 18th.

"Marjorie Rambeau shows to great advantage. As a countess she is superb, as a hard working man's wife she is simplicity personified, as a factory hand she is just as sweet" says Motion Picture News in reviewing "The Debt."

In "The Dazzling Miss Davison" Miss Rambeau rises to greater heights. Her gowns alone are a revelation. The story bubbles over with surprises. This well known star's drawing power is as good as a bond at the box-office. Booking now at all Mutual Exchanges.

HATE

By
J. Walter Meade

A thrilling dramatic story based on the theme of prenatal influence.

A question that has been perplexing the medical scientists and sociologists of the world.

A story crowded with big vital thoughts that hit hard and ring with truth.

Seven parts of stirring drama, interwoven with a charming love story and a mother’s self-sacrifice for her boy, whom fate had made a victim of the heritage of hate.

Splendidly produced and acted by a notable cast.

"I wish to recommend, right at the start, the list of fun makers selected by Wm. N. Selig to impersonate the leading characters in the Hoyt two-reel comedies, one of which will be released every alternate Monday through K. E. S. E. About twenty years ago the stage had no more welcome attractions for the public than Charles Hoyt’s farce comedies. Just as followers in the ring who mix things briskly from the start, are the most popular, so the Hoyt comedies caught on because they plunged at once into merry action. And I can fearlessly recommend the Selig-Hoyt farce comedies, because the director has lost no time in try-out sparring.”—James S. McQuade, in Moving Picture World.

No two minds ever think alike. But all humanity demands interest and entertainment in its 'paid for' recreations.

I had this very fact in mind when I selected the SEVEN CARDINAL VIRTUES.

With intense dramatic stories that hold the interest, beautiful settings and locations that hold the eye and a psychology the unraveling of which interests the mind, I am aiming at the seemingly impossible—Productions that will satisfy everyone.

PARALTA PLAYS INC
HLGER Rentals! That's all very fine, but how in the world is the exhibitor to pay them? Two big men, each connected with a big company, are out in trade papers with suggestions that rentals be advanced. To pay more the exhibitor must get more. Where is it to come from? Increase in admission prices? Sounds easy, but can the exhibitor afford to experiment? If the public responds, all's well and good. But suppose the public does not respond—who pays the loss in both patronage and money?

The chief complaint of the exhibitor is that he cannot do business on any basis of certainty—that he is always kept in doubt; that he is continually subjected to arbitrary changes that affect his financial interests. And now, when his rentals are as high as his receipts can stand, a proposition is made to raise them again. Here is where the Paralta Plan comes in.

A PARALTA Plan exhibitor, doing business under a Paralta Exhibiting Franchise, works on a basis of absolute certainty. He owns and controls his Paralta Plays for one year at a fixed rental, which cannot be changed. The Paralta Plan helps him develop his territory—to get more; but it differs from the "System." It lets him keep what he gets.

The Boosts The Critics Give

Here is proof—inescapable, convincing, sincere that "SHOULD SHE OBEY?" is a winner and no mistake. Here are the opinions of professional picture critics about this startling, seven-reel success, the judgments of people who know what sort of picture the public wants to see and who can forecast unerringly how well a picture will pull business. Note that, without exception, all these critics unqualifiedly endorse and commend "SHOULD SHE OBEY?"

We Help You Sell It

Back of "SHOULD SHE OBEY?"—the gripping, modern drama of love, based upon actual life stories as uncovered by the Society for the Preservation of the American Home, in co-operation with the Nevada State Legislative Committee for a nation-wide inquiry into the causes of poisoned, loveless marriages and easy divorces—is the most complete, thorough-going, effective merchandising plan any picture ever had. The producers of "SHOULD SHE OBEY?" more than make good on their pledge to help state rights buyers and exhibitors. Barratt O'Hara and Harry E. Rice, Jr., of the Arizona Film Company, actually go into each town when requested and make the picture the same tremendous success everywhere that it was during its three weeks' run at the La Salle Theatre, Chicago.

500 prize contest available to exhibitors—only one of scores of other publicity and merchandising tips the producers are offering you. Don't delay another minute—available territory is diminishing rapidly. Now is the time to act. Wire at once.

WHAT THEY SAY:

"In Little Mary McAlister is found another clever child actress. She has an abundance of personality and magnetism and is wonderfully appealing in every scene. Her delightful work makes the series entertaining."
— New York Morning Telegraph.

"A screen gem all the way through. . . Extraordinarily worth while."
— Exhibitor’s Trade Review.

"A series that through its breadth of appeal and personality of its young star will build up a following increasing with the release of each of its episodes. . . . It has the homely, domestic appeal that is felt universally."
— Moving Picture World.

"Little Mary McAlister shows herself to be an extremely talented child, absolutely free from precociousness and with a charm and personality that gets across."
— Dramatic Mirror.

"Little Mary McAlister has talent and appeal and her pictures will win unusual success for productions of their length."

The Eighty Per Cent House

Last October we published some figures on picture theatres, received as a result of a postcard test from this office. These figures gave the following outstanding facts:

The average seating capacity throughout the country is 502 seats.

Eighty (80%) per cent. of the picture houses are under 650 seating capacity.

Fifty (50%) per cent. of the picture houses are under 350 seating capacity.

The average admission price is ten and one-half cents.

We republish these figures in order to call attention again to a big factor which right along gets small attention, merely the small ten-cent admission theatre.

It is — remember — eighty per cent. numerous and strong.

It is playing to eighty per cent. of the theatre-going population of this country.

We seem to forget these facts. We talk mostly in the names of big theatres—and we, mostly, make pictures for the big theatres.

On the surface, this is the day of the big house. We read constantly of their construction. The thirty-five thousand and four thousand seat theatre has ceased to excite wonderment, and where it is erected a number of little houses close their doors. We have already cited the remarkable instance of New Orleans whose theatres in six months declined from 119 to 77. Chicago is—another case.

But this situation is mostly if not altogether confined to the large centres of population; and it is a situation more apparent than real since it gets an undue measure of publicity.

The fact still remains that the smaller house constitutes the backbone of the exhibiting business. It is the main outlet for pictures and the main ingress of the theatre-going public.

And, in our opinion, the small house will continue to occupy this important position, for the very simple reason that the motion picture is not and never was intended to be, exclusively or primarily, a city institution.

True of the stage: but for this very reason not true of the picture.

The film entirely unlike the stage play permits of widespread and simultaneous distribution. This is its remarkable and exclusive function. It is, as we have often emphasized, quite as closely allied with the magazine as with the play. Its business, in our estimation, is more like the publishing business than the business of the stage.

The price of admission to the motion picture brings it—and should always bring it—with the means of practically all of the country’s population. The community everywhere, city or country, will have and must have its motion picture theatre; and since most communities are small most houses will continue to be small.

It would seem advisable therefore to make, distribute and sell pictures for this eighty per cent. dealer.

This means that pictures must be made for him—the kind his community wants, in the year’s course; and the rental policies and prices must be suited to his needs and within his means; adequate service must be given him to bring the public to his doors.

These matters are very important; they are evidently eighty per cent. important, so far as gross business is concerned.

It is all right to make pictures and prices for first-run city houses and to gear distribution and advertising up to their standards; but if these specifications are intended also for the small house and yet are impossible for the small house then they are wrong; at least, it would seem, they are eighty per cent. wrong.

It would be salutary for the whole business, it seems to us, to turn right about face and build pictures and policies for the eighty per cent. house.

Take distribution for instance. Distribution that sends a dozen salesmen into one town one day to sell pictures to one small house is certainly wrong. First run prices in big cities may be able to support this tremendous traffic: but the small house can’t, that’s certain.

Perhaps our distribution is all wrong; possibly pictures should be distributed by an American News Company. Perhaps the light on this till we begin by basing the business upon the small theatre’s needs and limitations.

John Smith, eighty per cent. exhibitor, ten cents admission, deserves and demands a lot of attention.

Speaking Editorially:

The Tax Crisis Not Over

AGAIN we call emphatic attention to the fact that the war tax situation at Washington is not ended. From the Senate Finance Committee the war revenue bill goes to the Conference Committee of the House and Senate. Some of the members of this final committee are members of the House Ways and Means Committee which favored a footnote and theatre admission tax.

A motion picture tax is a poor man’s tax. The industry cannot pay the double tax originally proposed, nor anything like it, and still exist. The double tax means in reality a single tax on the exhibitor. The theatres of the country are in no position to bear this heavy tax.

Washington wants facts to support these statements. We have a habit, in this industry, of hoping and shutting our eyes. This is the time to keep them open.

The New Picture Fans

WE call attention to an article in this issue from New Orleans. It deals with longer runs in an interesting and conclusive fashion. It speaks of “The Vicar of Wakefield” and of an exhibitor who, even against general advice, had the sense to book it because he felt that lots of intelligent people in his district would come to see it if he told them about it. They did come, in such numbers that he had to hold the picture on to oblige them. When we took it off they protested; and he made haste to re-book it for another extended engagement.

The moral of which is: don’t forget about the other half of the people in your neighborhood. They appreciate stories by Goldsmith, Dickens, Ibsen, Tolstoi, Thackeray.

Who’s Your Director?

“WHO is your best director?” an interviewer asked of a producer who believes that pictures should be made by an organization and not by any one man.

“Well,” answered the producer, “in the first place I object to your question. In the second place, I can’t answer it, unless I also tell you who is my best cameraman, draper, lighting man, property man, carpenter, technical man—and, last but not by no means least, something considerable about the cast and the story.

“All of these factors make a director seem best.”

Preaching and Publishing

SOME people seem to think that the business of conducting a trade paper consists in telling the exhibitor other words, is our conception of a trade paper’s function. We have sublime faith in the exhibitor in one respect—he doesn’t swallow “bunk.”

Fans and Stars

An exhibitor, in our office last week, made one of the most sensible observations we have yet heard. “Stars are overrated as drawing cards,” said he, “and I’ll tell you why.”

“You hear a great deal about them, but you hear it from the bass-drum part of your audience—namely, the fans.”

“Don’t make the mistake of believing that fans compose your audience. They don’t. I figure them at about twenty per cent, which is high. So what they say and want counts about twenty per cent.”

“The silent vote in your audience is the real factor you are playing to—the people you never hear from, but whose absence you’ll feel mighty quickly.”

The silent vote, we might remark, represents the new and increasing picture theatre-going public.

The Red Cross—An Opportunity

WE paid a visit the other afternoon to a small up-state New York town—a typical American village—of about two thousand, with the usual stores, the usual churches, the usual activity among patriotic women and an unusual exhibitor.

He told us he had had difficulty in getting the best people of his town to attend the show.

We asked him why he said “had had.” And he replied that the Red Cross activities—chiefly bandage rolling—had provided an entering wedge.

“You know how it is here in upper New York,” he explained. “Pictures aren’t considered high-class entertainment by some of the old timers. So when the ladies began needing meeting halls and had to give entertainments for Red Cross funds, I was Johnny-on-the-spot.”

“I turned over the theatre to them—on a silver platter. I gave them free shows—the proceeds going to their Red Cross fund—and saw that exceptionally clean pictures were on the screen that afternoon.”

“Did they appreciate it? Has it done my business good? Drop down to the show to-night and I’ll let you look at the line up of limousines!”

Titles and the Box-Office

WE asked a shrewd exhibitor, Harry Crandall, of Washington, D. C., for his principal complaint against picture producers.

“Poor titles,” was the quick response.

“And don’t think that I mean they are not ‘strong’ enough. It is their strength that is the trouble. They are strong, like many odors, but not entertaining.”

“My patrons want entertainment. They may want comedy, romance or drama—but they want it healthy, not dreary and disagreeable.”

When a manufacturer calls a picture ‘The Rat,’ ‘The Devil’s Dungeon,’ or ‘Souls in Torment,’ he is driving good money away from my box-office.

“Let’s have less so-called ‘strength’ and more of entertainment value in our titles.”
Ochs’ Rough-Shod Tactics Start Row in New York Local

Secretary Gerson Voices Protest of Electing New Representatives

DECLARING that the New York State Branch of the Exhibitor’s League is a joke, and that his credentials committee at Chicago would take care of any protest made by that body, Lee A. Ochs and his political machine last Wednesday rode rough-shod over the convention delegates elected at the recent Albany meeting, and at a session of the New York City local chose a new slate of representatives who will cast votes for the next president of the National League. The steam-roller tactics brought many expressions of indignation about the head of the League president, and candidate for re-election, that threatens a merry duplication of the Chicago local’s internal strife.

That even the members of the New York local which thus summarily cast the state organization, headed by Louis Buettner, overboard are not in sympathy with the desperate attempt of the Ochs faction was shown by the opposition made at the Wednesday session and since voiced by State President Louis Buettner, who is certain to make a strong fight against the Chicago convention floor on behalf of the state delegates elected with him at the Albany convention.

The New York local’s private delegates elected at last Wednesday’s meeting follow: William Hilkemeir, S. Cohen, M. Needles, Charles Steiner, H. Haring, Sidney Ascher; alternates, B. Title, Mr. Rhonheimer, Otto Lederer, Mr. Brandin, Mr. Pearl and Mr. Schwartz.

Secretary Gerson voices protest follows:

NEW YORK, June 7, 1917.

DEAR SIR,—As secretary of Manhattan Local, No. 1, of the Exhibitors’ League, I desire to protest against the high-handed action of Mr. Lee A. Ochs at our meeting on Wednesday, June 6, 1917.

It seems that our worthy national president has absolutely no regard for such things as constitutions, by-laws, parliamentary laws and regularity. It was generally acknowledged that the last state convention of the New York State League at Albany was the finest and the most largely attended convention ever held in this state.

At that time, in the regular order of business and according to the constitution and by-laws of the National League, delegates were duly elected to represent this state, and that his credentials committee at Chicago next July. For some reason known only to Mr. Ochs, the delegates legally elected in Albany did not seem to please that worthy gentleman, so he determined to make these illegal, Mr. Ochs insisted on having these new delegates elected, stating that his credentials committee, whom he would appoint at Chicago, would decide which delegates would be seated in the convention.

Since the inception of this local no election for officers or delegates has ever been held without due notice in writing being previously sent to each of the members; and in the notice sent out for this meeting of June 6 no mention whatever was made of the fact that an election of delegates was to be held, as no action of this kind has ever been discussed or mentioned at any previous meeting, so that even if it were not illegal to elect delegates here, in spite of the fact that Mr. Ochs had previously been elected in Albany at the state convention, an election in our local without due notice being given to the members in advance is certainly illegal and it cannot hold.

It was a sort of spectacle, so says national president, Mr. Ochs, who is an active candidate for re-election and last year was president of the State League, state publicly at our meeting that the New York State Organization was a joke, and really did not exist, and that its officers were worse than useless.

He was probably tempted to make these disparaging remarks about our state organization and its officers with a view to justifying his action in attempting to throw out delegates who were duly and legally elected at the state convention in Albany.

Among the delegates elected at Albany was myself, and I had already made arrangements to attend the convention in Chicago, at my own expense, knowing that the state treasury did not have sufficient funds at this time to pay the expenses of all its delegates; and I still intend going to Chicago; and I further intend making a fight for my rights as a delegate to a seat in the national convention in spite of the efforts of Mr. Ochs to keep me and the rest of the state delegates out.

It is time for the members of the Motion Picture Exhibitor’s League of America throughout the country to rise and protest against the steam-roller tactics of Mr. Ochs in his desperate efforts to elect himself president of the league, which office he has during the past year used almost solely for the furtherance of his private business interest.

Respectfully yours,

M. J. Gerson,
Secretary-Managing Local, No. 1, Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League of America.

Movement on Foot to Call Off Convention

A STRONG move backed by Amusements Organization of the mid-Northwest, with headquarters in Minneapolis, Minn., is on foot to postpone or call off the National Convention to be held in Chicago in July, on account of the war.

In a letter sent to Ludwig Schindler, exposition manager, it is pointed out that many of the largest bodies in the country have called off their conventions. The letter signed by Thomas J. Hamlin, president of the body, follows in part:

“Since the handful of Chicago men, who stand to profit so heavily by this proposed celebration, are in America’s darkest hour, having consented to the occasion, we must negatively regret our participation with this proposed exposition this year. We will not be there to celebrate.”
Sure to Lower Age Limit in Pennsylvania Bill

IF the pending bill of Representative Jef- ferson W. Smith, of Philadelphia, which proposed originally to bar children under sixteen years old from motion picture theatres and other places of amusement, unless accompanied by adults, should become law, Pennsylvania Legislature in any form it will be with the age limit reduced to ten years.

As already had been forecast in the Motion Picture News, this was agreed on at the conference on June 6 of those legislators who are interested in the bill and Maurice J. Speiser, counsel for the motion picture men of Philadelphia and representing other amusement interests. It was also agreed the bill should be amended so as not to bar children of any age from attending amusement enterprises in summer parks or county fairs.

The measure in the amended form will, it is expected, be reported out of the Judicial General Committee of the House on June 12.

About the only other new development in the Pennsylvania Legislature with relation to the motion picture industry was the adoption of a resolution of thanks to Philosophy on June 11 on the Baker bill, placing a two per cent. tax on the gross receipts from performances in Pennsylvania given by motion picture companies incorporated in other states, and on the Beyer bill, placing a one-cent tax on each lineal foot of film approved by the state board of censors.

The hearing on the Baker bill will be before a sub-committee of the Finance Ways and Means Committee. Benjamin M. Goldier, of Philadelphia, is chairman of the sub-committee, and the other members are Russell T. Vogdes, Philadelphia, and Hugh A. Dawson, Lackawanna County.

The hearing on the Beyer bill will be held before a sub-committee of the Judicia- ry General Committee, composed of Philadelphia members of the House. This sub-committee was to have conducted the hearing on June 1, but it was postponed to suit the convenience of some of the Produc- ers who desired to air their views in opposition to the tax. The bill is said to have the backing of the state administration, having been drafted by Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown as a revenue producer.

Exhibitors Film Exchange Organized—In Market for Pictures

Exhibitors Film Exchange, Inc., recently organized under the laws of Virginia, has established its central exchange offices at 420 Ninth street, N.W., Washington, D. C. Frank Ferandim, of Richmond, Va., is president; H. Bernstein, Richmond, Va., vice-president, and A. Dresner, Washing- ton, secretary and general manager. Harry Crandall, who operates a chain of six theatres in the South, and the owner of one of the finest in the West, is a director in the company.

This company is in the market for pictures and will work the territory comprising North Carolina, Delaware, Virginia, District of Columbia and Maryland. A. Dresner, general manager, was in New York last week looking over the field. He said he had in mind a number of productions on state rights basis, and expected to close the deals soon.

Appel to Court to Use Flag During Show

Determined to test further the right of the authorities to prohibit the use of a picture of the American flag on the program of a motion picture theatre, Athens and James George, proprietors of the Victoria theatre, 223 Market street, Harrisburg, have just filed an appeal from the recent ruling of Alderman Hoover, of Harris- burg, who fined them heavily for the use of the flag in the way described.

The appeal is made to the county court and is based on the contention that the theatre men were not, as charged, using the flag for advertising purposes, but were prompted solely by patriotic motives in printing the picture on the program, on the reverse side of which appeared the words of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Screen Ably Performing Big Missions in Capitol

The Chamber of Commerce of Washing- ton, D. C., is using the screen of twenty of the local houses for a means of bringing this organization to the attention of business men for a "bigger and better Wash- ington." Several of the motion picture ex- changemen and exhibitors are members of the Chamber of Commerce, believing that the motion picture industry should ally itself with organized business men.

The publicity committee of the Liberty Bond of the government is also using the screen for advertising this bond issue and urging the public to show its patriotism for subscriptions. Every theatre is using a Liberty Bond slide after every show.

Theatre managers are also spreading the good work of the Red Cross by running a slide after each show urging subscription and the assistance of service, money, and material for this worthy cause.

Buettner Congratulates Fox

Louis A. Buettner, president of the New York State Exhibitors League, last week wired to William A. Fox congratulating and thanking him for the splendid part he played in the defeat of the tax on mo- tion pictures.

Initial Showing of "Who's Your Neighbor?" June 15

Master Drama Features will present "Who's Your Neighbor?" a seven-reel pic- ture, at the Broadway theatre, New York, on June 15, at ten o'clock in the morning, for its first showing. State right buyers and exhibitors are expected to attend in large numbers.

The story was written by Willard Mack, and directed by S. Rankin Drew. Christine Mayo, who has featured in many big pictures as presented in the leading role by Evelyn Brent, seen in many Metro produc- tions, is also in the cast.

Officials of the producing company expect that "Who's Your Neighbor?" will prove a strong box-office attraction. The release is said to carry a moral theme.

TO THE MEN AND WOMEN OF THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY

A PROCLAMATION!

The motion picture industry has been asked by the Government to lend the screen to important and immediate messages to the people of the United States.

The appeal has been made to the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, and as President of the Association I am transmitting this important request to all branches of the industry and to all its members.

All of us want to do our duty—and more. There is much to be done—through the screen and by every individual.

The first work asked of us was to spread the gospel of the Liberty Loan. Slides, films and posters, telling the public about this important measure have been issued during the past few weeks. Exhibitors, distributors and producers and their employees can, by their patriotic endeavors, bring this message to the whole public. The Liberty Loan may, of itself, end the war. At least it will go far.

Let us all strive to promote this measure. The time is short. On June 15 the Loan is closed. But the screen is a great and effective agency. Let us show what the screen can do for patriotism!

And let us show what each and every individual in the industry can do. Every man and every woman should subscribe, as their means may permit, to the Liberty Loan; and these subscriptions should all go forth from the industry, indicating that over and beyond the power of the screen, this industry stands high in individual loy- alty and patriotism.

Notify the National Association what amount of bonds you have subscribed for, or intend to take, so that we may announce on June 15 the total subscriptions to the Liberty Loan from the Industry.

William A. Brady,
President.
National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.
Triangle Reorganizes: Incé Out—Sennett May Withdraw

H. O. Davis Confirmed as General Manager—Keystone Trademark Retained—Production Continues with Company Firmly Banded Under "T"

Following closely the resignation of W. W. Hodkinson as president of the Triangle Distribution Corporation and the election of Mr. Davis to that position, comes the confirmation of the appointment as general manager of the Triangle Film Corporation of H. O. Davis, recently general manager of Universal City. Mr. Davis is a director on the Triangle board.

At an important meeting held last Tuesday, a far-reaching reorganization was begun among the ten corporations grouped under the Triangle banner. The most important and immediate development is the withdrawal from all activities in connection with Triangle of Thomas H. Ince and the possibility that Mack Sennett, whose productions have figured so prominently upon the Triangle program, may conduct his own studio.

Speaking of the development, General Manager Davis said to a Motion Picture News representative: "This separation between Mr. Ince and Triangle has been made with the best of the interests of all concerned. It is a matter purely of policy in production and distribution.

"All that can be corrected," said Mr. Davis, "and will be. The first step is unity of organization. "The successful manufacturer today in any line is the man who makes his dealers succeed. He fixes prices and policies, and makes the public buy. That is the aim of our service policy—to fill the exhibitors' seats at a profit to the exhibitor. This also can be done. We realize that the exhibitor today is looking for service—for a surety that he can sell profitably to the public. We will give him such service. It will be our business to see that the exhibitors make money to the end that we may. The dealers' success must be in direct proportion to our own."

The Triangle plans, Mr. Davis admitted, are somewhat revolutionary. It was suggested that some time will be required to work them out successfully.

"We realize that," said Mr. Davis. "But we are in business for the future. We can wait."

Film Preserving Process Reported Discovered

Contract Entered Into by Hedwig Laboratories with Inventor Allenbaugh for Use of Discovery Which May Revolutionize Industry

Through a contract signed during the past week between Shepard and Van Loan, Major O. J. Allenbaugh of the Film Renovating Company, and C. C. Fields, president of the Hedwig Laboratories, there was brought to the attention of the trade what those concerned believe is an innovation that will revolutionize the entire production of pictures, and in a short time will affect every foot of film.

The contract provides that the Hedwig Laboratories are to use the "Allenbaugh Process" on all films handled by the organization.

For three years Major Allenbaugh, who has invented other moving picture appliances, has been working on this invention, and closely guarded the results from possible curious eyes. He declares that during that time he has been constantly annoyed by offers from people who, realizing the selling qualities of the invention, wished to purchase it.

Several weeks ago, according to the statement, Shepard and Van Loan, both of whom are well known in the industry, learned from the Major of his discovery, and after investigation they immediately entered into contract to act as his agents, and began to get in touch with the big laboratories.

The officials of the Hedwig Laboratories, one of the largest printing institutions in the country, became interested in the process. They requested permission to put it through various tests, and this was agreed on. The tests were carried on night and day, and results are reported to have been excellent.

Last Tuesday, at a joint meeting of the board of directors of the various companies interested, including Shepard and Van Loan, the Film Renovating Company and the Hedwig Laboratories, a contract was signed between Major Allenbaugh, Harry J. Shepard, and C. C. Fields, wherein it was agreed that the Hedwig Laboratories should have the right to use the "Allenbaugh Process" for a given length of time. At this meeting it was further agreed that a reel of film handled by this laboratory, averaging more than 1,100 feet, should be put through the "Allenbaugh Process."

This means, say those interested, that any feature picture, or any film, of more than 1,100 feet will be just as good one year from the day it was printed as it was the day it left the laboratory.

"I have worked along an entirely different line. After many experiments, during which I must admit, I have encountered many difficulties, the sprocket walls are given additional strength. The film treated with this process, will run through the projecting machine with absolutely no accumulation of emulsion on the sprocket wheel, expansion springs, or aperture gate, or in any part of the apparatus which it may come in contact with."

$100,000 Libel Suit Begun by Choynski

When Maurice A. Choynski, a prominent and well-liked Chicago exhibitor was expelled by a vote from the Chicago Motion Picture Exhibitors' League a fortnight ago, together with three others for "conduct unbecoming," he shouted a threat that he would sue Peter J. Schaefer, of Jones, Linick and Schaefer for libel. On last Wednesday, June 6, he made good his threat when his attorney John Talbot served papers on Schaefer, asking for $100,000 damages.

Choynski alleges that, during the hot factional fight that preceded his expulsion, Schaefer cast aspersions on his honesty in handling the fund, of the recent convention and exposition, while he (Choynski) was a member of the committee in charge. No answer has been made by Mr. Schaefer.
Paramounts Sold for Scandinavian Countries

John Olsen & Co. Take Fairbanks, Arbuckle, Pallas, Morocco and Bosworth Pictures—Report American Films Have Deposed Foreign

AN important foreign deal has been consummated between the Famous Players-Lasky and John Olsen & Co., by the terms of which the latter concern acquires control of the Douglas Fairbanks, Artcraft, Pallas, Morocco, Bosworth and Arbuckle-Paramount pictures for Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

Olsen & Co. have just opened a branch office in the Times building, New York City, and contemplate transferring their London representative to America for the next few years. The main offices of this big importing concern are situated in London and Copenhagen. The company represents the three largest renting concerns in Sweden, Norway and Denmark, which are, respectively, Fotorama, the Swedish Biograph and the Scandinavian Film Central.

In view of the alliance of D. W. Griffith with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and his plans to direct six productions a year to be distributed by Artcraft, it is worth noting that the future purchase made by the Olsen interests after their arrival in this country were the rights to Griffith's "Intolerance" and "The Birth of a Nation."

John Olsen, the head of the Scandinavian firm, is now in this country having brought with him O. Hemborg of the Swedish Biograph and F. Mattsson, who has been the London representative of the concern.

It is the latter who will remain in this country and will be in personal charge of the American offices from which all business will be conducted.

According to Mr. Olsen, American subjects are in great demand in Scandinavian countries, having to a great extent replaced the demand for Italian and German productions. They have practically eliminated the continental pictures in the short time that American productions have been introduced by the Olsen company. So far Mr. Olsen estimated that the motion picture public in these countries totals about 11,000,000 people, but it is his belief that the interest in photo-play is growing so rapidly that this number will increase continually.

Hoffman to Establish "Selling Stations"

One of the results of M. H. Hoffman's recent trip to the Coast, during which he annexed the Bernstein Productions to the M. H. Hoffman, Incorporated, was the crystallizing of an idea for selling stations, which Mr. Hoffman had in his mind for some time.

The plan as outlined by his sales manager, W. A. Bach, consists in establishing a selling station, on the floor of which will be sold products of all film companies desiring to do business in that territory. M. H. Hoffman, Incorporated, will conduct a selling station, and each participating company will supply a representative. Exhibitors going to the selling station will be able to meet and purchase what they wish, whether it is in the form of program, feature or comedies, on the one floor.

No traveling salesmen will be employed, as even at the present time they do not make themselves profitable. The overhead of the entire selling station will then be sliced into small parts.

Calgary Exchange Men Band

Exchange managers of Calgary, Canada, have formed an association to be known as the Film Exchange Managers' Association of Alberta, with the following officials: President, D. G. Walkley, of Universal; Vice-President, W. R. Marshall, of Mutual; Secretary-Treasurer, N. W. Davidson, of Specialty Import Company.

Maryland Managers Plan Summer Retrenchment

From present indications there will be relatively few improvements made this summer to motion picture theatres in Maryland.

There are several reasons for this, the most important being the high cost of material and labour, and secondly, a disposition on the part of exhibitors to curtail expenses this season due to the unsettled condition of business brought about by enlistments, the possibility of the state militia being ordered away and the thousands of young men which are to be drafted by government, all of which will greatly diminish the regular motion picture revenues. Owing to this condition only absolutely necessary improvements are to be made. There has also been fewer automobiles to open this summer.

Wisconsin Convention—Exhibitors Want Summer Closing

At what was practically the first state convention of the Wisconsin Motion Picture Men's Association ever held, the badge photo play exhibitors got together in Milwaukee, Thursday and Friday and elected delegates to the National Convention in Chicago.

The meeting was an extremely interesting one and was well attended, not only by the local exhibitors, but by exhibitors from all over the state.

J. W. Sherwood, of Madison, was elected director of the state organization, while the following delegates were elected to the Chicago convention: J. Grauman, George Fisher, Henry Tram, of Milwaukee; Thos. A. Lee, Fond du Lac; H. Rhode, Kenosha; while the following were elected alternates, Mr. Fisher, Madison; Mr. Langmeek, Frank Cook; Frank Brimmer, Henry Langmeek, Milwaukee.

The following telegram was received from Wm. A. Johnston at the convention: Mr. Lee, Secretary Exhibitors' League, Wisconsin Hotel, Milwaukee, Wis.

The deposit system was thoroughly scored, and a vote taken on the proposition that all places of amusement have been taken with the result in favor of the move. Exchange men present said they too would welcome a two months' closing.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS sends its warm congratulations to the Wisconsin exhibitors in convention assembled. We are glad to note your entrance back into the National League; the future success of which will depend upon your representation and action at the Chicago convention. Best wishes for your State League.

WILLIAM A. JOHNSTON.

"Garden of Allah" Once More

A misleading caption that slipped through the publication in last week's Motion Picture News, stated that "The Garden of Allah" had been purchased by Sherman-Elliott, whereas the latter firm only has the rights to the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Dakota and South Dakota. The Selig Company is rapidly pushing the exploitation of this production throughout the country.

Industry Working as Unit for Liberty Bond Issue

Sixteen Thousand Theatres in the United States Showing Slides and Trailers—Thousands Subscribe—Total Will Swell National Funds to Astounding Degree

When President Wilson announces the receipts from Liberty Bond sales it is pretty certain that the Motion Picture Industry will not be found wanting. The industry will meet his request in the forefront with those who have contributed actual cash toward the loan, but it will receive honorable mention for its strenuous, consistent and country-wide efforts in promoting the Liberty Loan.

Through its channels of publicity the industry has probably done more than any other one organization or class. Its voice has been heard in the remotest corners and thousands have been brought to the aid of the Loan in various ways.

National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, through its president, William A. Brady, announces that sixteen thousand theatres in the United States are now a part of that picture industry's war-time picture policy. In this manner the Government's message concerning the Liberty Bond Loan is being brought almost simultaneously to more than 15,000,000 people who attend daily the motion picture theatres throughout the country. This is only a forerunner," says Mr. Brady, "of what the Motion Picture Industry can do in arousing the patriotic spirit of the country, in raising funds required for the Red Cross, and to treat of the activities of the various departments of the Government." The Association has addressed new managers throughout the country, asking that the slides and trailers be sent to them.

J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Palco, gives good reports from the different exchanges. Outside of the home office where a majority of the employees have already subscribed for the bonds, says Mr. Berst, "at the rate of $1 per week for each $50 bond of the purchase stock of the New York branch bonds were sent out under the auspices of the National Association in response to the Government's call. In this manner the Government's message concerning the Liberty Bond Loan is being brought almost simultaneously to more than 15,000,000 people who attend daily the motion picture theatres throughout the country." This is only a forerunner," says Mr. Brady, "of what the Motion Picture Industry can do in arousing the patriotic spirit of the country, in raising funds required for the Red Cross, and to treat of the activities of the various departments of the Government."

The Association has received the addresses of new theatres and the names of new managers throughout the country, asking that the slides and trailers be sent to them.

Frank Hall, who instituted a novel means of disposing of Liberty Bonds last week at the Broaday theatre, where "The Bar Sinister" is showing, reports that his plan has met with instant success. At each matinee and evening performance a short patriotic address was made by a representative of the Liberty Bond Loan, Corporal James J. Wilson, Eighth Regiment, New York National Guard, spoke at one of the evening shows and introduced Hedda Nova, who has a prominent role in "The Bar Sinister." Miss Nova distributed the first number of the Monday showing. The bond was awarded to C. O. Grove, of Glen Cove, L. I. Mrs. George Graham of 501 West 111th street, New York, had the number which won the bond awarded at the evening show.

The success of the plan at the Broadway theatre was duplicated at Mr. Hall's theatre in Hoboken, N. J. "The theatres can do a splendid work," says Mr. Hall, "in making the bond popular among the people who do not ordinarily invest in bonds and must be quickly educated in bond buying if the loan is to be a success which the present emergency demands." On Wednesday evening of last week, Edgar Lewis, who produced "The Bar Sinister," donated the extra hundred dollar bond and presented it personally to the one holding the number for the evening show.

Douglas Fairbanks, it is announced, has purchased $100,000 worth of Liberty Bonds from the Guaranty Trust Company in New York. John Emerson, who directs Mr. Fairbanks in his pictures, and Anita Loos, Mr. Fairbank's scenario editor, have each purchased $10,000 worth.

Metro is doing its share toward swell ing the number of the bonds. Many of the most prominent stars from Metro were in Brooklyn last week acting as Liberty Loan salesmen and saleswomen. The receipts from their efforts ran into the thousands.

At the announcement of the loan, the Motion Picture News, officers and employees, have subscribed for $10,100 worth of Liberty Bonds. Most of the bonds were taken on the installment plan of weekly payments.

Griffith's Stars Join Him in Europe

A statement was issued last week from the Griffith offices to lay at rest the rumors attendant on the continued absence of D. W. Griffith in Europe. Since "Intolerance" was launched upon its run in England, Mr. Griffith has been in the battle trenches in France and Belgium, and has been doing some special work for the British War Office and for the French Government. The nature of this work is secret, and naturally cannot be announced at this time. Without violating any of the restrictions of the military censorship in England or France, it is quite evident that whatever is being done will have an American participation, as Mr. Griffith has called to his side several of the better known people who have appeared in his recent productions. Among these are Bobby Harron, the Gish Sisters (Lillian and Dorothy) and Billy Bitzer, his camera man, who has been with Mr. Griffith for years.

Universal announces that $79,000 have been subscribed through the efforts of this company. Whether additional citations are to be announced, it is expected that this amount will be increased to $100,000. Actors, actresses and office force are all working for the Liberty Loan.

Virginia Pearson, Fox star, last week established a record for selling the greatest number of Liberty Bonds, at Namn's department store, Brooklyn. She sold more than $50,000 worth. Mr. Namm, personally complimented Miss Pearson on her ability as a saleswoman for Uncle Sam.

Stanley V. Mastabaugh, managing director of the Stanley Booking Corporation, of Philadelphia, sends word that this company has purchased $20,000 worth of bonds. "In this national emergency," said Mr. Mastabaugh, "everybody should assist." Mr. Mastaubah has directed that every effort be made by the Stanley interests to further the Liberty Bond issue. The Stanley theatres have been offered to the Government for the sale of Liberty Loan Bonds and for recruiting station for the Army, Navy and Red Cross. This week, it is announced, will be "Marine Corps Week" at all Stanley theatres.

The Strand theatre has adopted a novel plan to sell Liberty Bonds. Last Saturday marked the opening of a week's campaign for the Liberty Bond. The Majestic theatre, Detroit, Mich., sends word that the management has purchased $25,000 worth of Liberty Bonds out of the theatre's surplus.

The Motion Picture News, officers and employees, has subscribed for $10,000 worth of Liberty Bonds. Most of the bonds were taken on the installment plan of weekly payments.
"Uptown House Should Work With Downtown House"

Vice-President and General Manager of Pathe Exchange Answers Article in Motion Picture News of June 2 Which Raised the Question of Downtown Houses Stifling Business of Uptown Theatres

EDITOR'S NOTE—In the June 2 issue of Motion Picture News was published an article on the relation between downtown theatres and uptown theatres, entitled "What is Fair Price Protection for Downtown Theatre?" A Detroit exchange man raised the question. He told a Detroit theatre owner that if he desired first-run privileges to the extent of a time limit of sixty days on the succeeding showing of the film in Detroit, he would have to pay for those privileges.

J. A. Berst, Vice-President of Pathe, has prepared an article especially for Motion Picture News, in which he sets forth another side to this important question.

By J. A. Berst

To produce pictures worthy to be placed on the program of any theatre and to conduct our business on a basis that has won for us the title of "the small exhibitor's friend" is the policy of Pathe Exchange.

With this in view and with a steady increase in the quality of our features and comedies, Pathe is determined to spend on further improvement in production and because it is beneficial to the neighborhood houses.

Mr. Wm. A. Johnston, Motion Picture News.

Dear Mr. Johnston:

Allow me to congratulate you on your editorial of June 2nd, titled "Get Down to Bed Rock." I think it hits the nail on the head more than any editorial that I have ever read connected with the industry and certainly cannot have other than good results.

Freuler Warns Against "Daylight Saving" Plan

Points Out Depressing Effect on Exhibitors' Business, Citing the Result in Australia—"None of Us Should Get Hysterical"

"EXHIBITORS everywhere should fight the 'save an hour of daylight' campaign," warns President John R. Freuler of the Mutual Film Corporation.

"'Save the night life' should be the slogan of the motion picture business and every other branch of the amusement business.

"Matinee business would not suffer from a general adoption of the project to set the clock ahead an hour, but the night business would suffer seriously. This is not guesswork, it is certainty. It has been proven, for instance, in Australia where evening admissions at the motion picture theatres and at the speaking stage shows have fallen off very noticeably since the enforcement of the plan there.

"The attitude of the exchange man today, at least within the Pathe selling force, is that of a modern business man who wants to help his customers make money because that is the only way he can himself make money.

"The downtown first run at a big house is of undoubted value to the small exhibitors, and the showing ... the rather questionable advertising which has been used in the past is not adopted by the second exhibitor.

"The downtown run over, there is no reason why he should not advertise as big as he wants that the picture is coming.

"The downtown run is over, there is no reason why he should not advertise as big as he wants that the picture is coming.

"We must continue business as usual if crises are to be escaped and production is to continue. This seems to me to be an excellent reason for letting the clock alone.

"We can set the clock ahead, but we cannot by a manifesto set of habits of the people.

"Meanwhile, national prosperity and success in the war means that none of us shall get hysterical."
Country's Librarians Back Up Thanhouser Views

CONFIRMATION of the attitude taken by Edwin Thanhouser in reply to an attack on motion pictures by the editor of a publication for public librarians, details of which were printed in Motion Picture News several weeks ago, but that are now come to hand in the form of letters written by prominent librarians to the Thanhouser Film Corporation.

George F. Bowman, librarian of the Public Library of the District of Columbia, says: "Our Chief of Circulation reports that the exhibition in the moving picture theatres of the film of any story such as Ramaon, Pickwick Papers, David Copperfield and Vicar of Wakefield always increases the demand for the books."

"Unquestionably the presentation on the motion screen of a well known book creates an instant demand on public libraries for the book itself," says B. Wright, librarian of the Kansas City Public Library, Kansas City, Mo., and so long as only worthy books are shown libraries benefit thereby.

Librarian Arthur E. Bostwick of the St. Louis Public Library, St. Louis, Mo., is even more emphatic in his support of Mr. Thanhouser's views. He states: "I beg to say that you are quite right in your view that films based on stories published in the Public Library. This is the case whether the books represented are good or bad. We occasionally have a demand stimulated by motion pictures for books that we do not place on our shelves, but the demand is the same when the book happens to be 'David Copperfield' or 'Les Miserables.' I am fully in accord with the statement of Mr. Thanhouser."

Mrs. Mary C. Spencer, State Librarian, Michigan State Library, Lansing, Michigan, which is not so positive in her opinion, but seems open to conviction if the films placed are of "the right kind." She says: "The placing on the stage of the legitimate drama demands that the book be made the play. The truth of the matter is, so few films by great artists are shown here that the audiences are not composed of the representative people; I have no doubt if we could have the right kind of plays shown we would have more demand for the books."

William F. Yust, librarian of the Rochester Public Library of Rochester, N. Y., declares: "Pictures do stimulate the circulation of books, but unfortunately a demand is sometimes created by them for the less desirable stories. You will be interested to know that the stimulus thus given to reading is not confined to the particular story shown, but extends to other works by the same author. All of which shows a wonderful opportunity and with it a corresponding responsibility."

The statement of F. W. Miller, librarian of the Free Public Library of Jersey City, N. J., reveals that his library has compiled a special card index of books that have been adapted to films. "The experience of the Jersey City Public Library," he writes, "has been that the presentation of motion pictures made from books usually results in a marked increase in the use of such books, particularly when they are presented in the better class of theatres."

Herbert A. E. Brewer, librarian of the Toledo Public Library; John H. Lette, director of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh; Robert K. Shaw, librarian of the Free Public Library of Worcester, Mass.; Walter L. Brown, librarian of the Buffalo Public Library, and Paul M. Pains, occupying the same position in the Syracuse Public Library are other upholders of Mr. Thanhouser's views.

FROM A GOOD FRIEND

"I want to congratulate you upon your new plan of listing all the features released during the month separately in your monthly index."

"I also want to congratulate you upon your excellent criticisms of photoplays in the 'Screen Examinations' Department, and upon its excellent arrangement into two parts of criticism and plays and players."

Los Angeles Publicity Men Band as The Toreadors

In the hope of bettering themselves by closer relationship, publicity men of Los Angeles studios, dramatic critics of newspapers and writers of the screen colony have organized, adopting as the club name 'The Toreadors.' In this instance the members choose the word shall not refer to a bull-fighter, but one who is successful in throwing the bull. The organization meeting was held at the Hotel Clark, Saturday evening May 28, and shortly another meeting will be held, at which the officers will be chosen.

To Edit Picture Section

Gaston Dureau on June 4 becomes motion picture editor of the New Orleans Item, succeeding R. E. Pritchard, who assumes other duties on the editorial staff of the Item.

Mr. Dureau has been publicity manager of the Fitchenberg theatres in New Orleans for several years and is thoroughly equipped for his new line of work.

Selig Host to Film Men

William N. Selig recently entertained in Chicago Edward Nelson, president of the Sherman-Elliot Film Corporation, and David H. Beener, vice-president, both of Milwaukee; James L. Steele, in New Capacity for Paramount

James Steele, secretary and treasurer of the Paramount Pictures Corporation for the past year, has resigned that position in order that he may continue his residence in Pittsburgh and will thereafter be located in the Iron City, acting in the capacity of district manager over the Paramount offices in Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland and Indianapolis.

Steele will also retain the service of Mr. Van Doren, superintendent of the secretarial and forward department of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, and will control the same as a part of the business of the company.

Newspaper and Picture Co. Film History of Cleveland

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, in connection with the Argus Company, producers of educational and industrial films, is going to make history of Cleveland and its environs.

The first chapter of this series of local news events is a film of about 750 feet, showing the recitals of the Government's naval training ships in the basin of preparations for the summer maneuvers, exterior and interior views of Mt. Sinai Hospital, the city's latest and most modern institution of this sort, various lake front scenes, showing the methods of handling ore, a Woodland avenue market scene in the rush hours, and views of the millionaires' row on Euclid avenue between East Twenty-second and East Forty-third streets, which is being widened to relieve the congested traffic conditions.

The editorial staff of the Plain Dealer is directly superintending the making of these pictures, and Editor V. B. Gray has opened the field for suggestions to all Plain Dealer readers. Samuel Brodsky, of the Argus Company, is the motion picture editor. The pictures are arranged to exhibit at the Standard Film Exchange Company in the Columbia Building.

A Statement from B. Barriscale

Bessie Barriscale last week issued a statement in which she asked that attention be brought to the fact that she would not remain on the Triangle program during the coming year as has been printed in various papers.

Her interests, she states, lie solely with her own producing company, The Bessie Barriscale Feature Corporation, and the distributing organization, Parallel Ynns. Inc.

Selig Host to Film Men
ON THE FIRING LINE

"I guess I am like a great many other exhibitors, kicking about deposits and return express," states M. J. Laka, Bijou Theatre, Barnsville, Minn. Fox, Paramount, Triangle and a serial give him a satisfactory program. Marguerite Clark and June Caprice are the favorites with his people.

"Twenty-five per cent less business this year than last, but no kicks," is the way L. E. Street, Violet Theatre, Breakfast, Ind., puts it in the situation in town. Bluebird, World and Universal pictures are used, with Warren Kerrigan and Louise Lovely the favorites.

"In a town of seven hundred, and still running, with prospects better this year than last," is the story of J. N. Berryman, Idle Hour Theatre, Brandenburg, Ky. Helen Holmes is his prime favorite big business getter.

THE NATIONAL THEATRE, GREENVILLE, O, reports that Hon. J. C. Weaver, Mayor, pronounced "Faith," with Mary Miles Minter, "the finest picture he ever saw." Other patrons of this theatre especially enjoyed this picture, says Manager W. B. John.

"Please advise when there are some independent film exchanges that are reliable to deal with and give the right prices on their goods," writes Chris Casner, manager of the Blairsburg (Iowa) Opera House and Cason theatre, using Pathé, Mutual, Universal and Bluebird features "mostly." "Business is fair if I did not have to pay a little too high for the goods I get—the exchanges are getting things too much their own way."

Leslie Hornbeck, Dreamland Theatre, Battle Creek, Mich., is using the entire Universal program and reports business "great." He is now adding 200 seats to his capacity. Butterfly "Eternal Love" proved the best liked picture in recent programs.

Frank Barr, Manager of the Lyric Theatre, Fayetteville, Ark., wants more short-reel subjects. Mutual and Triangle programs are taking nicely, but the small towns are suffering from production, so largely running to features.

Pearl White, Mary Pickford, Anita Stewart, W. S. Hart, and Douglas Fairbanks are favorites with F. H. Weiss, Majestic Theatre, Belle Plains, Minn., who uses Triangle, V-L-S-E, Pathe, and Bluebird pictures.

WITH THE EXHIBITOR

Star Salaries Must Drop—Producers Threatened
Says Alfred S. Black, of Maine Theatres, Inc.—Prominent New England Exhibitor Warns Producers of Mistaken Policy

A message worth serious consideration by exhibitors and producers alike was received by us recently from the president of Maine Theatres, Inc. He calls for exhibitor organization "upon a plane that would command the extreme confidence of those who have the best interest of the business at heart and no personal axes to grind"; and cites as a sample of distributors' shortsightedness, the playing all of the biggest attractions in Portland at ten-cent program prices, making it poor showmanship for other Maine exhibitors to attempt to make excess rental cost by advancing above Portland prices. "I merely cite this," says Mr. Black, "to show you concretely the salesmanship of the leading factors in the film business to-day. They have been successful and have made a lot of money, apparently, and have no regard for the future of the industry except for quick profits. I maintain in we are in a dangerous situation and the next few weeks will demonstrate, without much doubt, the survival of the fittest."

Following are some extracts from this very interesting letter to Mr. Johnston:

Dear Sir,

Many of your recent editorials have been so interesting and timely that I cannot refrain from congratulating you. In the conduct of our various theatres we play more or less road shows, and the other day in correspondence with Mr. Lewis, of the Aaron's Associated Theatres, he asked me candidly if I did not think that interest in motion pictures was on the wane, and, if we would not be, next season, in position to handle some road attractions. I wrote him that, as a people who have been in business a long time, but that the day of the dollar picture had passed, at least for the New England territory, and there would be very few features that could command successfully, a 50-cent price and, no doubt, very many of the special productions could be put over successfully on 25-cent price, provided they could be purchased or played by an exhibitor upon a basis of profit. This is in line with the opinion expressed by yourself.

During the past year we have invested very heavily in the motion picture business, and had not the war broken out, we had much larger plans for this year, part of which we will go through with on account of contract previously made. I can't help feel, however, that the industry is in a very critical situation to-day, and, like all fast-growing industries, it will be a survival of the fittest. Many of the present abuses in the industry could be stopped if the exhibitors banding together, or at least a large part of the important exhibitors, but not under the influence of the film exchanges and their controlling factors. I don't mean to intimate, but what the manufacturers must have a chance, but the tendency at the present, from a view of the New England general field, is that we are rather at a disadvantage. The exhibitors are, at least indirectly, if not directly, getting together in an attempt to boost prices on the exhibitors who, certainly, in eighty per cent of the houses, can't stand same under the present trying conditions. In putting out the so-called specials they have increased the film rental, and many of the exhibitors have fallen for same. The profits made, in many instances, have misled many people and, in my judgment, will cause serious losses from the producers' end, no doubt, in a great many instances.

The whole curse in this industry is in the salaries paid to the stars, and until a concentrated effort is made to reach the fountain head of all trouble, there will be a tendency of everybody in the industry to work for a favored few and those who are lucky enough to be associated with those few, and very largely on some one else's money. I am convinced that this exhibitor, the mainstay of the industry, can't stand as an average any other increased cost without a large percentage of failures, and that as soon as the pressure gets strong enough, and I believe it is fast coming, that they will organize for their self-protection in a way little realized at the present time.

Your paper is to be congratulated upon the fair manner in which you have openly expressed yourself through its columns. If there is any suggestion herein that is appealing to you, I trust you may use them.

We have jumped for only a few of the so-called specials with the enormous salaries attached thereto, and we have canceled a portion of the contracts for which we jumped. We are still doing business, and I believe that many an exhibitor's profits will be larger when he puts out of his vision the personal equation as applying to head line stars. It is about time that the profits of the industry go where they justly belong.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) Alfred S. Black.

Schmidt Did Not Confirm Claim

Exhibitor J. W. Schmidt writes requesting a correction of the statement that he confirmed Mr. S. C. Rogers' claim of having taken care of him with a new booking, in the controversy between Mr. Schmidt and the Clune Chicago Exchange. We will say that Mr. Schmidt has by no word or act confirmed Mr. Rogers' statement that he followed a telegram of cancellation with a letter regarding new dates. In digesting several pages of explanation we misunderstood Mr. Schmidt's position, which was and is as now stated.
North Carolina Convention Will Really Be Tri-State Affair

President Percy W. Wells of the North Carolina M. P. E. L. announces that the convention of the Tar Heel League will be held at Wrightsville Beach, June 14 to 16, inclusive, has developed into a tri-state affair, and indications point to the largest gathering of exhibitors ever held in the South.

President Wells recently attended the first annual meeting of the South Carolina League, held in Columbia, and upon invitation the Palmetto exhibitors will join the North Carolina League in convention. Last week President Wells attended a meeting of exhibitors of Virginia in Richmond, National League Organizer Her- rington having been present and organized a state branch in that state. The Virginia League will also send over a large delegation to meet with the Carolinians at Wrightsville Beach.

Plans are being promulgated by Mr. Wells for the chartering of a special Pullman car which will carry large delegations from North Carolina, Virginia, and South Carolina to the National Convention in Chicago in July, and these plans will be perfected at the Wrightsville Beach convention.

Michigan Convention Will Be Strictly for Business

From all reports, the Michigan State Convention to be held at Grand Rapids on June 12 and 13, is going to be a big success. A. J. Moeller, secretary, is working hard and late to put over the largest state convention yet held, and a rigid business program which will appeal to every exhibitor, large or small, is being arranged. Addresses by the largest men in the field in this state are on the program, and absolutely no amusement or social hour is promised.

Election of officers, delegates, to the National Convention, a new constitution and by-laws are among the important things. Other issues of importance are the new war tax, the semi-inspection fee, the deposit system.

Public Interested in Coming National Convention

All those back of the preparations in progress for the coming national convention and exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America to be held in Chicago during July are confident of the success of the event. One of the assurances pointed to by them is the active interest being manifested by the public. Every day Manager Ludwig Schindler receives letters from motion picture fans filled with suggestions looking for information regarding the film stars it is planned to have in attendance at the exposition.

In these letters are requests, and often pleas, to have Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, Clara Kimball Young, William S. Hart and others of the film famous present. Manager Schin-
Facts and Figures Again
Manager L. W. McCuan, of Dresden, Tenn., whose Kozy theatre, as he says, is “not merely a theatre—but a Dresden institution” in a more to say regarding the burden of express charges to the small town exhibitor;

Your article, “Are Atlanta Exchanges Alone in This?”

Not by any means.

I use Triangle commercials of New Orleans, paying express both ways on the feature of five reels, amounting to $1.84, use their comedy another day, paying $1.04 express, get two days’ service from Pathe, St. Louis, express both ways making $2.40 for the two days; ... four shows, express $0.60, which runs around $6.00 weekly. Running three shows weekly, with an average of Exchange Men Lending Co-operation to Penna. Convention

WITH the opening date (June 25) of the Pennsylvania Convention drawing near, the Philadelphia committee men are putting their efforts and success is looking large.

Exchange men are lending valuable aid, and have formed and an Exchange Committee, with George Dambow, World manager, as chairman. This committee, as its first practical help, has offered a $50 Liberty Loan Bond as a prize to the best dancer among the exhibitors at the entertainment on Tuesday night.

The exchange men will also have a Reception Committee of its own to help the exhibitors welcome a goodly number of stars who have already promised to shine for the convention.

Among those definitely scheduled are:

Alice Brady and little Madge Evans, of the World; Pearl White and Molly King, of Pathe; Erle Williams and Pauline Wright, of Vitagraph; Norma Talmadge, of Selznick; Constance Talmadge, Mabel Tal-

Next Northwest Gathering

The June 5 meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors Corporation of the Northwest was postponed, on account of its being Registration Day. The next meeting will be on June 12 at the Strand theatre, St. Paul, Minn.

Charges According to Cost on Special Feature Night

In the pretty little town of Sabatini, Kansas, is a wide-awake exhibitor, who came there to “settle down,” as he says, after almost ten years as a showman. His policies, as outlined in a recent letter to the News, are most interesting and worth noting by any small town exhibitor.

To begin with, he books pictures of merit and gives his people variety of entertainment. World, Vitagraph, K-E-S, Pathe, Mutual serials and Triangle pictures share the honor of appearing before a very discriminating audience of people who know what they want and make their wants felt direct to the manager.

He has it understood, as a sort of personal relation between himself and his patrons, that he will bring to his little town all the “big stuff,” as he calls it, on Wed-

Standard Film Incorporates Aid Department

A fresh evidence of the earnestness with which the avowed policy of the Standard Film Corporation to furnish a “Perfect Service to the Exhibitor” is being followed up is to be had in the announcement made this week by the Standard Film Corporation that it has secured the service of Lee D. Balsly as manager of a new department at the home offices in Kansas City, to be known as “The Exhibitors’ Aid Department.”

The purpose of this department, as outlined by Mr. Balsly, is to get on a more intimate relationship with Art Dramas exhibitors, and to offer suggestions and ideas for the purpose of stimulating business; to assist in the creation of new business-getting plans and to establish an interchange of ideas between the exhibitor and the distributor of Art Dramas.

Kansas Showmen Protest Deposit

Protest on high deposits was made by prominent theatre men assembled in Wichita, Kan., on June 6, to discuss business plans for the year.

New York Local of Exhibitors’ League Acts

New York Local No. 1, Motion Picture Exhibitors League, at a meeting of the executive committee, May 29, endorsed the report of the Senate Finance Committee, eliminating the tax on film footage and exempting from the admission ticket tax the five and ten-cent theatres. Sidney Cohen moved to endorse the bill as submitted by the Senate Finance Committee by the House. Sidney Ascher moved the amend-

How About Music?
Managers of the larger theatres of Seattle are giving much attention to their musical programs, and making them a marked feature of their entertainment at their respective houses. In one instance, James Clemmer, manager of the Clemmer theatre, uses his eight-piece orchestra for a special concert on Tuesday and Friday afternoons, the concert to begin about three fifteen. This brings a bigger crowd to the matinees on the two days usually quiet at the theatre. A feature of the concert is that all numbers requested by members of the audience will be given, providing time permits.

Messrs. Jensen and Von Herberg, who manage the Colisseum, found that Sunday crowds were late in going to the theatre, and adopted a policy of giving a sacred concert at 12.30 each Sunday. This has been found to bring people to the theatre in their thousands.

E. L. Turner, proprietor of the Queen theatre, Palestine, Texas, advertised the Paramount picture, "The Citizen," by leading all the school kids who would wear clown suits into the show free. Look at that line up!

The Feminine Atmosphere
Mrs. Lulu Dietz, manager of the Star theatre, Covina, Cal., issues a program which indicates an atmosphere of charm and comfort, such as might be expected in a theatre run by a clever woman.

Distributing Stars’ Photographs
The distribution of photographs of the prominent stars appearing on the screen at the Broadway, Baltimore, proved so successful during anniversary week that it is probable the plan will be carried out permanently.

It is not proposed to distribute the photographs every night as in the case of an anniversary week, but it will be used to develop business on the more quiet days of the week.

It has been found that the men as well as the women clamor for the pictures of their favorite stars, so that this innovation will probably be very far-reaching.

SPARKS OF GENIUS
So many reports from all over the land have come of the patriotism and good business sense exhibited by theatre managers who are giving the Liberty Bond Loan a lift that it is impossible even to enumerate them here. Many exhibitors, we are aware, are secretly and unsentimentally buying up Liberty Bonds on the pure grounds of patriotism. Others, killing two or more birds with one stone, are buying bonds or giving them away and letting the public have a chance to know about it, thereby gaining patronage.

* * * A FAVORITE plan is to sell admission tickets having a numbered coupon attached. Lucky ticket holders win the bonds. It is the custom in these cases to increase the admission price a trifle—enough to make the bond gifts not too heavy a burden. An equally favored plan is to announce a Liberty Bond week. All of the proceeds of the week are devoted to the purchase of the bonds. Making money on the Liberty Bond idea is, in our minds, a perfectly righteous and legitimate business proposition.

C. LINDSAY, managing the Star theatre, Eureka, Cal., is encouraging boys’ and girls’ matinees. To help business along he is conducting a series of contests. Among these are the best recitation, the best dialogue and the best solo. Prizes are given during intermissions, and school teachers are said to be enthusiastic about them.

* * * * * * *
J. A. CARR, manager of the Avon theatre, Decatur, III., in order to secure a representative audience for Vitagraph’s “Womanhood, the Glory of the Nation,” sent reproductions of telegrams to all prominent people in the town. The telegrams were in regulation envelopes, delivered by boys in Western Union uniforms, who made every person receiving one of the messages sign it.

University’s Healthy Program
Maurice L. Fleischman and William Fleischman, managers of the U. S. theatre and University theatre, New York, have sent us samples of their programs and of patriotic heralds recently issued, with the request that we give our opinions. We only had to take one look at all of the advertising in the program to make up our mind that it is excellent. Messrs. Fleischman evidently patronize a good print shop, for, while the paper on which the program is printed, is not of exceptionally good stock, the printing is clear and easy to read. At least half of it is taken up with advertisements. The other half is devoted to the usual announcements of pictures and to photographs and interesting stories of the players.

The herald which Messrs. Fleischman have sent is illustrated on this page. The entire proceeds of the week beginning June 4 went toward the purchase of Liberty Bonds. The herald is done in dark blue and red, and is striking.

Neat Program from the Elmwood
E. O. Weinberg, manager of the Elmwood theatre, Utica, N. Y., displays an ingenious idea in the make-up of his program, which takes the form of a neat colored folder, having the week’s attractions printed in clear type together with announcements of forthcoming attractions. The folder goes into a vest pocket.
Where Is Mr. Whitham?

We should like to know in what city Mr. M. H. Whitham, manager of the Elmwood theatre is located. Two of his attractive programs strayed into our office, but the name of his city is not therein.

Bluebird Book Is a Real Helper

The exhibitor’s aid book issued by Bluebird is meant to help Bluebird exhibitors and the exhibitors who neglect to take advantage of it lack wisdom. The newspaper display lines are strong, and they leave a lasting impression, as good display lines should. The press stories, which exhibitors are supposed to clip, lack the “bunk” which so often creeps into such notices, and will easily find their way into newspapers, if the exhibitor will only make use of them.

A Sample of Old Erin

Tom McDonald, manager of the new People’s Theatre, Butte, says “Paramount Progress,” sent to Chicago for some real soil imported from Ireland. He would have liked to run “Castles for Two” for St. Patrick’s Day, but failing that he ran “On Record.” Incidentally, he advertised “You can walk on Irish ground to-day at the People’s Theatre.” He had the soil placed in a shallow box in the lobby, and all the Irish who so desired were invited to stand “on Irish Ground.” As there are many Irish in Butte the stunt proved a very popular one.

Evergreen Theatre, Brooklyn, Has Liberty Bond Week

Manager D. Schaefer, of the Evergreen theatre, Myrtle and Senaca avenues, Brooklyn, N.Y., will give two fifty-dollar Liberty Bonds on each day of the run of Greater Vitagraph’s “Within the Law” last week. He arranged to have two Supreme Court judges present each night to make the awards in order that there would be no criticism that persons obtained the bonds unfairly.

In order to take care of his increased overhead charges of one hundred dollars a day, the cost of the bonds, he gave away, Manager Schaefer increased his price of admission fifteen cents during the run of “Within the Law.” Every ticket sold had a stub, on which appeared a number corresponding to the number on the admission ticket.

The regular admission tickets, taken up at the door, were placed in a regular wheel. The tickets were mixed up, and one of the Supreme Court judges drew two tickets from the wheel.

To the persons holding the stubs with the numbers corresponding to those on the ticket drawn from the wheel were awarded the bonds.

Manager Schaefer is the same well known showman who recently closed all avenues of traffic in his section of Brooklyn during his presentation of “Womanhood, the Glory of the Nation.” On the first night of the run of “Womanhood,” according to his estimates two thousand persons were turned away from the theatre.

A Letter Patron Getter

W. L. Hill, manager of the publicity and exhibitor’s aid department of the Famous Players Film Service, Chicago, Ill., sends the editor a letter, which has been prepared for distribution by the theatres.

Wirelessed Their Way In

J. E. Tompkins, manager of the Princess theatre, Colorado Springs, last week advertised Theodore Roberts in "The American Consul." His doorman, who is also an electrician, suggested the installation of a wireless machine as a business getter. Accordingly, an honest-to-goodness wireless was installed at the theatre entrance. The populace punched the key all day long and watched the sparks fly.

Vitagraph’s Plan Books Are Helpful

The plan books issued by Greater Vitagraph for the guidance of exhibitors invariably show careful thought and no small amount of ingenuity. We have before us the plan book, or exhibitor’s aid book, on "The Soul Master," in which Earl Williams is featured. The advertisements are all simple, strong and effective.
Features
Cupid Plays Queer Pranks with Ethel Clayton in "The Stolen Paradise" (World Five-Reel Production)

Love plays some queer antics. Cupid would make a great author or authoress. The little person of our imagination has originality and the sincerest appreciation for our side of the adventure. In "The Stolen Paradise" our little friend Cupid hunts for the wrong person as its emissary which gives rise to a diverting series of situations. It is a story which David Clifton is married but he doesn't know his wife has disappeared. The morning sun is restored. Edward Langford performs this role. He is an author who becomes blind. He loves music, which he loves and the other he considers merely as a friend. Ethel Clayton, one of the studio's most clever stars, presents the part of Joan Merrifield, the girl who David considers only as a friend but whom he marries. The girl with whom he thought married and wanted to marry is presented by Pina Nové. It is impossible to relate the many events which lead up to the most unusual climax in this picturama, but from what is here related it isn't safe for the theatre to guarantee you an hour or more of perfect pleasure while "The Stolen Paradise" is being shown. Ethel Clayton featured will be seen on the screen this week. Earle Williams and Dorothy Kelly Co-Starred in Suspense Story, "The Macabre" (Vitagraph Five-Reel Production)

It is nothing to say that you are given the opportunity of seeing two screen stars working in a picture together. The Macabre, a Vitagraph feature, is one of the studio's pictures which will not allow the best-known stars of the screen but it tells a story which has been projected on the screen of the theatre. Earle Williams and Dorothy Kelly are the stars. Miss Kelly will be remembered for her fine work in "Secret Kingdom," the serial which ran to packed houses for seven weeks last winter. Earle Williams is known as the "mystic" themselves. The Macabre is really a psychological, essentially a mystery story. Mr. Williams presents the part of Mike, a young Chicago detective whose work has brought him ever to the life in the underworld. Jimmie, as he is known among the underworld and the rich in the city, is a her-soldier who finds the owner murdered and the safe broken. In the course of the contained clues, Jimmie is knocked senseless and tied down to a room from him a mystery is slowly but convincingly unraveled. You will be quite interested in a bound and a key trap and why the girl Peggy picked him out. The third degree methods are resorted to and you are taken into a Chinese opium den in the solution of the Macabre mystery to be shown on the screen of the theatre on one of the weeks. Remember, Earle Williams and Dorothy Kelly have strong roles in this picture.

Picturized Drama of the Land of Midnight

The Land of Long Shadows (Clune Five-Reel Production)

A story of the frozen North. Such always plays because there are so few of us who have ever experimented in this latitude of the midnight sun. There is a tragic significance carried ever in the mention of the "midnight sun." The "Land of Long Shadows" presents life as it is lived by the Eskimos and the Joe Mauchins, a trapper and wife and a visit to Juneau which is "the last word" and the daughter of the settlers. He respects her fate, followed by Joe and the snow-covered regions a story that takes place upon this hallowed land, the story of the changing of the reality itself. The spirit of the Eskimoes that has been a snow-covered wilderness swept by an obsidian which is once a human being and are enacted in silence before your eyes and the trade might even though primitive instincts force the issue. Jack Gardner presents the part of Joe Mauchin and he is by far the strongest performer. Jack also discovers that she is not in the heart of the other one he finds, but is the hunter of reaching the others. He must make a condition of the land that he must be a weakling but before he is long where he meets one who appeals. Jimmy Gordon is the father to investigate an opal mine. He is a weakness, he becomes one of the large cities of this country. The star of many Broadway successes is at her best in this picture. The star of many Broadway successes is at her best in this picture. Margaret Illington's Second Successful Appearance on Screen in "The Inner Shrine" (Lasky-Paramount Five-Reel Production)

Margaret Illington is again with us on the screen in "The Inner Shrine," the adaptation from Bash King's "The Inner Shrine." A stage version of this novel was prepared by the well-known dramatic author, Channing Pollock. The story deals with a wealthy American girl who has an abnormal streak. You have never seen before in her. In Paris learns of her husband's unscrupulous character and habits, Hobart Bosworth has the chief supporting role of an explorer and student, who learns in his search to be the benefactor. He loves her but thinks himself too old to ask her to marry him. Part of the story is laid in the large woods, a scene in Paris, and in one of the large cities of this country. The star of many Broadway successes is at her best in this picture. Her screen version of that particular phase of life which is left to the imagination of the audience and tribulations. Miss Illington is a master of emotion and dramatic interpretation. In this picture, this gifted actress is now as well known on the screen as on the legitimate stage. She is to appear next at the Theatre on one of the weeks. You will regret your absence. The Greatest Power—"Ethel Barrymore's Greatest Talents Presented in Timely Story" (Metro Five-Reel Production)

"Ethel Barrymore's Greatest Talents" is a story known by heart. Her screen successes if not as now by actual count are fully as enjoyable and the name of Albert Le Vino is featured will be seen on the screen as on the legitimate stage. She is to appear next at the "The Greatest Power," the screen version of which has been adapted from the novel written by E. Wolheim by Albert Le Vino. Miss Barrymore has in this picture the greatest dramatic role, which gives her every opportunity to display her own inimitable talents. The Greatest Power offers her the greatest dramatic role, the role of a United States Secretary of War, and she accepts it with the greatest enthusiasm. It is designed to be a studio which is inimitable and Miss Barrymore has in this picture the greatest dramatic role and proves a success as a powerful explosive. The young chemist refuses, however, to have his invention used for purposes of war. Miss Barrymore is at her best in this picture. Margaret Illington appears next at the theatre on one of the weeks. You will regret your absence. The Greatest Power is an unusual story with an unusual star. William B. Davison country and makes a great success. Miss Barrymore, in "The Greatest Power," to be seen on the screen of the theatre on one of the weeks. The Greatest Power, "The Flame of Youth," one of the best of the new pictures will be seen at the theatre on one of the weeks. You will regret your absence.

Helen Holmes Surpasses All Other Attempts at Daring in "Railroad Raiders"

(Mutual Serial, Two Reels)

Helen Holmes' prodigies for daring feats need no publicity. She has unmistakably convinced the millions by her dauntless stunts before the camera. It seems that the field is unlimited and that each feat of daring surpasses the one or ones that have gone before. It may be said of her daring in "A League for Life," in the ninth chapter of the "Railroad Raiders" series, which will be seen at the theatre, that she surpasses all other attempts at daring. Racing in an automobile at top speed she is on the track of the "Raiders," who have stolen a valuable consignment of goods, which they have transferred from the freight car to a river barge. As she nears the dock the barge pulls out and the gap between it and the dock is leaped by Helen in the automobile. Both the machine and Helen land safely aboard and participating any move that she might make to recover the goods have placed a time fuse, which will set in action a charge of dynamite placed aboard the barge. The "Raiders" hail Helen and Roy Will-son aboard the barge. They shoot and wound Roy. Helen takes him aboard a raft and recovers her remaining strength. She then disposes of Helen with the wrecking of the barge.

The thrill of thrills will be seen at the theatre when Helen Holmes is seen.

"The Hidden Brand," Episode of "Double Cross" Mystery, a Marvel for Action

(Patria Serial, Two Reels)

The late chapter of the "Neglected Wife" series, leaves no doubt as to Kennedy's attitude toward his wife. Phillips and Margaret welds. Margaret, his wife, is to be seen at the theatre. There is something different to offer in the presentation of "The Dazzling Miss Davidson" at the theatre this week. Miss Ramsbeau will be seen in "The Dazzling Miss Davidson," a photodramatic adventure which is unlike anything you have ever seen. After the first reel, one wonders why a talent so precious as Miss Ramsbeau's has been overlooked. After the first reel, one wonders why a talent so precious as Miss Ramsbeau's has been overlooked. Miss Ramsbeau has the "something different" to offer in the presentation of "The Dazzling Miss Davidson" at the theatre.

Miss Ramsbeau has won success on the speaking stage. This is unquestionable. Like many another stage success, she has gathered up her talents to the screen, and with the same earnestness she was born to the world everything which has made her so popular on the speaking stage, she has not let down those who are familiar with her, or those who are not. Miss Ramsbeau has the "something different" to offer in the presentation of "The Dazzling Miss Davidson" at the theatre.

Miss Marjorie Rambeau has found time, however, to exact this most entrancing role of Eileen and will be seen at the theatre on the week in the five-part drama, "Blind Man's Luck."

When You See Ella Hall as "The Little Orphan"

(Bluebird Five-Reel Production)

Do you remember the little girl who presented "Polly Red Head," in a Bluebird production of that name? It isn't very long ago and still many have inquired of us when this little girl is to be seen again. We have no idea now, where the little one has occurred, but the fact remains that Miss Ella Hall has been engaged in "The Little Orphan," another Bluebird production. "The Little Orphan" is not in first class with ingenue leads. It is also well known for her characteristics of juvenile parts. Her role in "The Little Orphan" is engaging, of a homely quality which will touch a responsive note in the hearts of all. She typifies one of the thousands of Belgian children who have been left homeless by the ravages of war. If you have a little Belgian in your home you will appreciate every nod of Ella Hall's engaging, little blonde head. From the time of her arrival at Ellis Island until she becomes the wife of the man who adopted her she was led to be- lieve that she was a boy, Rene (Ella Hall), will command your undivided attention. Only an inkling of the interest aroused by this pictured drama of life is seen in these few lines. A book might be written and still the theme of this film could not be brought before your mind's eye with the same effectiveness and clarifying interest as "The Little Orphan" will do on the screen.

U-Boat Figures Prominently in New Bluebird

"Back to the Primitive," latest production for the Bluebird Program, from Lynn F. Reynolds' section of the West Coast hive of moving picture industry, arrived at headquarters in the Mecca Building last Thursday, and was shown to Bluebird executives. This picture marks the last appearance of Myrtle Gonzalez in the "nature study" pictures Director Reynolds purses, Nena Gerber having been assigned to leads in that company, starting with Alice Helen Rice's story, "Mr. Opp," now in process of production.

The Kaiser's U-boats figure in "Back to the Primitive" in important measures, causing the characters to be cast away on Santa Cruz Island, in the Pacific where they get back to nature and develop highly interesting possibilities of the "melting pot." Out of the mold is said to come comedy and exciting drama, with the usual liberal allowance of Lynn F. Reynolds' ideas of outdoor production.

"The Clean-Up," in which Franklyn Farnum and Brownie Vernon will appear early in August, has also been received from the Coast and shown to the jury in Bluebird's projection room. Rupert Julian's production of "My Mother," which Richard Barthelmess is to star, has arrived close to completion at Universal City, where Jack Conway is also taking the closing episodes in Ella Hall's next Bluebird, "Little Miss Fix-It."

Quick Sales on "The Fairy and the Waif"

E. W. Hammons, vice-president and general manager of the Educational Films Corporation of America, reports rapid sales of territory on "The Fairy and the Waif," a five-part picture, featuring Mary Miles Minter. After screening the picture, the following territory was quickly closed:

- Walter A. Baier Film Company, Milwaukee, Wis., for Minnesota and Wisconsin;
- Western Supply Company of Omaha, Neb., for Iowa and Nebraska;
- Educational and Children's Film Company, Kansas City, Mo., for Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma;
- Merle Film Company of Seattle, Wash., for Oregon and Washington;
- Eddy-Harris Feature Film Company of New York City, for Northern New Jersey.

Pathe Program Week of June 24

A Baby Marie Osborne-Gold Rooster play and the last episode of "Mystery of the Double Cross" are features of Pathe's Program for the week of June 14, 1917. The Gold Rooster play is, "When Baby Forgot," the first feature produced by Lasilda Films, Inc.

The seventh episode of "The Neglected Wife," with Ruth Roland, is said to lead to a thrilling crisis in which Mary Kennedy learns the identity of the other woman in the life of her husband.

The week brings the last episode of "Mystery of the Double Cross," produced by Astra, with Mollie King as star. In this chapter everything is finally solved.

Harry Meyers and Rosemary Theby appear in a comedy, and a release of the Combintone scénics is scheduled. An International cartoon and scenic split-reel release and Hearst-Pathe News, Nos. 52 and 53, complete the program.

Merit Will Determine Length of Paralta Plays

Under the contracts existing between Paralta Plays, Inc., and the Bessie Barriscate and J. Warren Kerrigan producing companies, the Paralta company will have control of the cutting and assembling of the films of each production, which will be only of such length as the dramatic merit of the story may warrant.

No effort will be made to produce a uniform number of feet in releases. If a story is worth but 4,200 feet it will be told in that length. If 8,500 to 9,000 feet are required, it will be given approximately nine reels. Laboring for specific footage will have no place in either the Barriscate or Kerrigan studios, which system it is believed will be met with favor.

The details of the productions made by each company will be under the guidance of Miss Barriscate or Mr. Kerrigan, the star, Robert T. Kane, vice-president of Paralta Plays, Inc., Robert Brunton, supervising art and technical director for each company, and the dramatic and photographic directors.

"The Maelstrom," a Vitagraph, for June 18
The theme of "The Maelstrom," Greater Vitagraph's Blue Ribbon release for the week of June 18, deals with the adventures of a wealthy red-blooded clubman. He is thrust into the turbulent midst of a band of international crooks and implicated in a mysterious murder, following in the wake of being accosted in a dense fog by a pretty stranger whose agitation appeals to his chivalrous instincts and prompts him to comply with her request to deliver a package of unknown contents which she thrusts into his hands. She then flees. The subsequent series of incidents are said to develop to a powerful climax.

Earle Williams has the leading role. Julia Swayne Gordon, Denton Vane, John Robertson, Gordon Gray and Bernard Seigel are in the supporting cast.

Interest Aroused in Film Bow of Olive Thomas
Olive Thomas will make her debut on the Triangle program as a full-fledged star on June 24, when Thomas H. Ince will present her in what he describes as a rollicking comedy of high spirits and novel situations, entitled "Mudcap Magee." On the same date Charles Ray will also make his appearance under Ince auspices in a comedy drama known as "The Clodhopper." Miss Thomas may be said to make her screen debut in a film describing the Pilgrim's Progress of an up-to-the-minute debutante.

Ray has the part of a raw country youth, who, from working as his father's hired man, makes a hit as a New York dancer in "The Maelstrom," a Vitagraph for June 18. The story was written by Willis Woods, the scenario by Karl Coolidge, and the production was made under the direction of Elmer Clifton, one of the new directors at Universal City.

Mulhall is seen in a role different from any he has hitherto portrayed, having the part of a happy-go-lucky shiftless son of a millionaire, whose escapades bring down upon him the wrath of his father.

In the cast supporting the star are Donna Drew, who is to play leading roles in Butterfly pictures and who was formerly known as Donna Moon; Ann Kroman, Hayward Mack and other well-known players.

"The Fire of Youth," will be presented Monday, June 18. On the same day will be released "Jilted in Jail," a Nestor comedy featuring Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts.

Jack Mulhall, juvenile star, is featured in the Butterfly five-act drama, "The Fire of Youth," which heads the Universal program for the week of June 18.

The feature for Tuesday, June 19, will be the Gold Seal three-act melodrama, "The Brand of Hate," starring Tina Marshall. This was directed by Edwin Stevens. The story hinges about a weird birthmark on the face of the heroine, which shows itself only when the girl is under tense emotions, and forms the basic idea for one of the most ingenious photoplays ever presented.

Pat Rooney, the eccentric comedian, is featured in the Victor comedy drama, "A Pirate Bold," the other Tuesday offering.

The chief offering for Wednesday, June 20, is the L-Ko two-act comedy, "Where Is My Child?" with Don Russell and Gladys Varden in the principal roles.

Other releases of this date are the L-Ko comedy, "Bartered Youth," with William Mong and Gretchen Lederer, and the regular issue of the Universal Animated Weekly, with all the latest news in pictorial form.

"Helen Grayson's Strategy," a two-act society drama, will be presented under the Rex brand on Thursday, June 21st. Irene Hunt, Malcolm Blevins and L. C. Shumway play the leading roles. Ruth Stonehouse in the Victor comedy, "Puppy Love," is another release of this date.

"She Married Her Husband," a two-reel Victor comedy drama, featuring Matt Moore and June Gall, is the leading release of Friday, June 22. Issue No. 24 of the Universal Screen Magazine will also appear on this date.

For Saturday, June 23, the Bison two-act Western drama, "Lone Larry," is the feature offering. Issue No. 6 of Universal Current Events and the Joker comedy, "A Burglar's Bride," with Gale Henry and Jack Dill are other releases of this date.

On Sunday, June 24, the releases are the Powers split reel, "Young Nick Carter, Detective," a comedy cartoon, and China's Wonderland, a Dorsay Educational, and the Big U drama, "The Two-Gun Parson," featuring W. C. Dowlan.

During the week the fifteenth episode of "The Voice on the Wire," will be released.

Next Black Cat Release
General Film announces "The Rainbow Box" as the next of its Black Cat comedy dramas in two reels.

Marguerite Clayton and Roderick La Rock are in principal roles. Miss Clayton as a clerk in a modest shop poses as a millionaire's daughter to win Wesley Jamieson, an apparent heir to riches. By the time she discovers that he is in circumstances as moderate as her own she has taken a more wholesome view of life and weds him for his intrinsic worth. This film is said to carry many pleasing phases of every day life.

But Two King-Bees a Month
There has been a persistent rumor that King-Bees is to release one comedy a week. Louis Burstein, president and general manager of the company, scorches the rumor with the remark that at present two a month is to be the output.

This should put at rest all rumors to the contrary for the present at least.
Marjorie Rambeau and Jackie Saunders on Mutual Schedule

TWO Mutual star productions top the list of releases for the week of June 18—"The Dazzling Miss Davison," featuring Marjorie Rambeau and "A Bit of Kindling," in which Jackie Saunders plays the lead.

"A Desperate Deed" is the fourteenth chapter of "The Railroad Raiders," scheduled for June 18. Helen Holmes manages to escape from the box car which is sinking in the water. She jumps from the top of the pilot house of a barge and catches the beam of a jack-knife bridge just as the bridge starts to open. She climbs hand over hand up the side of the structure while it is standing straight up in the air, then jumps from the bridge onto the top of a speeding freight car underneath.

The fourteenth chapter of the "Jimmy Dale, Alias the Grey Seal" series, ready June 22, is "A Sheep Among Wolves." The story shows the underworld maddened by the Grey Seal, trying to capture that gentleman criminal and apprehend him while committing some crime.

"Tillie of the Nine Lives" is the La Salle Comedy released June 19. A small pig plays one of the principal roles in this comedy and serves as a messenger who brings help to Tillie, who is held in the power of a seeress.

Jealousy Is Basic Theme of Virginia Pearson Picture

A story of love and jealousy in which the intrigues of international spies furnish the complications, makes "Wrath of Love," Virginia Pearson's newest production, of timely interest. The war theme is paramount in this drama of today.

The picture will be released on the William Fox Program for the week of June 17. Irving Cummings appears opposite Miss Pearson, and the rest of the cast includes Louise Bate, Nellie Stalatty, Frank Glendon and John McCann. Mary Murillo wrote the script.

Miss Pearson has the role of Roma Winet, author of a famous novel, "Jealousy." Although suffering from that very passion she lives happily with Bob Lawson, whom she has just married. When war comes, she grows violently jealous of Ethel Clark, once her dearest friend. Ethel has been left in Bob's care by Dave Blake, his chum, who leaves to enter his country's service.

Many complications ensue, and finally misunderstandings between Bob and Roma are brushed away, and the woman is freed from her one besetting sin of jealousy.

Picture Studio Shown in New La Salle Comedy

The atmosphere of a motion picture studio enforces the LaSalle comedy, "His Cannibal Wife," which will be released through Mutual on June 11. There are scenes showing studio life, the scene sets, the taking of pictures and the actors and "extras." The picture reveals the humiliations which Otto has to bear because his wife is star of the company while he is only an "extra," due to the wide class distinction in a studio between the head of the company and the player who just fills in now and then.

Otto decides to show these scoffers that he is somebody after all and invents a highly colored story of his bravery on a cannibal island. He immediately becomes important, not because of his described heroism, but because he has outlined a splendid scenario for the use of the company.

Three of Art Dramas Stars in Four Releases of the Month

In the four releases for June, Art Dramas claim to offer a program of unusual variety. Jean Sothern, Marian Swayne and Alma Hanlon are featured in the subjects.

From the Van Dyke Studios comes "The Upper Crust," with Gail Kane (Left); Director Sorman Rehearsing Ball Room Scene in "Weakness of the Strong," with William Russell (Right)
Novelties in Production of "The Lifted Veil"

Hoffman’s great painting of “Mary Magdalene Being Brought Before Christ” is reproduced by living players in Ethel Barrymore’s forthcoming Metro production, “The Lifted Veil,” a screen version of Basil King’s popular novel.

Edna Holland, daughter of E. M. Holland, was chosen for the part of Mary Magdalene. The part of Christ is taken by Bernard Niemeyer. “Type” parts are played by Fred Hearn, Edward Elkus, Jack De Lacy and W. H. Wise. The scribes and Pharisees are portrayed by people totally new to the screen, chosen because their appearance was ideal for the picture. Many of them, from the southernmost portions of New York City, spoke only Yiddish, and could not understand the instructions of the organ, “The Open Door.”

U. S. Regulars in Ann Pennington’s Support

The military atmosphere in “The Little Boy Scout,” in which Ann Pennington will be starred in Paramount pictures by the Famous Players, will be nothing, if not absolutely spectacular. In addition to employing Troop No. 18 of the Boy Scouts for those portions of the picture in which the Boy Scouts are required, Director Francis J. Grandon also succeeded in enlisting the services of the U. S. Regulars stationed at Fort Totten, for those parts of the story which deal with the Mexican border.

The story concerns in part the flight of a little American girl over the Mexican border in her efforts to escape her Mexican guardian. The publication gets its name from the recent announcement made by Mr. Selznick that henceforth both doors of his organization were open to all comers.

Manager Alternates O. Henrys Between Two Houses

The O. Henry series on the General Program are to be shown alternately at the two Miller theatres, Los Angeles. Manager Fred Miller first contracted for their use at the Alhambra theatre, but they proved to be such a drawing card that he decided to alternate them between his two houses, Miller’s on Main street, being the larger of the two where Fox films are shown first run. "The Service of Love," which was shown at the Alhambra last week, was acclaimed by all local newspaper critics as the greatest two-reel picture brought to Los Angeles, and Maitland Davies, in the Tribune, devoted a column to reviewing the subject, devoting all that space to the O. Henry film, with but a casual mention of the five-reel subject being shown.

Sunday Closing Not Effective in Some Michigan Towns

A recent occurrence at the Star theatre, Belding, Mich., would appear to show that a moving picture manager’s support of the Sunday closing law does not impress the O. Henry films. Manager W. H. Cree, of the General Films branch, has the O. Henry series booked in eight-five per cent of the Arizona towns, and solid bookings for more than two months. Manager R. E. Hicks, of the Cabrillo, at San Diego, first contracted for the pictures for three days, and then extended the booking to one week for each.

Japanese Sea Warriors See U. C. Workings

Universal City surrendered to a force of Japanese one day last week and the motion picture municipality was in their hands for several hours. The invasion, which was peaceful and pleasant in every respect, followed the arrival at Port Los Angeles of Admiral Toshitake Iwamura and his training squadron, composed of the cruisers Yakumo and Tokiwa, and was the result of a special invitation from President Carl Laemmle, of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, to view the sights of the capital of filmdom.

Admiral Iwamura was accompanied by Captain S. Saito, of the Yakumo; Ujiro Gyama, Consul at Los Angeles, Cal.; Captain N. Taniguchi, of the Tokiwa; Engineer Captain G. Shigemura, Lieutenant Y. Suzuki, Lieutenant I. Sato and Y. Hirai, president of the Japanese Association of Southern California.
Universal Screen Magazine Important Educational Factor

"I HAVE been closely following developments in the motion picture world for a number of years, and I have run across no single medium which is doing more and which gives greater promise of doing more in the way of educating and quickening the intelligence and arousing the spirit of patriotism among the public than your Universal Screen Magazine," wrote Dr. John Forbes, noted educator and former vice-president of the American Educational Association, the other day to Jack Cobin, editor of the Universal Screen Magazine.

Mr. Cobin's idea from the first has been to make it a superfine educational and informative reel, and he has spared no pains in his efforts to do so. He has recently made additions to his already large force of cameramen who are scouring the country for subjects which will measure up to the high standard which the magazine has maintained to date.

In the current issue a picture taken at the New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, shows a corn germination test—a test which infallibly determines the fertility and sterility of corn, and which, if adopted generally by gardeners and farmers, would mean the saving of millions of bushels of corn every year.

The work being conducted at the "Institute for the Improved Instruction of Deaf-Mutes" constitutes an unusually vivid and interesting feature of this issue. Other features which add notably to the interest and informative value of the issue are "The Manufacture of Ice Cream," "The Making of Armor-Pate," and last but not least—another epic in clay by the inimitable Willie Hopkins, entitled, "The Spirit of Seventy-six."

Proves Public Demand for Combiotones—Texas Pictured

At Bryan, where the Texas State Agricultural and Mechanical College is located, the local exhibitor was made to realize a strong demand for these pictures. In San Antonio the afternoon paper demanded editorially that the Superintendent of Schools announce these pictures and urge the children to see them. Members of the Chamber of Commerce, and an open discussion resulted in tremendous endorsement of these "educational."

Recent releases of the Pathe-Combibonc pictures have been devoted to Texas, the largest state in the Union. Scenes also would give a decidedly misleading opinion of the state. The Combibone pictures, however, showing as they do every phase of a section, its leading industries, its main scenic features, its chief buildings, its historical places and its people, show Texas as a leader not merely in size but in stock raising and agriculture.

"Southwestern Texas," released June 17, is pictured on many of the huge onion farms, said to be the largest in the world. Among other subjects various ranches are shown, some of which contain as many acres as small European principalities.

In "Cattle-Raising in Texas," released June 24, one sees clearly the difference between the old days of "riding the range" and today, where sleek cattle are grazed behind stout fences. Among the interesting subjects covered in this issue are the new kind of beef cattle, a cross between the Indian zebu and the native Texas cattle, the advantage being the immunity of the cross breeds from certain diseases. Huge herds of Angora goats, valuable for their mohair, are also pictured. These Pathe-Combibone pictures are attracting much favorable notice.

U. Current Events No. 4 Timely

The bringing home of Ambassador Guthrie's body on a Japanese battleship; "Sea Spiders," fast submarine chasers; Carlisle Indians on military review; women replacing men for war duty in Erie, Pa., railroad shops, operating lathes, planers, even giant steam hammers; women working in the fields at Surrey, England; English final honors to a war victim in impressive naval funeral; New York City's novel recruiting station, in the form of a dummy battleship located in Union Square and Memorial Day observances in honor of our veterans of the past are the timely war subjects in Universal Current Events, Issue No. 4. Supplementing these is general news, including scenes of a Western tornado, baptising 150 Southern darkies at Dumville's Pond, Suffolk, Va., and a parade of fifty thousand public school athletes in New York City.

Universal Animated Weekly issued in the same week contains a variety of interesting news topics.

Pathe News Covers War Zone

Two releases weekly of the Hearst-Pathe News give a very comprehensive resume of world-wide happenings, including invariably some timely views "somewhere in France" or on the battle fronts. A recent issue showed the awful devastation left by the Germans in their retreat. Even the beautiful Cathedral of Soissons was not spared by this ravaging horde of German militarists.
Selig World Library Featured in Southern California

SELIG WORLD LIBRARY is being booked by many Southern California exhibitors, who, after seeing the first few releases, acclaim the series a distinct novelty that will add desired variety to their programs. The Symphony theatre, the downtown first run Metro house, will show the World Library, and plan to make it a featured part of their program.

Issue No. 4, released in General Film service on Wednesday, June 4, presents a number of interesting and educational scenes. The cliff dwellers of New Mexico, who built ancient communal dwellings which were veritable fortresses. One of these circular rooms contains 127 cell-like rooms and afforded shelter to about 1,500 people.

Worth While Pictures from Gaumont

GAUMONT signals the last week in June by releasing three important specialties through Mutual. The first one to reach the screen is "Tours Around the World." The reel is divided between Naples, Italy, and Buenos Aires, Argentina. Both cities are well presented. Both have in unusual measure that charm which is associated with foreign lands and alien peoples. Since there are so many Italians in America, and we are following with such interest that nation's war activities, the Naples views will prove exceedingly popular.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

In the eighteenth century whale fishing was one of the most important of industries. While its importance has declined, owing to the use of substitutes for whale oil and whale bone, and the primitive hand harpoon has given way to modern methods with a sail and motor gun, whales are still valuable for their oil. The teeth were once our chief source of ivory.

A peep into jungleland shows Oswald, aged 250 summers and as many winters, partaking of 55 pounds of beef. Oswald is thirty-two feet in length. The above will give one an idea of the interesting pictorials presented in the Selig World Library, and these are but a few of the many interesting and instructive subjects treated.

Carl iteration of the series on "Unmasking the Mediums." "Scientific Stock Breeding" and "On Duty with the Coast Guard" furnish a varied interest that marks this release as one of exceptional interest.

Ditmars "Living Book of Nature" and Other Important "Shorts"

In catering to the new taste for pictures primarily designed to appeal to the intellectual and thinking persons in the audience, Educational Films Corporation has an ever increasing library of short subjects. Foremost in their list is the Ditmars "Living Book of Nature," pictures by Professor Ditmars, curator of the Bronx, New York, zoo, showing animals of all kinds and characters showing their places in a most marvelous manner. Nothing, from the monkey close to human to the petly fly, but is made an interesting "nature study" appealing to old and young alike. For who does not love animals and their antics?

The Robert Bruce series of adventure travels is different from any other "scenario" on our screens. Mr. Bruce in a way quite his own, makes us see what he sees, and feel what he feels, in globetrotting to find the out-of-the-way places that are even dangerous to get to, and marvelously photographed. The titling of these subjects is unique and makes anyone seeing a single one of them want to get further acquainted with Mr. Bruce and his exciting expeditions into wild places.

"Alaska Wonders in Motion" and Ditmars from Educational

The first two weekly releases of "Alaska Wonders in Motion," the work of Al I. Smith, have shown interesting phases of Esquima life and the breaking off of glaciers, awe-inspiring "slides," that the cameraman has caught at very close range. These intimate views of a country so interesting, yet so little known to fellow countrymen, will doubtless have a place on every program.

"Worth While Pictures from Gaumont Last Week in June"

As It Was in the Beginning." "Launching a Lifeboat" is also shown.

Earl Hurd Contributes a Bray-Pictograph

Of first interest in the seventy-second release of Paramount-Bray-Pictograph is the animated cartoon, "Bobby Bumps' Submarine Chaser," from the pen of Earl Hurd, whose work appearing on the Paramount program has met with such favorable comment.

Bobby and his indispensable pup read that Uncle Sam needs submarine chasers, and, since they have been trying for some time to aid their country, determine to make one. By careful planning and some strategy they get the washtub from the colored washwoman and, rigging it up with a sail and rudder, set out on the briny deep. While they are pursuing a submarine the dusky damsel pursues them, and a great time follows. The submarine is captured, but the victory counts for little when Dinah appears and rescues her precious tub.

In the magazine section, the second issue of the series on "Unmasking the Mediums," "Scientific Stock Breeding" and "On Duty with the Coast Guard" furnish a varied interest that marks this release as one of exceptional interest.

The titling of these subjects is unique and makes anyone seeing a single one of them want to get further acquainted with Mr. Bruce and his exciting expeditions into wild places.

The weekly Ditmars "Living Book of Nature" series is another "different" sort of specialty which has an exclusive market, for none but Mr. Ditmars could think of furnishing so comprehensive a view of animal life. This week the methods of "Transporting Wild Animals" are illustrated by showing the coming and going of all sorts, from the most carefully handled giraffe to mud turtles shipped in sacks like potatoes. Mr. Ditmars has been associated with New York's famous zoo for seventeen years.
"Star Spangled Banner" in Wide Demand

Klein-Edison-Selig-Essanay announce that interest bordering on extraordinary is shown by exhibitors in "The Star Spangled Banner," the three-reel Edison production based on a story of life in the U. S. Marine Corps.

A regiment of marines assisted in taking this picture. "The Star Spangled Banner" is a story in which a young man, born in America but educated abroad, permits his environment to influence him to such an extent that he almost forgets that he is an American, but when the crucial moment arrives his Americanism asserts itself, and he is ready to go to the trenches with his father, a commandant in the U. S. Marine Corps.

Mutual Well Represented

"Trip Thru China" at Alhambra

"A Trip Thru China" opened Monday at Keith's Alhambra theatre for one week, following its engagement at the Eltinge theatre, which closed Sunday night.

"China Preparing" is a section of the picture that will have a number of additions in view of the fact that China is now daily expected to enter the world war with the Allies.

"Garden of Allah" Warmly Received in Cleveland

"The Garden of Allah," William N. Selig's production, which opened last week at the Hippodrome, Cleveland, Ohio, was accorded a most enthusiastic reception.

Leon D. Netter, head of the Masterpiece Film Attractions, which concern controls the production for the state of Ohio, indicated, in presenting this feature, that he is keenly alive to the necessity for introducing new ideas in exploiting feature photoplays.

Prior to the opening of the picture at the Hippodrome, Mr. Netter arranged a caravan procession through the streets of Cleveland, made up of camels, bearing Oriental maidens, Arabs, etc.

Netter's original ideas were carried into the theatre which was surrounded with the atmosphere of the Orient, in keeping with the settings of the production. A special stage setting was arranged, showing the sun rising over the calm desert and revealing the caravan slowly moving across a level stretch of sand.

Demand for Selznick Films

Lewis J. Selznick's New York exchange reports an unusually active demand for "The Deemster." This photodramatic version of the famous novel by Hall Caine has introduced to American audiences a new matinee hero, in the person of Mr. Caine's son, Derwent Hall Caine, who plays the leading role in the picture.

In addition to the regular run of Selznick-Pictures, the same exchange is also handling "Enlighten Thy Daughter," "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," "Even as You and I," and for September release, "The Whip."

Contract with Big Theatre

The distinction of placing their product exclusively in a big theatre has again been achieved by Vitagraph in the Colonial theatre for seven days per week. The contract calls for features, comedies and specials.

All Vitagraph productions are now receiving their Chicago premieres at the big Ziegfeld theatre, where they play a solid week.

Compliment to Washburn

Breaking an iron-clad rule, the Castle theatre, of Chicago, laid aside its regular program to make room for a pre-release week's run of the latest Essanay-Washburn feature, "Filling His Own Shoes."

This was done purely out of deference to Washburn and his new vehicle, which has already been proclaimed a winner.

Twenty-five Out of Thirty Theatres Take Pathes

Out of thirty theatres in Omaha and suburbs, all but five take Pathé films. This is said by the exhibitors, not only to the efficiency of the local offices and the service given, but to the results of strong Pathé advertisements in the newspapers and the general high trend of subjects released.

Alice Howell Comedies Are Making Good

The favor with which Alice Howell's productions, in the Century comedy series, are reported to have been received by exhibitors and their public, has given early proof of the wisdom J. G. Blystone and Julius Stern displayed in selecting a brand of comedies in which she may come in competition with comedians of the screen.

Miss Howell's newest comedy venture is entitled, "Alice of the Sawdust," a circus merry-maker intended as the fourth release in the Century series. "Balloonicats," "Automaniacs" and "Neptune's Naughty Daughter" are in process of distribution through buyers of state rights.

Century comedies have the benefit of Mr. Blystone's personal direction for every issue, an advantage that is obvious for the reason that he has directed Miss Howell in other comedies for several seasons, and is well versed in her peculiar specialties along this line.

Julius Stern, president of the corporation, is making deals with state right buyers at his office in the Mecca Building, New York.
Elaborate Exploitation for "Garden of Allah"

Selig Announces a Wide Publicity Campaign in Trade Journals to Aid State Right Buyers—Production Said to Be Most Pretentious

INSTITUTION of a trade journal exploitation campaign with the intent of making "The Garden of Allah" one of the most popular and profitable of state right propositions, is announced by the Selig Company.

The production is reported selling on sight, according to the Selig Company, which announces recent sales as follows: California, Nevada and Arizona to Sol Lesser, All-Star Features; Distributors, Inc., San Francisco, Cal.; Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana to M. Rosenberg, De Luxe Feature Film Co., Seattle, Wash.; Indiana and Kentucky to Robert Lieber, Indianapolis, Ind.; New Jersey to J. Frank Hatch, Newark, N. J.; Ohio to Leon Netter, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota to Jack Elliott, Minneapolis, Minn.; Illinois and Michigan to Edmund Allen Film Corp., Chicago; to E. R. Haas, Harry E. Christie Co., Washington, D. C., Maryland, District of Columbia, Delaware, Virginia and North Carolina.

The Selig Company believes that as soon as the exploitation campaign is inaugurated that "The Garden of Allah" will go even more quickly than did "Beware of Strangers," which is said to have broken records in the states rights field.

"The Garden of Allah" has not as yet been extensively shown in theatres but the few presentations are said to portend a big success.

Robert Lieber opened at the Century theatre, Indianapolis, and declared he broke all previous records for a week's business.

Leon D. Netter opened at the Hippodrome, Cleveland, two weeks ago. The result was packed houses at a dollar top and an entire page review in the Sunday edition of the Cleveland Leader while the other newspapers were unanimous in their opinion that "The Garden of Allah" is a striking feature film.

Similar experiences are reported from other houses.

"The Garden of Allah" was produced by Colin Campbell under personal direction of William N. Selig. It is said there is not a scene introduced that is not be found in Robert Hichens' book. Helen Ware enacts the leading role and is supported by Thomas Santischi, Eugenie Beser, Harry Lonsdale, Matt B. Snyder, Frank Clark, Cecil Holland, James Bradbury, Al W. Wilson.

The Selig Company says five thousand people have been brought into service in some of the ensembles, among them hundreds of Arabs.

The production is in nine reels and many exciting scenes are promised. A full line of publicity aids will be provided the exhibitor.

TO THE EXHIBITOR:

1. Often you are at a loss to know just who handles a state rights picture in your section—because of the lack of advertising that generally follows the disposal of territory.
2. We have this information for you, complete and ready.
3. Drop us a postal; and by return mail we will give you the buyer's name and address, our review, the cost, and other valuable and up-to-the-minute information. For the name of any state rights picture refer to our release page—"State Rights Releases—Current and Coming."

Blumenthal Starts "Perpetual Trade Show"

As a radical departure from the "trade show" system of introducing films when ready for the market, comes the announcement of a different method from Ben Blumenthal, head of the Export and Import Film Company, exploiting "Robespierre" and "Ivan, the Terrible." Instead of hiring a theatre for one auspicious show, the concern has rented permanently half the tenth floor of the Godfrey building, which includes an artistically designed projection room.

"My reason," says Mr. Blumenthal, "is that it is not always possible for some of the buyers to attend a public trade showing. Under my arrangements, there is no need for a man to inconvenience himself about it. The room is always ready, and "Robespierre" and "Ivan, the Terrible" can be seen at any hour of the day—or night, too. While I realize that there is an advantage in showing a picture with music and full theatre effects, I am satisfied that film men have vivid enough imaginations; these two productions are sufficiently impressive."

High Prices Asked Deterring Michigan Purchasers

Quite a number of representatives of state rights pictures have been in Detroit for the past ten days endeavoring to find buyers. As a number of representatives of state rights pictures have been in Detroit for the past ten days endeavoring to find buyers—oftentimes it is impossible to get big prices and long runs in Michigan, excepting at Detroit, because of the number of small cities throughout the state and the number of so-called "poor show towns." When prices for state rights come down to where the buyer can make a profit, there will be no difficulty in finding "takers" in Michigan.

Mo-Toy Comedies Scoring in Many Sections

Reports from many sections of the country show that an unusually popular reception is being accorded the Mo-Toy novelty comedies being distributed by the Peter Pan Film Corporation.

M. R. Dick, handling North and South Dakota and Minnesota from his Minneapolis office has just ordered two more prints on each of the Mo-Toy subjects. Harry Charnas, of the Standard Film Service, of Cleveland, also reports a booming business.

C. R. Coulter, representing the Peter Pan Corporation, has just closed with Aloma, of Denver, Colo., for the territory including Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico.

"Bar Sinister" Booked Indefinitely in Pittsburgh

As a fitting introduction of "The Bar Sinister" to Pennsylvania audiences, Edgar Lewis' picture will be given a special run at the Pitt theatre, in Pittsburgh, opening for, an indefinite period beginning June 17. The feature will be presented with the same stage mounting seen during its present New York run at the Broadway.

In spite of the fact that "The Bar Sinister" is an original photodrama, with no star, no play or no book to add interest to its presentation, it is strong drawing card from a box office standpoint because of its universal appeal and entertainment value.

Purchase Big Pictures

The Preferred Feature Film Company, 94 Griswold street, Detroit, has purchased the Michigan rights to "The End of the World," a six-reel feature made by the Great Northern Feature Film Company.

Warren and Palley, Campau building, Detroit, who control the Billy West comedies for Michigan, have purchased the state rights to "The Woman and the Beast."
Sixteen States Are Closed on "The Fairy and the Waif"

W. HAMMONS, vice president and general manager of the Educational Films Corporation of America, reports that business has been most active in the state rights market. During the past ten days they have closed territories with twelve independent state rights buyers. Although only a brief announcement was sent in the trade papers on their feature picture, "The Fairy and the Waif," featuring Mary Miles Minter, the following territories were rapidly disposed of: Waller A. Hallis Company, Milwaukee, Wis., for Minnesota and Wisconsin; Western Supply Company, Omaha, Neb., for Iowa and Nebraska; Educational and Children's Film Company, Kansas City, for Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma; M. A. Reed, Mark Film Company, of Seattle, for Oregon and Washington; Eskay-Harris Feature Film Company, New York, for Northern New Jersey; Exhibitors Film Exchange, Inc., of Washington, D. C., for Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia; Reliable Feature Film Company, of Chicago, for Illinois and Indiana.

In addition to the sixteen states closed on "The Fairy and the Waif," Mr. Hammond also closed some territory on the regular weekly releases of their educational, scenic and Dimars Animal Pictures, the latter of which has had a record breaking run at the Strand theatre, Broadway, New York.

On the Dimars pictures, the following territory was closed: The American Maid Film Company, of Minneapolis, Minn., for Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota; the H. Liester Company, of Indianapolis, secured the state of Indiana; Metro Pictures Service, Inc., of Chicago, for the state of Illinois. The Exhibitors Film Exchange, of Washington, D. C., have secured the state rights on Dimars Seccies, Educational, also the "Fairy and the Waif," for the territory of District of Columbia, Maryland, North Carolina and Virginia.

King-Bee Executive Speaks in Favor of Deposit System

NAT H. SPITZER, vice-president and sales manager of the King-Bee Films Corporation, last week expressed his faith in the deposit system. "The system is not of itself bad, so why should it be barred as a business proposition?" said Mr. Spitzer.

"Deposits are quite common in the marketing or leasing of goods. For example, suppose you hire a piano, a sewing machine, or some article in common use, or lease a house or apartment, a deposit is usually asked for and returned when the transaction is completed, or considered part payment. It is requested and accepted as evidence of good faith.

"The exhibitor in good standing will not refuse a deposit. He pays it as evidence of his financial stability. If he refuses to do so it is probably because he is not strong enough in the financial sense. So the plan sounds commercial principles to recommend it. I think when I offer films for lease and demand and receive a deposit I have confidence in the men who meet my demand. Confidence is a valuable commercial asset. The deposit is like a bond between myself and the man with whom I am doing business. It literally binds us to one another for mutual advantage."

"I don't believe in asking a state rights man or an exhibitor to tie up a lot of money in deposits, or, in my words, to finance my business. I know this sort of thing has been done. Then it becomes a one-sided proposition. This is not what I have in mind when I criticize the condemnation of the deposit system which I have recently seen published."

United Offers "Woman and Beast" in South

Southern rights for the Marie Shotwell feature "The Woman and the Beast" have recently been secured by R. M. Savini, general manager of the United Film Service. The territory comprises North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee. An advertising campaign directed from the offices in Atlanta and New Orleans will be set under way at once.

MacMahan and Jackson Forces Busy

The MacMahan and Jackson Film Company, with offices in Cincinnati, has five road men busy and reports that business is improving constantly. "Purity," with Audrey Munson, is especially strong. This feature opened at the Broadway theatre, Columbus, on June 3, for a fifteen day run.

Included in the list of hustlers for the MacMahan and Jackson productions are John Finkess, T. M. Crowe, R. R. Ivice, H. Olhaber and Basil Cowan.

Rush of Business Causes Move

Because of the increase in business since taking over the "Mutt and Jeff" enterprise, Bud Fisher is forced to move his offices to more spacious quarters. He will make his new headquarters on the eleventh floor of the Godfrey Building, where an entire suite is being prepared for him.

REAL SERVICE—REAL APPRECIATION

I certainly must commend the spirit of co-operation being manifested by your State Rights Department. Such real pep is going to make your department the winner in short order.

Territorial Divisions Declared in Shifting State

CO-OPERATION IS ALL WE NEED!

Motion Picture News is certainly attempting a big task in seeking to properly district the State rights territories. You can rest assured that we will do all we can to co-operate with you.

G. L. Smith,
Independent Film and Theatre Supply Co., Montreal, Canada.

Ohio is logically divided according to the consensus of opinion—in northern Ohio as one territorial division and the most profitable one from a booking standpoint; in Western Ohio, in Kentucky as another. This seems to be the method of operation toward which exchanges are drifting. Detroit, Michigan, being my next stop, will remain as herefore.

The exchanges in the larger cities have abandoned the idea of grabbing as much territory as the producer will stand for without a raise of price, and realize that confining their endeavors to such territory as will permit of their filling bookings without losing more than ten hours in shipping will reduce their overhead, keep their prints working without an unnecessary loss of time with a corresponding larger quick return.

The Exchange men I have interviewed are all of one voice in the praise the Motion Picture News for hammering away at a settlement of the perplexing situations that confront the State rights buyer as well as the State rights manufacturer and feel that this subject of territorial subdivision is the only thing definitely settled through Motion Picture News propaganda, the time and efforts spent will be worth while.

“Hate” Director Veteran in Picture Field

Walter Richard Stahl, who joined the forces of the Fairmount Film Corporation to direct the filming of “Hate,” a seven-reel problem drama based on prenatal influence, is well known in picture circles as having directed a number of notable productions. Mr. Stahl might be considered as one of the pioneers of the industry, even though he is young in years. He began his career seven years ago in New York directing a number of immensely successful one-reelers. Later he became known for his work in the producing of “Helen of Troy,” which was one of the first pictures of greater than one reel length put on a program.

Mr. Stahl is offering “Hate” to state right buyers from his headquarters in the Candler building, New York.

First Superlative Film Product in Making

Irving Cummings and his own company, included in the cast of which are Ruth Sinclair, Arthur Morrison, Roy Applegate, William Cooper, Marie Martin and Baby Thelma, are now hard at work at Port Henry, N. Y., on the first feature to be released by Superlative Pictures Corporation, the title of which at the present writing is sub-rosa.

Austin O. Huhn has been selected by Irving Cummings as director. Lewis E. Taylor is cameraman, assisted by McKenzie. The business details are being looked after by Arthur Blumenkohn.
"Christus" Ends Broadway Run—Southern Booking Arranged

BEFORE the Broadway run of "Christus" had terminated, on Sunday last, it was announced that the picturization of the Christ-drama had been booked for an early fall engagement of several weeks duration in the leading theatre of one of the large Southern cities.

Meanwhile inquiries have come in from all sections of the country, to Historic Features, Inc., owners of the American rights, regarding "Christus." A special trade showing, given at the Criterion theatre on Friday morning last, was attended by several hundred right buyers, exhibitors, from New York and many near-by cities, and others connected with the industry.

During the run of nearly 100 performances at the Criterion, the same facts regarding "Christus" were brought out as were said to have evidenced themselves in the presentations at Rome, Paris and Madrid, before the production was brought to this country—that this feature makes its appeal alike to people of all religious sects, and to those of no particular religious leaning. Comment was repeatedly made, in letters received by the management, that apart from its religious value, its artistic, dramatic, historical and educational aspects are such as to make it of value and interest to every patron of the silent drama.

A noteworthy feature of the New York engagement was the attendance of a great number of parties of children and young people, ranging in number from 25 to 100, brought by school and Sunday school teachers, that they might witness in its most graphic form the greatest spiritual event of all times.

Big Exploitation Campaign on for "Mutt and Jeff" Pictures

NEGOTIATIONS are well under way for a general publicity campaign on the "Mutt and Jeff" animated cartoon comedies. Bud Fisher, who now controls the distribution as well as the production departments of the "Mutt and Jeff" enterprise, is personally arranging all the advertising matter pertaining to his product.

Fisher, long experienced in all branches of publicity, has taken up this work with a zest, and from past performances nobody will have cause to doubt results.

Before acquiring the reputation as a cartoonist that he at present holds, Fisher was associated with many advertising propositions of national scope. The big shot in his advertising artillery will be the "paper" that will circulate with each release. The artistic touch that has become connected for "Mutt and Jeff" Pictures with his name will be an outstanding feature in all sheets distributed from the "Mutt and Jeff" Exchanges.

"In my mind," Fisher stated, "the next important thing to the picture itself is the 'paper' that is gotten out with it. Just running a reel isn't all the exhibitor has to do. Before he undertakes to show a picture, his deepest concern is proper advertising, and in order to co-operate with the exhibitor, I feel duty bound to inject a pictorial flash of my 'Mutt and Jeff' cartoons in all publicity material. Years of effort and energy have been consumed in popularizing these drawings, and I want to assure all exhibitors that they will derive the benefit of the 'Mutt and Jeff' popularity not only in their comedies, but also in every advertising item allied with them."

Japanese Serial to Be Known as "Film-Trip"

"Film-Trip" is a new word, coined to describe the serial release of the America-Japan Pictures Company, 15 William street, who are now preparing their ten-episode serial, "The Land of the Rising Sun," for state-righting. To avoid confusion with the regular "scenics" or "travel-pictures," the title "Film-Trip" was suggested as most descriptive. The series, which is now being shown at the Rialto theatre, will be released at the rate of one reel each week, and will be in consecutive order, with advertising features to cover the entire ten weeks' showing.

Japanese ideas will be carried through all the advertising, which will include typically Japanese banners, to which are being added advertising placards in the style of Japan. The "Night at a Japanese Inn" and "A Japanese Wedding" are included in the series.

Officials Favor "How Uncle Sam Prepares"

Government officials in Washington are interested in the Hanover Film Company's production "How Uncle Sam Prepares," judging from a letter received from Francis Holley of the Bureau of Commercial Economics.

In his letter Mr. Holley states he would like to have the Hanover company present their feature in Washington to Government officials and members of the House and Senate. The Hanover company immediately offered to do this, and are in receipt of a second letter from Mr. Holley commending the production.

Billy West as a Bad Man

King Bee's fifth comedy, which will be distributed in July, bears the title of "The Villain." Billy West will be seen as a real honest-to-goodness villain. The picture is in the cutting room. Babe Hardy, Leo White, Bud Ross are in the cast.
Klotz and Streimer Offer Their First Picture

"Whither Thou Goest," a modern drama, featuring Orrin Johnson and Rhea Mitchell, will be ready for release in July. Billy West, Ethel Burton, Babe Hardy, Leo White, Bud Ross and Ethlyn Gibson contribute to the fun, which revolves around the troubles of a janitor who masquerades as an artist.

"The Artist," a King-Bee

King-Bee's fourth comedy, "The Artist," will be ready for release in July. Billy West, Ethel Burton, Babe Hardy, Leo White, Bud Ross and Ethlyn Gibson contribute to the fun, which revolves around the troubles of a janitor who masquerades as an artist.

Abramson Spectacle Selected for Big Benefit Showings

"One Law for Both," Ivan Abramson's film drama of Russia and America, which is playing at the Lyric theatre, New York City, was accorded a signal honor by the executive staff of The American Ambulance in Russia last week, when it was selected from among all the attractions now playing on Broadway as the attraction for their benefit performance during the past week. New York society was out in force at the showings and the New York papers devoted considerable space to the stories of the performances.

Special added attractions were daily features at the performances; Mme. Frances Alda, of the Metropolitan Opera House; Mme. Marguerite Sylva, of the Opera Comique in Paris; the male chorus of thirty voices, sailors from the Russian cruiser Varyag, the Russian Balalaika Orchestra, the famous Kosloff's Imperial Russian Ballet, and addresses by men of national prominence were daily features at the Lyric theatre in addition to "One Law for Both." Tickets for the Friday and Saturday performances of the picture sold for five dollars each, and a substantial amount was realized by The American Ambulance in Russia for the furtherance of the work of mercy, being prosecuted by The American Ambulance forces in Russia.

A number of the most prominent names in American figure in the list of the officers of The American Ambulance in Russia: Hamilton Fish, Jr., Philip M. Lydik, Miss Elia Maxwell, William H. Hamilton, Miss Ethel D. Hamilton.

"Robespierre" Is Heralded as Most Sensational Spectacle

BEN BLUMENTHAL, head of the Export and Import Film Company, announces the completion of "Robespierre," a seven-part drama of the struggle for liberty in France.

Thousands of people are said to have been used in the production. In the first reel, which shows the hungry mobs rioting in the streets of Paris, the thrills begin to command attention. With the overthrow of royalty comes the fall of the hated Bastille, after which the stirring incidents of struggling France.

What is considered by Mr. Blumenthal as one of the greatest accomplishments of the camera, comes in the fifth part, where the French Chamber of Deputies is seen in session. A notable achievement is the fact that this entire scene, showing quite completely the debate that culminated in Robespierre's overthrow, is done in one continuous film-length. Parts of the speeches in titles are all that break it up. Several hundred deputies fill the floor seats, while thousands are packed into the galleries.

The claim is made for this picture that it is as nearly a perfect reproduction of a historical event as present day facilities and historical data at hand will permit.

The cast in "Robespierre" is headed by Lyda Borelli. The characters of Robespierre and Tallien are made to live by the tragedians, Novelli and Fabiani.

Mr. Blumenthal states that "Robespierre" will be handled on the selective zone plan, so that the least time will be lost in distributing it uniformly throughout the country. Extensive contracts have already been closed for operation that will give the exhibitors new opportunities for exploitation.
Path to Sell War Films on Territorial Basis

At the request of the British Government, through Official Government Pictures, Inc., Pathé will sell "The Tanks at Battle of the Ancre" feature, which recently broke records at the Strand theatre, on state rights basis.

This request of the British Government was made because they want immediate release of pictures, and every investment ever made in a motion picture.

Every city has its Red Cross Society, and every one of them is out to raise a very large sum of money within the next two months. Official Government Pictures, Inc. is also engaged in raising money for war relief, and there is a friendly rivalry between the two organizations.

The great bulk of the amount received by Pathé, for these pictures, will go to British War Relief, so that their handling Wallace pictures enable them to do a proper share for the common cause.

In practically every city, the head of the Red Cross Society, who is usually one of their biggest men, is anxious to put on "The Tanks at the Battle of the Ancre" in the best theatres or the biggest auditorium, and charge high admission prices to raise money for the Red Cross Society.

The money cannot go to such a man or give him a half-rate, and if good advertising copy like the Strand ran in New York is placed in newspapers, it is believed everybody will turn out to see the pictures.

Enormous sums were received at the special showings at Carnegie Hall in New York, in St. Louis, Chicago and other cities.

The Strand theatre, New York City, broke all its house records with these pictures—though they were not run under the auspices of the Red Cross Society and another New York theatre called Pathé up afterward, and said they would have paid $10,000 rental for that week had they known how good the pictures were.

Pathé has just booked "The Tanks at the Battle of the Ancre" and "The Battle of the Somme," to representatives of the Red Cross from Toledo, Ohio, to run each picture a week. Rochester will also run both pictures in connection with the Red Cross, and about one hundred other big bookings have been wired for approval to C. R. Seedy, business manager of Pathé.

"We will accept some of these bookings," Mr. Seedy said, "where it will not interfere with the state rights' buyer."

"Since these pictures have been booked in various communities, we know what rental each and every theatre can afford to pay," said Pathé official. "We have a complete report on all theatres in the United States every thirty days. From these theatre-record cards, we have found the total rental possible from all the theatres in each state. In order to give a state rights' buyer a profit of 100 per cent., we have divided the total rental that the theatres will pay by one-half, and that is the price we are asking the state rights' buyer to pay."

Trade Showing of "Alma, Where Do You Live?" Soon

"Alma, Where Do You Live?" has been made into a seven-reel feature by Director Hal Clarendon, for the Newfields Producing Corporation of the Woolworth building, who are entering the state rights field, with the intention of putting out four productions annually, all starring Ruth Lamont, who makes her bow under their management in the title role of "Alma."

The success of "Alma" as a musical comedy was international, and the plot of the original stage presentation has been elaborated to make a film of dramatic power. Of course, the plot has not been followed too closely—a musical comedy in itself could not provide seven reels of action.

But the main theme, and the famous song, "Alma, Sweet Alma, Where Do You Live?" has become the basis for a love story.

A trade showing will be announced within a few days—the entire publicity campaign, including lithographs, and novelty displays of many sorts, being rushed through to completion before that time.

Advertising for the new company is in the hands of the Hesser Publicity Bureau.

Kaufman Distributes Everett True Comedies in South

Mr. Seng is enthusiastic over the advertising service which goes with the picture. Having learned through long experience the value of effective advertising, he has in this service given practical expression to his views on the subject.

It is his aim to have buyers take nothing for granted, but he gives every opportunity beforehand to know exactly what they are getting.
Rush Plans for Production of “Tarzan of the Apes”

William Parsons, president and general manager of the National Film Corporation of America, arrived in Los Angeles this week, and has been busy making the preparations for the opening of a studio here for the filming of “Tarzan of the Apes” in eight or nine reels. The National is owner of the property known as the old Oz Studio, which has been occupied until recently by the Vogue Films, Inc.

Mr. Parsons has made but one announcement concerning his company’s big production, that concerning engagement of Scott Sidney to direct the production of the picture. Sidney goes to the National the Caulfield Photoplay Company, where he has completed the filming of a series of fifteen Strand Features for the Mutual.

The Edgar Rice Burroughs story, “Tarzan,” is now in its tenth edition, and has proven one of the greatest sellers of the past several years. The story is decidedly acceptable for filming purposes.

Hoffman Buys “Madame Sherry” —To Release “Should She Obey”

Announcement was made last week that M. H. Hoffman had bought the world rights to “Madame Sherry,” and will also release “Should She Obey?” in New York under the Foursquare brand.

Speaking of his acquisition and future plans, Mr. Hoffman said:

“’Madame Sherry’ I have something new and unusual—a picture that, by its original make-up and humor, is going to make money. Personally, I have always been afraid of multiple reel comedies, but when I saw ‘Madame Sherry’ I was sure it would go over. It passed completely into my hands with the famous music score which is known the world over.

“My first exchange will be opened in the offices adjacent to my executive rooms here inside of ten days. It will be the first of the Foursquare exchanges—as I am going to call all the exchange selling stations allied with my company. ’Should She Obey?’ the great drama of marriage and divorce, will be released in greater New York through this exchange, together with the ‘Sin Woman,’ ‘Who Knows?’ ‘Madame Sherry,’ and other productions which we shall secure shortly. We have deliberately set out in our Goldwyn Pictures,” says Mr. Goldfish, “to show both exhibitors and the public that there is a great deal more that can be put in a motion picture than the featured personality known as the ‘star.’

“I have a feeling now that goes much deeper than the feeling I had four years ago when I founded and organized the Lasky company, whose productions were innovations in the film industry. I believe that to-day and for a long time into the future the quality of the story and the manner of its production will be the essentially big factors of successful pictures.

“I make no prediction about the lessering influence of stars, nor do I foresee the elimination of the star system. In Goldwyn we frankly recognize what we term star values by having exclusively in our service immensely popular women known everywhere and having box-office value everywhere. We expect exhibitors to advertise and exploit these stars because of their powers of audience attraction, but we know from within our organization that we can make the production itself our greatest merchanstie asset. Incidentally, we make the stars themselves much better through the medium of powerful stories produced and directed by important artists.

“In this alliance we have not been scared or even slightly influenced by precedent—which is the dangerous obstacle to progress in any art or industry. We have defied all the established picture conventions as well as the business conventions of the industry. We have resisted from the beginning any and all influence that cause a producer to make time itlock pictures. We prefer to make pictures. We think Goldwyn has not taken merely the next step ahead in the screen art, but the next four or five steps, and we expect to go still farther because we are permitting well-balanced brains to exercise their proper function of thinking.”

Technical Director for Ince

M. Doner, who for the past two years, has been head of the Department of Sculpture at the Triangle-Ince Studios in Culver City, has been appointed technical director of the plant by Thomas H. Ince.

Four Goldwyn Pictures in July Trade Showings

GOLDWYN’S first trade showings at its exchanges will be held in July, and not less than four pictures, with as many stars, will be ready for inspection.

“Tarzan of the Apes” is the feature of the July trade showings, with but one other picture, “The Great White Trail,” having been shown previously. “Should She Obey?” will be released in New York under the Foursquare brand.

Exchanges Will Have Films Ready for Exhibitors’ Inspection in Mid-Summer—Goldfish Tells of the “New Idea” of Goldwyn

FOUR Goldwyn pictures in July trade showings at its exchanges will be held in July, and not less than four pictures, with as many stars, will be ready for inspection. "We have made a point of releasing only those pictures which we believe will appeal to the public," Mr. Goldfish said.

"In this alliance we have not been scared or even slightly influenced by precedent—which is the dangerous obstacle to progress in any art or industry. We have defied all the established picture conventions as well as the business conventions of the industry. We have resisted from the beginning any and all influence that cause a producer to make time itlock pictures. We prefer to make pictures. We think Goldwyn has not taken merely the next step ahead in the screen art, but the next four or five steps, and we expect to go still farther because we are permitting well-balanced brains to exercise their proper function of thinking.”

Form Clifford Photoplay Co.

Incorporation papers have been filed for the W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company, which will shortly begin production of a series of two reel comedies at a Los Angeles studio. W. H. Clifford, who has been in charge of production of the Shorty Hamilton Mutual series, will be manager of production of the new company, which will have C. E. Bentley, former theatrical manager, as business manager. Clifford has had a very wide experience in photoplay circles, serving as scenario editor and writer under Ince for three years, where he wrote “The Typhoon,” “The Wrath of the Gods,” and a great many others. He is author of the Pickford subject “Fulda From Holland” and “The Spider,” in which Pauline Fredericks was starred.

Fox Junior Stars Hard at Work on Feature

After being delayed by inclement weather action is now fast progressing on the five-reel production in which the two small Fox players, Jane and Katherine Lee will have the stellar roles. Special care was taken in the preparation of this scenario to make it best adapted to the particular kinds of work which Jane and Katherine do best.

The supporting company will include Stuart Sage, Edwin Holt, Sidney D’Albrook, Edna Hunter, Leslie Austen and W. Harvey.
Tale of American Legion in France, "For Liberty," Begun

ROMAINE FIELDING started on June 4 for Canada to film Captain Edwin Hesset's patriotic film, "For Liberty," which is a tale of the American Legion of Canada and the heroic part which the 33,000 Americans enlisted in Sir Sam Hughes' Canadian army have played in the war.

The picture is being made with the cooperation of the Canadian military authorities, who have allowed the use of unlimited numbers of troops. Duplication of battle scenes on the front line in France will be obtained in the Canadian training camps, where the thousands training for overseas duty are given a real insight into trench life by the life-size battle line built to show them how to meet the conditions they will later encounter on European battlefields.

Captain Hesser was brigade director of recruiting publicity for the American Legion, and the film is based largely on facts of the war. It is said to be the sort of film that will stimulate recruiting in this country, and the angle brought to bear on the phase of the picture will be aided by the use of American troops in some of the final scenes. The length of the feature will be seven reels.

"A Successful Failure" Ready

Winifred Allen, of Triangle, has completed "A Successful Failure," in which she is featured with Jack Devereaux, and has begun work on her next production, the working title of which is "The Haunted House." Dick Rosson, formerly assistant director at the Triangle Yonkers Studio, will play the opposite lead, and the production will be personally directed by Allan Dwan with the assistance of Albert Parker.

Superlative Co. Wants Scripts

The Superlative Pictures Corporation, 729 Seventh avenue, New York City, is in the market for seven-reel pictures. All material should be submitted to "Scenario Department" of the corporation at its New York offices.

"Poppy" Goes Big—Norma Talmadge Now on "The Moth"

NORMA TALMADGE'S latest Selznick-picture offering, "Poppy," was given its first public showing in Chicago and New York last week, where it was hailed as this young star's finest production. Reports from the Marcus Loew offices indicate that "Poppy" will break all records for previous Talmadge pictures.

One reason for the success of "Poppy" undoubtedly lies in the range of characterization it offers the talented Miss Talmadge. The story shows her first as a little kitchen drudge about twelve years old and develops her from childhood through maturity. Typical of the numerous, always most favorable comments of the New York press concerning "Poppy" is the following paragraph from the New York Evening Journal by the celebrated "Zit":

"Poppy" is a picture that can play at any two-dollar theatre for months, and lucky are the exhibitors who are going to get this release on a Selznick program. It is worth any price the manufacturers ask, and if you have liked Norma Talmadge in any of her previous efforts, her work in "Poppy" will stamp her to you as America's foremost female screen artist."

Meanwhile the Talmadge company is rapidly completing a new film drama entitled "The Moth." Director Edward Jose, who produced "Poppy," is also directing this production and Miss Talmadge is supported by a cast including Eugene O'Brien, and others as favorably known to the observing screen fan.

Victor Moore in Another Comedy of Bungalow Life

As in "Bungalowing," Victor Moore, in his latest Klever comedy, "Committing," is seen in the "dollar down and dollar when they catch you" bungalow.

Vic finds when leaving his bungalow that instead of a few minutes' walk, the railroad station is a few miles away. One train per day is the schedule, and his is gone. He arrives in the city five hours later, walking the distance. Starting back home he is finally forced to take a hand car with the result that he loses all the bundles he had gotten for his wife. The two train hands with him also fall from the car, which runs away, dashes from the tracks and up a hill, and finally ends up by crashing into his bungalow and wrecking it.

Food Problem Is Plot Basis of Lucas Picture

Wilfred Lucas finds himself again in a political role in the Triangle production "The Food Gamblers," in which he is featured with Elda Millar under the supervision of Allan Dwan. In this play, which is a timely and forceful comment on the present food problem, Lucas plays the part of a Food Commissioner whose social conscience is not too sensitive as to keep him from trading on the necessity of his fellows by price manipulations. Because he loves a girl, however, and because he himself comes face to face with starvation, his better nature is awakened and wages a successful battle against his own colleagues for constructive legislation.

Strong Drama Next Metro, with Emmy Wehlen

A struggle on the roof of a hut is one of the exciting scenes in Emmy Wehlen's forthcoming Metro production, "The Trail of the Shadow," which has been adapted for the screen by June Mathis. The struggle takes place between Miss Wehlen as Sylvia Mason and Harry S. Northrup as Jack Leslie, the outlaw. Sylvia, a girl who supports herself by making beadwork, believes that Leslie has done her a great wrong. Arming herself, she pursues him and proceeds to take the law into her own hands.

Miss Starr Resigns from U

Helen Starr will resign from the Universal Film Company in June after two years' service with that organization. Miss Starr is well known in the trade, as she was scenario editor at the New York office last year and has since November been a staff writer at Universal City, Cal.

La Salle Studio Building

The fourth studio to be erected at Culver City is that of the LaSalle Film Company, which is now being built, under the direction of M. De La Parelle, manager of the production, for this Mutual releasing company. The buildings will be ready for occupancy within a few days.
First of Jane Cowl's Goldwyn Subjects Progressing

The first of the series of Goldwyn Pictures in which Jane Cowl is the star is now well under way in the Goldwyn studio at Fort Lee. Miss Cowl and her company, under the direction of Arthur Hopkins, chief of the Goldwyn producing staff, have made much progress in the screening of the story, which is from the pen of Basil King, the author of "The Inner Shrine," which, when published anonymously in Harper's Magazine was the literary sensation of the year.

The cast supporting Miss Cowl includes Henry Stephenson, Charles Hammond, Edith McAlpin, Lettie Ford, Marion Knapp, Betsey Ross, Orme Caldara and Antoinette Erwin. Many of these players have but recently supported Miss Cowl in stage productions.

Show "Great White Trail" to Press Association

"The Great White Trail," the new Wharton feature, which recently and its trade showing at the Broadway theatre in New York, soon is to have another private showing. This time, however, it will be purely as a matter of entertainment.

The cast supporting Miss Cowl includes Henry Stephenson, Charles Hammond, Edith McAlpin, Lettie Ford, Marion Knapp, Betsey Ross, Orme Caldara and Antoinette Erwin. Many of these players have but recently supported Miss Cowl in stage productions.

Metro Signs Ingenue

Metro has signed Alice MacChesney, formerly considered Chicago's most popular school girl, and who came to Essanay directly from her high school desk. In the past two years she has appeared in support of Henry B. Washburn, Bryant Washburn, Richard Travers, Eddie Arnold, and other stars. Miss MacChesney will be an ingenue lead for Metro, and her contract is said to be for a long time. Considerable faith is placed in the abilities of her newest acquisition, and as she has declared her talents in high school theatricals, this faith may be well founded.

Vitagraph Service Soon to be Greatly Augmented

ALBERT W. GOFF, assistant general manager of V-L-S-E, left on Friday, June 8, for his regular semi-annual trip, which, before its conclusion, will take in every branch office of the Blue Ribbon distributing organization.

Other than the usual reason for Mr. Goff's semi-annual trip of obtaining an intimate knowledge of the personnel of each branch office, his trip at this time is for the purpose of explaining to each branch manager personally the exact manner the new service about to be started by V-L-S-E should be handled.

Two of the units in the service of which the release date will be announced shortly consist of a new series of "Big V" comedies, directed by Lawrence Semon and starring James Aubrey, and a series of ten pictures in which "Bobby" Connolly is starred and is supported by Mabel Ballin.

Three of the new series of "Big V" comedies have been completed, edited and titled. They have been named "Boots and Bones," "Shells and Shivers" and "Boasts and Boulders." There will be seven more of this service of the "Big V's" and all will be completed within the next three weeks.

Four of the Bobbie Connolly pictures have been completed. They have been named "Bobby, Director," "Bobby, Philanthropist," "Bobby, Pacifist" and "Bobby's Bravery." The balance of this series will be completed at the rate of one a week.

By early in July at the latest V-L-S-E will be releasing the Favorite Film Features brand, which, while released through all of the V-L-S-E branches, will carry the brand of the Blue Ribbon Features.

The Favorite Film Features brand consists of the Vitagraph pictures of a few years ago.

Two of the well remembered series to be released under the Favorite Film Features brand are the John Bunny comedies and the Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew comedies.

Mr. Goff will explain in detail to each branch manager the manner in which these comedies are to be joined with two-reel dramas, making three thousand feet of film to be released each week through the V-L-S-E branches.

The greater part of Mr. Goff's time will be devoted to minute discussions of the plans to release Greater Vitagraph's coming serial, "Hearts of Flame." According to the best information obtainable, this serial, in which William Duncan and Carol Holloway are co-starred, will be released in sixteen episodes of two reels each. The exact release date is being kept secret at present, but, of course, will be announced as developments may occur. Every effort is being exerted to bring these specialties to a hasty finish, however.

"Hearts of Flame" will be issued under the Blue Ribbon trade mark, and will add two more reels weekly to be issued through V-L-S-E branch exchanges, making a total of twelve reels weekly.

Besides these extra productions, it has been definitely decided that Greater Vitagraph will produce one superpicture every three months, on the order of "The Girl Philippa," "Womanhood, the Glory of the Nation," and "Within the Law." It is understood that the next superfeature to be released will be an adaptation from a specially written story by Robert W. Chambers.

At the same time Assistant General Manager Goff started on his trip E. Auger, eastern traveling manager for V-L-S-E, started on a trip through the southern portion of his territory. His first stop will be at New Orleans.

Plays in New Pathé Serial

Henry G'selle, who four years ago played opposite Pearl White in the Crystal Studios, comes back as one of her supporting cast in "The Fatal Ring," the new Pathé serial.

First Chapter of "Gray Ghost" Serial June 28

Universal Claims Big Things for Production—Priscilla Dean, Emory Johnson, Eddie Polo and Harry Carter Are Leading Members of Cast.

Eddie Polo plays the secretary to Hildreth, and aids in the frustration of the Gray Ghost and his gang. Many thrilling stunts are said to have fallen to his lot in this play.

The story principally revolves about a necklace. Hildreth is hard beset by the Gray Ghost and his thugs for possession of the jewels. A cable has been sent to Arabin, the manufacturer of the necklace, advising him that Hildreth will call for it and will pay over the two million dollars. The Gray Ghost, through an accomplice in Arabin's employ, gains possession of the cable and sets his trap. Hildreth escapes through the aid of Morn Light, who, ostensibly, is the Ghost's sweetheart. Through strenuous scenes and stirring ones these lovers go until the mystery of the Gray Ghost is cleared. Then, as the soul-stirring climax, is revealed the true relationship of the Gray Ghost and Morn Light.

Bluebird Has Woman Salesman on Road

When Johnstone Bennett toured the theatres of America in "A Female Drummer," several years ago, the possibilities of a woman actually engaging in transient salesmanship were looked upon as even more fanciful than the play. But things have changed, and now comes the announcement that Frances McDonald, a former New York newspaper woman, will take the road in the interest of the Bluebird program.

Miss McDonald has been a special writer on the New York World and the Philadelphia North American.

To fortify herself with knowledge and experience, Miss McDonald has spent the past month as an attaché of Bluebird's New York Branch, visiting local exhibitors and coaching herself on the ins and outs of the film business. Next week she goes West, to begin actual operations, being assigned to territory around Chicago, where she will call on exhibitors in towns and cities of various sizes.

Art Dramas Trade-Mark Contest Is Closed

Last week marked the closing of the Art Dramas trade mark contest, which was begun a month ago. In that short space of time approximately fourteen thousand answers were received by the company. Such widespread interest in the contest was entirely unexpected, and the committee is at present swamped in the mass of contributions.

The designs are being gone over carefully, and eliminations are being made by the committee in charge. This sub-committee will select fifty out of the entire number for further consideration.

These fifty will be taken to the Board of Directors of the corporation, and they will select the winning design from the lot.

The company hopes to be able to announce the winner's name within a week.

Audiences Interested in Problems in Pathé Serial

Critics on the papers in the larger cities in which "The Neglected Wife," the Pathé serial, with Ruth Roland starring, has been shown lay part of the popularity of the film to the divided sympathies of the audiences.

The Atlanta Journal says: "It will be interesting to note the division of sympathy as the serial progresses—what classes of persons will sympathize with 'The Neglected Wife,' who will blame her for her own condition, who will condone the acts of 'The Woman Alone' and who will not, who will make excuses for the husband and who will be drawn to one of Norwood's type."

Southern Society Story Vehicle for Edna Goodrich

Edna Goodrich has started on her second Mutual feature, the story of which is laid in Maryland and is built up around Southern society life. The scenes will afford Miss Goodrich an opportunity to display a number of the beautiful gowns for which she is famous.

The scenario is from the pen of Samuel Morse of the New York Times and the production will be under the direction of John O'Brien.
Raver Company Working on Subject from Old Song

Harry Raver announced this week that the next picture his company would be entitled "When You and I Were Young." Work on this has already been started at the Apollo Studios in Fort Lee, where the company has just finished "The Golden God."

"When You and I Were Young" is an original story by Frederick Rath, and it is founded on the famous old song of the same name. It is said to abound in pathos and heart interest, and to interweave the dreams of youth and age in a compelling manner. Alvin Barkowsky, who is handling the leading male role, is supported by John Sainpolis, who returns to the Apollo Company after finishing a Paramount picture with Pauline Frederick, in which he played the leading male role.

Nowland Signed for Art Dramas Productions

George H. Wiley, president of the Van Dyke Company, announced last week that he had signed Eugene Nowland to produce Art Dramas. Nowland will start immediately on a new production as yet untitled. Jean Sothern will be starred.

The first picture will be an adaptation of a popular novel, which was quite recently a best seller. The company has not decided whether the novel's title will be used for the picture or whether another name will be given it.

Nowland was most recently with Metro, where he produced numerous features. His latest picture under that company was "Threads of Fate," in which Viola Dana was starred.

In the production under work Donald Cameron will support Miss Sothern.

Anita Stewart Ill

Anita Stewart, the Vitagraph star, is in a sanitarium in Connecticut, suffering from a temporary breakdown in health, and probably not able to resume work for several weeks. Her collapse is due, indirectly, to an attack of typhoid fever which she passed through last summer, but is the direct result of over-zealonsness on the part of the young actress.

When she began to recuperate from the typhoid attack, Miss Stewart, against the advice of her physician and the Vitagraph Company, returned to the studio before she had fully recovered her strength and insisted upon resuming her work. Since that time she has done several pictures and on several occasions she has been on the point of collapse, but valiantly kept up her work.

Dune Credit to George Marshall

In some manner the biography which appeared in the spring issue of Motion Picture News Studio Director concernong George Marshall, Universal director, wrongly classified him with assistant directors. Mr. Marshall has been at the head of a company at U City for more than a year, and during that period has made a number of very successful photo-plays. He has specialized in the making of Western dramas and comedy dramas.

Production on the First Two Paralta Plays Is Begun

Six months of preparatory work under the supervision of Robert T. Kane, last week made possible the first activities at the Paralta Studios, Inc., at which time the production of the first two Paralta plays was commenced on the West Coast. Production began with two units, one under the direction of Oscar Apfel in the making of the first release of the J. Warren Kerrigan Feature Corporation, "A Man's Man," adapted from the serial story by Peter B. Kyne, which appeared in a national magazine. The Bessie Barriscale Feature Corporation will first make "Rose O'Paradise," adapted from Grace Keller's famous story of the same title.

Gertrude Selby and Neal Burns to Star in Horsley Comedies

FROM the David Horsley Studios comes the announcement that production has begun on a series of one-reel parlor comedies, featuring Gertrude Selby and Neal Burns, directed by Horace Davey. The method of distribution, which will be at the rate of one picture per week, has already been arranged and will be announced in the near future. The new venture is the result of a combination between David Horsley and W. A. S. Douglas.

As a picture comedienne Miss Selby holds a place in the front rank. Although only twenty years old, her stage and screen experience covers a period of six years. Miss Selby’s entrance into pictures came over two years ago when she joined the I.-Ko Company as principal comedienne. Here she made a series of feature comedies, including "Gertie’s Gasoline Gallop" and "Gertie’s Joy Ride." Leaving the L-Ko Company she joined Universal, co-starring with Hobart Henley in Bluebird Productions. Last year Miss Selby came under the Fox banner, this time again as comedienne and has left there to take up her new work.

Neal Burns, for years a musical comedy star in "The Yankee Prince," "The Girl in the Taxi" and "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," resigned from the Christie Comedy Company, in whose pictures he has been featured since his initiation to the screen two years ago, to make the other half of the new stellar combination.

Horace Davey, who will direct these new style comedies, has handled Mr. Burns in his previous work.

According to Messrs. Horsley and Douglas distribution of these pictures will not come for several months. Owing to present conditions, the play is a direct attack on snobbery in England, the home of social pride, and its appeal has won friends among all classes.

Cohan Starts Second Picture, "Seven Keys to Baldpate"

GEORGE M. COHAN commenced work on his second playoff for Artcraft Pictures last week at the Famous Players studio in New York City. As his new motion picture vehicle, following "Broadway Jones," the actor-author-producer has selected his theatrical success, "Seven Keys to Baldpate." This well-known play proved one of the season’s most favorite stage offerings four years ago when it appeared on Broadway at the Astor theatre under the direction of Cohan and Harris.

The story of "Seven Keys to Baldpate" is by George M. Cohan and tells of the experiences of a writer of sensational fiction, who makes a wager with a fellow-clubman that he can create one of his masterpieces in twenty-four hours. He comes to Baldpate Inn, on the top of a mountain which is deserted, in the dead of winter. Here he is to find solitude and win his $5,000 wager, but many incidents happen which will lead up to a great surprise as the climax.

Hugh Ford will direct the production of Cohan’s second screen play.

In commenting on the new Cohan production, Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft, said: "Although we had not intended to start the second Cohan-Artcraft picture until a later day, the many requests from exhibitors for this production in the near future, as a result of the sensational success of his first film, ‘Broadway Jones,’ have prompted Mr. Cohan and Artcraft to stage this subject immediately. Few stars of the stage have ever registered such an immediate hit among patrons of the screen as the popular actor-author-producer evinced in his first film offering."

Patriotic Story Chosen for Bryant Washburn

"The Man Who Was Afraid," a story hinging on the President’s call to arms and portraying a man who was afraid to answer the call, has been selected for Bryant Washburn’s next Essanay feature. This was written by Mary Brecht Pulver and published in the Saturday Evening Post. The screen version has been altered to fit present conditions.

Fred E. Wright is directing the production and a capable cast is announced in support of Washburn.

"Caste," Famous Story, a Blue Ribbon Feature July 2

Vitagraph, through special negotiations, has obtained the exclusive film rights for the United States and Canada to "Caste," the satire on English social prejudice. The picture, which is in five reels, features Peggy Hyland and Sir John Hare, England’s well known character actor. It will be put on the Vitagraph program for July 2 and will be released as a Blue Ribbon feature.

In giving "Caste" a place on its program the Greater Vitagraph organization in following its rule of seeking for its clientele the highest class of plays obtainable, because this drama is probably one of the most famous plays ever produced on the English-speaking stage.

"Caste," which was written by T. W. Robertson, has been a prime favorite in England and this country for many years. It is an intensely human play, having for its main theme the argument that filial love counts for more than mere social position. The play is a direct attack on snobbery in England, the home of social pride, and its appeal has won friends among all classes.

Newspaper Writer Joins Goldwyn Editorial Staff

Louis L. Arms, New York newspaperman, has joined Goldwyn Pictures Corporation in charge of its editorial offices through which are handled the publicity and newspaper feature exploitation of Goldwyn’s famous artists.

Mr. Arms has been dramatic or sports editor of influential daily newspapers in the larger American cities. He has worked on the Hearst staffs in two cities, in Los Angeles and on the New York Journal, where last year he wrote the "Right Cross" column. He has been dramatic and sports editor of both the St. Louis Star and the St. Louis Republic; on the staff of the El Paso Herald and on the Grand Rapids Herald, in his home city.

Super-Film in Market for Productions

Thomas W. Dooley, manager of the Super-Film Attraction Company, of Syracuse, N. Y., is pleased to hear from producers interested in obtaining a market outlet for the distribution of film in his territory on a percentage basis. Super-Film is at present handling the Ivan productions and reports excellent results with these subjects.
New Fairbanks Picture Arrives from the Coast

The negative of the second Douglas Fairbanks Picture, "Wild and Woolly," was delivered personally to the Artcraft headquarters in New York by Billy Shay, assistant to Director Emerson, who recently arrived from California. Positive copies are now being made of the film in the East, and will be ready for an advance trade showing shortly.

The entire Fairbanks organization is most enthusiastic over the new picture, and in speaking of its production to Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft, Mr. Shay said: "'Wild and Woolly' is the type of story that should be very fast, and Director Emerson added even more speed to the picture by crowding eight reels into five parts. Mr. Fairbanks is very optimistic as to the success of the film and feels that it is the type of photoplay that will be enjoyed by all elements and should therefore have a tremendous circulation.

"Douglas certainly and his share towards making the film a 'knockout.' He was on the job at six o'clock in the morning on days that exterior scenes were to be photographed and reported for work at eight when interior scenes were to be staged. Very often he worked eighteen hours a day without feeling the strain. Few subtitles are used and Horace B. Carpenter, who supplied the original story, expressed great delight over the manner in which little Anita Loos handled it.'

Director of Publicity Schayer Leaves Selznick

E. Richard Schayer, who has been director of publicity for Lewis J. Selznick since the organization of the Selznick enterprises, resigned last week and will be succeeded by Randolph Bartlett.

Schayer, who, prior to entering the film business, a year and a halfago, had achieved a name as a newspaper man, war correspondent and magazine writer, intends to spend the entire summer in the Maine woods, where he expects to complete a number of stories for which he has been accumulating data during recent months. This is in the nature of a belated honeymoon, as it will be remembered that Mr. Schayer married last summer, during the height of the activities of Mr. Selznick's first productions, and was unable to leave New York for a wedding trip.

Two Directors Now on Baby Osborne Pictures

From now on, it is announced, there will be two directors on Pathe's Baby Marie Osborne pictures. Messrs. Bertram and Ingraham will work turn and turn about. While Mr. Bertram is making his picture, Mr. Ingraham will be laying out his work and preparing his sets and locations.

W. A. S. Douglass, managing director of Lasalida, believes that in that way not only will there be much less time lost but that the pictures will show a uniformly high grade of quality by reason of the extra attention to detail possible.

Mr. Bertram comes to Lasalida from Balboa where he recently finished 'The Neglected Wife,' Pathe's latest serial.

Famed Russian Literary Works for Silent Drama

The works of Tolstoy, Dostoevsky, Turgeneff, Sienckiewiecz, Pushkin, Ostrovsky and Andrieff in filmed form will soon be as familiar to the patrons of American motion picture theatres as they are now familiar in book form to the cultured publics of all the European countries. The Russian Art Film Corporation has just started a gigantic campaign for the popularization of these authors throughout the United States. But a film library of Russian fiction and drama, now being assembled, will, it is believed, interest millions where a written library attracts thousands.

The two leading dramatists of Russia are A. N. Ostrovsky and Leonid Andrieff. The plays of Ostrovsky, who was born in 1824 and died in 1886, have held the Russian stage for three-quarters of a century. Ostrovsky depicts with realism, satire and comedy the life of the middle classes. But he rises to heights of passion, too, as in his drama of the eternal triangle, "The Storm.

Leonid Andrieff is the leader of contemporary Slavonic drama. There is a poetical or symbolic strain to this work. Andrieff's principal dramas include "The Life of Man," "The Black Masters," "The Sabin Woman" and "Anathema," all of which have been translated into the chief European languages. The dramatist is still in the prime of life.

Henryk Sienckiewiecz, Leo Tolstoy, F. M. Dostoevsky and I. S. Tyrgtsberg, all names to conjure with in Russian literary fields, will also have their works presented in film form. Some of the creations of A. S. Pushkin, whose career in some respects paralleled that of Edgar Allen Poe, will also be presented.

Ince Star Soon to Be Seen in Alaskan Story

Dorothy Dalton, Ince-Triangle star, soon will be seen in "The Flame of the Yukon," by Monte M. Katterjohn, when she is presented by Thomas H. Ince as star in this drama of the Northland.

The plot is said to be built on facts by the author, from men who have won and lost fortunes north of '53. The Flame, the character played by Miss Dalton, was known from Juneau to Nome, and is said to be the best role this star has ever had.

Henry Otto spent some days location seeking.

Eighteen pygmies are included in the cast of a forthcoming King-Bee Comedy. When their work was completed at the Jacksonville studios, the band of pygmies left for New York on a Clyde line steamer. Louis Burstine, president and general manager of the King-Bee Films Corporation, declares that he found the little people extremely easy to handle in their performances.

Pygmies in King-Bee

The Marine Film Company of Los Angeles, through general manager M. Philip Hansen, last week signed Tyrone Power to a contract.

The first feature which Mr. Tyrone Power will appear in is a sea story written by Richard Willis and which is being directed by Henry Otto, the producer who made "Undine," "Mister 44," "The River of Romance" and other successful features.

Frances Burnham takes the part of a modern Lorelei and Agnes Blanchard is the legendary Lorelei. Miss Burnham recently left the California company and was previously with the Fox company, and both she and Miss Blanchard are splendid swimmers.

The company is located at the Fleming street studios in East Hollywood, but most of the scenes will be taken on the Santa Barbara Islands, where Mr. Hansen and Henry Otto spent some days location seeking.

Kalem's New "Stingaree" Series Complete—Other Activities

The new Kalem series, "The Further Adventures of Stingaree," is now ready for looking through the General Film company. This series is a sequel to Kalem's original "Stingaree" pictures, which proved a big success.

In E. W. Hornung's new stories, Irving Randolph, known through the bush country of Australia as "Stingaree," leaves his London home and returns with his old partner, Howie, to resume the life of a bushranger.

Kalem predicts that the new series, good as they believe it is, will have a close rival in "The Vatican Girl," in which Marin Sais is featured. Director James W. Horne is working overtime to fill these pictures with action and thrills.

20,000 Feet of Film Taken for Chaplin's Latest

Charlie Chaplin's latest comedy, "The Immigrant," is one of the cleverest things he has ever done, according to critics who have seen private runs of the new offering, in which Charlie has a wide range of opportunity for the display of his fun-making genius.

Edna Purviance, the clever young leading woman, whose work has been apparent in previous Chaplin productions, is again to the fore with plenty of fast action to keep her busy from first to last. "The Immigrant," it is said, cost more to produce than any previous Chaplin comedy, and a wider range of location. Twenty thousand feet of film went into the construction of the play, though the completed picture is but 2,000 feet in length.

Railroad Stories Expensive

The Signal Film Corporation, according to their statement, has in a little over ten months spent upwards of $11,000 for railroad equipment for staging spectacular wreck scenes in "The Railroad Raiders," the serial featuring Helen Holmes, which is being released through the Mutual Film Corporation. This does not include cars that have been built for wrecking purposes by the technical staff at the studio.

John Bunny's Pictures to Be Re-Issued

More than one hundred pictures in which John Bunny, the dead Vitagraph comedian, appeared are to be re-edited and reissued by Favorite Film Features.

The request for a reissue of these pictures came from a prominent exhibitor.

New Studio Being Erected for Lois Weber

The Lois Weber productions will be made at a studio now being built in Hollywood, Cal. Lease was closed a week ago for grounds covering an entire block and containing gardens, pergolas, large old-fashioned residence and other buildings. In the near of this an open air stage 80 x 150 feet will be built. While this is in the course of construction, Director Lois Weber will begin the filming of her first independent subject, which is of the nature of a comedy drama, known under the working title of "The Uplifter." It became known this week that Miss Weber has decided not to make propaganda subjects in the future, the last one being "Even as You and I."

Phillips Smalley is to be business manager at the studio, Arthur Ford will continue as assistant to Miss Weber, Frank Ornston will be technical director, "Duke" Hayward, cameraman, and Arthur Denison, who has served as special reader for Century Magazine, will be in charge of the publicity department.

Charlotte Burton is Now Mrs. William Russell

A film romance pure and simple culminated in the recent announcement from the West Coast of the marriage of William Russell and Charlotte Burton.

This cupid affair had its inception at the Santa Barbara studios of the American Film Company. Miss Burton joined the forces of the American-Mutual studios about five years ago, but it was not until two years ago that Russell was engaged for the serial "The Diamond from the Sky" and Miss Burton played opposite him.

Cabaret Setting in Arbuckle's Next Comedy

The entire cabaret of Churchill's restaurant, New York, was employed in scenes in "The Rough House," the Paramount-Arbuckle comedy released June 25.

Waiters, singers, dancers, all moved to the Arbuckle studio, in addition to about one hundred extras who acted as diners.
Mutual Engages Capellani to Direct Julia Sanderson

Albert Capellani, recognized as one of the foremost directors of silent drama, has been engaged by John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation to direct for the Empire All-Star Corporation, the productions of Julia Sanderson, the latest of the Clara Kimball Young stars to be added to Mutual’s “Big stars only.” He leaves the post of director-general of the Clara Kimball Young Corporation to become affiliated with the Mutual organization.

Mr. Capellani’s career began in the Paris studio of Pathé, where he entered the production picture business as an assistant cameraman. He became during his five years with Pathé of Paris, cameraman and director. The following seven years he spent directing feature productions in France, leaving Europe to come to the United States as a director for World. When the Clara Kimball Young Corporation was organized, he was chosen to direct Miss Young in “The Common Law,” producing later “The Foolish Virgin.”

Bray-Picto No. 71 a War Number

War topics monopolize the entire issue of Bray-Pictographs from Paramount the current week. T. F. Leventhal, the wizard of “animated blue-prints,” shows us an ingenious new American idea of “traveling forts.” Guns and ammunition are mobilized at central points, ready on railroad trucks to move to a moment’s notice to command emplacements at all important defensive points.

Repairing a sub-sea cable, so important to war communication; scenes at the N. Y. State School of Agriculture, at Farmingdale, L. I., where half a hundred American women are trained in khaki suits to come to the business end of a plow or tractor, and a war cartoon, entitled, “The Evolution of the Dachshund,” showing the bright little German pup developed into a huge serpent, attempting to strangle Dame Europe, with England and France struggling to free her. A blow from “Uncle Sam” finally results in a resuming of the original form of the cute little pup, now free from Bill Hoenzollern’s power.

Rushes Across Continent to Join Lockwood Force

Five days after receiving an urgent request to come West to appear with Harold Lockwood in “Under Handicap,” Miss Anna Little had signed a contract, gathered her wardrobe in Los Angeles by telegrams and special messenger, journeyed from New York to the Quaker Circle V Bar Branch near Prescott, Ariz., and was in make-up at work in the picture.

The day before the Yorke-Metro Company was to have left Los Angeles for the location in Arizona, Fred J. Balshofer, the president and director, found himself without a leading woman for Lockwood. He required for the picture a beautiful and capable actress who could ride well. A telegram was dispatched to Miss Little in New York, and within an hour a reply was received accepting the contract, and Miss Little was making her preparations for the trip.

Marian Swayne’s Production Soon Ready

“The Road Between,” which will be Marian Swayne’s second production for the Erbograph Company, is rapidly assuming shape at the studios in 146th street, New York, and it is expected that the director, Joseph Levering, will have it ready for cutting in a week or so.

This picture will, it is thought, be peculiarly acceptable to exhibitors just now, for since the release of “Little Miss Fortune,” Miss Swayne’s previous production, many requests have come in for another picture with the same star. The producers are confident that “The Road Between” will be even better than its predecessor. While the story is in much the same vein—that of comedy-drama with great human interest—the character portrayed by the star is totally different from the one she played in “Little Miss Fortune,” where she was a poor house wif.

The story points the moral that sudden wealth is more likely than not to lead not to happiness, but to misery. Armand Cortez, Bradley Barker, Grace Stevens and Frank Andrews are in the cast.

July L-Ko’s Delivered for Distribution

General Director J. G. Blystone has completed the full supply of July L-Ko’s, in which will be introduced the most popular of comedians of the series. Noel Smith, Dick Smith and Vim Moore have directed, under Mr. Blystone’s supervision, comedies for Dan Russell, Sammy Burns, Myrtle Sterling and Robert McKenzie.

“Surf Scandal” will be a timely summer attraction, Dan Russell with Gladys Varden featured. There will be a bevy of bathing girls, scenes in a comedy gymnasium and numerous episodes based on physical culture as the method of provoking the laughs.

“Vamping Reuben’s Millions” will have Robert McKenzie, Eva Novak, Chas. Ryckman and an assisting company, with Miss Young doing the “vamp” specialty along comedy lines. Sammy Burns will be featured in “Bombs and Bandits,” while Myrtle Sterling and Lucille Hatton will be prominent in “Her Daring, Caring Ways.”

While Mr. Blystone is now working on further subjects for subsequent release, the full quota for July having been delivered for distribution through Universal Exchanges.

Efficiency Is Watchword of Paralta Executive

Herman Katz Entered Pictures

Herman Katz, the treasurer of Paralta Players, Inc., became interested in the moving picture industry as a result of casual curiosity—how a business could involve so much capital, make such prodigious returns and yet show only meagre profits, or loss, to the greater number of people interested, was a puzzle to him.

He met Herman Fichtenberg, the New Orleans exhibitor, father of the Paralta plan of distribution. After discussing the whole subject with him, Mr. Katz became convinced that sound commercial sense applied to the entire picture industry would make it financially, as well as in name, the fifth business interest in the United States. As a result of this conviction, he became treasurer of the Paralta interests when they were incorporated last March.

Through Curiosity—Believes Immeasurably Increase Results

While Mr. Katz at this time is very little known in the moving picture trade, he is a man of wide reputation in commercial circles for his business ability and extensive financial interests. When but 30 years of age he retired from active business. This was less than ten years ago.

Speaking of his entry into the picture production and distribution, Mr. Katz said:

“What the moving picture industry needs is financial common sense and intensive business methods from top to bottom. With such innovations introduced there can be no doubt of its stability and value as an industry. Everybody who has studied the question knows this, but up to the development of Mr. Fichtenberg’s Paralta plan, no one had seemed disposed to make a battle on practical lines to bring about needed reforms.

“The lasting qualities of this industry need not be doubted. The moving picture has come to stay and will continue to be distinctively the poor man’s amusement as well as entertainment for all classes of people.

“If one individual can make over a million dollars on an investment of less than $5,000 in four years, under the conditions which have prevailed, with sound business development and honesty behind it all, it would be very difficult to convince me, after what I have learned, that the moving picture industry is not a good field for generous capital to enter. It certainly offers great possibilities.

“Apply to film manufacture, distribution and exhibition the same intensive effort and efficiency displayed in other lines of merchandizing in these days and the result will unquestionably be success to all concerned.”

Herman Katz, Treasurer of Paralta Players, Inc., entered the picture business through casual curiosity — how a business could involve so much capital and yet show only a small profit. He became convinced of the need for sound commercial sense and entered the Paralta plan of distribution. He believes this will increase results immeasurably.

“SEVEN CUTEY PUPS”

Vincent Colby’s World Famous Drawings Come to Life In Moving Pictures.

A distinct novelty is now being booked through the Universal Exchanges throughout the country. Wherever post cards are sold Vincent Colby’s puppies are known. Millions of these have added to Uncle Sam’s postal revenues and now they are to have even wider fame and popularity through the medium of the screen. “Seven Cutey Pups” is the attractive title of this latest animated cartoon which shows the sad (?) fate of each in a screamingly funny way. The clever drawings are not merely on-line, as are most of this class of subjects; they are shaded or modeled and the effect is to make the puppies unusually life-like. Everyone who sees this novelty one-reel feature will enjoy it to the limit. It will please them all, young and old alike. It can be booked through any one of the 73 Universal Exchanges, or direct from the home office.

PREPAREDNESS

Popular News Weekly Features Timely Subjects In Current Release.

Preparedness activities continue to fill the public mind and the Universal Animated Weekly subjects reflect this attitude. In the current release are pictures of Liberty Loan Parades; the first big ship of the new merchant marine flotilla; Harvard soldiers in review; French troops honoring dead American aviator; 5,000 cavalry at Ft. Ethan Allen; official French war pictures; marvelous views of the formidable “tanks” in action, and other patriotic views of like nature. There are also some remarkable scenes of the recent Western cyclone, an Italian earthquake, and the ever popular cartoons by the world famous cartoonist, H. Hy Mayer. The whole makes up a one-reel feature that is constantly increasing in popularity, and maintains the standard established by the U. A. W. which has given it the prestige which it now enjoys. The U. A. W. is released every week on the regular Universal Program, but may be booked separately if desired thru any Universal Exchange.

CURRENT EVENTS

Fourth Release Increases Interest In Newest Topical Review.

Unusually interesting subjects are shown on Universal Current Events in every number. Expect Wonders from Young Pathe Star

In Aimee Dalmaes, the Italian beauty, George Fitzmaurice, directing Astra pictures, which are released on the Pathe program, believes that he has made a wonderful find.

Miss Dalmaes made her picture debut in a Pathe picture called "The On the Square Girl," which is scheduled for release in the near future, and the result of her work in that production has led Mr. Fitzmaurice to believe that he has found one of the greatest screen beauties in the world.

Though still exceedingly young, Miss Dalmaes has had a most interesting career. She was born in Salerno, Italy, but outside of Naples, but when she was only five years old came over to this country with her family. As a child she developed a talent for music, and at an early age was sent to Paris to study music and the arts with an idea of fitting herself for the operatic stage.

When very young Miss Dalmaes studied music and the arts in Paris. In 1914 she made her theatrical debut in the Winter Garden, New York, as Mademoiselle Mitzi. Later she appeared with Lou-Tellegen in "Taking Chances," and with Emily Stevens in "The Unchastened Woman."

Pickford-Huff Combination in Romantic Subject

Described as a romantic story full of dramatic action, "What Money Can't Buy," co-starring Louise Huff and Jack Pickford, presents the latter in a role of a vigorous young American who gets into difficulties through interfering with the politics of a little Balkan state called Maritza.

The boy's attention to the Princess Irena awakens the jealousy of Govian Texler, a wealthy citizen, who is in love with the girl and holds first lien on her father's properties. He is about to force the king to permit him to marry the princess when she expresses a deep preference for the young American. Thereupon things happen with startling rapidity. Dick finds himself in jail on a trumped up charge and in imminent danger of losing his life until his millionaire father starts a little private revolution of his own and very nearly tears the kingdom up by the roots in his determination to overthrow the rule of Texler.

Star Assured to Bluebird for Long Period

Under the terms of a contract between Dorothy Phillips and Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., the services of Miss Phillips are assured to exhibitors of the Bluebird program until Dec. 15, 1918. This date will be, almost to a day, two years from the time Miss Phillips made her first appearance in the Bluebird Rock, playing "The Price of Silence."

Previous to last December Miss Phillips was active in Universal features. Since then she has appeared regularly every month and is scheduled, for some time to come, as a monthly feature of the program. To keep her energy fully employed, two directors have been working on productions with Miss Phillips, the stars. They are Joseph De Grasse and Ida May Park, who, in private life, is Mrs. De Grasse.

It was Mr. De Grasse who introduced Miss Phillips to Bluebirds and his wife served as his first assistant in preparing scenarios and aiding in production. Recently Miss Park began working on her own, "The Flashlight," released a few weeks ago, being her first subject. Now she is employed in producing "The Rescue."

The Famous Chaplin Brothers, Charlie and Sid, Caught During the Filming of Mutuals "The Immigrant"

"Everybody's Lonesome" will be presented as a five-reel drama. Miss Laughlin herself is supervising the work of picturizing her story.

Mr. Weisfeldt announces that in addition to "Everybody's Lonesome," production will shortly begin on another of Miss Laughlin's works, "The Penny Philanthropist."

"It is my belief that Miss Laughlin will become one of the most popular screen writers of the day," Mr. Weisfeldt asserted.

"Her writings have that human touch that the public loves. Her stories are natural—true to life—and everything she ever has written measures up to the new standard of wholesomeness which this company is to present on the screen."

"It has always been a following of tens of thousands who have read the many novels she has written and are eagerly awaiting the presentation of her stories in motion pictures."

Gladys Hulette in First Astra Picture, "The Cigarette Girl"

Gladys Hulette, star of The Shine Girl, "Prudence, the Pirate," "Two Things and Pans Peggie," "Her New York," and "The Candy Girl," all Gold Rooster plays, is announced in the first picture in which she has appeared since joining the Astra forces. "The Cigarette Girl" is the title, and it will be released July 8. It was directed by William Parke. In the cast are Warner Oland, the villain of "Patria," and William Parke, Jr.

The Cigarette Girl" gives the story of a young and innocent girl who supports her elderly mother and herself by selling cigars and cigarettes in a fashionable restaurant.

An alliance with a good-for-nothing lout, at whose behest she subsequently marries a young man of great wealth, who in that manner avoids the toils of a blackmailing woman and her husband, opens the way for a story of sustained interest.

Acting in co-operation with the service and advertising department of The Frohman Corporation, General Manager Foster Moore, of the Mammoth Corporation, has designed several innovations in the matter of exploitation of "God's Man" which departures will be evidenced at the beginning of the Newark run of "God's Man."
New Philadelphia Home of Mutual a Model

Compelled by its growing business to seek much larger quarters, the Mutual Film Exchange of Philadelphia is now established in its handsome new home on the second floor of the Jarvis Film Building, the only real fireproof film building in the city.

Aided in every way by C. S. Jarvis, owner of the building; B. F. Tolmas, Mutual Exchange manager, and G. B. Svenson, of the Mutual construction department, have laid out an ideal exchange so arranged as to give exhibitors one hundred per cent efficiency. In fact, this is to be the slogan under which the exchange will work.

A handsomely-fitted reception room, convenient offices, well-arranged booking and poster departments, with, above all, the most up-to-date film vaults built in the wall, are only a few of the many excellencies of the exchange.

The projection room will have not only comfortable cane chairs, a fine screen with velvet curtains veiling it, but a fireproof closet and a thirty-foot throw.

F.I.L.M. Club Election

H. Siegel, of L. J. Selznick, and Mr. Gehond, of the Triangle, were admitted to membership at a meeting last Tuesday of the F. I. L. M. Club.

Election of officers for the ensuing six months was held, with results as follows: President, E. H. Saunders; first vice-president, H. H. Buxbaum; second vice-president, S. B. Kramer; treasurer and secretary, W. E. Raynor; chairman of board of directors, S. Zieden.

Retiring President A. F. Beck delivered an interesting talk, in which he complimented the members on the many reforms effected since the club had been organized, and predicted greater success in the future, as the exhibitors all now recognized that their interests are well conserved by the liberal policy adopted by the club.

A silver tea set was presented to Second Vice-President S. B. Kramer as a wedding gift.

Philadelphia Branch Notes

John D. Clark, former manager and president of the Metro Philadelphia Exchange, has become manager of the Philadelphia Famous Players Exchange, succeeding O. F. Bower. Mr. Clark announces no changes at present in the policy of the exchange.

George F. Ames has severed his connection with the General Film Exchange of Philadelphia. Mr. Ames would not announce his new plans except to say that he would remain in Philadelphia.

P. A. Bloch remains as manager of the General in the Quaker City.

Goldwyn Corporations Open St. Louis Quarters

OFFICES for the distribution of Goldwyn pictures in St. Louis have been established in the Plaza Building, at 3801 Olive street. Floyd Lewis, who opened the Triangle exchange in St. Louis, will be in charge as manager. The Goldwyn exchange will be on the second floor of the building, with an entrance on Locust street.

The Bluebird exchange, which has been located with the Universal at 2116 Locust street, has moved to the Knights of Columbus Building, at 3547 Olive street, and Joe Levy succeeds S. J. Baker as manager.

Mr. Levy was manager of the William Fox exchange until a few months ago, when he went East and became associated with the Masterpiece Film Corporation, who are exploiting "The Crisis" and other big state rights films.

Detroit Exchange News

A. I. Shapiro, recently in charge of the Selznick Exchange at Buffalo, N. Y., has arrived in Detroit to take charge of the office to be opened at once by the Goldwyn Distribution Corporation, handling Goldwyn productions. While Mr. Shapiro will eventually take quarters in the new film building at John R and Elizabeth streets, he will open a downtown office temporarily where he can meet exhibitors and talk over the Goldwyn proposition.

F. O. Peters is now covering the eastern half of Michigan for the Vitagraph Company. He formerly traveled for William Fox out of the Minneapolis Exchange.

George Rowell, formerly field man in Michigan for Vitagraph, is now covering the same territory for Pathé.

Howard A. Bauer has resigned as manager at Detroit for Arclraft in order to devote his entire time to his motor car interests. H. A. Ross, Paramount manager at Detroit, will in addition handle the Arclraft affairs.

Western Exchange Dottings

E. C. Jensen, general Western representative World Film Corporation, is making a trip over the territory from his headquarters at Denver, Colorado, and spent several days in Los Angeles this week. Conditions are very encouraging according to the report of Mr. Jensen, who came to this territory following a tour to all parts of the United States in the interest of the World Film Corporation. There is more hysteria among exhibitors of the Coast and mountain States, he finds than in any other section, and this is attributed to the fact that the prosperity wave brought to the United States by war conditions, has only been felt in a very small way in the West, because all manufactur-

D. M. Thomas has succeeded Sam Sturman as head of the William Fox interests in St. Louis territory. Mr. Thomas, who hails from New York originally, comes here from the Cincinnati office, but he is no stranger to St. Louis, as he worked out of the Fox office as traveling representative a few months ago.

E. W. Dustin, who was manager for the International offices until the consolidation with Pathé, has been made manager of the Triangle exchange in the Plaza Building, succeeding Floyd Lewis, who opens the Goldwyn offices. Mr. Dustin is one of the best known film men in the country. He opened the Pathe office here when that organization began independent distribution. After that he was head of the World Film offices, going from there to the International.

AFTER reading through a page and a half of typewriting, eulogizing Madge Kennedy, written, it is said, by an author of gravity and poise after seeing the comedienne in her first Goldwyn picture, we are only able to gasp faintly for water—or something.

We are thinking seriously of having it copied by some nerveless typist and sending it to Walt Hill, Eddie Mullens and Hill Grinn. It would have made something for Walt to make of it, when the returns of the grand registration are made public!

THINK of ingenuity who will be no longer such after the returns of the grand registration are made public!

THE most important announcement of the week comes from Terry Ramsay, who tells of the manner in which an unruly bean, while venturing down Charlie Chaplin's throat, took refuge in a sheltering mask, causing him to choke, thus giving away the fact that the comedian is a ventriloquist. Charlie was in the studio during his assistant's direction to remain mute while a scene was being photographed and casting his own voice in the assistant's direction. But now, alas! the beans arc spilled.

ON Wednesday of last week sixty-seven people whispered in our ear that “Today” would be shown tomorrow.

And speaking of comedies, a reviewer recently wanted to know why Mack Sennett doesn't do a serial! If he did, we have half a notion that it would be the serial supreme. Think of watching the antics of Ambrose or the Walrus for fifteen weeks as they did battle in the cause of virtue.

THE following was let in with the week's news:

E EDITORIAL

"Why don't you write something about the scarcity of good five-reel comedies?” someone asked us. To which we answered, “We don't know." Good five-reel comedies certainly are scarce, even scarcer than good five-reel dramas and melodramas. But that's about all there is to be said on the subject.

However, we should like to see Mack Sennett turn out a five-reel Keystone just for a change. So much of the hilarity of Sennett humor might increase the mortality rate, but even so the venture would be worth the price.

Just at present the only consistently good feature brand of comedies are the Douglas Fairbanks pictures.

The Ince Studios very often produce a good one by intent, and some Paramount five reels have been known to supply very much comedy and very little fatigue. But otherwise no company has the habit of turning out good comedies as a regular thing. We forgot Essanay. This company does comedy too, but that about rounds out the circle.

Iowans Await Next Move to Enforce "Blue Laws"

Those Iowa exhibitors who were arrested and then freed for alleged violations of the seventy-year-old "Blue Laws" are now waiting the next move of Attorney General Havner, and at the same time exulting in the frank opinion rendered by Police Judge Frank Capell of Council Bluffs in scoring the attorney general. This opinion in part follows:

In his ruling the judge stated that attempts to tear down the social and business structure, through the mode of living, by bringing forward dead "blue laws" was little short of ridiculous, and that he would not be a party to it.

Judge Joseph Meyer of the Municipal Court, Des Moines, held that motion pictures are clean, wholesome amusements, and that whatever labor is attendant upon them would come under the head of "necessary," which is in itself exempt under the statute.

Stable Admission Policy Packs Ogden Houses

OGDEN, UTAH, motion picture exhibitors having stuck to the ten-cent admission price, a price within the reach of everybody despite the H. C. L. and wartime prices in commodities, are packing their theatres every performance. Not a single theatre has closed here, and business is so good that Harmon W. Peery, proprietor of the Ogden theatre has made plans for the erection on the main street of the city of what will be the largest motion picture house in this part of the state.

Business at the Alhambra theatre has increased from an average of a couple hundred people a night, six months ago to approximately 3,000 a night, a record established at this theatre last week when the Douglas Fairbanks' picture "In Again—Out Again" was shown. More than 6,000 people saw this picture the two nights it played at the Alhambra.

The Douglas Fairbanks' comedies are the big drawing card in this territory, seconded by William S. Hart pictures. Manager Peery of the Ogden has made arrangements for re-booking all past releases of the Fairbanks' comedies.

Manager H. Edgar Skinner of the Alhambra theatre, has built up a splendid patronage by giving a concert, featuring local vocalists and musicians, in connection with his Sunday and Wednesday evening performances, and by admitting all children free when accompanied by their parents Saturday afternoons and Sunday evenings.

"Children Free Tonight" packs the house, and the Alhambra seats 2,300 people every performance.

Exhibitors are finding a change of program every two or, at most three days, the most profitable way of booking attractions here. Serials are not favored now as they were a year or so ago.

As for the outlook during war times—W. Fred Bussner of the Ogden Pictures' Corporation sums it up in the following words:

"War or no war, people are not going to miss the dime they pay to see a motion picture show. While the wartime conditions undoubtedly will hurt the amusements, one has to pay a dollar or two dollars to enjoy, it's certain that the 'movie' show, furnishing a maximum of relaxation at a minimum price, is going to draw more people than ever before."

Canadian Tax Causes Raise in Admissions

G. A. Margetts, manager of the St. John office of the Canadian Universal Film Company, says that the new one-cent war tax is causing considerable confusion in some of the Nova Scotia theatres. A number of them are arranging to raise their price five cents and pay the tax. This has already been done in Halifax, although the admission has not been increased for the evening show, the matinee prices remaining the same. So that it will not affect the children in the afternoon, exhibitors pay the tax themselves.

Sydney exhibitors say that they will raise the prices, in fact most of the exhibitors throughout the province are contemplating this change. Business is very good in Nova Scotia in most of the towns, although bad weather that has been prevailing for the last two or three weeks has a tendency to keep down the patronage.

Veteran U Man Takes Over Two Theatres

W. H. Swanson, one of the pioneers in the organization of the Universal, but now interested in a chain of theatres in Colorado and Utah, has taken personal charge of the Strand and American theatres in Salt Lake, Utah, following the resignation of H. E. Ellison, who has been manager of the houses for the past year. Mr. Ellismo has gone to Denver, where he will make his headquarters pending active work in connection with several big state right propositions.

W. H. Swanson's American and Strand theatres are the largest houses in Salt Lake playing pictures. The Strand is playing the Fox features, while the American is doing capacity with Triangle releases.

Mr. Swanson has inaugurated a unique advertising feature and is utilizing the thirty thousand dollar pipe organ to carry out his ideas. He advertises a pipe organ solo for every show and in addition has a vocalist whom he bills as "The Unseen Singer."

Theatre Manager Joins Paramount

Arthur B. Price, who has been the manager of the Rialto and Mt. Royal theatres, for several years past, has been made Baltimore representative for the Paramount Program. Mr. Price's headquarters will be the Famous Players Exchange at Washington, D. C, but he will spend all of his time in this city. The new office will not cause Mr. Price to relinquish interest in the Rialto and Mt. Royal. He will continue to book for these theatres and will take an active interest in their management.
Reports Indicate Big Attendance for Convention

While Manager Ludwig Schindler is in New York on his second trip signing up first floor at the coming national exposition and convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League, to be held at the Chicago Coliseum in July, the rest of the committee are hard at work in the Chicago headquarters endeavoring to excite interest and bring attendance from all branches of the industry. The public, the picture fans of the Windy City, are not being neglected, for they will be depended upon to swell the admission receipts.

The exhibitors of Wisconsin seem to have given more and earlier expression of their interest and intentions for the coming convention than many others. They have notified National Secretary Sweeney, that they have already selected their delegation to represent them at Chicago in July. The following are the names of the delegates who will attend: G. Fischer, J. Grauman, H. Trinr, T. Brunner, and F. Cook, of Milwaukee; Messrs. Fisher and Sherwood from Madison; T. A. Lee, of Fon Du Lac, J. Ruhle, of Kentosha and J. C. Smith, of Oshkosh.

Even the exhibitors of unorganized Texas are planning to be in attendance. The exhibits on the floor of the exposition, it is predicted, will be the most comprehensive ever. Some of the latest to sign space contracts are: Cahill-Igoe, Marquette Piano Company, Nicholas Power Company, Frohman Amusement Company, Sunshine Company, Hum Hairpin Company, Westminster Electric & Manufacturing Company, Fox Film Company, and Simplex Machine Company, and many other concerns are planning to fill the floor at the coming national exposition and convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League.

BLINDNESS threatens Patsy De Forest, the Vitagraph star, the result of too close application to her work.

Miss De Forest was last seen on the screen in "Her Secret," Blue Ribbon production, featuring Harry Morey and Alice Joyce. Recently she had been doing double service, working in two pictures at the same time. This meant that she spent practically all of her waking hours in the studio and the constant glare of the studio lights proved too great a strain on her eyes.

A week ago she discovered that her sight was getting weaker, but paid no particular attention to it. Then one night when she was working, she went temporarily blind. She was rushed to her home in Flatbush immediately, and since then has been under the constant care of specialists. The doctors declare that her condition has improved and in all probability she will recover in a few weeks.

ELSIE FERGUSON, who will shortly commence work for Artcraft in "Barbary Sheep," paid a visit to both Eastern studios of the Famous Players-Lasky last week in order to acquaint herself with the new atmosphere in which she will work. At the Fifty-sixth street, New York, studio Miss Ferguson was greeted by George M. Cohan, who is appearing in his second Artcraft picture, "Seven Keys to Baldpate." Mr. Cohan ceased his activities before the camera in order to initiate the caller into the inner circle of the photoplay realm.

On a tour through the entire studio, George M. explained the various mysteries of the film craft to Miss Ferguson, who displayed great interest in the strange surroundings. This was Miss Ferguson's first visit to a film studio.

At the Fort Lee studio the beautiful star stage was shown through the great glass house which will be the home of her motion picture work under the direction of Maurice Tourneur. Under the guidance of Studio Manager Lowe, Miss Ferguson was taken through the developing and printing plant at Fort Lee, where she expressed amazement at the various intricacies of film technique.

MADAME PÉTROVA, the Lasky-Paramount star, whose first Paramount picture was presented at the Rialto theatre, in New York City, two weeks ago, presented the Manager Director of that institution, Samuel L. Rothapfel, with a silver trophy, in cup form, as an exemplification of her appreciation of the presentation Mr. Rothapfel gave her production. The presentation of the solid silver trophy was made by Mme. Petrova on the stage of the theatre on Friday evening, June 1.

The trophy will remain in the possession of the Rialto management for one year, when it will be presented to some other director in some other community in the United States, and so on for a period of ten years. The trophy is to encourage the improvement of music in motion picture theatres, a subject that has been of deepest interest to Mme. Petrova since she adopted the screen as her work.

ROBERT WARWICK, who has been drilling diligently with the members of the New York Athletic Club for the past six weeks, has been appointed drill master for a squad of rookies. He can be found at the club house every Thursday evening or at Travers Island every Saturday afternoon, teaching the youngsters how to handle a gun.

PRACTICALLY a whole fleet of ships of various ages, sizes and periods are to be used in the next production of The Whartons, preparations for which now are being completed at the Ithaca studios. Two of these will be pirate vessels of the seventeenth century, another will be a present day yacht, while others will be schooners and merchantmen of the old days. The lagoon, which travels through the Wharton plant, already has begun to take on the appearance of a shipyard.

Two of the vessels, each more than a hundred feet long, and being built practically in every way, are nearing completion, while others soon will be put into commission.

KITY GORDON, Director Archibald and most of the members of the company supporting Miss Gordon in "The Divine Sacrifice," a new World-Picture Brady-Made, are at Hackensack, New York, this week "taking" exterior scenes. The party consists of fourteen persons, with John Tuerk as business manager.

MABEL TALIAFERRO, Metro star, has been elected an honorary corporal of Company K, Home Defense League of Flushing, L. I. This is the first time in the history of the league that a woman has been so honored. Miss Taliaferro has accepted the position and already has ordered a uniform and will soon make her appearance with the Flushing division of the league.

THE New York Globe newspaper office was turned into a moving picture studio one day last week when an entire company of actors, directors, cameramen and carpenters invaded the Globe's city room for scenes in "The Food Gamblers," a Triangle production to be released in July. Editors vacated their sanctums, reporters deserted their typewriters and office boys stood around with bulging eyes to watch a movie in the making. "The Food Gamblers" features Wilfred Lucas and Elda Miller and is supervised by Allan Dwan.

E. K. Lincoln, the lead in the Mutual series, "The Adventures of Jimmie Dale Alias the Grey Seal," has been exhibiting his pedigree dogs at the Wilmington, Del., bench show.

Eleven dogs were entered from the Lincoln kennels and nine of these came off victorious with first prizes. Mr. Lincoln is spending a week at his kennels at Wilmington.

BEFORE this story is printed and distributed to the big family of News readers, the tenth release of Charles Chaplin Comedies, "The Immigrant," will be completed and on its way to the printing laboratories of the Mutual.

At this time it is not possible to tell what is in the story, for Mr. Chaplin is now supervising the cutting or editing. He started in with thirty thousand feet of film, and expects to reduce this to 2,000. In this connection it is interesting to know how Chaplin makes his pictures, for has a way all his own. In the making of every scene, he directs every individual player who takes part, unless it is an exceptionally large mob scene. In each instance he goes through-the action, showing the player just how he desires the scene put over. If he plays it himself, he goes through his own actions first, and then shows each one of his supporting people just what is expected of them.

When all the scenes are taken, editing of the film begins, and this is the most strenuous part of the comedian's work. Mr. Chaplin has found he can do much better work at night, and so rests during the day and edits the film between the hours of 7 P. M. and 5 A. M. His photographic staff works with him together with a continuity writer and other necessary technical people. Just how much of a task it is to edit a Chaplin-Mutual comedy may be best gained by explaining that Mr. Chaplin began Wednesday evening, and has worked every night since. He expects to complete the work so that the finished film may be shipped to the East by Monday.

AFTER the film has passed his critical eye a score of times, the subtitles are added, and then begins another re-editing. When this is completed the sample print is turned over to a writer who prepares the continuity and writes the story of the comedy to be used for copyright purposes. The process of production Mr. Chaplin finds the most successful, is just the opposite to that followed by ninety per cent of the producing companies. In most cases the continuity is the first thing prepared, and after this the subject is made according to the "script." The editing of a Chaplin film is considered the most important part of the production, for it is at this time that the highest priced comedian gives his comedy the real punch. The subtitles are dictated while the film is being edited. The reverse manner of production is the cause of many changes in the making of a picture after the actual filming has been commenced.

FROM the Ince Studio this week comes the announcement of the engagement of a number of new players. Frank Borzage, actor-director, late with the Essanay in the filming of a Japanese subject, has been selected to play opposite Besie Love in her second Ince-Triangle subject by J. G. Hawks, which is being made by Director Charles Miller. Borzage will be remembered as having formerly been affiliated with the Ince organization, and appeared as leading man in "The Typhoon," "The Wrath of the Gods" and "The Cup of Life." Wm. Conklin, who has just completed an engagement at the American Studio, where he played opposite Gail Kane, is to take an important part opposite Louise Glaum in a production now being made by Director Reginald Barker. This story is laid in the West, and has Jack Richardson, Jack Gilbert, J. P. Lockney and Gertrude Claire as principals of the supporting cast. Miss Glaum will appear as the proprietress of a sage brush dance hall.

Another new face on the Ince lot is Edwin M. Wallock, who took character leads in a number of Selig and Universal subjects. Mr. Wallock appeared as heavy in the coming Hart subject, "Level Leigh," and is now playing in support of Charles Ray in "Sudden Jim."

THE DAVID HORSEY Studio took on greater producing activities this week when a second comedy company was established. This producing unit will devote its time exclusively to the making of light farce parlor comedies which will feature Gertrude Selby, late of L-Ko, Universal and Fox films, with Neal Burnis who appeared in scores of Nestor and Christie Comedies of a similar nature. Horace Davey, who directed Nestor Comedies and for more than a year has been with the Christie Film Company, will be in charge of the direction. The new brand will be made for Messrs. David Horsey and W. A. S. Douglas, and release will shortly be announced.

the filming of its first production which is being made under the supervision of Thomas Ricketts. This organization has been working in the mountains almost every day this week on exteriors of the subject, title of which will shortly be given.

Types of every description were engaged this week at the Horsley Studio for parts in the Cub Comedy, "Jerry's Eugenie Marriage," the script, by Director Milton Hrahacy, one of every description, fat and lean, handsome and homely. The director and his assistant, Claire DeWitt, barred George Ovey from the consultation, as the action provided that he should carry several of the heavy ladies off the scene, and they decided he should have nothing to do with the selection with respect to weight.

THE SIGNAL COMPANY is now on the fifteen episode, the last of "The Kailrond Raiders," which will be used in a coming Signal-Mutual serial. The fourth episode of the new Universal serial, "The Myster- of the Gray Ghost," has been completed by B. C. Eving, and will conclude the serial in true McGowan style. The script provides for a number of scenes to be spoken by Miss Lily Ellett, the signal company's star. No successors have been named at U City for the two executives who are leaving.

Another change became known Saturday, when Jack Cunningham, who has been scenario editor, left the Universal. Colonel Brady continues as manager of the department, and J. Grubh Alexander, who has been a writer for the Universal for the past thirty months, becomes scenario editor.

With these changes it also became known that the entire scenario department has been transferred to the west coast. Readers will be maintained at the New York offices of the Universal, but their work will be under the supervision of Universal City executives. This means that all scenarios should be submitted to the U City department.

EUGENE MOORE, who is to direct Violet MacMillon in two Bluebird photo-plays, is now on the coast having arrived this week from New York. The first to be filmed will be "Nancy's Baby." Pictures to be placed in production early the coming week will be "Sand on the Rail," featuring Helen Gibson; "Mysteries Egypt," directed by Marshall Stedman and Lena Baskette; "The Vamp of Camp," a Joker, and "Taking Their Medicine," a Lyons-Moran-Clements Nestor.

The fourth episode of the new Universal serial, "The Mystery of the Gray Ghost," has been completed by Director Stuart Paton, with Priscilla Dean, Harry Carter, Eddie Polo and Emery Johnson as his principal players. Work on the fifth episode of this serial, which is being scenarioized from the novel titled "Lost," by Arthur Somers Roche, has already been taken up.

DIRECTOR LYNN REYNOLDS has the interiors for the Bluebird subject, "Mr. Opp," in the filming, with a cast composed of Arthur Hoyt in the title role; Neva Gerber in the opposite lead, supported by Alyse Maison, Martha Mattox, Jane Bernoudy, George Chelsoro, George Hernandez and Jack Curtis. The subject, which is a human interest story written by Alice Heged Rice, will be in five reels. The company is just home from two weeks at Santa Cruz, where exteriors were made.

Universal Director Charles Swickard is still busy with the filming of a five-reel mystery story, the working title of which is "The House of Gloom." The photo-play was written by E. M. Ingham of the Universal staff, and it is said Director Swickard claims this to be the best script ever given him to direct. Those appearing in the subject are Chester Bennett, Donna Moon, Joe Girard, Gretchen Lederer, Charles Mailes, Josie Sedgwick, Peggy Custer and Val Paul.

Marshall Stedman, who was recently placed in charge of directing for the Universal, has completed his first subject titled "A Romany Rose," which is in two reels and was written especially for little Lena Baskette by Myrtle Stedman. The supporting cast includes Claire McDowell, Charles Mailes, Walter Balesco and Edwin Brown.

"An Eventful Honeymoon" is the title of a two-reel animal drama being made at U City by W. B. Pearson, with Eileen Sedgwick in the featured role. Fred Church plays the principal male lead, and the supporting cast includes Nellie Allen, T. E. Rittenden and Sam Appel.

FRANCIS FORD is directing and playing the featured lead in the Louis Evan Shipman story, "John Ermine of the Yellowstone," which, it is planned, will be filmed in eight reels. Mac Gaston is playing the opposite lead, and Duke Worne appears in an important part of this coming Universal subject.

A company of sixty Universal players, headed by Director Allen J. Holubar, are at the Santa Cruz Islands, filming exterior scenes for the subject titled "Sirens of the Sea." Jack Mulhall and Louise Love are the leading players, and Evelyn Selbie, Helen Wright and Wadsworth Harris are the principal supporting players. Grace Helen Bailey of the Universal staff is the author of the story.
The first episode of "The Silent Terror" is being filmed at U City by Director Jacques Jaccard, with Marie Walcamp and Larry Peyton as the principal players. This mystery serial will be in sixteen episodes.

The five-reel Bluebird subject, "My Mother," written by E. J. Clawson and produced by Rupert Julian, is nearing completion at the Big U studios. Director Julian plays a principal part in this subject, and is supported by Ruth Clifford, Ruby La Fayette and Elsie Jane Wilson.

Helen Gibson, featured in the Kalem "Daughter of Daring" serial, is now working in her second production for the Universal under the direction of J. D. Davis. The working title for the subject is "Under False Pretenses," and Millard K. Wilson appears in the leading role opposite Miss Gibson.

Louis W. Chaudet is directing Ruth Stonehouse in a five-reel Universal subject written by Fred Myton, titled "The Little Swede." Miss Stonehouse has Roy Stewart as her leading man, and Claire McDowell, Jack Dill, Harry Donkinson and E. L. Brady are in the supporting cast.

The Universal Harry Carey Company, under the direction of Jack Ford, have been filming scenes in the vicinity of Newhall, Cal., for "Cactus, My Pal," the latest of the "Cheyenne Harry" series, which is in two reels. This subject, as all previous ones featuring Harry Carey, has a Western atmosphere. Gertrude Astor plays the opposite lead.

Director W. W. Beaudine is producing a one-reel comedy for the Universal, titled "Desert Dilemma," and has as his principal players William Finney, Lillian Peacock, Za Su Pitts, Milburn Morantti and Milton Uh.

The Universal Nestor aggregation, including Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts, under the direction of Roy Clements, are busy filming "The Night Cap," in one reel, while Director Allen Curtis, with Gale Henry and Milton Sims, is busy with "Her Mistake in Love," also in one reel.

These are quiet days at the Lasky studio in Hollywood, for this week there was but one company working.

Other directors are working with the scenario department in the preparation of scripts. William C. deMille will shortly commence a subject with Susie Hayakawa as the star, the story dealing with Japanese in America.

Work of preparing stories for the screen Geraldine Farrar-Arctet is now receiving the consent of Jeanie MacPherson, who has written all the Farrar stories, Director General Cecil B. deMille, and Miss Farrar herself. It is expected work on these will be started some time during the latter part of this month.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by Cecil B. deMille that the Lasky Company will pay to dependents of married men now in the employ of the company their salaries if the men are called to the colors. Captain Theodore Duncan of Company 17, Coast Artillery Reserves, and Second Lieutenant Walter Long will be called to the colors on August 5. The Lasky Home Guards, consisting of almost 100 men, is composed almost entirely of men beyond the conscription age, and who are not subject to immediate draft. Every unmarried man of conscription age in the employ of the Lasky Company has volunteered his services, and thus it is not probable that any member of this studio producing staff will be called to the colors by the conscription route.

Additional building has been found necessary, and now a new scene dock, 200 feet in length, of fireproof construction, is being built at the Lasky studio.

Director General Hal Roach of the Rolli Film Company has organized a second producing unit, which will make comedies featuring Arnold Nobello, the New York Hippodrome clown known as "Toto." Kathleen O'Connor, late of Keystone, will be the leading woman. J. B. Brown the cameraman, and Director Roach will be in charge of the direction.

With this change it is probable that Harold Lloyd will be in charge of the directing of Lonesome Luke comedies, in which he appears in the name part. Walter Dundin has been engaged as cameraman for the Luke company.

EARLY releases of Christie Comedies will introduce two new leading men.

Spokane is a wonderful city, noted for its hot springs, waterfalls, dryness, and red heads, to say nothing of a beautiful hotel and wonderful theatres. The enterprise municipality, and the railroads, too, so well they build one top on top of another, nature endowed the town with a small Niagra, the citizens voted no more boose, but it remained for Dr. Clemmer, a dentist, to open a regular theater and build theauburn topped boys under fifteen together in the Clemmer Red Head Club, yes, and that club is some walking advertisement for the screen theatre, too. Every time you see a freelee in Seattle, even if it’s only a Washington root apple, you think of the Clemmer theatre. Louis Hill and HOOKUM editor are members of the Red Head brotherhood, and therefore it’s some organization. Ralph Ruffner has a centrally located theatre on Riverside—that is a street. He is said to be 99 and 44-100 per cent, pep with respect to putting business his way which means to the Liberty. Everybody in Spokane is either a movie fan or a Seattle exchange salesman, which means there are plenty of good houses in the city of bluffs, banks and dead breweries. "Dope" Carroll looks after Pate Exchange and pulls a big publicity stunt every time he makes a contract. Universal has an exchange there, but keener competition has drawn all others to Seattle. THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Clover Ames (Emmy Wehlen) is the drudge in a country boarding house, while her Aunt Sarah (Ricca Allen) treats her so shamefully she decides to run away. Her only friend is Pierre Dubois (Frank Currier), a French boarder. Clover, by means of the French which Pierre has taught her, is enabled to get a position as French maid to a wealthy woman, and then she begins its reckoning. Pierre dies and leaves Clover a small sum. Clover, inspired by a novel she has read, poses as a duchess at a fashionable winter resort. She meets there Walter Gray (George Stuart Christie), who is also incognito as a ribbon clerk. When her money gives out her trick is discovered, and she vanishes. Later she gets employment in Gray's store, and here she learns that her ribbon clerk is the owner's son, who rushes her to the marriage bureau.

In short, "The Duchess of Doubt" is a bright little comedy drama that will send theatre patrons home with a pleased and rejuvenated expression, besides a new interest in Emmy Wehlen as a rapidly rising star.

"Parentage"

(Frank J. Seng—Seven Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

WITH no "stars" and with a story that suggests nothing of the superlative quality of the picture in the telling, "Parentage" is one of the most enjoyable features that has been offered to state rights buyers. The picture presents a certain sort of lesson, but to reverse the usual order of things, the moral was merely the inspiration of the production instead of its ultimate aim. Hobart Henley, who has a share in the authorship of "Parentage," along with Martin G. Chandler, produced it and it is to him that the major portion of the credit should be awarded for turning out a picture that pleases and entertains over every foot.

The story parallels the lives of two individuals, Horace Brown and Robert Smith, characters that may well be termed real. The former has been reared by a father neglectful and harsh, a mother whose sweetness of temperament is totally eclipsed, while the latter has had all the advantages of a happy home and a loving father and mother. There is something distinctly human in the careers of these two young men as presented by Mr. Henley. It is safe to say that they do the natural thing in the natural situation and perhaps this is why the picture proves so fascinating.

Without sensationalism, without any murders, abductions or kindred bits, without anything offensive, the story runs its own smooth course, working to a logical and highly satisfying conclusion.

There is a considerable amount of "kid" stuff in the first half of the production, when the early lives of the boys are dealt with. These flashes are some of the best of the kind ever filmed. The "school day" scenes are brim full of comedy, comedy that is real in every flash. A surprisingly clever aggregation of juvenile players reacts this portion of the picture. Their performances leave a lasting impression.

The cast in the latter half is well picked also. Headed by Mr. Henley, none of the supporting players have been seen in such important roles heretofore, yet each one acts his or her part with an unusual show of ability. Bert Busby's performance as Smith, senior, particularly in that scene where he receives the "glad news" over the phone is one that, plainly speaking, tickles you to pieces. Mr. Henley has, indeed, made his whole cast act well, regardless of name or fame.

In the production Mr. Henley has demonstrated his abilities to a further extent. There is nothing lavish and yet the drama enacted within the meager means and plain exteriors gains in force as a result. The lighting effects are most realiztite, and add much to the effectiveness of the story, although in the opening reels, the scenes are shaded to something of a superfluous extent. The subtitles which contain about half a dozen quotations are well placed and phrased.

After all is said, "Parentage" owes its worth to its realism—its human touches, without which it would be nil. That Mr. Henley has demonstrated unusual ability in every department is a conclusion at which even the harshest critic will arrive after seeing it.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

With the arrival of a baby boy, the cup of the Smiths (Bert Busby and Mary Grey) is filled with joy. When Mrs. Brown (Anna Lehr) gives birth to a son, the circumstances are in striking contrast for Brown (William Welsh) doesn't want to be bothered with children. Grown to boyhood, Robert Smith, Jr. (Frank Gayette), is a merry little fellow and enters upon a childish romance with Agnes Melton (Lois Alexander), while Horace Brown (Matty Roubert), his home life made miserable by his father associates with street toughs.

In after years Robert Smith, Jr. (Hobart Henley) takes charge of his father's contracting business and although opposed by Brown and his son (Gilbert Rooney) succeeds in becoming the business leader of the town, and in winning Agnes (Barbara Castleton) despite the foolish prejudices of her mother. Horace, inactive and without ambition, is left penniless when old Brown dies.

W. De Shields and Alice Wilson, as the Meltons, complete the cast.

goal, regardless of the dictates of the soul, the environment, the home life, and all have changed, but the story is told with the same naturalness, but skillfully reinforced by a delicate trend toward effectiveness which in reality is only natural in women like Emmy.

Marie Wayne typifies the "marry well" woman of today. Robert Conness leaves a «nod impression as Chandler. Alfred Hemmings and Rowden Hall do well in minor parts.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Emmy (Marie Wayne) lives with her parents and sister in humble circumstances far from the big city. Emmy's sole aim in life is to marry well—to have influence and all that goes with it. Her sister is content with her humble surroundings and seems destined to wed. The father dies. Emmy sponsors her mother to go to the city with the insurance money. They go, and Emmy starts her campaign to "marry well." She is disappointed at first until she meets Chandler, an author (Robert Conness), whom she believes eligible, but he at first ignores her. Emmy finally succeeds in forcing her affection upon Chandler. He has finished a book and goes to Virginia for a rest, leaving Emmy behind. During his absence Emmy meets a man of wealth, marries him, and her wish is granted, but there is something lacking. She does not love. Her husband dies. Chandler comes back, learns of Emmy's marriage, and finds that she is like other women he knows: a disinterested tool. A nobleman enters her life, but she does not love him. She realizes at the last minute that her life has been spent without love and it is too late to redeem real love.

"The Stolen Paradise" is by Frances Marlon and directed by Harley Knowles. Its central character is Joan, a woman who permits her love for a certain man to blind her with her better judgement. She marries him while he is blind, he returns to her and she loves him. The consequent entanglements in which the characters play are often highly suspenseful, and as for action there is plenty of that. Indeed, World pictures never lack it. But the basic situation of "The Stolen Paradise," created by the marriage, is something of an artificial one, and with all its high lights, high-strung situations, and the like, the picture is hardly able to put to rout this same cloak of artificiality spread over it in its early stages. And so the character of Joan, one which to run true to form should be vastly sympathetic, is more likely to be accepted by the spectator with an appreciation of the fact that the author resorted to the creation of an unreal character in an attempt to make the entire drama out-of-the-ordinary. Instead of attracting sympathy, Joan is sure to be a failure. Ethel Clayton makes the most of this part and puts her whole self in it, managing at times to make it appealing. Pinna Nesbit is a most attractive Katharine, while the other roles are handled capably.

The picture has been accorded a fair production by Harley Knowles. He has given it a good setting and has allowed no possibilities offered him to pass unfulfilled. There are a few slips in detail, which are too small to warrant more than passing attention.

If an audience is willing to overlook the one main fault of "The Stolen Paradise," it may be that the picture will get over cleanly. In development it is conventional, containing a number of familiar twists and tricks that always seem to make for popular appeal.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

David Cliffon (Edward Langford) is blinded in rescuing Katherine Lambert (Pinna Nesbit), the girl he loves, from a fire. Caring nothing for David, Katherine pursues her pleasures, while Joan Merrifield (Ethel Clayton) takes her place by his bedside. Believing Joan to be Katharine, David marries her, and it is through her help and co-operation that he becomes a noted author. Regaining his sight, David is more than surprised on learning the identity of his wife. He is happy with her, however, until Katharine again appears as the wife of Brooks (George MacQuarrie). His old love returns. Joan, in sorrow, offers little resistance until Brooks, in anger, vows to kill Katharine if he discovers her unfaithfulness. It is only through Joan, who enters on a severe battle of wits with Brooks, that a catastrophe is averted. Then David at last realizes he loves Joan, but at her command leaves her for a year's time.

Robert Forsyth, George Cowl, Lew Hart, Edward Edwin Roe and Ivan Dobble are in the cast.

"The Inner Shrine"

(Lazzy-Paramount—Five Reels) REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

Miss Illington in this play appears for the second time in pictures. Hobart Bosworth, Jack Holt and Elliott Dexter surround the star in an ensemble of splendid support, but there is not the substance to the plot which even these stars can bring out to make a "big picture."

As a novel, "The Inner Shrine" had the advantage of word pictures of a situation which is never at all alike as depicted by any writer of fiction, and yet which smacks of sameness with so many previous situations when presented in photoplay form.

The rich American girl marrying a foreign nobleman who is a gambler and roue has been done to death in pictures, and while Miss Illington gives the role aayas. as warm and grace, she cannot lift it into the class of film classics.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Diane Winthrop (Margaret Illington), beloved of her guardian, Derek Pryn (Hobart Bosworth), is enamored of the Viscount D'Arcourt (Jack Holt). She marries the Viscount and soon learns that Parisian customs are different from American ways. Her husband has a paramour, and she seeks solace in the company of the Marquis de Bienville (Elliott Dexter). Derek goes to South America on an exploration trip and is deserted by his servants in the jungle. Matters in Paris come to a head with a duel between the Viscount and the Marquis, after the Marquis has shown his true colors by detaining Diane forever at his chateau. The Viscount, tired of it all, makes a, duel a suicide, and the Marquis flees to escape being branded as a murderer. He goes to South America and rescues Derek. He again meets Diane and tells Derek the truth, leaving these two happy after all.
"Shackles of Truth"

(Mutual-American—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM J. McGRATH

HERE is the best story that Mr. Russell has used his well-known histrionic ability upon in a long while. While every one in the studio shared in the work, and does it well, the story that unwinds itself in "Shackles of Truth" is great, and, coupled with Russell's name is bound to make the production stand out as one of the best of the many good ones that have come from the American Company's studio.

Mr. Russell's work as the honorable and ambitious son of a father who had made one great mistake in his life before dying, forcing the son to bear the burden and threaten sacrifice to all his aims in life when the crisis threatens, in order to hide the shame from his mother and keep the paternal name un tarnished, brings out all his rare and well-known ability as one of America's leading actors.

Alfred Vosburgh, Adda Gleason and George Ahearn also do excellently in the roles they are given.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Gerard Hale (William Russell) and Luther Smith (Al Vosburgh) are both promising young members of a law firm. Both are candidates for the United States Senate. Hale is engaged to marry the Governor's daughter, Marion Coningsby (Francella Billington). To the Governor is left the privilege of naming one of the two young candidates to the voters as his favorite.

Smith loves Marion also, and, jealous of Hale, tries covertly to put him in disfavor and swing girl and senatorship his way.

Tom Shores (George Ahearn), released from jail, discovers his sister to have been betrayed by a man named Hale. There is a baby. "Rumors are rife" supports Smith's theory that for Gerard Hale, responsible for his sister's trouble and shame. The sister, Mary Shores (Adda Gleason), accompanies him. Mary seeks out the Hale law office, but finds only a young man there answering to that name, but unknown to her. She is about to admit the mistake of her coming, when she sees a picture on the wall. It is that of her betrayer and also young Hale's father, who has recently died, unable to right his wrong.

Young Hale's mother is an invalid, in danger of death from any shock she might receive. She also worships the memory of her dead husband and exalts his qualities to the son. Rather than disillusionize her and probably speed her death, young Hale takes the blame and makes ready to sacrifice all of his promising future. Through the machinations of the jealous Smith, the mother is made to believe that her son is father of Mary Shores' child. She insists that he marry the girl and right the wrong. All this he is about to do, when the mother dies, and he, relieved of his obligation, once again sees promise of the realization of his other hopes and ambitions in love and politics.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Caroline Morton (Valeska Suratt), a poor working girl getting "eight per" receives an offer of marriage from Old Moneybags, twice her age, by her door as old man, mother, and a large family receive dubiously the news that the old man has proposed marriage to her. Head swimming with confusion she picks up a copy of a novel, "The King's Favorite" and starts to read it. She pictures herself in all the wealth of the "big house" and accepts.

Terrible now is the ordeal. Old Moneybags once he has his treasure shows himself in a different light. A young man, who arrives in a strange city with no means of identification. "The Slave"

(FOX—Seven Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

IF gorgeous and bizarre costumes and impressionistic settings of themselves make some picture appeal to audiences, "The Slave" is a knockout. But we do not believe an average audience, made up of plain American citizens will understand the story, what the characters mean, and what it is all about, beyond the fact that a young girl marries an old man and has a "devil" of a time (as is indicated by the horned person himself appearing in several scenes).

From the synopsis of the story in the press-sheet we see that a strongly dramatic plot really underlies this whirl of changing scenes which we frankly confess were unable to follow clearly. Too many characters and sudden unfolding of events, spoiled the dramatic effect for us. We have seldom had keener enjoyment than we experienced in viewing William Nigh's previous production for Mr. Fox, the "Blue Streak." "The Slave" is from the same hands, but we could not have suspected it, had we not been told.

The cast does admirably, and is well chosen for the types desired. Our feeling is that too much footage was taken and the continuity suffered in the cutting room.

"Father Was Right"—"Those Wedding Bells"—"Oh For a Wife"

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"Father Was Right," a one-reel comedy, written by Neal Burns and produced by Al Christie, is one of the best Christie comedies released since these pictures were placed on the state rights market. The plot concerns the difficulties of a young man, who arrives in a strange city with no means of identification. He is obliged to lead the life of a hobo until father arrives and straightens matters out. The man is Mr. Fox, the "Blue Streak," and the hobo is Hale, who has agreed not to marry until he has finished an important work which he alone can hope to complete.

"Those Wedding Bells" has Neal Burns and Betty Compson as principals, with Eddie Barry and Stella Adams in fairly funny character parts. Neal, despondent after his sweetheart has turned him down on the day before their wedding agrees to marry an old maiden for money. The young girls runs and Neal has a high old time getting rid of the old maid, finally succeeding in palm ing her off on his valet. There is good suspense to this and many of the situations get over nicely despite their age.

"Oh For a Wife" is another wherein the young man has too many brides on his hands. Harry Ham and Billie Rhodes take the principal roles with Nolan Leary, Ethel Lynne and Harry Rattenberry as supporting cast. It has some amusing moments and makes an average number.

"The Question"

(Vitagraph—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THE "question" underlying four reels of sustained mental agony, without any comedy relief, is whether a living together unmarried is "moral," when by a sacrifice to mankind the young doctor has agreed not to marry until he has finished an important work which he alone can hope to complete.

It is made evident that without the woman's encouragement he is sure to fail, yet her coming to him causes great suffering to her father and mother, who are socially banished on her account, and so a series of complications are worked out which are really unsolvable according to our everyday "conventions"—and then, as a climax, the author relieves the audience's mind by having the lovers unite and live happily ever after.

Strictly judged, this play is immoral. It seems to condone as sanctified in heaven a living together against the will of the gods, with the lovers united and living happily ever after. We have seldom beheld a play thus constructed and it seems to us that the moral causeAside from the moral causeAside from the moral cause

A Roadside Impresario
(Palus-Paramount—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

GEORGE BEBAN surely has a commendable ability to discover something brand new in the way of a thrill for the big conclusions of the productions of which he is author-actor. Nitroglycerine in a golf-ball and old master paintings covered with cheap water-colors to pass vigilant customs officials yield now to our hero as a kitchen helper who in scraping the dishes (Ed. Davis) insists she marry Menie Cosgrove (Gladden James) at a fashionable road-house finds the incriminating half-burned document that saves the hero and knaves the villain.

Mr. Beban has not provided for himself as strong a role as usual in respect to the subtle pathos of which he is past master, and while many of his scenes will amuse, due to the cleverness with which they are handled, he is merely introduced as incidental to the affairs of his wife.

The support rendered the child star is of a satisfactory order. The production seems to show marks of cheapness when it comes to the settings.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

John Watson (Frank Newburg) and Jane (Margaret Nichols), his wife, separate over a misunderstanding, Watson taking with him their child Marie (Baby Marie Osborne). Mrs. Kennedy (Corene Grant) discovers that Margaret Warner (Ruth Roland) is the other woman in the life of Kennedy, and plans a miscarriage. At a ball given by Mrs. Kennedy, Margaret and Norwood appear very friendly, to the great annoyance of Kennedy. The Veiled Woman sneaks into the house and writes on Mrs. Kennedy's mirror: "Your husband ruined my life. I will not let him ruin yours." Mrs. Kennedy erases this before her husband sees it. Kennedy, angered by Norwood's attentions to Margaret, threatens to see him alone for a moment. The picture might have been somewhat better and a deal more convincing had the producers refrained from fattening the part of Nan Bishop, in which Miss Glaum appears, subtiles and closeups were evidently introduced in an effort to convey the impression that Nan is a woman of great depth of character. Miss Glaum's appeal seems to lie wholly on the surface, and she is not at home portraying any inward struggle she is unable to put her point over with the required amount of force and as a consequence her character is sometimes artificial.

Walter Edwards directed and the picture bears the fine characteristic of all Ince production. Charles Gunn and Jack Richardson figure prominently in the supporting cast.

"LOVE OR JUSTICE?" is a melodrama that will, beyond a doubt, appeal to the lovers of such. Louise Glaum has a role, half vampire and half working girl in composition, and although the part sometimes makes demands on the actress which she cannot always rise to, she presents a striking figure throughout the story. Lambert Hillyer, author, has drawn a number of original characters for "Love or Justice?" and has built around them a plot that is teeming with action. The climax laid in the court room scene is exceptionally powerful and well handled, the picture might have been somewhat better and a deal more convincing had the producers refrained from fattening the part of Nan Bishop, in which Miss Glaum appears, subtiles and closeups were evidently introduced in an effort to convey the impression that Nan is a woman of great depth of character. THE STORY AND PLAYERS

William Ruggles (Bryant Washburn) is an American shoe clerk in the Paris branch of a famous American shoe manufacturing company. He is brought to see that his position is not regarded in a favorable light by the two American girls whom he has met and is paying attention to in Paris. One of these is Ruth Downey, daughter of his American employer. She urges him to higher ideals, while the other girl, Dorothy Westbrooke (Lyda Dalzell), an art student, turns him down cold. Following the advice of Ruth, he applies for the managership of another Continental store to be opened.

When the manager of the Paris store intrigues and kills his chances in behalf of a favorite, Ruggles ... in the supporting cast are Virginia Valli, Lyda Dalzell, Helen Ferguson, Louis Long and Rodney LaRock.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

The producers have resorted to attempts at comedy to put the picture over, but these have almost without exception failed. One of the best attempts is "The Fugitive" and "The Jackaroo." E. W. Hornung, who is a master plot maker, is supplying the stories for the new series, and they are in the same ambitious key as the old series. The main idea, as before, is to give Stingaree an opportunity to display his bravery and outlawry, and at the same time to help those who are oppressed. He is a sort of glorified and modernized Robin Hood.

Exceptional care has been taken in the choice of locations and in the selection of characters. Paul C. Hurst is proving again that he is every inch a director.

The suspense, the manner of telling and the touches of humor and real heart interest all go to prove that the new adventures of the dauntless Stingaree will be a world heater. Becoming a Stingaree fan is about the easiest habit we can conceive of.

(The Export and Import Film Co.—Seven Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE WORTS

FOR the person who is willing to look at a picture which is eighty per cent, art and twenty per cent, plot, “Robespierre” will provide satisfactory entertainment. Perhaps the theme of “Robespierre,” the arch-plotter of the French Revolution, is too big a job for the piece were too anxious, with the Italian anxiety for pure art, not to sacrifice scenic possibilities.

Many well-known Italian players participated in “Robespierre,” and all of them evidently possess a good knowledge of the limitations and the possibilities of the screen. Theresa, who became, as the events unwound, Goddess of Freedom, was actively created of the screen. Theresa, who became, as the events unwound, Goddess of Freedom, was actively created.

To lovers of real art to see “Robespierre” is worth almost any amount of money. The scenes are supposed to be in France during the stormy period when the mobs sought revenge for the outrages of the Bourbons. The picture was made in Rome.

To tell the story would be to relate the underlying causes and events which swept into the terrible climax known as the French Revolution. Robespierre is shown, not as a mousser, as he so often is incorrectly pictured, but as a suave, deliberate man. With a leaning towards pretty women, a gratification that he filled at any cost.

With respect to the story, there is a valuable vein of heart interest introduced when Clayton, returning...
The fourth episode, "The Traitor's Fate," shows where Ultus, having entrapped the wily detective, Conway Bass, gets from his pockets the address of Lester, the betrayer. Bass is then bound and locked up, but not securely enough, for when Ultus et al. arrive at the Cornwall hiding place of Ferris, the detective and company are at their heels. Then thrill follows thrill in wild succession; a shooting scrap, an auto chase, a chase over the Cornish hills and the final death of Lester in an old unused flooded tin mine form the thrills.

There is not a slack moment in the whole course so far, but, on the other hand, there are some unique twists given to furnish the hazards.

Two A. Kay Single-Reelers

(“The Terry Human Interest Reel”—Number One. “Some Barrier”)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

The first of the Terry Human Interest reels takes up the study of noses. There are interesting sketches of great men, including President Wilson, General Joffre, Colonel Roosevelt, Admiral Dewey, George Washington and Napoleon, who have or did have noses that denote exceptional ability in one line of work or another. Whether or not there is any science in the study insofar as it is illustrated in this reel is a question which need not be answered in the face of the interesting subject matter.

Trailing the nose studies is an average little educational showing the picking of cotton, both by hand and machinery.

"Some Barrier" is evidently intended to be a burlesque of "The Barrier" from the title, but it turns out to be a cartoon, funny in itself and related in no other way to the feature picture. The author and artist, Paul Terry, has drawn a number of comic scenes, while the animation is of the best sort. Farmer Al Falfa is the central figure. He journeys to Alaska and searches for gold, which he gets, along with a squaw who forces him to marry her. It is a subject much better than the average animated cartoon and is very enjoyable.

This single reeler is both amusing and instructive and should appeal to grownups as much as to children.

“Hater of Men”

(Triangle-Ince—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

This is an interesting little comedy, written by C. Gardner Sullivan, amusing and laughable at times. The author’s idea revolves about a woman whose ideas of married life are gleaned from the divorce court and who grows to believe that with marriage a woman’s freedom and happiness are at an end. Her experiments with Bohemian life, followed by a final awakening, constitute the picture.

"Hater of Men" is really short on plot, but before an intelligent audience the character development and the sparkle of the subtilities, together with the humor of the various episodes, the picture is more than likely to be appreciated. Sensationalism is a quality that never works its way into it.

Bessie Barriscale gives an excellent performance as the woman and Charles K. French does a dignified and thoroughly enjoyable piece of acting in the only other role of importance. Charles Miller directed.

“The Final Payment”

(Fox—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

Intense melodrama without comedy relief, full measure of murders and deaths, foreign atmosphere to the extent that it does not seem like an American-made picture—such is Nance O’Neill as Nina in "The Final Payment."

The locale of the play is a Sicilian fishing village, and if every scene were taken on this beautiful isle the illusion could not be more perfectly maintained. The weakness of the production is in its concentration of all the interest into a few hundred feet, and the lack of appeal to American audiences.

Miss O’Neill’s tragedy is real and finely acted, but her personality does not get a chance to attract, and picture audiences will not, it seems to us, excuse the general heaviness of the production for these few moments of interest.

Alfred Hickman, as the villainous owner of the fishing fleet, and Clifford Bruce, as the lover and husband, furnish the foils for Miss O’Neill’s tragedy.

Miss O’Neill’s stage reputation will doubtless carry this picture from a box-office standpoint, but even her work is clouded by the introduction of characters hardly more important than scenery.

Mutual Program

"Mutual Weekly, No. 127." (Gaumont. One reel. Wed., June 6.)—This issue of an interesting series is replete with pictures of current note and includes French tanks on their way to the front; Harvard boys being taught to dig trenches; American steamer "Rochester" arriving at Har-dow; Kiddie Klub of the New York Evening World holding a juggling in Central Park; Theodore Roosevelt addressing the Home De-defense League at Minnola, L. I.; Itar's latest German Milhy's footprint, posed by Miss Sybil Carmen of the Midnight Frolic Company; National Red Cross garden party at Fort Meyer, Va.; navy and citizenry unite in paying tribute to late Ambassador Gubre, and the rest winds up with a short, snappy, animated cartoon entitled "Selimacst.

"Mutual Tours, No. 31." (Gaumont. One reel. Tues., June 5.)—Morocco with its inhabitants and their characteristics is the first city visited in this tour, then on to Barcelona, Spain, where the many historic buildings are pointed out. A jump is then made to St. Kitts, in the British West Indies, and later are shown pictures of winter sports in the Carpathian Mount-

ts. A very interesting and highly instructive reel.

"There and Back." (Cub. One reel. Thurs., June 7.)—A Jerry (George Ohy) comedy, which is fully up to standard and is bound to raise many a laugh where the coph and tumble, the still, variety of comedy is known. "There and Back" means for Jerry to jail and back, but many amusing incidents occur on the return trip.

"A Leap for Life." (Mutual. Episode of the Railroad Raiders " serial. Two reels. Mon. June 4.)—The watery grave is on a par with its predecessors and will get as cordial a reception as any of them.

Harry Myers on Dress Parade

"Mutual Weekly, No. 122." (Gaumont. One reel. Wed., June 6.)—The arrival and reception of the British mission in lieu of his father, now deceased, and he has employed the investigating of numerous freight robberies, with the result that be becomes a marked man, and it is only due to the ingenuity and quickness of Helen Holmes that he does not meet with dire disaster. These two reels are crowded with thrills, and will certainly prove acceptable to any audience which has met Helen Holmes.

"Where Is My Child." (Geno. Two reels. Week of June 18.)—More domestic complications done after a typical L-Ko fashion and scattered with the usual number of hilarious gags. Dixie Compton, Sonja Garel, George Marlo, James Levering, Laura Moore, and Otto Van Loan comprise the supporting cast.

"A Burgh Joker." (Victor. Week of June 18.)—Harry Water didn't supply much plot, this picture, and the personality of Pat Rooney, who

"The Girl in the Garret." (Imp. Two reels. Week of May 27.)—A picture modeled on the Cinderella type of story written by Ben Cohen. It depicts the adventures of a little country girl with her growing curiosity and after the author has taken her out of their clutches, he introduces a very pretty romance and a lot of pleasing human interest touches. One is not obliged to take the facts of the picture at face value because the whole is light and diverting entertainment. Maloney, Jack Nelson, George Barrell, and Anna Dodge are featured.

Universal

"Jilted in Jail." (Nestor. Week of June 13.)—Another one of these short and rapid pictures, either around a single plot point and produced in a highly intense fashion. The young wife is too late that her lover cares for another and she is forced to remain with her discouraging husband, whom she married for money. William Mong, besides writing and dier, plays the lead, supported by Gretchen edler, Milford K. Wilson and Molly Malone.

"The Brand of Hate." (Gold Seal. Three reels. Week of June 18.)—A picture made in the East featuring Tim Marshall, written by Elizabetl Pimbrick, and produced under the direction of Edwin Stowers. It is a melodrama of pre-natal influence and contains much rapid action, well punctuated by thrilling moments. Dixie Compton, Sonja Marechel, George Marlo, James Levering, Laura Moore, and Otto Van Loan comprise the supporting cast.

"My Beloved." (2-R. One reel. Week of June 18.)—A typical L-Ko action picture, very well done and featuring one of the most popular of the L-Ko girls, Dixie Compton.

"A Pirate Bold." (Victor. Week of June 18.)—Harry Water didn't supply much plot, this picture, and the personality of Pat Rooney, who

Little Mary McAlister in Scenes from Three of the "Do Children Count?" Series Released Through K-E-S-E by Essanay
"Puppy Love." (Victor. Week of June 18.)—An amusing little comedy drama written and directed by Ruth Stonehouse and enacted largely by her. It concerns itself with poor folk throughout and has many of the elements of popular appeal. Dave Krebshul and Lydia Yeamans Titus are the other principals.

"Lone Larry." (Horn. Two reels. Week of June 18.)—The identities of a clacking and a bandit become mixed and the resulting complications leading to a strong denouement are present in both the two reels with lively action. No stars appear in the cast, but otherwise the picture presents a most inviting appearance. Charles Joy, Drey Pembroke, Kingsley Benedict, William Dyer and Leonard Clapham are the leads.

"Helen Grayson's Strategy." (Rex. Two reels. Week of June 18.)—Irene Hunt, Malcolm Lowry and C. S. Shinn are in this unusual strong two-reeler, which has some novelty in its part in building up to the "situation," which is the usual triangle of a man, the other man's wife, and an unsuspecting husband. The wife, about to leave with the other man, has a sudden change of heart on receiving a telegram announcing husband's return. Then the brute in the man shows up and he tries to force, which fails. Husband returns and discovers the ready packed suitcase, and wife admits she was going away. Husband seeks the man, then shoots himself. The man, unable to stand the suspense of being hunted as he supposes, steals into the home, and there is "framed" by the wife, who has him arrested as a thief—husband and wife meantime having made up. Good melodrama, plot well conceived, better than it sounds in the mere telling.

"Who's Looney Now?" (Nestor. Two reels. Week of June 4.)—This comedy conceived by S. A. Von Patten and produced by Al Christie is stretched over two reels by means of constant repetition in action. Blessed with a humorous idea at the outset this has been partially destroyed by excess footage, and while the situations and entanglements in which the newly married couple wail away throughout the picture are funny to a certain extent, they would be much more funny if abbreviated as to length. Eddie Lyons and Billie Rhodes are the leads.
A TRADE ANNUAL

To Our Advertisers:—
Advertise heavily once a year in a year book

To New Advertisers:—
You can afford to advertise at least once a year in a year-around-number

The Convention number of Motion Picture News, contemporary with the Seventh Annual Convention of the M. P. E. L. of America, Chicago, July 14th-22d, will comprise a Trade Annual.

This Trade Annual will include data and other editorial matter bearing upon all branches and departments of the industry.

The latter will have a permanent reference value, making this issue of Motion Picture News a desk fixture with all its readers. This editorial matter, which has been in preparation for some months, will be the most complete and authoritative thus far issued in the field.

This Convention and Trade Annual issue will be dated July 28th. Advertising forms close July 14th.

Reservations should now be made for color advertisements, inserts and special positions.

The Motiograph for Dependability

Every Motion Picture Theatre Owner and Manager should read the following letter from Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Sirs: Many times I have been considered as a radical man in my views regarding the equipment that I use in the Sapphire Theatre, but the fact that I am compelled to run at such a high rate of speed and run so continuously from early morning until midnight, I feel that I must use only the equipment that gives the best results and costs me the least money to maintain.

In my experience in the show business (which started seven years ago), I have used every make of machine with the exception of one and until such time as you persuaded me to install the Motiograph equipment I had been buying new machine heads every six months and in many instances I had to have my machine heads overhauled thoroughly at an expense of from ten to thirty dollars. I have had the two Motiographs in service running at the rate of from five to eight minutes per reel for more than seven months; the expense so far has been eighteen cents, and from what my operators advise me they are good for another six months steady running without any more expense.

If any of your customers desire any further confirmation of this letter (that is if you show this letter to any one), have them write or see me, for I know good equipment when I see it and will be only too glad to assist any manager towards locating the most practical moving picture machine that to my knowledge has been manufactured.

Yours very truly,
A. E. Elliott, Prop.,

Fifteen Convincing Reasons Why Your Projection Will Be Vastly Improved by Using Speer Carbons.

Because: All sizes of carbons are manufactured and the desires of operators can easily be gratified. The styles include the Soft Cored and Solid carbons and the famous "Hold-Arks."

Because: A Speer Cored upper and a "Hold-Ark" lower afford an ideal combination for your working conditions.

Because: In the use of Speer Carbons a maximum amount of light is produced, with a minimum consumption of the carbons.

Because: In the use of a "Hold-Ark" the metal coating permits the use of a smaller carbon in the lower holder.

Because: The ghosts and aggravating shadows are eliminated by the brilliancy of the light.

Because: Where the "Hold-Ark" negative carbon is employed the wandering of the arc is prevented and positive steadiness of the light is assured.

Because: The hard core of the "Hold-Ark" greatly relieves the operator and eliminates the necessity of frequently adjusting the arc.

Because: Patrons will not frequent your theatre unless your pictures are projected with a bright, "rock-steady" light, such as Speer Carbons produce.

Because: Every carbon is uniform and can be depended upon for efficient results.

Because: In order to produce the best photoplays, high amperages are necessary. The metal coating of the "Hold-Ark" provides the additional carrying capacity and still permits the use of a small carbon in the lower holder.

Because: A mere trial of Speer Carbons will cause you to use them unhesitatingly thereafter.

Because: Quality alone is first consideration in the manufacture of these carbons, and the high standard already set will never be lowered.

Because: Speer Carbons will ultimately revolutionize the motion picture industry, and progressive exhibitors and operators should not permit prejudice or practice to interfere with their adoption.

Because: The carbons are backed by a modern factory erected wholly for their manufacture. An elaborate research and experimental laboratory is also devoted to the improvement and betterment of the carbons, and fully developed experiments which show beneficial results are readily adopted.

Because: Samples will gladly be supplied and expert information furnished to operators who are not obtaining the improved projection they desire.

THE Anti Mis-Frame League is a co-operative organization for the benefit of the exhibitors and is not intended nor will it in any way relieve the exchanges of their duty in sending out film in good condition.

At the present time complaints are coming in from all over the country from operators stating that the actual condition of the film when it reaches them from various exchanges is so bad that they cannot use it without inspection. This means re-patching, cutting out punch holes and otherwise doing the service work which every exchange should perform, and which every exhibitor should demand. The operator has enough on his hands, without this work being forced on him.

Conditions arise, to be sure, when co-operation is necessary. An exchange has a print which may show in seven towns before it returns to the exchange for renovation. In this case as long as the exchange starts it in good condition responsibility must cease until it returns, and the operators en route must be looked to for co-operation. This is where our League plays an important part.

One of our members from Illinois writes, “I do not see why when a man takes time to patch a film he does it carelessly. It takes just as long to do a bad job as to do a good one.” This is a condition which applies to exchanges and operators alike, and one of which any man should be ashamed. Careless work is as bad as no work at all, therefore as members of the Anti Mis-Frame League let us all do our work carefully and well.

I quote a letter from a man 225 miles from his exchange which will give those more fortunate than he an insight into the importance of putting our shoulder to the wheel and helping the industry all we can.

Films come to us sometimes not re-wound and with as high as 20 incorrect splices in one reel. I have been taking most of them out, but it seems a never ending job, and was nearly discouraged when the Anti Mis-Frame movement came up, which has given me courage to write you a few lines asking that my name be put in the list.

As to punch marks they are getting very numerous and in some instances I have removed them from some of the reels before showing and spliced them back before shipping such to the exchange. It is becoming outrageous and absolutely unnecessary. There never has nor never will be a punch in my booth.

Yours for success in this movement,
L. T.

Films not rewound. Twenty incorrect splices, punch marks

It makes no difference how far away or how near the house is to the exchange, here are three conditions which should never have been allowed to exist, and any theatre man would have been perfectly justified in going the limit with the exchange shipping this film. This condition should not be tolerated.

A city theatre the other day reported that he had received direct from the exchange reels of film which should have contained 1,000 feet. Instead of this amount they had but 700, and these in bad condition. The film story was naturally lost and the patrons were driven away. After a fight, cancelation and other troubles, conditions were righted and he is now getting full reels in good condition and the patrons are coming back.

These conditions are up to the A. M-F. L. As members we must insist that they are righted. We must have co-operation from the exchanges and insist on proper treatment, but we must also be willing to do our share.

E. K. GILLET.

Gentlemen: I have been a reader of the Projection Department for some time and find from time to time things that interest and help me “put it over” better. One of those is the Anti Mis-Frame movement just started and I believe it will work wonders for everyone concerned, especially the man in the “sweatbox.”

Operating in this remote country isn’t pleasant because we are about 225 miles from our exchanges and repairs are not to be obtained in less than a week, so we have to take the best of care of our machines in order to obtain the required results. The average exchange, I believe, thinks that we are out in the wilds and the film doesn’t have to be in as good condition as it would if used in the cities.

FILMS NOT REWOUND. TWENTY INCORRECT SPLICES, PUNCH MARKS
Hudson County Operators Dine

WHAT was said by those who were in attendance to have been one of the most successful social events was the third annual dinner given by the members of Moving Picture Machine Operators’ Union of Hudson County, N. J., Local 384, I. A. T. S. E., at twelve o’clock midnight on Saturday, June 2. This dinner, like the one last year, was held in New Old Fellows Hall, 412 Washington street, Hoboken, N. J., but, unlike last year’s event, it was found necessary to use the large hall room on the second floor to accommodate the large gathering of members and guests.

A very signal honor was paid to this local by the attendance of the entire general executive board of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada, headed by International President Charles C. Shay.

Shortly after twelve o’clock, when all had been seated, George Hoffman, chairman of the arrangements committee, introduced the president and secretary-treasurer of Local 384, Brothers Walter A. Benis and Edward W. Bordmann, respectively, and on behalf of the local presented each with a beautiful silver loving cup as a token of the esteem in which they are held by the members of the local, and as a reward for the faithful performance of their duty. President Benis welcomed the guests with a few well-chosen words and introduced as toastmaster I. G. Sherman, past president of the local and now editor of the Projection Department of the Motion Picture News, who said that as one could do so much better after the wants of the inner man were satisfied, there would be no speeches until the dinner had been partaken of. After a dinner of seven courses had been enjoyed and cigars were lighted, the toastmaster called upon the honorary members of the local for a few remarks.

Nicholas Power, the first honorary member, was absent owing to ill health, but was represented by Edward Earl, vice-president of the Nicholas Power Company, who voted of Brother Power’s regret at his inability to be present and expressed his own pleasure at again being a guest of Local 384. A telegram was received from Brother F. Richardson, who was at that time at Mountain Home, Dak., also an honorary member of the local, which read as follows: “I regret inability to be with you tonight. Many thanks for kind invitation. There is a warm spot in my heart for Local 384, and always will be.” Then J. H. Hollberg, the only honorary member present, was introduced and expressed his gratification at again enjoying the hospitality of the local, and said he hoped he would be able to join the members at their festive board again next year. Brother Philip Taylor, president of Local 59, I. S. T. S. E., was introduced and received the thanks of Local 384 through their toastmaster for the sisterly relations which existed between these two Hudson County organizations.

Brother Taylor expressed the hope that the bonds of fraternalism would become more close and united and that Locals 59 and 384 would become a power for great good throughout the Hudson County. Brother Will C. Smith, assistant general manager of the Hoboken Power Company and member of Local 306, was then introduced and spoke briefly, as did G. C. Edwards and Vincent A. Schauler.

Prominent among the invited guests were Dr. H. Charles Hespe, president of the Hudson County Exhibitors’ League, and James Connolly, inspector of combustibles, Jersey City, N. J. Dr. Hespe, when called upon, said: “While I appreciate the invitation extended to me to be present on this occasion, it is taking rather an unfair advantage to call upon me for a speech, and if it had been my intention to launch forth into fiery oratory, such desire would have vanished, flanked as I am by the speakers in front of me. I will say, however, that there has been a notable improvement in the personality of the members of the local since the dinner of last year, and I believe that they are earnestly trying to improve in every respect and impress their employers in this respect.”

Dr. Hespe also suggested that some action should be taken toward securing a state license and warned the members that it behooved them to carefully watch any legislation which might affect them that was apt to make its appearance in the Capitol at Trenton.

Mr. Connolly, who has been a very good friend to Local 384, was called away on account of illness in his family before thanks could be tendered him for the many favors he has shown to the local membership in his official capacity as head of the Licensing Board of Jersey City. Fifth International Vice-President Louis Krouse was then introduced and made a few humorous remarks, which were well received, giving way to Richard Green, fourth international vice-president, who expressed his pleasure at being present, as did Charles Malloy, third international vice-president. Brother William F. Canavan, of St. Louis, Mo., second international vice-president, spoke interestingly upon the condition of the operators throughout the country and the improvements that have taken place during the past few years. He also spoke on the license question, which answered the suggestion of Dr. Hespe, in a more expansive way in a few minutes than others could do in several hours. William G. Rush, first international vice-president, spoke briefly and told a story which convulsed the boys with laughter. James Lemcke, general organizer, when introduced and asked about the twenty-cents (the additional per capita tax) passed the buck to Organizer Oscar Schuck, who explained to the entire (?) satisfaction of the members why the additional twenty cents was necessary. Frank G. Lemaster, general secretary-treasurer, “the Father of Local 384,” having been the organizer, said that many times he had been tempted to renounce the relationship, but that now they looked like a pretty good bunch, to which the toastmaster replied he hoped the father would always feel proud of his child. Assistant International President C. C. Crickmore, when introduced, admitted that while he was a better speaker than his “boss,” one of the conditions imposed upon him before receiving the appointment was that he should not steal any of the speaker’s thunder, and gave way to the International President Charles C. Sharp, who, owing to the lateness of the hour and the strain he had been under by attending the sessions of the general executive board, which convened at International Headquarters on May 31, was forced to curtail his remarks to some extent. He called particular attention to the fact that “good union men” were those who attended the meetings of their locals and gave their officers all possible support. He also mentioned a fact that will be of great importance to every local union in the Alliance, which we do not care to divulge at this time, as well as explaining more fully the necessity for the increase in per capita tax. The City Commissioners of Hoboken and Jersey City sent letters of regret, as did many others prominent in the industry. E. K. Gillett, secretary of the Motion Picture News, sent the following telegram: “I regret exceedingly my inability to be present this evening. I hope that next year may be as prosperous for your local as last.”
W. H. Rabell, of the Independent Movie Supply Company, and Sam Kaplan, representing the Precision Machine Company, were also among those present. At 6 A.M. Sunday morning, when the guests and members were leaving the hall, all voted the affair a huge success, for which credit is due to the able manner in which the committee handled the arrangements. The following members of the committee are worthy of more than passing mention: George Hoffman, chairman; Edward W. Bordmann, secretary; Walter A. Bemis, Edward Dougherty, Frank Kirshgessner, Harvey Sapp, Anthony Boscarelli and Francis Steiner.

ROLL OF HONOR

The following members of Local 307, Moving Picture Operators of Philadelphia, Pa., have signed the pledge of the League and become members:

Joins League and Seeks Information

Edward Hermann, St. Charles, Mo., writes: "I am a reader of the Motion Picture News and have noticed where J. C. P., Gary, Ind., suggested an Anti-Misframe League. Please enter my name on the Roll of Honor for I think the League is one of the best things suggested in some time. (It has been. It is.—Ed.) Please answer the following question. In using direct current at the arc with a cored carbon at the top and a solid carbon at the bottom can you get as good service with cored carbons upper and lower as you can with one cored and one solid, or is it just to save on the carbon consumption? Please answer in your next issue. For which I thank you."

In reply: Your question and use of the word service necessitates a rather lengthy answer. You mention that you have direct current but do not state the amperage used. There is no doubt that cored carbons top and bottom will give you as good service as the combination of cored and solid. Experiments that have been made by various carbon manufacturers have proven that the light is intensified by the use of this latter combination from the fact that when a small diameter hard carbon is used as a negative it allows a greater crater area, and as it is the crater of the arc from which the light is distributed through the condensers you will see the advantage in using small negative carbon. If proper diameter carbons are used for a given amperage the life of the hard will be equally as long as that of the two cored carbons, there being very little difference, if any, in carbon consumption, and the candle power of illumination will be greatly increased.

His Name a Misnomer

Roy M. Shirk, Oskaloosa, Iowa, says: "As a moving picture operator I am in favor of the movement to obtain better protection results by taking proper care of film and keeping it in good shape, therefore am anxious to become a member of the League. Please send full information at once."

In reply: Although his surname is Shirk, the brother evidently does not shirk his work, and that is what taking proper care of film in keeping it in good shape means. Your name has been added to the Roll of Honor, and you may obtain all information by careful reading of the department, particularly the issue of June 16th.

"Anti-Misframe League"

Pledge

As a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart, and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practised in the operating room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return film to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remove all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil. The Roll of Honor follows:

Editor's Note: To Brother Pastre belongs the honor of heading the roll, for it was he who proposed the "League." Names of operators will be added as fast as they are received, and copies of letters will be sent to the various film exchanges asking their support.

Notice—Anti-Misframe League Members

In an editorial by E. K. Gillett, which appeared on page 381 of the June 2 issue of Motion Picture News, speaking of the purpose of the Anti-Misframe League, Mr. Gillett said: "There are no strings of any kind attached to a membership except that every member must be willing to stand by the membership pledge." There is, however, one "string" and that is that each member send to the department the following information which is for the purpose of enabling us to keep a record of our members:

- Members Name, ...
- Home Address, ...
- Name of Theatre where employed, ...
- Address of Theatre and name of Manager, ...
- On receipt of the above information, button and membership card will be sent to members without any cost whatever. In this way we hope to prevent those who are not bona fide operators from obtaining something to which they are not entitled.

Manager with Ideas

GEORGE C. DAVIS, manager of Spooner's theatre, Southern Boulevard, near 163d street, Bronx, N. Y., is one of the few managers who believes in what they want when they want it. The Spooner theatre, seating approximately 2,500 people, is one of the largest in the northern part of our city, and even though the summer season is coming on the management expended several thousand dollars for a new stage setting, having purchased that which was formerly used at the Knickerbocker theatre, where Triangle pictures were being shown for some length of time. I met Mr. Davis recently while in that part of the city and had a most interesting talk with him, said talk being frequently interrupted by Davis inquiring of the patrons emerging from the theatre: "How did you like the picture? Did you like the music? And what do you think of our new stage setting?" The answers enable the manager to personally feel the pulse of his public, as it were, and get to know their likes and dislikes. Such a plan as this could be followed by other managers to good advantage. Another point for which I admire Mr. Davis was that during my visit he never once intruded or interfered with the work of the operator, Morris J. Rotker, who, located under the eaves, was with the aid of Power's 6A projectors putting over some picture, even though the machines were placed at an acute angle. In this case there was no perceptible distortion to the picture and the light was very well handled. In answer to my query, How often do you visit the operating room? Mr. Davis replied: "Never! Why should I? I get a good operator and make him responsible, and it's up to him to do the rest." Too many operators are worried to death by managers who live either in the operating room or near a push-button communicating with the operating room, which is, when a good operator is employed, unnecessary. I snapped a few pictures, which unfortunately were not good enough to have cuts made from. After the renovations are completed, which have been planned to make this one of the most up-to-date theatres in the Bronx, I will again do myself the honor to visit and renew my acquaintance with Manager Davis.

He's a Crank

SETH E. BARNES, Wichita, Kans., writes: Have read of the Anti-Misframe League and intended to send in my name sooner, but have been very busy and did not get around to it. I think it is a very good thing, and want to do all I can to help it along. The "pledge" is about what I have been doing for several years. I have always been somewhat of a crank about the condition of the film I run, and never put a film on the machine until I have looked it over, and taken out all the misframes and bad patches. I will say that the film always leaves my operating room in better condition than I receive it. I am glad to see such a movement started, and think all the boys should come through and do their part. I have been a reader of the News, and especially your department, ever since it began, and have received a lot of help from same. I am at present remodeling my operating room, and when it is completed will send you a description of it. I wish you and the News the best of success.

In Reply: It is quite commendable on your part that the film leaves you in better condition than it reaches you. It sometimes pays to be a "crank," and even though it necessitates a little extra work, you are rewarded (in heaven, my secretary says) by the consciousness that you are doing all in your power to please the theatre patrons. I am glad you find something of value in the department, and trust you will continue one of our readers. Will be pleased to receive the promised description and photographs of your operating room as soon as you get around to it. You say, "and think all the boys should come through and do their part." If you mean this, would suggest that you read Brother Murray's letter to the department, which appeared in June 16 issue of the News, and then go out and do as well, or better. For your kind wishes we thank you.

His Recovery Welcome News

G. KINGSTON HOWARD, president and business manager of Local 181, Baltimore, Md., who on January 22 was stricken with appendicitis and taken to the Maryland General Hospital on January 25, and immediately operated upon, after spending sixteen weeks and one day has at last been released, and is again back at his old job of business agenting for the moving picture operators of the city on the Chesapeake. He has not entirely recovered, and it is expected another operation will have to be undergone before he is himself again. Brother Howard is, however, hoping for the best, optimistically speaking. The editor of this department sincerely hopes that it will not prove necessary for the brother to submit to another operation, possibly at the hands of “non-union” operator, that is, one not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Sixteen weeks is some season, and we regret that we cannot announce it was an entirely successful “season.”

Answers His Own Question

Rex Kilbourn, Bentonville, Ark., says: ‘I have trouble with my lamp leads burning off in the lamphouse near the terminals. Is this because the wire is old, or what is the cause? I have a No. 8 wire running into the theatre from the main line, which is A. C., and I use a compensator set at 60 amperes. Would it be better for me to use 40 amperes instead of 60 until I get some No. 6 wire? What would you recommend for lamp leads for A. C. drawing 60 amperes, and where can I procure them? We moved into the air dome yesterday and just got out in time for a big rain. Rain does not bother us, however, as we have a balcony at the rear of the air dome which will seat 200. This has a roof and on rainy nights we hold all our patrons. I have a 65 foot throw and 50 feet is through the rain, when it is raining, but the rain does not harm the picture unless it strikes the screen and runs down it. The design of the emblem for the Anti-Misframe League is a good one. Thank you very kindly.—Ed.)

In reply: As I have said at the head of this article, you answer your own question. The cause of the lamp leads burning is probably due to the wire becoming old and disintegrated, and this latter is hastened by the use of wires too small in diameter to carry 60 amperes of current. It would be better for you to use only 40 amperes until you get wire of larger diameter. I think you must be a little off on your calculations of the supply wires, for I have never heard of a lighting company running a wire as small as No. 8, which, in addition to carrying current for the house lights, was also to furnish current for the projection area. Any good supply house can furnish you with asbestos covered lamp leads, and I would suggest that you use nothing smaller than a No. 6. A No. 5 would be preferable, but is, I believe, rather difficult to obtain. Many good wire terminals have been placed on the market, and I think that the Bell-Howell Company, Chicago, Ill., manufactures a wire terminal which keeps the lead two to three from the lamp terminal, thus reducing the trouble experienced by many operators of frequent burning off of the leads. I would be pleased to receive from you photographs of the air dome with its unique seating arrangement. They say that anything is liable to happen in Arkansas, and I hope it does not rain there continually. Glad you like the design of the emblem for the League, and hope you will become one of its active members and use every effort to secure new members.

No Strings

A. D. Hotaling, De Land, Fla., writes: “I would give me great pleasure to join the new organization, the Anti-Misframe League. I am more than willing to stand by the membership pledge which appears in the Projection Department of the News. Kindly enroll me as an active member. The way I understand it there are no strings tied to the membership. If there are let me know, and I will remit. I wish you success in your new and worthy undertaking.”

In reply: Your understanding is correct. There are no strings attached to membership in the Anti-Misframe League other than those which appeared in the Projection Department of the June 16th issue of the News under the caption of “Notice Anti-Misframe League Members.” Your name has been placed upon the Roll of Honor in compliance with your request. For your kind wishes thanks.

We Sell Only ONE GRADE

Only ONE Model

—the latest development in the art of projection. We sell no back numbers that are artificially kept alive.

THIS POLICY

has multiplied Simplex Users and Simplex Output until now we sell more high-grade Projectors than any other manufacturer in the world.

REMEMBER

This was accomplished under competitive prices. Furthermore, projecting pictures is not like patent medicine—there's no imagination about it. If the quality is not there, you see it on the screen, you feel it in the Box Office and in repair bills.

Local 306 Elects Officers

The annual election of officers held by Local 306, Moving Picture Machine Operators of Greater New York at Central Opera House, East Sixty-seventh street, New York, on Wednesday, June 6, was some session.

Meeting was called to order by President George C. Edwards at twelve o'clock midnight, and as soon as counters and tellers had been appointed the members proceeded with their balloting, the result of which was as follows:

Sam Kaplan, of the Precision Machine Company, having no opposition, was unanimously elected president. For vice-president A. Polin was defeated by our old friend, Simon Tarr, the vote being 119 to 137, with Terr on the heavy end. For recording secretary H. I. Sherman defeated his running mate, Morris J. Rotker, by 102 votes. Al I. Mackler, who was opposed by L. Weinberger, for the secretary-treasurer, was elected by 157 votes. Harry Mackler, business agent of the local for several years, and in our estimation an able man for the position, ran way ahead of his ticket, defeating his opponent, F. R. Duryea, by 210 votes against the latter's 43. S. Goldfarb was elected sergeant-at-arms by 112 votes, polling fifty more than his nearest competitor, of which there were three. E. T. Stewart was again elected member of the executive board, with 107 votes. Three trustees, consisting of Brothers J. Daisy, chairman, R. Goldblatt and C. Edwards, past-president, were elected with the following number of votes: Daisy, 151; Goldblatt, 146; Edwards, 113.

N. H. Hewitt, "Pudgy Wudgy," had a chance of being elected one of the trustees, as did N. Munch, alias Nervy, but their chances were lost owing to the extraordinary derelict haircut of Brother Munch.

This was one of the most tranquil elections ever held by Local 306, as well as one of the most orderly—for 306, two hundred and sixty-two votes being cast out of a possible three hundred, for there were fully that many present, a large number of whom were disqualified from voting owing to the fact that their dues were not paid up to date, and, further, the fact that the secretary-treasurer refused to accept any moneys on their accounts that evening. This should make those members up who were delinquent so it will not be necessary for such an occurrence to be repeated.

To the newly elected officers the editor of this department wishes all success in their undertaking, and trusts that they will so guide the destinies of Local 306 during the coming year in a manner that will reflect great credit upon themselves and succeed in making Local 306 better, busier and bigger. To the defeated candidates we can only say better luck next time.

Sherman Married

An event of unusual importance and which is worthy of mention in the "Eastside Society" notes, was the marriage of Harry L. Sherman (no relation of the Projection editor), recording secretary of Local 306, Moving Picture Machine Operators of New York, to Miss Rose Cohen, of 42 Eldridge street, which occurred at the home of the groom, 12 Avenue B, on May 9—Lech Boimer. (Whatever that is. It isn't a new brand of cigarettes, is it, Harry?) The happy young couple have taken up their residence at 2035 Monterey avenue, the Bronx, where all operators who marry from the ranks of this local eventually migrate. Knowing that it has never been done before, I'll quote an original saying of my own, and remark that I hope all their troubles will be little ones, and I feel sure that there will be many years of happiness in store for the newlyweds if Brother Sherman will inform his wife that the telephone number of the local has either been changed or that the instrument has been disconnected. It has been rumored that Al Mackler gave Sherman a hard race before he finally captured the prize, and I think it would be better to take temptation out of their way if complete happiness is to be assured.

Another rumor that was current was that the unusual hardship which Sherman had to undergo while operating at the Criterion theatre, where the great Italian film, "Christus," was being shown, drove him to commit this rash act. Whether there is any truth in this latter or not we are not prepared to say, and will await developments.
He Who Hesitates Is Lost

A. Hughes, Hardin, Mo., writes: “I have hesitated writing our Projection Department until I read the letter of Mr. H. C. S., of Belmont, Wis., for fear my message would only serve to help fill the waste basket. I do not understand why more country town operators do not write this department unless they too feel as I have that being non-union operators we should not break into the time-light. I want to raise my voice in favor of the Anti-Misframe League for I feel that it is going to be a great help to us country or last-run operators (many of them like myself, busy through the day, and do not have the time to run the reels through the machine or look them over before the show), and if there is any way open I am anxious to help boost it. If you desire us for members please put me down as a charter member. I have operated a machine for about six years for from three to six nights a week and have had but very little trouble. None with my machine, however, for I keep my screw driver on a high shelf. My only trouble (which I have not yet mastered) is my upper carbon sometimes breaks after cooling just below the clamp. I use 50 to 60 amperes through a Bell-Howell compensator, upper and lower soft cored carbon.”

In reply: It is indeed a pleasure to receive this letter from Brother Hughes for he is one of those few operators who put their brains to some good use, having, in conjunction with his partner, Mr. C. Weakley, designed a device for the conserving of the operator’s eyesight, of which mention was made in the department some time ago under the caption of “New Light Shield.” Perhaps it is hesitancy on the part of “country town operators” which prevent them from writing our department, for as I have said from time to time, our department is for the motion picture operator whether he be a union man or otherwise, although personally I cannot see why he should be otherwise if there is an organization of operators within a reasonable distance of his place of employment. There are many men whom we might term good union men who are not affiliated with any labor organization, and I believe Brother Hughes is one of this kind. Another reason which might be attributed to the failure on the part of the small town operators in writing the department is that they feel they are weak on letter writing, and fear that if their letters are not well composed they will be open to ridicule. This is a fear not well founded, for while many such letters may be received, I endeavor to put them in readable form before they appear in the department, so that if there is their reason they need feel no further hesitancy. I am not here to ridicule, but to lend all assistance in my power to the motion picture operator. All can help boost the Anti-Misframe League, and I do desire all to become members. One point of your letter of more than passing interest is where you say that having operated a machine for six years you have never had any trouble with the machine for the reason you keep your screw-driver out of harm’s way. The screw-driver has been, and is one of the greatest determents to better projection, for many operators have believed when receiving a new machine that with the aid of their screw-driver they could improve upon the adjustments of their machine, which has been made at the factory with mathematical accuracy. The result of the promiscuous use of that small instrument has been that many projection machines have been absolutely ruined and have entailed much expense on the part of the theatre management. Where ruin to the machine has not resulted, the enjoyment of the theatre patron has been curtailed by the utterly ruinous projection of the picture upon the screen.

The breaking of your upper carbon might possibly be due to the fact that the inside of the carbon clamps are not perfectly smooth, a burr, or almost invisible knife-like edge having developed on the lower part of the clamp, and when fresh carbons are inserted, and the clamps tightened this edge is forced in through the outer surface of the carbon, and when the arc is struck the heat which naturally expands the carbon from being cut clear through, but when the current is cut off at the arc and the lamp cools, the contraction forces this burr into the carbon with the result that it will in many cases break off where you say. I would suggest that you use a small file and carefully smooth the inner surface of your carbon clamp, rounding off the upper and lower parts of the clamp where this burr is most apt to form. I believe in that way you will find a remedy for your “only trouble.” One thing I do not quite understand is the use of a ½ inch upper and a ¼ inch lower. Should think that ½ top and bottom carbon with a B-H compensator would be the proper set for you to use.

TWO POINTS OF SUPERIORITY

Silvertips Combine Small Diameter with Maximum Carrying Capacity

The arc-steadying power of the small diameter, negative, projector carbon was long recognized by expert exhibitors. But a decrease in diameter meant a lowering of current carrying capacity. Therefore, not until the heavily plated Silvertips were introduced, did these same men feel safe in adopting the small diameter carbon as standard. Silvertips, with their small diameter and high current carrying capacity, combine the virtues of steady arc and maximum brilliancy in a most acceptable fashion. Their enthusiastic reception by exhibitors the country over is due to the happy combination of these essential qualities.

As will be appreciated after reading the foregoing translation of König's remarks on the Isocyanines, the chemical aspects of color sensitizing present an interesting field for study; but equally interesting to the scientific student is the investigation, by physical methods, into the action, and properties of photographic color-sensitizers.

Vogel, the originator of orthochromatism and color sensitizing, laid down the rule that a dye sensitized for the color which it absorbed; which at once placed the study of color sensitizing within the realm of the spectroscopist, and all good investigative work upon the color-sensitizers, and upon color sensitizing, has been undertaken with the aid of the spectroscope, the spectrograph and allied instruments.

The extensive literature on color-sensitizing has been freely interspersed with "spectrum curves," more or less properly so-called, which are illustrative of the sensitizing action of the various dyes, and dye combinations, upon various makes and classes of light-sensitive photographic materials; but it will readily be appreciated that the sensitizing effect of a given dye combination upon one particular make of film or plate may not, and frequently will not, be comparable to the sensitizing action of the same solution upon a film or plate of different make or characteristics.

This fact considerably depreciates the value of many excellent published researches on "Color Sensitizing" in so far as their utility to the experimenter in color cinematography is concerned.

Under these circumstances the workers who are desirous of panchromatizing their own negative film stock will, in addition to their empirical tests made by dyeing film in various dye solutions, be inclined to fall back upon Vogel's precepts, and endeavor to acquaint themselves with the sensitizing properties of the various dyes by spectroscopic examination.

While the scientific investigation of their manufacturing problems is highly desirable on the part of color film makers, it will hardly prove necessary for any one to install elaborate spectroscopic apparatus for the examination of the limited number of Isocyanine sensitizing dyes. The absorption-spectra of this group of color sensitizers have been investigated with considerable precision, and quantitative spectroscopic data on the Isocyanines has long been upon record.

The Isocyanines, which, it will be recalled, are the only sensitizers at present under consideration, have been found to follow Vogel's rule very closely, so it appears that a study of their absorption spectra will yield information of equal if not greater utility than the study of spectrum curves which have been plotted from measurements of color sensitized (and exposed) photographic emulsions.

In the accompanying cut are shown the approximate "absorption-bands" of the various Isocyanine dyes, which have been described and discussed in the course of our article. The "bands," as here shown, do not represent quantitative measurements expressed in exact extinction-coefficients, but will prove as a model for the actual examination of the dyes in a standard spectroscope. The absorption bands of the Isocyanines (presumably in aqueous solution) have been measured with the spectrophotometer by Mees and Sheppard, who have published the curves plotted from their measurements,* while our chart is reproduced from the one published by E. Konig in his book, "Das Arbeiten mit Farbenempfindlichen Flächen..." Schmieder, Berlin, 1909. This chart which has the advantage of showing the absorption-bands of some of the dyes in alcohol, as well as in water, also shows that the absorption spectra of most of the Isocyanines (in common with the Cyanines) are characterized by two prominent bands; these bands were termed by Von Hubl the "alpha" and "beta" bands.

When endeavoring to deduce the sensitizing action of a dye from the study of its absorption band, it is important to note that the results of all important investigations in color-sensitizing show that the region of color-sensitiveness produced in photographic emulsions by bathing in solutions of the Isocyanines, or other sensitizing dyes, is shifted toward the red end of the spectrum to the extent of about 200 tenth-meters (wave-lengths) beyond the maximum of the absorption band. This is in accordance with Kundt's law, which states that the absorption band of a salt (or dye) in solution shifts toward the red as the refractivity (and dispersivity) of the solvent increases. In chemical spectroscopic analysis numerous instances have been cited where Kundt's law does not hold, but it appears to be valid without exception in color sensitizing, due, no doubt, to the high refractivity of the silver salts in a photographic emulsion.

The sensitizing action (to light of longer wave-length than 500) on Gelatin-bromide of the most frequently used Isocyanines is roughly as follows:

- Pinaverol is best used in dilute alcoholic solution and sensitizes from W. L. 640 in the red-orange through the green of the spectrum, exhibiting maxima at W. L. 590 and W. L. 530.
- Homocrol is a sensitizer of exceptional value, its action extending from W. L. 546 in the green to W. L. 486 in the blue-green. As is shown by curves 3 and 4 in the diagram, an aqueous solution of Homocrol exhibits hardly any sensitizing power, but in conjunction with ammonia this dye will strongly sensitize for blue-green and green. While it is necessary to use Homocrol with ammonia, in order to bring out its sensitizing power, this dye is the best sensitizer known for the blue-green of the spectrum and this is the region in which most all panchromatic plates and films are deficient in chromatic sensitiveness. By the addition of Homocrol (and ammonia) to a sensitizing bath the customary gap in the blue-green will be closed up in the case of films so sensitized.
Pinachrome sensitizes from the red orange at W. L. 630 through the yellow and yellow-green to about W. L. 540 and W. L. 510. By reference to curves 5 and 6 of the diagram it will be noted that the "beta" band is much more intense than the "alpha" band in the absorption spectrum of an aqueous solution of Pinachrome, while an alcoholic solution of this dye shows a strong a band and a weak b band. Von Hüb pointed this out in his article in "Eder's Jahrbuch" for 1905, previously referred to.

..Pinacyanol is the most satisfactory and important color-sensitizer which has yet appeared. It is a powerful sensitizer for the red and its action extends from the B line (W. L. 686) throughout the spectrum, with pronounced maxima between W. L. 680-615 and W. L. 580-527. In common with all other red-sensitizers of the isocyanine group a Pinacyanol-bathed film or plate shows a minimum in the blue-green (between E and F). While Pinacyanol yields tolerably good color-sensitiveness when used in aqueous solution, its sensitizing power is increased by the addition of ammonia; but is at its best when this dye is used with alcohol.

Dicyanin, which has been discussed by Dr. König in the preceding installments of this article, sensitizes further into the red than any other dye which we have mentioned. It sensitizes for the extreme visible red, and also the infra-red, but lacks the green sensitizing abilities of the other isocyanines. It is, moreover, a difficult task to successfully sensitize cine-films with a Dicyanin bath, as the sensitizing power of the solution rapidly disappears after the bath is made up. Upon one or two occasions when we were successful in preparing red-sensitive cine stock with Dicyanin, it was found that the film so treated retained its chromatic sensitivity for a considerable period. Dicyanin cannot, however, be said to be as well suited to the requirements of the color film maker as the other dyes described. It is practically esteemed for scientific photography and spectrographic work. Dicyanin must be used with ammonia or alcohol in order to show appreciable sensitizing power, and when mixed with other dyes it generally causes the total speed of an emulsion thus processed to be noticeably reduced.

Regardless of the sensitiveness to the various regions of the spectrum produced by the isocyanines, and other dyes, it has been found that all dyes which actually confer color-sensitiveness upon a photographic emulsion must, according to J. M. Eder*, possess the following qualifications:

1. "The dye must stain the silver-haloid grain (and not only the gelatine).
2. "Dyes which sensitize vigorously are all so-called substantive dyes—that is to say, they color substances, direct, and probably by molecular attraction. Staining the silver haloid is, however, no proof of color sensitizing.
3. "A dye sensitizes for those rays which it absorbs, or more correctly for those rays which the dyed silver haloid absorbs.
4. "The maximum of sensitiveness lies at about the same position as the maximum absorption of the dye, with a general shift toward the red. More correctly stated, the maximum sensitiveness agrees with the maximum absorption of the dyed haloid.
5. "Dyes with narrow intense absorption-bands generally give narrow intense sensitizing-bands, and those with broad ill-defined bands give broad ill-defined regions of sensitiveness.
6. "The brilliancy of color of the dye has no special influence.
7. "Neither the fugitive character of the dye nor its fluorescence has any action on the color-sensitizing properties."

Considering further the requirement that the dye must be a substantive one, and dye the haloid direct, Wall (loc. cit.) remarks as follows:

"A substantive dye is one which is absorbed by a material direct from its solution without the intervention of any third substance, and differs from an adjective dye in that the latter requires a mordant or substance which combines with the dyestuff to produce its staining. It is obvious that the use of a mordant would introduce innumerable difficulties when dealing with sub-

Musical Suggestions for "Joan the Woman"

It is with particular pleasure that we note an ever-increasing interest among leaders throughout the country to foster a better and higher grade of music wherever opportunity presents itself. Judging from innumerable inquiries which reach our office, we find that the music score issued by the film manufacturer for "Joan the Woman" is a little difficult, especially for small orchestras.

Based on the fact that this picture will be booked for quite some time yet, we have prepared a music cue sheet and leaders who expect to play for this production should preserve same until needed.

"JOAN THE WOMAN"

Attention: Clip page to sheet music. Also The March on the side of your stand and put a black in your book to refer you to these themes—this is the only way to catch the change quick enough.

Tympany watch for all effects and follow the action of picture

1. "Cupids Pleading" (4/4 Andante) Intermezzo by Voellter until T: "Her name was Joan of Arc."

A magazine’s success is measured by its advertising. Look at the “News!”
Old Mill Theatre, Dallas, Brought Up to Minute

Of all the theatres reported in these columns, none is deserving of more favorable notice than the newly rebuilt Old Mill theatre at Dallas, Texas, operated by H. A. Hulsey.

The first novelty that catches the attention is the installation of two enormous "Typhoon" fans as a part of the decorative scheme of the front. It is some jump of the imagination from an old Dutch windmill to these modern air-pusher, but a glance at the twin-tower design of the front actually suggests the "Old Mill."

Stepping into the lobby, every detail from the artistic cards announcing the programs, in place of the gaudy lithograph, to the solid plate glass ticket booth, smart in appearance as a Tiffany display case, is just what one would expect. A few palms and tastily chosen flowers add to a suggestion of luxury and refinement, which continues as one enters the theatre proper.

Once inside, rich draperies and the higher priced loges, with their bentwood individual chairs, flank two solid rows of elegantly upholstered seats, which look and are what they should be, first of all, cool and comfortable. Following the custom of all the newer theatres, wide and spacious aisles at the side and center, not cutting the seats into small sections, but leaving twelve to a row with ample space between rows, lead straight from the center entrance to the orchestra pit.

A feature noted in passing is two large sliding screens, inconspicuous against the rear wall at night, moved forward to give a darkened entrance during the matinee.

Ceiling fans so close together that not a single seat but feels the breeze make the seats under the balcony even more desirable than those nearer the stage. An elaborate panced decoration forms the under-balcony ceiling.

In the balcony itself, which is reached by wide stairways on either side of the auditorium, in every way as elegant an equipment is provided, and again a battery of ceiling fans keeps every bit of the air moving, so that it would not be an exaggerated claim that on the most crowded occasion the Old Mill patron would be a hundred per cent. cooler and more comfortable than he could possibly be at home.

The stage set is appropriate, ferns, rare orchids and palmettos tastefully arranged as a natural appearing garden, suggesting an effect that will not grow tiresome in its pleasing good taste.

The lighting is a point worth noting. Set-in ceiling lights mark the exits. Brassolite fixtures from the ceiling, evenly distributed, give either semi-direct or indirect lighting over the main auditorium and under the main balcony.

Loges on either side over the main aisles utilize every foot of available space in this most cleverly designed theatre.

The operating equipment is the last word of perfection, including Simplex projectors. Eighteen-inch "ports" both for ma-machines and the equally necessary viewing of the picture on the screen have automatic steel doors. The booth is located under the main balcony, a very advantageous position.
Under the Balcony, a Cozy Place; Dignified Lobby; Old Mill Theatre, Dallas

As previously stated, Typhoon fans of ample capacity force the air into the top of the house and out the many exits. In this way no corner offers a dead-air spot.

The electric sign deserves a write-up in itself. A diving Venus is shown, plunging into the old millrace, with the old mill wheel, and its trickling water. The splash of the diving beauty as she strikes the water centers the attention on the illuminated letters below announcing the featured attraction.

Thirty-five cents for boxes, twenty-five cents for lower floor seats, and ten and fifteen cents in the balcony, are prices Mr. Halsey has no difficulty in getting when he takes such care of his patronage. Incidentally five cents is the price for all children under twelve, so that there is no need to leave the children at home.

H. B. Coles Makes New Connections

H. B. COLES, who for some years has been intimately connected with the equipment end of motion pictures, is now engaged in the film end of the industry. He is connected with Edmund Ratisbowne, Room 401, 220 West 42nd street. Coles states that he and Mr. Ratisbowne are planning to handle some unique features, but desires at the present time to make no definite statement as to his plans.

Harrisburg, Pa.'s Greater Victoria Seats 2200

ONE of the many mammoth theatres which have been built in eastern Pennsylvania to meet the increasing demand for the best in picture theatre construction and equipment is the Greater Victoria theatre, at Harrisburg, one of the most beautiful houses in the eastern Pennsylvania section. A fifty-foot lobby, most elaborately decorated, with Menger and Ring specially designed display frames, leads into a spacious foyer and well arranged auditorium. Simplex machines furnish the projection heading the last word in operating equipment. A great pipe organ is under the direction of James George.

The seats are of the most approved, comfortable style; with plenty of space between, and considerable care has been exercised in regard to heating and ventilating. Rest rooms, smoking rooms, lavatories and other conveniences have been installed; in short, this Greater Victoria, with a seating capacity of 2,200 leaves nothing to be desired, from the viewpoint of exhibitor and fan alike.

Feely Theatre "De Luxe" Eastern Pa. House

In the Feely theatre, Hazleton, Pa., has one of the best appointed houses in the eastern section of that state. This theatre has only been in operation a few months, adopting from the start a combination policy of pictures and vaudeville, with, however, a special effort to make the picture part of the program equal to a house showing pictures only in a vaudeville house. Booked through the U. B. O., New York, Artcraft, Selznick, Triangle, World, Vitagraph and Pathé pictures have been added. Comedy or news pictures, as well as the feature and five vaudeville acts, are always provided.

The managerial support of the entertainment is furnished by an orchestra of five pieces, special stress being given to the quality of this part of the entertainment also.

The Feely theatre seats 1,330 persons, with comfortable standing room for three hundred more. Steel and concrete construction makes this a thoroughly fire-proof building and exits and entrances are conveniently arranged and ample for the handling of the large audiences which nightly patronize the liberal entertainment offered.

From the first entrance into the lobby, which is decorated in green, gold and ivory, with Menger and Ring frames and cases of latest special design, to the projection room, equipment is of the highest order.

Old Rose velours hangings, portiers and box decorations soften the entranceways and windows in a most artistic and harmonious decorative scheme which shows good taste and careful planning throughout.

All of the men's smoking room, ladies' rest parlors, cloak rooms and a special promenade, are among the indications of completeness with which this theatre has been furnished and equipped.

An elaborate heating and ventilating system insures the comfort of patrons in Winter or Summer.

In the projection room two Simplex projectors, with motor-driven rewinders supplement the usual theatre spotlight and other equipment. Large vents make this room up-to-date.

Not satisfied with furnishing such a well appointed theatre to the people of Hazleton, however, Mr. A. J. Feely, the owner of the building, has provided stores and offices and a dance pavilion of 5,000 feet of floor space.

Manager M. H. Goodman has had many years of theatrical experience in New York City, Buffalo, and the Southern states of Mississippi, Missouri, and Texas. He takes great pains to see that his equipment is maintained in perfect order, and the house service such as would be considered first class in a city many times the size of Hazleton.

INDIANA
A new theatre was opened June 9 at Indianapolis, hereafter to be known as the Lenwood, located at 131 South Illinois Street. The house is under new management and entirely different policy, and will cater especially to ladies and children. A large audience fan has been installed, so patron can retire to the house will be at all times properly ventilated. The house is being decorated with beautiful vines and a soft green lighting system, giving the interior a cooling effect. The opening program was a melodrama of the South, entitled "The Princess of Patchen." The Raito Trio entertained during the afternoon and evening with the latest popular songs. An entire change of program will be given daily.

A positive assurance that a new theatre will be erected at the corner of Eighth street and Wabash avenue. The building will cost $55,000, more than two-thirds of the amount the new picture and vaudeville house is to cost.

The second story portion of the H. F. Kidder part of the Irwin Opera House at Goshen, is being demolished, and negotiations now being conducted by John Stabinecker of Coldwater, Michigan, for the purchase of the Kidder property are consummated, a theatre will be built on the site. Mr. Stabinecker was here a few days ago and went over the proposition in detail, returning to Coldwater by motor and saying he would make a decision very soon.

If I decide to return to Goshen and build a theatre it will be a fire-proof structure," Mr. Stabinecker stated, and will be given over to motion pictures. My idea would be to set the chairs on a concrete floor and cut several doors along the alley wall. Until I go over the situation more carefully I cannot say positively whether I shall return to Goshen.

Mr. Stabinecker had once had the Irwin Opera House here and was unusually successful. Since leaving Goshen he has been on a motor trip to California and into Old Mexico.

KENTUCKY
The management of the Princess theatre of Henderson, has just announced that it will be opened on Sundays. Though this house has been closed for several weeks the requests have been so large that it was decided to open it on Sunday. An excellent program has been arranged for next Sunday's show, consisting of a fine reel feature, "Pate's Weekly News" picture and a good comedy picture.

The Supremacy of the American FOTOPLAYER
Is Acknowledged by Successful Exhibitors

The supremacy of the AMERICAN FOTOPLAYER as THE musical instrument for the highest success in motion pictures is recognized by successful exhibitors in all parts of the country.

This remarkable instrument has marked the most important event in the world of music today, and is destined to revolutionize music for the pictures, both economically and artistically.

Exhibitors appreciate the importance of installing a musical instrument of the highest tonal qualities with the least expense of operation.

The FOTOPLAYER is a real instrument with that touch of velvet, the beautiful singing tone that penetrates the depths of your soul; the utmost tonal beauty is awakened by the musician, by hand or by roll, producing the touch, the thought, and feeling of the composer.

They are born in the warmth of sunlight that bathes the greatest studios in America.

The joy of enthusiasm is indelibly recorded on every foot of film.

Their very name — Paramount — reflects their quality.

Hundreds participate in the making. Thirty-two separate and distinct departments contribute — unitedly — to their perfection.

Executives and their staffs; authors and their scenario writers; stars and their supporting casts; directors and their hundreds of unscreened assistants, synchronize their effort in making Paramount Pictures the public's most popular choice of the world's amusements.

Five years of consistently successful picture-making stand back of every Paramount Picture.
Productions

Commencing August 5th, 1917

Paramount Pictures will be distributed under the proved and tested plan of “Star Series” selective booking.

Paramount’s great exchange system with offices in more than a score of the country’s leading cities, is tuned-up to meet the demands of the progressive exhibitor.

The choice of selection of productions based on the known popularity of the Paramount stars offers opportunities of theatre profits heretofore undreamed of.

Some of the stars who appear in Paramount Pictures are:
- Mme. Petrova
- Jack Pickford
- Vivian Martin
- Fannie Ward
- Louise Huff
- Wallace Reid
- Ann Pennington
- George Beban
- Sessue Hayakawa
- Billie Burke
- Pauline Frederick
- Julian Eltinge
- and Marguerite Clark.

The time to make arrangements for the “Star Series” booking is NOW. Write, wire or call on the nearest Paramount exchange for information.

AN OPEN LETTER TO EXHIBITORS

I will greatly appreciate your views with reference to the policy of release and contract for Feature pictures beginning Sunday, September 2nd.

To recite a little history of the motion picture business I believe is always a good thing, for the whole industrial world is built on precedent.

When I legally, financially and personally fought the motion picture Monopoly or Trust a few years ago, I did so believing that it was for the best interest of the exhibitor. You will remember with me that the Motion Picture Patents Combine had for its policy the strangulation of competition and to continue producing inferior one and two-reel pictures, instead of progressing with the times, and permitting great brains to be drafted into the industry and great pictures to be made.

I fought in the United States Courts and won.

The motion picture is a free industry today and competition exists. Greater productions are staged that are drawing additional money to the box office.

When I engaged actively in opposing the proposed ten per cent War tax on admissions to the motion picture theatres, I felt that it was the proper move in the best interests of the exhibitor. I wish to thank the various Exhibitors Leagues of the United States for their telegrams and letters of thanks for my efforts.

Now we are on the threshold of a new era. Still further progress must be made in the motion picture field.

We, in New York, cannot judge what is best for your theatre and your box office. We want to get a consensus of expression. We know that whatever may be our new policy it cannot satisfy every exhibitor. Nor will we receive a unanimous opinion. However, we aim to fix a policy that will satisfy the great majority.

In inviting your views, I have in mind foremost the question of what policy of release and contract will be most acceptable to you. What policy will permit you to make the greatest profit during the next year, and give a fair return to the Fox Film Corporation as producers?

Are you in favor of a booking system by stars? Or, do you prefer a program policy?

Fox Film Corporation will release a number of Special De Luxe pictures, from seven to ten reels, after September 2nd. It is our belief that these Special pictures are of exceptional merit and box office drawing power, and will prove exceedingly profitable to exhibitors who book them. Under what policy should these special pictures be released?

What policy of release and contract best fits your theatre and circumstances relative to two-reel comedy pictures?

Fox Film Corporation is built on a solid financial foundation, and we know that on the success of the exhibitor depends our success.

I would be pleased to have your letter reach me before July 1st, so that when our policy is announced (to take effect September 2nd), we will be absolutely certain that we are dealing fairly and squarely and in the best interests of the trade. Our new policy will be announced July 15th.

Please think this matter over now, then sit down, dictate your comment, place it in an envelope, and address it to me marked Personal. I thank you in advance for the courtesy of your expression.

FOX FILM CORPORATION,

Apply the “Egg Test” to Goldwyn

ANY housekeeper has a hard time detecting doubtful eggs merely by looking at them. But when she holds them up against candle or gas-light, she knows in an instant whether they are good or bad.

Goldwyn’s application of this method to the film business is that exhibitors can see our pictures in advance of booking.

We invite you to test the power of the Goldwyn productions under an honest system of open bookings.

We have spent a fortune and taken ten months’ time in which to produce a powerful and artistic new type of motion picture and we are ready to sell them honestly.

Again we say to exhibitors: You will not have to book a series of pictures of any one Goldwyn star to obtain the one particular picture of that star you desire for your audiences.
Goldwyn Does Not "Hire" Its Brains

GOLDWYN PICTURES are the product of a group of great specialists giving everything at their command to the exhibitors of America. In charge of the many departments of Goldwyn you find the actual owners of this organization.

The producers of Goldwyn Pictures have not merely engaged themselves to Goldwyn. They, as owners, are doing the things they want to do as great artists to win new honors for themselves, and for their own and your profit.

Men and women who work for themselves are always the ones who win the most distinctive successes.

The hearts and brains of these talented, successful men and women have been given without reserve to Goldwyn Pictures. Their tremendous achievements will be instantly apparent to audiences throughout the world.

An Army of Triangle Players

There's an army of Triangle Players. Every man and woman—and child in it is recruited because of definite, pronounced ability. To suit the wide range of characters required, there is not one, but the pick of a hundred for each. All types are represented—big manly heroes, beautiful dainty heroines, old men and women, dancers, comedians, villains.

That is why Triangle plays are so true to life. That's why they hold and thrill an audience. The players fit their parts and the parts fit the players. There is always the man or the woman who can actually become the character assumed, and live it for the time. It takes earnest study, conscientious effort and a keen knowledge of human nature to pick players for Triangle Plays.

"RAILROAD RAIDERS" PROCLAIMED A BIG BOX OFFICE ASSET

EXHIBITORS everywhere are loud in their praise of the newest Helen Holmes chapter-play, "The Railroad Raiders." It is generally conceded that it is the last word in essay of thrillers.

Exhibitors Unite in Praise.

From all over the country comes report of its tremendous drawing power. "Seventeen hundred seats - the full capacity of the Palace Theatre - and we held them out - that's what 'The Railroad Raiders' is doing for us," writes O. L. Meister, manager of the Whitehouse Theatre, Milwaukuee, Wis. "I showed the first chapter of 'The Railroad Raiders' and did an excellent business on it - one of the best Mondays I have had in a long time. The picture starts out fine, and no doubt will hold up well to the end, as Helen Holmes never fails down," says R. W. Day, manager of the Palace Theatre, Trinidad, Col. "'The Railroad Raiders' is going big and is certainly a knockout. I packed them in at the matinee and had my house crammed full at starting time in the evening," writes George Lamon, manager of the Varsity Theatre at Campaign, Ill. "I think 'The Railroad Raiders' is going up to expectations from the box-office angle as well as every other angle. The story is great and the photography far above the average," reports C. W. Brill, manager of the North Theatre, Akron, Ohio. "'The Railroad Raiders' is Helen Holmes best production to date. The business she draws in this city is wonderful," declares Ollie A. Sylven, manager Piedmont Amusement Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

"THE UPPER CRUST" IS THIRD OFFERING OF GAIL KANE SERIES

GAIL KANE, graceful and accomplished actress, is the featured star in the Mutual Picture released the week of June 25th, "The Upper Crust" is its title. It is in five acts. Rollin Sturgeon directed it. It was produced at the American studios in Santa Barbara, California.

Adapted From Novel.

"The Upper Crust" is an adaptation of Charles Sherman's novel. "The Upper Crust" is set in the role of Molly O'Tuole, a bewitching personality who meets with reverses and seeks employment in the city. She obtains a situation as caretaker of a wealthy home, the mistress of which has gone to Honolulu for a long sojourn. Molly becomes so infatuated with the surroundings of wealth that she feels certain she can never be satisfied to resume her normal station in life. She is mistaken for the mistress of the splendid mansion and just to see how it feels to be wealthy, honore and respected, she allows the mistake impression to last and poses as the real mistress of the house. In due time she sees an opportunity to perpetuate her position by marrying a wealthy neighbor, though her heart tells her that she does not love him. In the meanwhile the son of the real mistress, disguised as a chauffeur, seeks employment from Molly, and the latter, never suspecting his real identity, condescends to put him to work. As the weeks pass Molly finds her "ideal man" in the chauffeur, but cannot believe happiness lies there for her, since he is but an humble mechanic. The battle between love and riches goes on, and then one day Molly chooses love and happiness instead of wealth, only to discover that she has after all chosen clothes as well, for the chauffeur reveals himself in his true identity.

Released the Week of June 25th.

The week of June 25th is set as the release date for "The Upper Crust." Exhibitors can make reservations now at any Mutual Exchange for both this feature and the two other Kane releases — "Whose Wife?" and "The Serpent's Tooth," both of which are now playing to capacity business everywhere.

A magazine’s success is measured by its advertising. Look at the “News!”
WHY I CHOSE THE RIALTO!

The Rialto has a managing director who is conscientious and particular.

So called "runs" in legitimate theatres in New York have lost their significance. The excessive overhead expense, the small seating capacity, and only two shows a day, have made "runs" for feature films on Broadway a certain financial loss except in the case of one or two spectacles which were worth the $2.00 admission charged.

However, this method of exploiting a feature impressed the buyer and the exhibitor, until in the past year so many mediocre and even poor films were given forced "runs" at heavy financial loss. The result has been that buyers and exhibitors do not today consider a "run" a mark of quality. At least the intelligent ones do not. I expect to do business with the intelligent ones.

The public has never been fooled by these runs. The millions of fans judge a film on its merits, as has been proved in scores of instances.

"PARENTAGE" is not a $2.00 film. New York City folk should not be asked to pay $2.00 to see it, when it is to be afterwards shown all over the United States at from 10 to 50 cents. At those prices, "PARENTAGE" is in a class by itself.

I consider the Rialto the finest theatre in New York City. I believe the hallmark of a Rialto showing is better than any "run," because of the recent abuse of that method of presenting special productions. Many of the films which have been exploited for "runs" were offered to Mr. Roth-apfel of the Rialto rent free, and refused.
Immediately after seeing "PARENTAGE," the first time, in preparing music for the private showing, Manager Rothapfel asked for a rental booking, and after seeing the production several times he made the request urgent.

I decided to avoid having "PARENTAGE" confused with the "forced run" features, and so booked it in New York's finest theatre for the week of July 8th.

Manager Rothapfel will place his personal guarantee in enthusiastic terms upon "PARENTAGE," in his advertising presenting it to his patrons.

"PARENTAGE" makes a direct appeal to the millions who pay from 10 to 50 cents every day to see films. It will be appreciated by the masses and the classes, in the biggest of cities and the smallest of towns.

I know the intelligent theatre owners of New York City prefer to have a film booked direct to them, instead of having it placed in a theatre not fitted for films.

They will be particularly pleased when they learn that an extensive advertising campaign is to be conducted in New York City when "PARENTAGE" is playing in their houses, instead of when it is being "given a run" in some small seating capacity legitimate house at inflated prices.

Yours for better business,

The "NEWS" advertisers believe YOU worth while: justify them.
WHY I CHOSE SELZNICK FOR N. Y. CITY AND CHICAGO

I have faith in "PARENTAGE."

A careful investigation convinced me that Lewis J. Selznick has the most efficient organization for handling a truly big film in New York City.

Within three hours after the private showing of "PARENTAGE," at the Rialto Theatre, on June 6th, fourteen different buyers had asked to buy the New York territory. I appreciated very much the enthusiastic manner in which they confirmed my opinion of "PARENTAGE," but I did not want to sell the New York City territory.

Lewis J. Selznick is a distributor. He frankly admits that he does not consider himself an expert judge of films. He is always guided by his staff, his associates and exhibitors, whose business it is to know film values.

Mr. Selznick became very anxious to secure "PARENTAGE," after getting a report from his partner Aaron Jones, of Jones, Linick & Schaeffer, of Chicago, who is recognized as one of the most able film men in the United States, and after hearing the enthusiastic praise of "PARENTAGE" from Manager Rothapfel of the Rialto Theatre.

Mr. Jones stated that, excepting one or two massive spectacles, he considered "PARENTAGE" the best combination of entertainment value and advertising possibilities he had ever seen. He classed it as the best box-office value of the year, and a sure-fire "long run" or repeat attraction.

I have made a special contract with Mr. Selznick to distribute "PARENTAGE" in New York City only, and with Mr. Jones, his associate, for Chicago, Illinois, and Southern Wisconsin.
"PARENTAGE" will open at the Rialto Theatre in New York City, July 8th, and at the Colonial, the best theatre in Chicago, on July 15th, Convention week.

You have undoubtedly heard of the stir which "PARENTAGE" created along Broadway, when privately shown at the Rialto, June 6th. Such news travels fast. I will not select a phrase from a few of the reviews of "PARENTAGE," because you have been fooled in the past, as I have, as an exhibitor, by such methods.

As a rule every critic writes at least one phrase which anyone can twist into "praise." You have seen phrases culled from unfavorable reviews praising some mighty poor productions, haven't you?

I have had every review reprinted word for word in booklet form, and if you missed them in the trade papers, they will be mailed to you promptly. This booklet will give you the complete verdict—not part of it!

Advertising, particularly with such an unusual film as "PARENTAGE," is of utmost importance. You will appreciate the sales value punches in every piece prepared for "PARENTAGE."

Many men have offered to buy "PARENTAGE" at phenomenal prices, without having seen the film, acting only on the exceptionally enthusiastic reports from the private showing. I prefer to wait until every buyer has had a chance to see "PARENTAGE" with an audience.

I have faith in "PARENTAGE."

Yours for better business,

The Sensational, All Record Breaking, Smashing Box Office Success

THE TANKS AT THE BATTLE OF THE ANCRE ON STATES RIGHTS!

Positively there has never been a picture made that will draw the crowds and at such high prices as will this phenomenally interesting and instructive picture. Over 90,000 persons paid to see it in one week at New York's famous Strand Theatre, with thousands turned away, thus breaking the Strand's house record. At Carnegie Hall, N.Y. the picture played to $50,000.00 for one performance and the nation's most famous men and women thronged to see it. A big New York Theatre man said he would have paid $10,000.00 for one week's rental had he realized the big drawing power of this five-reel feature.

“SERVICE OF LOVE” IS A GREAT PICTURE

And that is how they talk about General Film’s O. HENRY PICTURES. Two-reelers, we mind you. The sort, however, that smoothes the ostentatious five-reeler.

Listen further, to this:

MAITLAND DAVIES in a column review in the “Tribune.”—“This is not a criticism, but a eulogy... If you want to see one of the most attractive and thoroughly enjoyable photographs that has ever been placed upon the screen, go to the Alhambra Theatre this week... It tells a story of love... It is the kind of story that makes you smile and think about things. It is the kind of story that makes you laugh and cry at the same time.”

MAITLAND DAVIES in another column review.

And to this:

DOWN TO THE SERVICE OF LOVE... It’s not the length but the quality of the film that makes it a feature... It’s a new type of story, one that makes one want to go back for more... It tells a story of love... It is a story of human interest, and tells it in such a manner that it is impossible to find time to sit through it twice.”

HATE

By

J. Walter Meade

A thrilling dramatic story based on the theme of prenatal influence.

A question that has been perplexing the medical scientists and sociologists of the world.

A story crowded with big vital thoughts that hit hard and ring with truth.

Seven parts of stirring drama, interwoven with a charming love story and a mother's self-sacrifice for her boy, whom fate had made a victim of the heritage of hate.

Splendidly produced and acted by a notable cast.

Directed by

Walter Richard Stahl
The all powerful picturization of a tremendous theme.
A giant problem that is confronting the human race.
The production that will become conversation in every household.
A production that will cause millions to think.

The Eye on the Box-office

The talks we have with exhibitors lead us to believe that their most common business fault, at this moment, lies in keeping the eye glued to the box-office sheet.

Organizer Herrington says that exhibitors watch their competitors too closely. Probably true; but so also remains our contention. For in this case they are watching their competitor’s box-office.

PrACTICALLY every discussion we have with an exhibitor—arguments on pictures, their rental prices and booking policies, their advertising, etc.—ends abruptly with the exhibitor pulling out his box-office sheet.

"Well, anyhow," he says, "the picture made money for me. I’m satisfied."

"Or," he says, "you may be right but I lost money on that picture."

In any event the argument ends then and there so far as the exhibitor is concerned—with the say-so of the box-office tally.

"This is business by the day, but by the day only; and the exhibitor of today is in business to stick. His investment is heavy. His business obligations are of a large and permanent character. He behooves him to think of next year and of the next—and the next."

The box-office tally tells only of the day’s success or failure. There its say-so ends. As a prophet it may say nothing or it may speak falsely.

The picture that made money for the exhibitor may have done so at the sacrifice of the house’s reputation—a huge loss, if that be true; or its rental policy may be fundamentally all wrong; or its advertising may hurt present and future business.

Again the losing picture may have been poorly advertised; perhaps it was cheated out of its due share of advertising by the amount spent upon the successful picture. Or it may have lost money because its rental price was too high; or there may have been unseen local conditions which made attendance fall off.

The box-office sheet says that the picture was wrong; yet this may be just the kind of picture the exhibitor wants most and the kind which he should encourage the producer to make.

And by the same token the apparently successful picture—successful for the day only—may be just the kind of picture the exhibitor does not want for his permanent success.

The box-office sheet does not tell the true story.

Its figures are often used as an argument, for instance, against longer runs, whereas the factor that is really militating against longer runs may be an unseen one—such as excessive cost of distribution, or something that does not show at all in the box-office figures.

The exhibitor will have to get down under the superficial figures and do some clear and foresighted thinking if he is ever to arrive at the true solution of his problem, if he is ever to help correct the injustices of the business which he now claims burden so heavily his shoulders, if he is to be sure that he will be in business successfully several years from today.

We have an idea that many pictures are not so bad as the box-office sheet paints them. We believe that the exhibitor is often over-pessimistic about their quality and drawing power. His pessimism ought to be vented against the bad business policies attending the booking of the pictures or upon his own inability to advertise them properly.

Don’t put all the blame upon the picture.

TAKE a look at your own house and your own method of presenting and of advertising pictures. Take this look from the clear standpoint of your patrons. Are you constantly alert to take advantage of every opportunity for playing up your pictures and your house. Does your service to the patron meet in every way the very critical viewpoint of the large and educated public now attending picture theatres?

Then do some figuring yourself upon present methods (Continued on following page)
Exhibitors, Take Notice

THE Vaudeville Theatres of the United States raise annually a fund of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. They raise this fund out of their own box-offices, with no outside help. The assessment, we believe, is five dollars per week for each theatre member of the Association.

Exhibitors please take serious notice!

It would seem that the picture theatres of the country, more than ten times as many, ought to raise at least one-tenth of this sum.

Such an amount will pay the expenses of an active, permanent organization. It will provide headquarters and pay the salaries of executives able to look after the interests of the exhibitor members. And these executives, in our opinion, should be men, if necessary outside of the exhibiting business, fully able through training and experience to cope with the legal and business problems of any national organization.

The time has come for exhibitors to declare their financial independence. The time has also come that exhibitors are prone to give more thought to their competitor’s business than to their own and that this is a mighty poor business policy are foregone conclusions.

"Straight Dope," the Progressive Motion Picture Company’s house-organ offers the following sensible advice:

"The first step should be to ascertain, as nearly as possible, what portion of the total picture patronage of the community is controlled by your competitor or competitors. Your own is easily determined. Say for instance you have one competitor and you each have 25 per cent., which leaves 50 per cent. that is available for the one who has sufficient showmanship or salesmanship ability to bring it to his theatre. The logical thing to do in this instance is to concentrate your efforts on the remaining 50 per cent. Let your competitor have his 25 per cent.—he is bound to get a certain portion anyhow—your "line of least resistance" is to conduct a campaign among the patronage that is neither yours nor your competitor's. Your opportunities for securing results from this source are far greater than they will be from any scheme you may devise for attracting them away from your competitor.

Possibly you think this is a difficult problem or that it does not apply to your own particular case, but the fact remains that there is a certain amount of possible patronage in your community divided between you, your competitor and those who do not regularly patronize any theatre. Some theatre will ultimately secure this latter portion. Why not you?"

The Power of Advertising

JUST recently a prominent New York picture theatre booked a famous star picture and played to week capacity. The following week the same theatre booked a good picture with a lesser star, put the money saved into advertising—and played to the same full capacity.

There are some exhibitors who advertise only when they have a big star attraction. They skimp on the other pictures to do this.

Why not make the same effort occasionally on the other pictures? Try it and see what good advertising can do.

The Eye on the Box-Office

Don't take things at their face value. Don't swallow the chatter of the business. Don't be afraid to be revolutionary in your thoughts.

This business is going to make some mighty big moves and changes within the next few years. It may be that our whole business map will be changed. These changes are bound to involve you and your business interests. Why not make the same effort occasionally on the other pictures? Try it and see what good advertising can do.

Pennsylvania War-Crazed?

Pennsylvania exchanges are now paying a tax on every bit of machinery—the word is abused to include reinders, etc.—in their establishments. They face corporation and income taxes, Federal and State, of fifty-seven varieties.

And now it seems that the political steam roller will drive through a one cent tax on every foot of film—new and old—in use within the State.

Has the war driven Pennsylvania’s legislators tax crazy? Or is the war just a convenient excuse for the rolling of the familiar pork barrel?
Launch H. B. Varner's Candidacy at Enthusiastic Rally

Declarng League as Now Conducted. "Not Worth Thirty Cents," North Carolina Convention Sets Ball Rolling for Sweeping Clean-up, with H. B. Varner the Standard Bearer—Have Backing of Other States

(Special to Motion Picture News)

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N. C.—Henry B. Varner, of Lexington, N. C., Secretary of the North Carolina M. P. League, will be presented to the National Convention in Chicago for the office of president of the National League to succeed Lee A. Ochs, backed by solid and strong delegations from North and South Carolina and Virginia, and assurances already in hand of support from six other strongly organized states, according to the action of the North Carolina League in its fourth annual convention which closed here to-day.

Mr. Varner attained national prominence through his various strong fights before Congress during the past two years, first a year ago when he personally and alone, defeated the proposed one-half of one percent tax on theatres' gross receipts and more recently when he, Percy W. Wells, and A. F. Sams, succeeded in procuring an eleventh hour relief for the popular-priced theatres of the nation in the proposed War Revenue Bill. Since Mr. Varner's recent great victory in Washington, very urgent telegrams and letters, expressing support for the office, have been pouring in from the offices of the North Carolina secretary. It was stated yesterday by the representative of a New York trade paper that many members of the V. L. C. No. 1 favored Mr. Varner for the office, and it is the consensus of opinion where discussed that he is the type of man needed to wriggle in between the conflicting interests of both exhibitor and manufacturer, represent both angles of the industry and create harmony and cooperation between these two bodies. Mr. A. F. Sams, of Winston-Salem, in proposing Mr. Varner's candidacy, declared that the National League, as now composed and handled, was "not worth thirty cents," to the exhibitors of the nation; that it was badly in need of rejuvenation, so that it could become the power that was intended for it.

A Campaign Committee was appointed to boost Mr. Varner's campaign, and ample funds will be raised to bring the drive on Chicago to a successful culmination. The North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia delegations will go to Chicago in a private Pullman, and will carry with them Mr. D. M. Blackwood of Wilmington, publicity manager of the Howard-Wells Amusement Company, who will act as secretary and publicity manager to the three delegations while in Chicago.

The North Carolina League transacted much business during its three days' session, and again made history for pioneer achievements, when on the opening day a resolution was adopted requesting every member to contribute one day's receipts each month for the entire duration of the war to the National Red Cross Society for its military work, "in appreciation of the recognition given motion pictures by the Senate Finance Committee as an educational factor in the nation, and entitled to special recognition as such," and to further demonstrate that in fighting the war tax the North Carolina League was not endeavoring to evade doing their "bit" in support of the war, but simply acting in defense of the small exhibitor of the nation which constitutes the backbone of the industry.

The invincible three who stormed the citadels of the mighty at Washington, and obtained relief from the war tax measure—Percy W. Wells, Henry B. Varner, and A. F. Sams—remain at the helm of the destinies of the North Carolina League, having been unanimously re-elected to the office of president, secretary and attorney, respectively. The former two officers, together with Messrs. S. T. White, of Greensville; R. D. Craver, of Charlotte, and B. H. Stephens, of Wilmington, will constitute the Governing Board of the League for the coming year.

Mr. Stephen Bush, in an address paid high tribute to the work of Messrs. Varner, Wells and Sams at Washington, declaring regarding Mr. Varner, that "he is an unassuming and modest gentleman, but who carried the necessary punch concealed somewhere about his person, and had the knowledge when and where to apply it at the psychological moment," adding that his "work at Washington was a rare mark of genius and statesmanship." Mr. Sam Spedden, representing the Vitagraph World, and Mr. R. M. Savini, of Atlanta, representing Motion Picture News, reported the proceedings of the convention for their respective publications.

Raleigh was selected as the place for the mid-winter convention of the League, to be held in December or January. Among the representatives of the film industry present were: Carl F. Sening, Fox Film Company, Washington; Geo. E. Bell, United States; A. M. Livey, Pathe Exchange, Charlotte; F. F. Dardine, Universal, Charlotte; R. D. Cramer, Craver Supply Company, Charlotte; Fred W. Young and A. R. Davis, Mutual, New York; Joe Stephens, Charlotte; North Carolina Managers' Circuit, Atlanta; V. C. Whitaker, Artcraft, Washington; Marx S. Nathan, Great Atlantic Feature Film Company, Wilmington; Joe Young, K-E-S-E, Washington; Mr. Pennington, Craver Supply Company, Charlotte.

Vitagraph Officials Re-elected—Bigger Production Plans

Albert E. Smith was re-elected president and treasurer of the Vitagraph Company of America at a meeting held on June 14. Commodore J. Stuart Blackton was re-elected vice-president and secretary. Former Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock was elected chairman of the Board of Directors and general council of the company.

Prior to the election of officers a meeting of stockholders was held, at which those selected as directors were Albert E. Smith, J. Stuart Blackton, Walter W. Irwin, Clendennin J. Ryan, H. H. Vreeland and Frank H. Hitchcock.

Immediately following the selection of directors, Messrs. Smith and Blackton were re-elected by the unanimous vote of the board.

The Board of Directors were in session for several hours, at which production plans were discussed for the forthcoming year.

While everything appeared to have been going at top speed at the V studios in Brooklyn and at Hollywood, Cal., upon leaving the meeting Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the E. & E. sales organization for Greater Vitagraph, predicted that within seventy-two hours the two big studios would be far outstripping any previous effort.

Clara Kimball Young to Produce Own Pictures

Clara Kimball Young, it is announced, has formed her own company which will be known as Clara Kimball Young (Her Own) Company. Feature pictures will be made and released on state rights basis. The first picture will be released on or about August 15. The details of the organization have not been given. Miss Young will have complete control of the company. A well known director, it is stated, will be engaged.

Miss Young is now on a business trip through the West and South West. She will visit Chicago, Denver, St. Louis, Dallas, Des Moines and other large cities. The purpose of the trip is in the interest of her first production, the title of which will be announced soon.
Exhibitor Must Dictate, Says William Fox

Head of Film Corporation Calls on Theatre Owners for Opinions to Aid in Forming Coming Year's Booking Policies—Praised for Aid in Tax Fight

"A Short Letter to Exhibitors," issued this week by William Fox, president of the Fox Film Corporation, is expected to create considerable stir in the film world. The film magnate places squarely before the theatre owners of the country the matter of forming the release and contract policies to guide the activities of the Fox Film Corporation during the coming year.

"We are waiting on the exhibitor," declared Mr. Fox in discussing the open letter with an interviewer. "With all our sources of information and the exhaustive investigation we are continually conducting, we still feel that here in New York it is difficult to judge what is best for a majority of the theatres of the country. Through the suggestions of the open letter, we feel certain that we will secure a consensus of opinion enabling us to plan for the greatest profit to the greatest number of theatres.

"I am proud of being able to write such an open letter, and still more proud of the fact that the Fox Film Corporation is in such a state of preparedness as to be able to meet successfully whatever the verdict of the country's exhibitors may be. Our productions are charted and planned, our distribution geared to a state of readiness that makes it possible for us to thus place the dictation of our policies in the hands of the exhibitors."

The policies determined by the responses to the open letter, which appears on page 58 of this issue of Motion Picture News, will go into effect September 2.

The interviewer sought to secure from Mr. Fox a statement of his activities in fighting the Federal proposal for an exhibitor's tax. But on this point Mr. Fox could not be induced to speak, preferring to restrict himself to the results achieved and the numerous letters and telegrams of congratulations received from exhibitors.

In fact, it was only through the letter that any publicity was given to Mr. Fox's efforts.

Later in the publicity department, the Motion Picture News representative was shown a stock of congratulatory messages, headed by a wire from Louis A. Buettner, of Cohoes, president of the New York State Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America.

To Fight Daylight Saving in Canadian Province

D. G. Walkley, president of the Film Exchange Managers' Association of Alberta, Canada, has announced that the association is going to strenuously fight the proposed Daylight Saving Bill for their territory, and has endorsed the petition to the government of Canada for a Dominion-wide campaign of protest against the measure.

The association points out that it not only shortens the dark hours of the evening, which tends to keep patrons away from the show, but also confuses the time table for shipping the film, and quite often holds the show up.

Making Progress on Filming of Barriscale Picture

Bessie Barriscale, who is busily engaged in making her first independent production, a screen version of Grace Miller White's novel, "Rose o' Paradise," is confident that she will have it ready for release in August. James Young is directing the dramatic action. During the past week important railroad scenes were completed, and the remainder of the production will be photographed at Miss Barriscale's studio in Hollywood.

Universal and Bluebird in Detroit Shift

W. K. Hedwig, technical expert and who is head of the Hedwig Laboratories, as a result of exhaustive experiments, definitely stated last week that through the invention of the Allenbaugh Process, perfected by Major O. J. Allenbaugh, the loss to exchanges and irritation to exhibitors through hazy, scratched and marred film was a condition of the past.

Miss Weber was done with the purely propaganda picture with which she has been associated in great part in the past, though she does not intend to produce a story unless it is founded on a vital idea of permanent interest.
Lewis Starts Work on Picture Up State

Armed with a new story by Anthony P. Kelly and accompanied by many of the same actors and actresses who appeared in "The Barrier" and "The Bar Sinister," Edgar Lewis left Broadway a few days ago, and is now staging the first scenes of his next special production among the hills of Ticonderoga.

Mr. Miller said the motion picture business is not such a big money-maker as some persons suppose, declaring that there are only three producing companies that now pay more than five per cent dividends.

The chances of several of the other bills, affecting the picture industry, passing this session of the legislature are said to have been materially diminished by the decision just reached by the members of both Houses to adjourn the biennial session on June 28, considerably sooner than had generally been anticipated. If early adjournment does result in the defeat of all of these measures—fear not unlike will be adstreacked for bills that the politics interests regard as of greater importance—it will be more to the benefit than to the disadvantage of the picture interests, for about the only pending bill that they are eager to see passed is that substituting "regulation" for censorship of films, and this bill, even if it were to pass, would likely be vetoed by the Governor because it was introduced by his political opponents and would deprive him of the power of appointing the proposed Commissioner of Amusements who would replace the present board of censors.

Baltimore Exhibitor Turns to Picture Making

Harry Lewis, manager of the Wizard theatre, Baltimore, lately combined forces with J. Afer Barry, formerly assistant director with the Fine Arts Company, and the immediate result is a picture entitled "Fighting at Home," with a cast composed of a company of "The Vagabond Players," who have risen to considerable prominence in Baltimore. The story goes to show that the man left at home can be just as much of a hero as the one who goes to war.

Canadian Manager Changes

M. Davis, formerly Montreal manager of Famous Players Company, has been appointed road man for the General Film Company, Quebec territory, and H. Jordan, formerly manager of the Electra theatre of Montreal, has been appointed city salesman.

Legislative Bureau a Stern Necessity in N. Y.

Grant Anson Warns of Future Dangers Besetting Industry—Suggests National Legislative Bureau—Sunday Opening Bill Probable Next Year

A FUTURE fraught with danger despite the defeat of the Wheeler license bureau bill, is predicted for the motion picture industry of New York state by Grant Anson, chairman of the Legislative and Judiciary Committee of the M. P. League of New York, who for weeks fought the harmful measures that were up before the New York Legislature.

Mr. Anson told last week of the battle in Albany for the Sunday Opening bill, and against the Wheeler measure. He is confident that the way is paved for a Sunday motion picture bill at next year's session, but thinks it possible this may take the form of a local option bill.

Full credit for the defeat of the Wheeler bureau bill is given by Mr. Anson to the National Association, William Brandt, Louis Levine, Arthur Friend of the Famous Players-Lasky Company, Mr. McCarthy of D. W. Griffith's office, and Frederick Elliott, who according to Anson rendered invaluable aid.

Speaking of the future Mr. Anson said:

"The exhibitors and manufacturers must be made to realize that the support of a legislative bureau should be part of the regular routine of their business, the same as paying rent, exhibiting pictures, producing pictures, etc. Every senator and assemblyman knows what salaryCharles Chaplin draws and what Mary Pickford gets, and then his knowledge of our business stops. He doesn't know of the struggling exhibitors, of the companies which have ceased to pay dividends, and of the companies which have fallen by the wayside.

"I wish to issue this note of warning to both exhibitors and manufacturers. If this legislative bureau is not established so that competent men can deal with future situations as they arise—men who know what to do and how to do it—I venture this prediction: that the motion picture industry will get hit on the back in New York state alone with a 'big bat' which will not affect the industry of New York State alone hundreds of thousands of dollars per year. In the rising tide of increased legislative expense all over the country, new field must be found to tax, and it is only natural..."
Lyman Howe Co. Open New York Offices

New Organization Divided Into Producing and Traveling Companies—One Function Will Be to Inspect All Films—Best Will Be Purchased

Lyman H. Howe, pioneer exhibitor, in conjunction with several other film men, has opened a suite of offices in the Godfrey Building, New York, to handle the affairs of two corporations of his organization, one of which will produce and distribute educational films while the other corporation will handle theatrical films, and operate traveling companies in various parts of the country.

Another function of the officers will be to inspect all films on the market and to buy those of exceptional merit.

"Crossed" dates, and at the same time will be of convenience to the exhibitor. The fact that on August 5 the new Paramount booking plan goes into effect, which will make close co-operation on release dates necessary between Paramount and Aricraft, is stated as another reason for the close co-operation.

The company also erected its laboratory of specialists and expert technicians.

In Washington, Boston, Pittsburgh, Atlanta and other large cities, the offices of the Paramount and Aricraft corporations have recently been combined under the same roof.

The explanation of the combination of interests lies in part in the fact that there is a feeling that closer efficiency and service can be given subscribers to Paramount and Aricraft productions in this fashion. The move will serve to nullify "crossed" dates, and at the same time will be of convenience to the exhibitor.

In Minneapolis the company will operate the 1,000 cities twice each season for over twenty years.

It is the boast of the Howe organization that the programs of educational films given in the past were selected and arranged with skill, art, and judgment. It is the announced aim of the new company to base their policy fundamentally on the same plan, and endeavor to make each production and program better than the preceding one.

Leon D. Netter, head of the Masterpiece Film Attractions, announces the opening of his new offices at Suite 404, Sincere Building, Cleveland, Ohio, from which he will operate through the Ohio territory.

In addition to "The Garden of Allah," which is meeting with unprecedented success in Ohio, Mr. Netter will exploit such features as "Beware of Strangers," Audrey Munson in "Purity," "The Libertine," with John Mason and Rex Beach's the "Ne'er-Do-Well," in conjunction with a number of other feature productions. Mr. Netter will continue to add to his present extensive list productions of such merit as the Masterpiece company has been identified with in the past.

Netter Opens Office in Cleveland

In Washington, Boston, Pittsburgh, Atlanta and other large cities, the offices of the Paramount and Aricraft corporations have recently been combined under the same roof.

The move of the Paramount offices to Aricraft, or vice versa, has been dictated by circumstances such as location, size of offices, etc.

In Pittsburgh the combined offices are in charge of Joseph Klein. E. T. Gerrish, who has been in charge of the Paramount office, was transferred to Cleveland to open a new branch.

In Atlanta W. C. Brandon, Aricraft manager, severed his connection with that corporation.

In Ohio, Mr. Netter will exploit such features as "Beware of Strangers," Audrey Munson in "Purity," "The Libertine," with John Mason and Rex Beach's the "Ne'er-Do-Well," in conjunction with a number of other feature productions. Mr. Netter will continue to add to his present extensive list productions of such merit as the Masterpiece company has been identified with in the past.

The other Howe organization is known as The Lyman Howe Attractions, Inc., and operates traveling companies which have been playing the leading theatres of over 500 cities twice each season for over twenty years.

One of the most enthusiastic meetings yet attended by National Organizer Fred J. Herrington was held in Des Moines with the understanding that it was to be an Exhibitors League, pure and simple, organized for the purpose of making it possible for a better understanding between the film men and the exhibitors. The film men were to enjoy an associate membership.

In the meeting, held June 13, for the formation of this new body, there are reported to have been sixteen exchange men and road men and ten exhibitors. Those really interested in the Exhibitors League are said to be deaf to the entreaties to join the new organization.

It was only on April 26 and 27 that the Iowa Branch of the National League was called in Des Moines with the understanding that it was to be an Exhibitors League, pure and simple, organized for the purpose of making it possible for a better understanding between the film men and the exhibitors. The film men were to enjoy an associate membership.

J. Warren Kerrigan finished his five months' tour of the moving picture theatres of the entire country on his return to Los Angeles on June 5.

The next day he made his first visit to his studio, where he met Robert T. Kane, vice-president of Paralta Plays, and Robert Brunton, art and technical director. A thorough inspection was made of the studio and then Kerrigan began arrangements for the screening of Peter B. Kyne's "A Man's Man."
Sennett Probably Out of Triangle: Radical Future Plans

Charles Ray Also Resigns with Hart—H. O. Davis Outlines Impressive Ideas—110 Per Cent Amusement Service Basic Foundation—Six New Directors—Companies Firmly Welded

CONFIRMATION of the reorganization plans of Triangle, outlined in an exclusive article in Motion Picture News in its issue of June 23, was given last week by General Manager H. O. Davis.

News and fact on developments of the past seven days, are, briefly, as follows:

Probable withdrawal of Mack and Sennett, following similar action by Thomas H. Ince.

Changes in the personnel of the business and producing staffs in the T. Western studios, including the addition of many of H. O. Davis' former Universal associates.

Specific policies and plans to be followed in production and service in the future, announced by H. O. Davis.

The resignation of William S. Hart is also reported from the Coast, but it may possibly not be final. It is understood Hart bases his act on the fact that his contract specified his pictures were to be made under the personal supervision of Ince, and that the withdrawal of the director from Triangle automatically nullifies the agreement.

Several phases of the matter were presented in a new light last week, though Triangle in no manner is attempting to bring pressure to bear on the Ince management to change his decision. What the result will be, if any, only the future can tell.

Ray, according to advices from the West, bases his resignation on the same grounds as Hart, having a similar clause in his contract. An unconfirmed report has it that he will, on completion of his present picture, sign with Ince.

The fact that Mack Sennett, Keystone director, was to leave the Triangle organization, has been rumored for several weeks, but final papers in the dissolution were not signed on Monday.

Many rumors, and as many semi-official statements concerning the future activities of Ince and Sennett are abroad, but as yet no definite word has been had from either regarding their plans.

Russian Actors Always Choose Their Own Rules

System Is Said to Result in Exceptional Artistic Presentations—Greatest Slav Players Will Be Seen in Russian Films

CIRCUMSTANCES so suspicious that they resulted in the arrest of George Hann, operator at the Windamccr theatre, East Cleveland, Ohio, on the belief that he was instrumental in placing matches in the shipping case containing reels of "Womanhood, the Glory of a Nation," last week drew from Walter W. Irwin, general manager of V-L-S-E a general warning to the trade to safeguard all films against alien enemies.

Hann is being held under ten thousand dollars bail. Approximately two hundred matches are reported to have been found in the case containing the Vitagraph film. They are said to have been arranged between the box containing the bottom reel and the next above, and between the box containing the top reel and the next below. A musical score was in such a position that it might almost certainly ignite should friction light the matches, according to the Cleveland authorities.

According to the story told by the Cleveland police, the "Womanhood" print after playing two days at the Windamccr was sent to be sent to Newark, O. The assistant shipping clerk of V-L-S-E called for the reels. According to his testimony Hann rode in the automobile with him part way, sitting on a back seat on which the reposited the shipping case containing the film.

On the arrival of the cast in Newark, Manager Fenberg, of the Auditorium theatre, looking for the musical score he had ordered, is reported to have discovered the dangerous matches packed in the case.

The details were reported immediately to the State Fire Marshal's office at Columbus, O, and an investigation begun which resulted in the arrest of Hann. Later a statement, said to emanate from the Fire Marshal's office, was issued to the effect that Hann had placed the matches in the case while it was in his possession on the rear seat of the automobile.

Immediately afterward officials of the office arrested five Austrians, all of whom with Hann, are being held by the Federal authorities as alien enemies.

It is felt by Mr. Irwin and other motion picture men, that the ruling spirits in Germany are thoroughly aware of the influence wielded in the United States by motion pictures designed to arouse the spirit of preparation for war, and little surprise is occasioned at any move which might tend to check this influence.

Warns to Safeguard Film Against Alien Enemies

Mozjukhin's versatility is conveyed by the fact that he will he presented as Knitza in Leonid Andrieff's "The Dagger Woman" are presented Mozjukhin as the artist, Gsovskia in the title role, Panoff as the father and Krimovich as the sweetheart—all leading exponents of dramatic art.

Motoy Comedies Sold in Two More Territories

The Peter Pan Film Corporation, who are releasing on a state rights basis the Motoy Comedies, announce that they have closed additional territory during the past week. Mr. Day of the Metropolitan Film Service Company, Washington, D. C., while in New York bought the state rights on these novelty comedies for the States of Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina, District of Columbia, and Delaware. Only the largest first-run houses are to get these comedies. Another short-reel feature handled by the same firm is "How About You?" a picture relating to the present war conditions. "How About You?" has been endorsed over the signature of Gov. James M. Cox, of Ohio. The following letter which has been reproduced in a one sheet and is used for poster advertising.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I can heartily recommend the picture "How About You?" as a highly patriotic production which can be of utmost aid in the stimulation of loyalty and service to the country in this time of need.

Final Drive for Liberty Loan Marked by Big Results

Since June 1 Six Film Concerns and Two Lithographing Companies Join—90 Per Cent. of Companies of Country Expected to Be Represented by July 1

ADVANCE indications resultant on the rush of applications the first half of June indicate that the month will establish new membership records for the National Association.

Not only the film companies, but other companies dependent on the industry to a large extent for their business, have seen the wisdom and advantage of affiliating with and doing their share to support the work of the national body.

The companies which have joined the National Association since the first of June are as follows: Triangle Distributing Company, to be represented by S. A. Lynch; Metro Pictures Corporation, as a producer member to be represented by Joseph W. Engle; Metro having been one of the founders of the National Association as a distributor member; Louis J. Selznick Enterprises, represented by Louis J. Selznick; Astra Film Corporation, represented by L. J. Gans; and Balboa Amusement Producing Corporation, represented by H. F. Horkheimer.

Two lithographing companies were added to the supply and equipment class through the receipt of applications from the Otis Lithographing Co. of Cleveland, which will be represented by its president, W. N. Brewer, and the Alpha Lithograph Co. of New York, represented by George L. Cooke. These companies, together with the H. C. Miner Lithographing Co., the Acme Lithographing Co., and the Acme Lithographing Co. will form the nucleus of a Poster and Lithographers Division, of which Walter J. Moore, vice-president of the firm is chairman, with L. P. Weber of the Acme as secretary.

Among the prospective applications from producers are the Star Film and Rolin Film Companies, Lasalida Films, Inc., and the Companies, Myers-Thoby Comedy Corporation, all producing through Pathé Exchange, Inc.; Bray leasing through the Klever Exchange; releasing studios and the Klever Exchange; releasing through Universal, Norma Talmadge Film Corporation and Triangle Film Corporation.

A MORE fitting climax could not be conceived than the one which resulted from the concerted efforts of the motion picture industry during the government's campaign for the Liberty Loan, which was brought to a close last Friday. The climax was reached when Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, at a meeting in Cincinnati last Tuesday, asked that the industry extend to the motion picture industry of the United States praising it for its remarkable efforts in floating the bond issue. A fac-simile of Secretary McAdoo's message appears on this page.

"Your wonderful industry," the Secretary said, "reaches millions of loyal Americans each day. It will be a genuine service of patriotism," he concludes in his message, after asking that the message, "Help win the war—buy a United States Liberty Bond," be flashed on the "screen of every theatre in America."

"Your contributions," he says, "are as valuable as they are generous. No single industry has contributed more to the cause of the country than the motion picture industry. Millions of people are brought face to face with the great necessity of their cooperation, and thousands responded in a substantial manner. These efforts in furthering the plans of the government. But the industry did not rest content with rendering this assistance alone. We learn that it has subscribed in its message, after asking that the message, "Help win the war—buy a United States Liberty Bond," be flashed on the "screen of every theatre in America."

Unusual Interest Attracted by "Robespierre"

Arendt's "Robespierre" ranks easily among the biggest productions. In settings it is prodigious, one great set is three hundred feet, too, begin to unfold surprises in surpassingly beautiful pastorals as well as battle scenes.

Introduction with trumpet's blaring of "Robespierre" and less than a week on the market, unusual interest is already being attracted to the Export and Import Film Company's spectacle entitled "Robespierre." Although there has been no trade showing of "Robespierre," it is announced that, but in the end he meets an ignoble downfall, and death on the gallows in a stirring scene.

The story is the historic one of the fall of autocracy in France, beginning with a survey of conditions and the debates. Novelli in its personnel. Mr. Blumenthal has done some work on "Robespierre" which enhances its value as a patriotic document by bringing the story right up to the present time.

Advance Agent for Pathé Stars Attending Convention

For the special purpose of the state rights department of this publication, a correspondent was sent up to view the production and report on it from a commercial standpoint. In magnitude of staging and number of characters engaged in its spectacular standpoint, but also in its individual effort, for the wonderful Lydia Borelli takes the leading role supported by the censors deleted. It is definitely stated that Mr. Chaplin has received better than a million offer and that his brother, Sid Chaplin, is now on his way East to complete negotiations for the release.

It is understood the intentions are to conclude production at the studio, now occupied by the Lone Star Film Corporation, where eleven of the twelve pictures contracted for by the Mutual have been filmed.

As a special feature "Robespierre" stands out strongly not only from its spectacular standpoint, but also in its individual effort, for the wonderful Lydia Borelli takes the leading role supported by a cast which numbers Novelli in its personnel. Mr. Blumenthal has done some work on "Robespierre" which enhances its value as a patriotic document by bringing the story right up to the present time.

Warm Greeting in Boston to "The Crisis"

William N. Seelig's production of "The Crisis," screen version of the novel of the same name by Winston Churchill, began a Boston run at the Majestic Theatre, evening of May 14, under the management of the Sherman Film Releasing Company.

Warm Greeting in Boston to "The Crisis"

William N. Seelig's production of "The Crisis," screen version of the novel of the same name by Winston Churchill, began a Boston run at the Majestic theatre, evening of May 14, under the management of the Sherman Film Releasing Company. All the orchestra seats were sold by the preceding Saturday at $1.75 cents and 50 cents. The balcony seats at $1.75 and 50 cents; and the gallery at 25 cents. At the daily matinées the prices are halved. A symphony orchestra of twenty-five plays the musical score. Mrs. Rose Gerber sings special solos. Major James M. Curley made a speech the opening night between the two halves of the entertainment. The newspapers were uniformly favorable in their reviews, most of them giving half a column or more space.

Group Booking for "Pokes and Jabs" Comedies

In presenting the new "Pokes and Jabs" one-reel comedies, General Film, their distributor, inaugurates a service calculated to be of value to the exhibitor. These comedies, with Burns and Stull as stars, are being marketed in groups of six fresh subjects at a time, so that the exhibitor can know definitely in advance just what and how much he is going to get.

The first group of six comedies, prepared by the Jaxon Film company is now ready. The subjects are "Are Actors People?," "A Ride for Life," "Military Madness," "The Rest Cure," "The Perils of Pauline" and "Ploughing the Clouds."
Horsley's London Agent Tells of Foreign Conditions

C. W. Russell, London representative of David Horsley's productions, is in Los Angeles for a stay of two weeks to become familiar with the new productions to be made at this studio. Upon the culmination of his stay here, he will return to New York and later from there will go to London to supervise the distribution of the Horsley pictures.

Mr. Russell, in speaking of the conditions in the foreign market, stated that in England, where all theatres are booked for from eight to nine months in advance, with an average program of nine reels, conditions with the exhibitors, he reports, are exceptionally good, and the exhibitor is enjoying an era of prosperity but facing the possibility that when all is done it is prophesied there will be a return to the shorter subjects, those of two or three reels.

American films fare exceptionally well in England, he stated. About ninety per cent of the pictures shown there being from the American studios. Fully seventy-five per cent of the American subjects made are sold for English showing.

Concerning the future Mr. Russell prophesied that most of the continental buyers would purchase American films through representatives who will be permanently located in New York and that in all probability the same plan will be followed by the English film buyers.

Universal President on Way East

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, who has been visiting the coast during the past year, is on his way east. Mr. Laemmle served in a supervisory capacity in England, Ireland and Wales during the past year. Previous to that he opened several branches for Fox Film Corporation in South America. He will be at the home office for some time now. He reports that "A Daughter of the Gods" is doing a record business at the London Opera House.

Strand Employees to Front

The management of the Strand theater is beginning to feel the country's call to arms. Several of the military looking ushers have already left to join the colors and others have been ordered to report by November 1st. Manager Edel has issued a statement to the employees of the theatre to the effect that any young man, now in the employ of the Strand theatre, who wishes to join the Army or Navy will be given his position back after the war if he so desires.
Nebraska Exhibitors Organize—Call Convention

 Charter of New Branch Received and Officers Appointed—Local State Branches Will Be Organized During Convention, June 19

The Universal Company made a very promising offer to Mr. Bach to come back and carry on the service department organization or them as previously entered. This he will do, but first intends Mr. Dach, who formerly was in charge of the publicity service department in Canada for the Universal Company, is now completing the program. Vigorous resolutions against the deposit system, now practiced widely in Nebraska, likely will be passed.

"At our previous sessions we discussed the deposit system thoroughly," said Vice-President Ledoux. "We agreed there is no reason the exhibitors should finance the film companies with our own money. The exhibitors, however, would not mind a reasonable arrangement. They realize some exhibitors are not financially responsible, but they believe some arrangement could be made to provide for this class without inflicting financial hardship upon all exhibitors."

Others of the exhibitors said they hoped the Nebraska motion picture men, when they passed such a resolution, would let it stop there and continue peacefully to pay abnormal deposits, but would insist upon recognition until some relief was found. A number from the Nebraska branch will attend the national convention to be held in Chicago. President Thomas, Vice-President Ledoux and Secretary Shirley have already announced their intention to attend the convention. The importance of the national convention and the benefit to be derived from it by the motion picture exhibitors of Nebraska, will be pointed out at the meeting to be held in Omaha, June 19.

President Ledoux. "We agreed there is no reason the exhibitors should finance the film companies with our own money. The exhibitors, however, would not mind a reasonable arrangement. They realize some exhibitors are not financially responsible, but they believe some arrangement could be made to provide for this class without inflicting financial hardship upon all exhibitors."

The scheme is said to be working out well, the patrons recognizing the justice of the price increase.

Tax Met by Raising Price of Admissions Five Cents

Exhibitors of Halifax, N. S., have dealt with the question of a tax on theatres or tickets by adding five cents to the price of every ticket sold for the theatre. In that fashion the Government tax of one cent per ticket is paid, and the remainder accrues to the theatre owner.

It is claimed by the exhibitors that the raise in price was necessary as the higher cost of films, labor, etc., made it impossible to continue at the old prices. The tax calls for two cents on tickets costing over twenty-five cents, and on these pastebounds the price is also raised five cents.

The scheme is said to be working out well, the patrons recognizing the justice of the price increase.

Bach Leaves Hoffman

W. A. Bach, sales and advertising manager of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., since its inception, announced his resignation today, to take effect on June 16.

Mr. Bach, who formerly was in charge of the publicity service department in Canada for the Universal Company, was at the time he resigned to join the M. H. Hoffman, Inc., about to leave on a extended trip throughout the United States, installing service departments, similar to the one he originated in Canada, in all the main offices of the Universal Company.

The Universal Company made a very promising offer to Mr. Bach to come back and carry out the service department organization for them as previously entertained. This he had no, but first intends to take a short holiday in Canada, and while there will speed up the organization of the department which he left to come to New York.

Mr. Bach's headquarters will be in New York City, and the first service department to be organized will be in the New York Universal office.

The intention of the company to use the New York department as a model, and bring men in from all over the country, training them in the work and then sending them into various offices to carry out the service work.

Theatre Owner Protests to Public on Pennsylvania Censorship

The Mastbaum interests in Philadelphia, in pursuance of their crusade against censorship as now existing in Pennsylvania last week inserted long advertisement in all the newspapers, appealing to the public to come and play done. The situation was reviewed briefly, and the efforts made to have the Governor take cognizance of the situation dilated upon. The ads are said to have created quite a furor in Pennsylvania.

It was reported that practically all the picture running in the Mastbaum theatres last week were so badly cut or changed as to be rendered almost unintelligible.

Stahl to Take Space for Fairmount at Chicago

Robert Bolling and Walter R. Stahl, representing the Fairmount Film Corporation, and making arrangements to have the company located at the Chicago convention. Mr. Stahl, the managing director, will probably leave for Chicago some time during the week to secure space for exploitation before buyers and exhibitors the initial seven-reeler feature, "Hate," which has just been produced for the screen. Mr. Stahl has been in communication with the directors of the exposition, and it is certain that the Fairmount feature will be given wide publicity.

Long Island Theatre Taken Over by Sam Trigger

Sam H. Trigger, president of Manhattan Local No. 1, Motion Picture Exhibitors League has just taken a long lease on the Park theatre at Corona, Long Island. This is a six-hundred seat house and will open July 1st, with Harold W. Rosenthal as manager. This makes the fourth local theatre in which Mr. Trigger is interested and we are told that it is Mr. Trigger's intention to establish a chain of about twenty motion picture theatres in Greater New York, New Jersey and Long Island.

Director of Big Theatre Advances Suggestions

John Zanft of Academy of Music, New York, Largest Exclusive Photoplay House, Tells of Methods of Attractive Presentation

"It's a wise exhibitor that pays as much attention to the arrangement of the program for his photo-playhouse, and to the staging of pictures as he does to their booking," said John Zanft recently.

Mr. Zanft is known throughout the theatrical world and the realm of the silent drama as managing director of the Academy of Music, New York; said to be the largest theatre in existence which is devoted exclusively to the projection of screen plays.

Mr. Zanft also supervises the presentation of the programs throughout the entire circuit of William Fox theatres, in his capacity as general representative.

"The same importance attaches to the arrangement of a bill in motion picture houses as to vaudeville," Mr. Zanft continued. "The exhibitor who takes pride in his work will be surprised at the attractiveness added to his program by careful staging. For the man who shows first run features, scrupulous attention to lighting, lobby display, picture projection, musical accompaniment and a score of other details, is imperative to effective screening."

Mr. Zanft's knowledge of conditions in this field is the product of the long experience at the Academy of Music, which has made him an expert.

"The booking of a photoplay," Mr. Zanft declares, "is the beginning of the exhibitor's efforts—not the end of the beginning. The voiceless stage is today as important from an art standpoint, and far more important from the commercial standpoint, than the spoken stage. It should follow, therefore, that the same pains be taken with the staging of a picture as of a legitimate drama."

"When we showed Fox's 'The Honor System' at the Academy, I put into effect plans for its presentation which had been the result of days of thought and experiment. The manager or owner of a theatre who does not give the best that is in him to the staging of such a classic is guilty of gross neglect."

All Co-operate to Make Pennsylvania Convention Success

The last lap of convention preparedness finds all Philadelphia Exhibitors' League committees and their assistants among exchangemen and salesmen still making every effort to make the Pennsylvania Convention on June 25-27 the biggest State affair yet scheduled. In addition to the Exchangemen's Committee the president of which is George F. Dembow, manager of the Fox Philadelphia Exchange, there is a committee from the Philadelphia Motion Picture salesmen Association, composed of L. L. Berman, David Starkman and George Mallard, who were appointed to especially look after the wants of visiting exhibitors and give them a Quaker City welcome.

The Salesmen's Association have taken space at the convention, and will have official representation at the banquet, where one of their number will reply to a toast.

In one respect this convention holds a record that of promptly paying back advance loans paid by exhibitors to get things started. Already every cent of this has been returned.

The convention is being largely advertised by slides at every League theatre. The city is being hill-boarded by three sheets, five hundred three sheets and one thousand one sheets, in addition to one thousand tack cards. Advertisements in every daily paper will be run all next week.

Tickets are being sold at all the League theatres. This advance sale is having a big boost through the bonus that is being offered, every exhibitor getting a per cent. of the proceeds when his sales exceed ten dollars.

W. B. Bruenjes, proprietor Brazilton Hall, Brazilton, Kan., does not find pictures strong enough to draw the people in from the surrounding country; but everybody likes vaudeville.

"Mothers of France" gave J. S. Evans the best day's business in the West Allegheny Theatre, Philadelphia, has ever known. When Mr. Evans cannot see a picture locally before booking, he has even been known to make a special trip to New York for this purpose. He will run no picture without first seeing it.
Children's Performances Successful in Phila.

IRENE PAGE SOLOMON, a Philadelphia exhibitor, has had unusually good luck with children's performances. At several managers approached on the subject, Columbus Stamper was the first to lend a willing ear to the plan. As Mr. Stamper is managing director of four theatres and was disposed to cooperate with anything that sounded like a success, he would make the first, a good field was at once opened for the project.

The first theatre chosen for the children's program was the Frankford, a large house in the outlying part of the city. This neighborhood has both advantages and disadvantages for new ideas. It is a community in itself with pride in its aloofness from the city proper. The people are very conservative and slow to take up with the new. There are many "cliques" who religiously keep apart from each other. Hardest of all there are several competing associations, previous to its consolidation with the Haggin interests, régime of the theatre as manager of the Ben All theatre, once one of the properties consolidated under the partnership arrangements. The theatre was named for James Ben Haggin, its head at that time, a well-known theatrical as an opera house, and was changed into a moving picture theatre soon after the consolidation. It proved a success from the start in its new work. Mr. Page's plans have not been announced, but it is said that he will continue in charge of the opera house as manager.

Wisconsin.—Sheboygan: An official of the Sheboygan theatre company, who has been working on the deal for the past three weeks, has been in charge of the theatre for the past three weeks.
Opposition to Deposit by Kansas Exhibitors More Marked

The Kansas Exhibitors' League, which at its Hutchinson meeting in April rejected the surety bond suggestion of the Triangle Film Corporation and gave an ultimatum to exchanges of date May 15 against the deposit system, met at Wichita June 4 and 5 and again declared their opposition to that system. Between the two meetings an extension of time on the canceling of contracts with houses that require deposits had been granted to June 1. It is said that many of the members of the league have now canceled contracts and are insisting that they will do business only with houses that do not require a deposit or a bond.

It is reported that some of the exchanges in the Kansas City district which formerly required deposit are not now doing so. It is reported also that exchanges are "using their judgment," and when the "risk" is good in their estimation, they are extending credit just as any other wholesale house does.

We stand in genuine awe of manager A. H. Hilton, of Lewiston, Idaho, for the biggest small-town stunt ever brought to our notice; a six-page entire "section" of his local morning paper with column after column of elaborate description of the wonderful equipment of his five hundred-seat house, which provides everything, seemingly, that its bigger and more pretentious rivals in the large metropolises of the country have to offer, from marquee over the walk to special orchestra of six.

We are told how every detail is as near perfection as can be imagined, and Mr. Hilton's descriptions compare favorably with any of the big announcements of other "openings." None of the usual points covered in such write-ups is omitted, from the progressive citizenship of the owner, to the ordering of a specially constructed Minusa screen from St. Louis.

Vita Official Finds Optimistic Spirit Through Country

ALBERT W. GOFF, assistant general manager of V-L-S-E, after having been on his trip inspecting the numerous branch offices of the company for just eight days, has reported to Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the company, that the feeling of optimism over future business, so strong in the home office, is justified by actual conditions in the exhibiting end of the business.

For several months Mr. Irwin, assisted by Mr. Goff, has been placing V-L-S-E on a war footing, preparing for every eventuality in so far as they were able basing their labors on detailed reports from the branch managers all over the country.

This war footing, instead of a curtailment of Vitagraph output as outlined by some of the motion picture producers, provided for a large increase in the Vitagraph output, increasing the weekly footage to be released through V-L-S-E exchanges from seven thousand to approximately twelve thousand reels weekly. In commenting on this increased output, Mr. Goff writes: "My personal investigation tends to prove the correctness of your diagnosis of conditions in the exhibiting end of the business.

"I have talked to several exhibitors and find them almost a unit in the belief that we probably even will miss the usual Summer slump in business owing to the warm weather. Of course, there are exceptions but they are few."

Combining with Local Merchants to Put Over Stunts

Eszayn points out some interesting ways for the exhibitor to become a live wire by what they call "Community Ads." Skinner's Dress Suit has probably caused more combinations to be worked out between local tailors and clothing stores and theaters than any picture out to date. The "Hip" theater, Phoenix, Ariz., engineered a two page spread, with great headlines "Good Clothes Made Skinner a Millionaire. We don't have to point out how interested everybody and jammed the 'Hip' for days. A new Essayn release "Do Children Count?" has a suggestion sheet full of similar stunts. The producer who helps the exhibitor see how he can literally "get something for nothing" (for he usually pays a higher rental for a film he can be guaranteed will "get over") deserves attention called to such service in these columns.

In small community a float is a good advertising medium. Manager Charles Decker of the Majestic theatre, Grand Junction, Colo., took advantage of that fact when Norma Talmadge in the Selznick Picture, "Panthea" came to his theatre. Mr. Decker capitalized the Russian revolt by costuming the occupants of the float as Russians.
Cardboard and Canned Meat

A cheap and effective lobby display was used by Manager Unstick, of the Merrill theatre, Milwaukee, Wis., in announcing Fatty Arbuckle in "The Butcher Boy." A cardboard reproduction of the comedian posing on a butcher's block was made in colors. It was placed in the lobby, surrounded by an assortment of packed meat loaned by the Plankinton Packing Company, of Milwaukee.

Mr. Unstick has eliminated all so-called lobby display with the exception of wall frames, relying upon a crowd of busy commuters for such enterprise exhibitions as that which drew crowds to see "The Butcher Boy."

Code Visits Seattle

William Code, who has the Dream theatre at Nome, Alaska, arrived in Seattle on his semi-annual pilgrimage to make arrangements for new subjects at his theatre. Incidentally he brought with him several hundred billboards made from the ivory of walrus tusks by the Eskimo Indians in Alaska. This has become an annual habit for Code, as in the past he has brought a great many of these billboards to Seattle. It was learned upon his arrival this time that the Indians ran out of money during the winter months, and he accepted the ivory billboards at the price of admission which is twenty-five cents. Code states that a potato nuisance in Alaska is unknown, but a billiard nuisance is.

Several weeks ago we reproduced a two-column newspaper advertisement used by Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo. Here is another sample ad from that wide awake theatre. Doesn't it strike you as being just a little bit different?

Does Silence Reign Supreme?

The motion picture editor of the Philadelphia North American wrote an editorial in a recent issue of his paper, good enough to reprint in your program. It follows:

"After all the spoken objections and written objections and slides to the same effect that have been presented to the public with reference to silence in moving picture theatres, it hardly seems credible that people still have the nerve to continue long discussions during the presentation of plays, with sublime disregard to the enjoyment of everyone else. But these are only one class of 'peeks,' among whom are also the people who insist upon leaving their places at the most exciting moments of the play; the people who hum the accompanying tunes in their monotonous, desultory droning; the people who jab their knees into the back of the seat in front; the women who are continually spilling the contents of their bags and other paraphernalia for an area of three or four rows around them; the people who eat candy without a let-up all during the show, and the people who simply can't sit in a theatre for over fifteen minutes without fighting with the usher or, worse, trying to make a hit with her."

Dolly Spurr, Exhibitress

The spirit of the suffragette seems to be abroad in the land of exhibitors. Some of the most successful theatres in the country are managed by women, and invariably the show is good, clean and entertaining. One of the most alert of these feminine exhibitors (is the proper word "exhibitress" or "exhibitarie?" is Miss Dolly Spurr, who conducts the Royal Grand theatre, Marion, Ind.

The management of the Coliseum theatre, at Seattle, is giving a bi-weekly fashion show, which is carried on by the assistance of one of the larger department stores. A trained model supervises the short, working in connection with the managers of the several department stores. More than a dozen girls are used in these, and they are crowned with the latest creations received by the store.

Every style of women's wearing apparel is shown, and each frock is fitted out with the proper shoes, millinery, hand-bag, etc. Considerable attention has been given golf, riding, tennis and bathing costumes.

The management has had a removable platform built, which is erected on the evening of fashion shows, and extends from the stage to the lodge seats in the rear of the house.

The models parade across the stage and back through the audience, making possible a very close view for every one.

While on the parade through the audience, the gowns and model are lighted from two sides by a spotlight.

The management has been careful to remove every taint of advertising from the fashion show, and the only reference made to the department store furnishing the gowns is the mere mention of the firm name following the words, "gown furnished by the courtesy of."

The management of the store reports they have from one to twelve calls for every article shown in the theatre.

An attempt has been made to give a men's fashion show one night each month, but it has only met with a fair success.

THE PLAYHOUSE

This was originally a two column advertisement appearing in Triangle's house organ. The exhibitor is supposed to clip out the ad and have it reproduced any size he desires for program or newspaper advertising. It is a neat, clean ad and a splendid idea.
First Impression From Lobby All Important Factor

There is a psychology in the "front of the house" little realized by many managers, points out an authority on this subject to readers of Motion Picture News:

By M. Kashin

Among the many articles which have been published dealing with the manifold advantages to exhibitors of advertising their pictures fully in so far as their lobbies are concerned—and when I say "advertising" I mean really magnetic publicity, and not dummy, expressionless, please-look-me-over posters stuck in a frame or pinned on a wall—one great illustration has been overlooked. It is that of two pictures with leading stars of equal merit.

We can imagine, for example, two horses in competition, each having a picture of equal relative merit, featuring the player who, in popular favor, ranks on the same level with the other. There is no need to mention any star in particular—so many can be paired off in their relative drawing powers.

One of these exhibitors decides to stand pat. He will let his posters, stills, or maybe a plain banner, announce the name of the star, and then let the drawing power of the actor, or actress, do the rest.

The other exhibitor, however, believing in the old maxim of striking when the iron is hot, is not content to stand pat. With a strong hand he is going to play it for all he is worth. He reasons with himself in this fashion: "My competitor has a star of equal drawing power to mine. How can I, at the very start, get quicker off the mark. How can I get the inside track, say 'advertising' I mean really magnetic publicity, and not dummy, expressionless, please-look-me-over ..."

How can I get the inside track, say 'advertising' I mean really magnetic publicity, and not dummy, expressionless, please-look-me-over ..."

One great illustration has been overlooked. It is that of two pictures with leading stars of equal merit.

Among the many articles which have been published dealing with the manifold advantages to exhibitors of advertising their pictures fully in so far as their lobbies are concerned—and when I say "advertising" I mean really magnetic publicity, and not dummy, expressionless, please-look-me-over posters stuck in a frame or pinned on a wall—one great illustration has been overlooked. It is that of two pictures with leading stars of equal merit.

We can imagine, for example, two horses in competition, each having a picture of equal relative merit, featuring the player who, in popular favor, ranks on the same level with the other. There is no need to mention any star in particular—so many can be paired off in their relative drawing powers.

One of these exhibitors decides to stand pat. He will let his posters, stills, or maybe a plain banner, announce the name of the star, and then let the drawing power of the actor, or actress, do the rest.

The other exhibitor, however, believing in the old maxim of striking when the iron is hot, is not content to stand pat. With a strong hand he is going to play it for all he is worth. He reasons with himself in this fashion: "My competitor has a star of equal drawing power to mine. How can I, at the very start, get quicker off the mark. How can I get the inside track, say 'advertising' I mean really magnetic publicity, and not dummy, expressionless, please-look-me-over ..."

Baby Mario Osborne in "When Baby Forgot" - Pathe's Gifted Child Actress. (Pathe, Five-Red Production) There are few experienced actors who can work before the camera with more naturalness than Baby Mario Osborne. This little tot has played before the cameras since he was a baby, and his every move and expression is natural. The property of the pretty, business-like, romantic person who, at any moment, might do anything, is something that cannot be learned. ADVANCE OFFERINGS OF THE PROGRAMS

"The Peddler" With Joe Welch, an Art Drama

Announcement That Picture Would Be Released Independently Is Recalled on Demand of Exhibitors—Well-Known Cast Supports Star

ALTHOUGH the U. S. Amusement Corporation production of "The Peddler," with Joe Welch in the leading role, was originally intended to be a special production for independent release, the reported demand from exhibitors using the program has caused the producers to announce it as a regular Art Drama feature.

The production of this play will be in six reels. It is of special interest in that it marks the return of the screen of the Jewish comedian, Joe Welch. In "The Peddler," which was his most famous role, he toured the world, drawing audiences of all classes. Of the character of the "old clothes man," there have been numerous imitators.

It was only after long negotiation on the part of the U. S. Amusement Corporation that Mr. Welch finally consented to return to the screen.

The adaptation of the play was made by Frank Chapin, who wrote the scenarios for "The Easiest Way," "Today," and numerous other productions. Mr. Chapin has transferred the play to the screen with scarcely any changes, although he has slightly modernized the story.

Catharine Calvert, widow of the late Paul Armstrong, is the female lead in "The Peddler." She plays the part of Sarah. The Peddler's son is portrayed by Sidney Mason, who has been leading man for many Bluebird and Universal productions. Mr. Mason was also with Mutual, where he appeared in several pictures supporting Margaret Courtot.

Sally Crute is Mrs. Morgan, the woman with whom the son falls in love. James O'Neill also has an important part.

Kittos Reichter, the popular child actress, plays the part of Mary, the adopted daughter of the peddler. Kid Blood, well known as an actor and pupilist, takes the part of Muggsie, the crook who is partly responsible for the son's downfall.

"The Peddler" is rapidly assuming shape at the U. S. Amusement studio in Fort Lee, and it will be available to exhibitors sometime in July.

In Circus Drama Bessie Love Appears as Bareback Rider

Bessie Love will soon make her first appearance on the screen as a bareback rider, in the latest Triangle drama, "The Saw-Dust Ring," by L. V. Jefferson, in which she is presented as the star of a six-reel Pathe Cold Rooster Play, produced by Thanhouser. The release date is June 1. This production marks the reappearance of Miss Pennington upon the screen after a Winter spent on tour with the Ziegfield Follies. As in the Summer of 1916, Miss Pennington will divide her time between the New Amsterdam theatre and the Famous Players studio.

In this production Troop No. 100 of the Boy Scouts of America and a full company of U. S. Regulars from Fort Totten play prominent parts.

It is a story of the Mexican border at the time the American troops were stationed there in great numbers, and has to do with the escape of Justina Howland, a little Massachusetts girl, from her Mexican guardian, who endeavors to marry her.

Among the players who appear in support of Miss Pennington are Owen Moore, Harry Lee, Fraunie Fraunholtz and Marcia Harris.

Hayakawa and Vivian Martin in Initial Co-Starring Effort

"Forbidden Paths," an original story by Eve Unsell, adapted by Beatrice De Mille and Leighton Osman, presents Vivian Martin and Sessue Hayakawa on the screen together for the first time. For this Paramount picture, Miss Martin was transferred from the Morosco studio to the Lasky studio where the picture was staged under the direction of Robert Thornby. Important members of the cast are Tom Forman, James Neill, Paul Weigel, Ernest Joy and Carmen Phillips.

Hayakawa in this picture reverts to a Japanese role. The story is of a Japanese who sacrifices his own life in order to bring happiness to the American girl with whom he is in love and is said to be replete with deeds of self denial.

The steady progress that has been made in the screening of the first of the five comedies in which Madge Kennedy is to be starred, has added another to the list of Goldwyn Pictures, which have been finished on the pledge of that organization to deliver twelve comedies by this first of September.

There has been no hurry in the work which Miss Kennedy and her screen associates have done in the filming of this farce by Margaret Mayo, which will be the medium through which Miss Kennedy makes her first screen appearance.

Miss Kennedy is already at work preparing for the second of her productions which, in all likelihood, will be a comedy by Edgar Selwyn, which enjoyed a long run in New York and a highly successful comedy on the road extending over three seasons.

Madge Kennedy Finishes First Goldwyn Picture

Linder as a Heart-Breaker

"Max the Heart-Breaker," a two-reel comedy never before released, starring Max Linder, is announced by Pathé for the week of July 1, 1917. It is described as one of the best of the Linder comedies ever seen here and one of the best that M. Linder has ever been starred in.

Max the Heart-Breaker, arrives at a mountain summer resort. Without loss of time he makes two conquests. When he shows something of contempt for the two young ladies, they resolve upon a terrible revenge and arrange matters so that when he thinks they are fighting a duel over him, each in reality is preparing to fire at him. The result can be imagined.
Chaplin in "The Immigrant" on June 18

Chaplin's latest comedy, "The Immigrant," his third production for Mutual, is released June 18.

The entire action of this comedy takes place in two locations—the steerage of an ocean steamer and a cheap restaurant patronized by the foreigners in America.

On board Charlie divides his time between flirting with a pretty immigrant girl, played by Edna Purviance, and playing cards with her gambling father. These card games are literally cutthroat affairs, and lucky are the players if they get through a game without some bloodshed. An old chest is used for a card table, and upturned buckets form the chairs. When Charlie found that the other men "sat in" with resolvers and stillets, he secured the emergency fire hatches and placed it across his knees.

In the tawdry surroundings of a restaurant Charlie again meets his sweetheart of the boat, and together they consume beans and black coffee, with Charlie dividing his time between making love and wondering where he is to secure money to pay for the repast.

Change in K-E-S-E Releases

K-E-S-E announce that instead of re-releasing "Little Orphan Annie" on July 9 as originally scheduled, Edison's five-reel feature with Shirley Mason in the titular role, "Light in Darkness" will be the release of that date.

Frank Morgan, William Tooler, J. Frank Glendon, George Tremble, Bigelow Cooper and William Wadsworth are in the supporting cast of that picture.

Mutual Announces Third Gail Kane Production

"The Upper Crust," Adapted from Novel of Same Name, Leading Feature of Program for Week of June 25—Other Films Scheduled

GAIL KANE occupies the leading position on the Mutual schedule for June 25 in her third production for Mutual, "The Upper Crust." This photoplay is an adaptation of Charles Sherman's "best seller" of the same title. Miss Kane appears as Molly O'Toole, a girl whose love of wealth, luxury and position leads her into a series of indiscretions which lead to dramatic situations and some wholesome comedy.

The twelfth chapter of the serial, "The Railroad Raiders," entitled "A Fight for a Franchise," is scheduled for June 25. In this chapter advance reports are that the suspense is not sustained through "thrillers" but by tense situations and strong dramatic action. Helen Holmes invades the house of Desmond, steals the contract for a franchise, and on his typewriter types in the name of the K. & W. Railroad instead of the Eastern, while Wilson stands guard to see that no one hears or disturbs her. The action centers around the effort to get this changed contract signed without the deception being discovered.

The fiftieth chapter of the "Jimmie Dale Alias the Grey Seal" series, "The Tapped Wires," is scheduled for June 29. In this story the Grey Seal is defeated at his own game.

"Discords in 'A' Flat" is the La Salle comedy for June 26. Jean Otto is featured in this play which deals with a composer competing for a prize of $10,000 offered for the best opera score.

The Cub comedy, ready June 28, is "Jerry's Hopeless Tangle." George Ovey as Jerry renounces father's interference to his love-making, and so puts him in the water barrel on the roof, where father is forced to stay while Jerry and daughter have a fine time.

"Mutual Weekly" No. 130 will come to the screen on June 27. "Mutual Tours Around the World," ready June 26, shows Naples, the largest city of Italy, and Buenos Aires, the capital of Argentina. "Red Life" is scheduled for June 28, and is made up of five good live subjects.

Big Farnum Picture Coming

William Fox announces as a future release, "When A Man Sees Red," with William Farnum in the leading role. This is declared to be a $200,000 production from the novel, "The Painted Lady," by Larry Evans, which ran in the Saturday Evening Post. There are scenes in Honolulu, San Francisco and the South Sea Islands.

Pickford-Huff Co-Star in First Tellegen Play

The first production directed by Louise Tellegen will be an adaptation of George Broadhurst's famous play, "What Money Can't Buy," starring Jack Pickford and Louise Huff.

The story, one of the adventure and romance type, is completely at variance with the sort of pictures in which Pickford and Miss Huff have previously appeared together.
Two Features and Arbuckle Comedy by Paramount

June 25 Program Presents Fannie Ward and Ann Pennington in Five-Part Productions—"Fatty" in Third Comedy Titled "A Rough House"

Two five-reel features, starring Fannie Ward and Ann Pennington, and the third of the Arbuckle comedies liven the Paramount Program for the week of June 25.

"Her Strange Wedding" is Fannie Ward's vehicle, written by Charles Maigne from George Middleton's story of the same name. In this edition of "Her Strange Wedding," Ward is in love with a doctor, whose brother appears after having committed a theft in the East and steals the affections of the girl. How they are married and the bridegroom caught in another theft are situations bringing out the interest of the story. The production is said to have been made on a lavish scale.

The supporting cast includes Jack Dean, Tom Forman, and Billy Elmer. Lasky made the play which was directed by George Melford.

The opening scenes of Ann Pennington's picture, "The Little Boy Scout," occur in Mexico, just across the border at the time the National Guard was on duty at the Rio Grande. Owen Moore plays the leading male role. Frankie Frainholz, Marcia Harris, George Burton and Harry Lee, are other players.

"A Rough House" is the third of the series of Paramount-Arbuckle Comedies, in which "Fatty" will appear, and which will be released this week. In this production, Paramount says, "Fatty" has left nothing undone to make it the most screamingly hilarious and intensely humorous picture that he ever appeared in.

The seventy-second edition of the Paramount-Bray Pictographs, the seventy-third of Burton Holmes' weekly trips, and a Black Diamond comedy, entitled "Auto Intoxication," telling of a girl who inherits money and becomes literally intoxicated with the idea of having an automobile, and her troubles when she gets it, are other features of the program.

J. Barney Sherry is in the leading male role, that of a man of the world. Others in the cast include Colin Chase, Dorcas Matthews, May Giraci, J. Frank Burke and William H. Bray. Reginald Barker is director.

New York Now Center of Vitagraph's Activities

Victor Moore, the Klever Komedies star, has returned to New York from his motion picture studio in Jacksonville, Fla., to establish another studio in the metropolis, and to make his plans for the producing of his future single reel Klever Komedies which are released by Paramount Pictures Corporation to all exhibitors.

Mr. Moore will add another director to his staff and is also picking a number of new players to appear in support with him in his future pictures. Thomas J. Gray has also been added to the scenario department and is now preparing a number of scripts which Mr. Moore will produce in his new studio this Summer.

Picturized Novel Feature of Pathé

July 1 Program

Features of Pathé's program for the week of July 1 are the photodramatization of a well-known novel, a new Max Linder two-reel comedy, and the fact that the program contains but one serial episode, "Neglected Wife," No. 8, the reason for this being that "Mystery of the Double Cross" ends on June 24, and Pearl White's new serial, "The Fatal Ring," begins on July 8.

Florence LaBadie is starred in "The Woman in White," a six-reel Gold Rooster play, produced by Thanhouser, under the direction of Ernest Warde, and adapted by Lloyd Lonergan from Wilkie Collins' novel.

Ruth Roland is starred in "The Neglected Wife," No. 8, entitled "A Relentless Fate." This episode shows Horace Kennedy's campaign for Congress and ends with Norwood's discovery of the secret relations between Kennedy and Margaret Warner, the girl Norwood loves.

Max Linder appears for the first time in "Max the Heart Breaker," a splendid two-reel comedy, never before released. A Combination release, and an International cartoon and scenic split reel release, with Hearst-Pathé News, Nos. 54 and 55 complete the program.

"Son of the Hills" Vita Subject for July 25

In "A Son of the Hills," Greater Vitagraph's Blue Ribbon release of July 25, Antonio Moreno, the star, portrays a type of character never before essayed by him. As Sandy Morley, an impoverished scion of peonage, he is seen as a youth of seventeen whose only worldly possessions are a genial disposition, a rugged suit of clothes, and a glowing ambition to resurrect the downtrodden mountaineers, among whom he lives.

There are many strong situations according to Vitagraph advance notices before Sandy rises to a position of prominence in the business world, overcome conspiracies directed at him, and marries the girl of his heart.

Belle Bruce, Julia Swayne Gordon, Robert Gaillard, Florence Radinoff and William Balfour are in the surrounding cast.
Francis Ford Screening Stage Play in Seven Parts

"John Ermine, of the Yellowstone," which for two years was a successful stage play, is being screened by Francis Ford at Universal City as a seven-reel feature. The original stage play was dramatized from the book of Frederic Remington, and the screen version gives every promise of greater dramatic tension and interest than the production of the stage.

Ford plays the featured lead, with Mac Car- roll opposite, and with a cast including Duke Worne, William Carroll, Marc Pen- ton, Little Burwell Hamerick, John Dark- cloud, Joe Flores and Elsie Ford.

Fairbanks’ Leading Lady

Eileen Percy, the stage player who makes her motion picture debut in the Douglas Fairbanks-Artcraft picture “Wild and Woolly,” has been signed as permanent leading lady for the athlete star.

Drew and Figman Comedies Early Metro Releases

Two Metro comedies are announced for early release, “Monomania,” with Max Figman as star, on June 18, and “The Hypochondriac,” with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, on June 25.

The Figman vehicle is based on the com- plications resultant from a maiden aunt wanting her nephew, Dicky, to marry a plain, old-fashioned girl who is in love with a pretty and up-to-date maiden. The girl finally makes up as an ugly nurse, to care for Dicky, who has faked illness. Auntie gives permission for the wedding.

“The Hypochondriac” is described as a typical Drew offering. Mrs. Brooks is a woman who craves sympathy, is continually “ill,” in short a hypochondriac. She de- clares she could die happy, if she knew her husband was provided with a second wife.

Two Metro comedies are announced for early release, “Monomania,” with Max Figman as star, on June 18, and “The Hypochondriac,” with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, on June 25.

“Monomania,” set for June 25, is the Violet Mersereau feature. Rex Ingram made the production at Bluebird’s Leonia (N.J.) Studio, where work has already begun on another Mersereau issue for subsequent distribution. In “The Little Terror,” Miss Mersereau plays the role of a circus rider who comes unexpectedly into fortune and happiness.

Dorothy Phillips, on July 30, will be seen in “The Rescue,” based on Hugh Kahler’s story, and directed by Ida May Park who, with Joseph De Grasse, alternate in supervising this favorite star. Lon Chaney and William Stowell will, as usual, head the supporting company of which Gretchen Lederer, Gertrude Astor, Molly Malone and Clair De Bray will be leading members.

“The Clean Up,” set for Aug. 6, will present Franklin Farnum and Brownie Vernon in another comedy-drama, of the sort in which they have been specializing of late. Waldemar Young furnished the story and scenario from which Wm. Worthington directed. Claire McDowell, Mae Talbot, Martha Maddox, Albert McQuarrie, Clyde Benson and Mark Fenton will be principals in the supporting cast.

Lynn F. Reynolds furnishes one of his “nature studies” as the Aug. 13 attraction. Mr. Reynolds and Waldemar Young worked out the scenario. "The Show Down" is the title selected for a feature that has been previously referred to as “Back to the Primitive.” The stars will be Myrtle Gonzalez and George Hernandez.

Half Dozen Bluebirds Awaiting Release Dates

Two Stories by Waldemar Young Included in Batch—Regular Schedule

EXHIBITORS of Bluebirds have their attractions definitely scheduled until week starting Aug. 13, and there are six additional features completed and ready to be assigned to dates. Dorothy Phillips, Violet Mersereau, Franklin Farnum, Brownie Vernon, Myrtle Gonzalez and George Hernandez are included among the stars who will provide mid-Summer enter- tainment on the Bluebird program.

Features ready to be scheduled carry, as stars, all of these players with Ella Hall, Louise Lovely and Rupert Julian and Ruth Clifford as well.

“The Little Terror," set for July 23, is the Violet Mersereau feature. Rex Ingram made the production at Bluebird’s Leonia (N.J.) Gail Kane in Roguish Part Gail Kane has an excellent medium for display of her in "The Upper Crust," her latest American-Mutual production, with a strong dramatic plot and a vein of comedy. "The Upper Crust" is released June 25.

There are complications through which Miss Kane, as the pretty Molly O’Toole, the young Irish housekeeper, makes her way with dash and good humor, landing, in the finale, just as she always does, completely vindicated and victorious.

"Rag Baby" Next Hoyt

"A Rag Baby" is the title of the Hoyt comedy to be released by the Selig Poly- scope Company in K. E. S. E. service on July 9. Wm. Fables, James Harris and Amy Dennis star in the production. The Selig Company points to the fact that these comedies are devoid of comedy policemen, automobile chases and pin- cusions. The K. E. S. E. reports that the Hoyt comedies are being received everywhere with favor.
Film Specialties

Gaumont Will Animate Jokes from "Life" in "Reel Life"

That Gaumont cartoonists, in "Reel Life," will animate the jokes in "Life" is the important announcement from the Gaumont offices this week. A cartoon arrangement with America's most widely read fun book gives the exclusive right for this novel "stunt."

The second half year starts the usual three-a-week Gaumont releases through Mutual—practically half the "single reel" output through that releasing company— with "Tours Around the World," No. 35, July 3. Bizerta, Tunis and Sydney, are visited. Bizerta is the second largest French naval port on the Mediterranean. Gaumont has not forgotten what Fourth of July this year will mean to American patriots, and Mutual Weekly of this date will be a special "patriotic number."

"Reel Life." Number 62, July 5, besides a "Life" cartoon will show "Making Jewelry at Home;" "Berry Pickers of the South;" "Toys of Wartime," and pictures of government disciplinary barracks under the title "Making Real Men."

Scope of Bray-Picto 73 Reaches from Mexico to Japan

The Bray Studios, Inc., have gone far afield for the subjects making up the seventy-third release of their screen magazine, Paramount-Bray Pictographics reaching from a factory town in Ohio to Japan with a stop on the way in southern Texas, including a jump across the border to Mexico. The first subject, "American Match Making" is an exposition of the wonders of modern manufacturing methods. The methods that have made possible the almost negligible cost of a box of matches. This picture starts in the great forests of Canada with the felling of a tree and shows all the processes up to the finished article, neatly packed in boxes and ready for use. A railroad, the oldest doing a regular passenger business in the United States, makes interesting and amusing material for the second subject. The venerable locomotive that pulls the only train the road can boast of, was put in commission in 1872 and sports a smoke-stack almost as big as itself. The switches are turned with a crowbar and the brakes set by hand. The newest thing on the road is a pair of goggles just acquired by the engineer. "Fencing in Japan," the third subject, is highly spectacular as the fencers use great two-handed swords more than six feet long and slash at one another apparently with no regard for their limbs or lives. The remarkable dexterity exhibited by the combatants in handling their weapons and in avoiding the blows of their adversary, makes this picture one of exceptional merit. The second cartoon of Wallace Carlson, on the adventure of the ill-starred "Otto Luck" furnishes the humorous feature. In this cartoon, Otto, who has secured a job in the movies is cast for a regular "Bill Hart" part and is called upon to rescue the fair Lotta who is held in durance vile by a Mexican bandit. Otto makes his escape right enough, but not before he gets everybody concerned including himself in more hot water than the famed hot springs of Arkansas pour out in a generation.

American Deer from Educational

More "Alaska Wonders".

American Deer leads Educational Film Corporation's releases this week, with many types of these beautiful creatures which have such curious habits. The majestic stag and the startled fawn serve to illustrate the contrast of subjects in this issue of Dimas' Living Book of Nature. Herds are caught flying over brooks and hedges; a number are shown on a lake of gleaming ice; the long-eared "mule-deer" and the dainty Florida type are seen in succession. The fawns, some only a few days old, are the most interesting part of the picture.

Alaska "wonders in motion" this week gives us an additional view of glaciers forming great icebergs, and some of the native "Kenuals" or Eskimoa in their log villages.

Russian Pictures in Pathe News

Pictures from the Eastern War Front, views of the Russian Cossacks, Russian Cavalry and showing the losses of Russia's Navy to the allied cause head the war news in Pathe Weekly Issue of June 9, No. 47.

Washington's Boyhood Days Featured in Selig Library

Scenes in connection with George Washington's boyhood head a list of very interesting subjects making up Number 6 of the new Selig World Library, released Wednesday, June 20, in General Film Service. Alexandria, Va., the town surveyed by young George when 16 years of age; Christ Church, of which he was one of the first vestrymen, and the old hotel at Alexandria where the Father of His Country made his farewell address to the Continental Army, are pictured.

Human figures on a chess board play an exhibition game in a Chicago boulevard. The chessboard is twenty-four feet square. Uncle Sam is the richest individual in the world. Pictures are shown of where he turns gold into legal tender.

Thousands of seals during the mating season frequent the islands of the Pacific. Here are some of the baby seals. They are left to shift for themselves when able to navigate.

Pathé-International Split-Reel

"The Kamo Gowa Canal in Japan" from International is an interesting travelogue, taking the spectator from one end of canal to another, showing long tunnels and the manner in which the boats are run down steep places on railroad tracks. "Down Where the Limburger Blows," a Katenjammer Kid cartoon, is a real funny one, the central figure of which is an animated piece of the cheese.

"Here and There in Texas"

Views of San Antonio including the Alamo and San Jose mission, Medina Lake and Dam, shots of Laredo and Corpus Christi, hog raising, wild animals of Texas, and other Texas "sights" is Pathé's "Combitone" offering this week.
HOW PICTURES ARE BOOKING

Takes Bluebirds for Year

Harry White, a former Los Angeles exhibitor, and later manager of the Magna Film Exchange there, who recently purchased the Plaza theatre at San Diego, one of the popular downtown houses of the Southern city, was in Los Angeles this week contracting attractions for his theatre. He made a yearly contract for Bluebird subjects through Manager C. L. Kneerkeuf. Bluebird subjects are shown first run at the Superba Theatre, Los Angeles, and will go direct from there to Mr. White's house at San Diego before touring other California points.

Orient Sold for Metro Films

Metro Pictures Corporation recently closed a contract with David P. Howells to handle Metro Pictures in Japan, China, the Straits Settlements, Dutch East India, the Philippines and India. Mr. Howells has been handling the Metro Pictures in Australia for some time. He recently returned from a tour of the Orient, where he went to study the wants of the exhibitors and to meet the men who are hard pressed for good photoplays. Mr. Howells called on the show men of Java, Dutch East India, and journeyed to the principal cities of Inland China and Japan before he came to New York.

Paramount Branches Arrange “Pauline Frederick Week”

Following the success reported by exhibitors in their Marguerite Clark Repertoire Weeks, during which Miss Clark's best known Paramount Pictures were rebooked, Paramount exchange managers in all sections of the country are arranging for their exhibitors similar weeks for Pauline Frederick.

In connection with these special repertoire weeks for Miss Frederick's pictures, Paramount's exchange managers have arranged special advertising and publicity aids to promote the special occasions.

New Re-booking Scheme

Pictures that have made big hits at his theatre will be returned to Omaha, Neb., and shown every Saturday and Sunday evening at the Brandeis theatre, a "legitimate" house closed for the summer, by Manager H. M. Thomas of the Strand.

Popular Trend in Philadelphia Territory

The Palace theatre, Philadelphia, on a whole week of non-Klondike pictures was a money releases and calling it a "Warm Up" week, according to Manager Given of the Tri-State exchange:

"This was the largest week's business in the history of the Palace theatre. We did more on these repeats than on new shows."

The O'Henry series have met with popular favor in Philadelphia. General Film Manager P. A. Block already holds 76 contracts for all 200 World contracts that have come to Manager George R. Meeker of the local exchange in the past three weeks.

British Tars Will See All of Chaplin’s Pictures

Charlie Chaplin will entertain the sailors of one division of His Majesty's dreadnoughts as they wait impatiently "somewhere in the North Sea" for the German fleet to venture through the Bight of Heligoland. His Royal Highness, Prince George of Battenberg, has placed an order for the entire series of Mutual-Chaplins for the men of his command.

The rental fee for the films has been handed over to Lady Beatty's Fund for wounded soldiers and sailors. Lady Beatty is the wife of the first lord of the British Admiralty and the widow of Marshall Field, 2nd, of Chicago, son of the American merchant prince.

Gives Midnight Matinee of “Garden of Allah”

The new Quinn Rialto theatre on Broadway, Los Angeles, which recently opened using "The Garden of Allah," is continuing to show that film to good attendance. At the end of the second week, Manager Quinn introduced a midnight matinee which was attended by almost a house full. The film is now being shown for its third week. This subject is handled in the California territory by the All Star Feature Distributors.

Art Dramas in Los Angeles

Releases of the Art Drama Program handled in the California territory by the All Star Feature Distributors, has been booked for showing by F. Morton Cohn, manager of the Burbank theatre, Los Angeles. The first subject to be shown here is "The Law That Failed," which began a very successful run on Monday of the past week. The contract for this service was made by Irving Lesser of the All Star Exchange in Los Angeles.
Censorship Affects State Rights in Chicago

Cook County Should Be Separated From Rest of State Because Of This Problem, Says Goldburg, on Tour for Frohman Amusement

(This is the second article on the state rights situation, written exclusively for Motion Picture News by Jesse J. Goldburg, exploitation manager of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, now on a transcontinental tour to study market conditions for the furtherance of their announced plan to bring about better co-operation with purchasers. Mr. Goldburg in this article treats of conditions in Illinois, Indiana and Southern Wisconsin.—Ed. Note.)

My visit in Chicago in the course of my transcontinental tour as manager of the service department inaugurated by the Frohman Amusement Company, has been extended into a stay of from three days, as was originally intended, to a period of ten days.

This was occasioned by the complex situation that I found to exist in the state rights field. There has not been that progressive spirit evidenced here that I found to exist in the territories east of Chicago.

The state rights buyer heretofore finding a profitable field for open booking, has been driven out of business, or has been forced to the other extreme, building his own theatre downtown in order to have a run which the outlying houses and theatres throughout the State are unable to support. This, in turn, has resulted in the elimination of all but possibly three responsible state rights buyers in the city of Chicago, the logical distributing center for the States of Illinois, Indiana and southern Wisconsin.

I believe I have laid my finger on the all-controlling cause that has given rise to this unhealthy and unfair situation. In one word, it is censorship.

The program house is not affected to the extent that the independent exchanger finds confronting him, the program house, which is limited to Cook County, but also because it is of itself a most lucrative field and in value worth almost as much as the balance of the territory. It can accommodate at least one print, and on an extraordinary production can work two and three prints to advantage.

The percentage problem, that is playing on percentage, has been made serious by the fact that independent exchangers in order to procure a booking have consented to the demands of all of the exhibitors in that respect. This is creating a dangerous precedent, and should be nipped in the bud at the start. The exchange men having invested their capital should not be required to gamble on his returns. If a production is worth while playing at all, it is worth while paying for. And furthermore the state rights buyer now insists that the manufacturer take the same chance and place his production with him on a percentage basis.

While, however, these evils exist, there is the complement to the story in the fact that theatres are numerous, the population large and devoted patrons of the moving picture theatre.

South Wants Change—North Insists—What is to be Done?

Hoffman Sees No Difficulty in Way of Revision of Territory—A. Dresner, of Washington, Points Out Needed Change in South—Improvement Needed in West, Says Bernstein

... and northern New Jersey, should be handled as one territory; northern New York and Erie County, Pennsylvania... It's a good suggestion and one which I sincerely hope will materialize into a crystallized form which can be depended upon and which will stand the exigencies of time, I say exigencies of time adversely, because I feel assured that the state rights field is one which is going to gradually pass from the playground aspect to one of immense, substantial acreage, and one that is going to feel the pressure of a vast array of producers, buyers, sellers and exhibitors.

The question of mapping out the territory is not one to be taken with a shudder, as some think. This procedure will be simple and will be greatly expedited if only those concerned will look at it squarely in the face and consider that much of the work which seems to be before them in this task has already been done by the program man. And by this I mean that the state rights man in considering the proper division of territory can easily adapt it to the territory as handled by the program man and which territory has been recognized since the inception of the motion picture industry by a more or less unanimous opinion.

This statement, of course, must be restricted to certain territory which in my mind is as near perfect as human ingenuity can make it. There is territory which should be taken in hand and enlarged, and the added fact that Miss Shotwell's pre... Practically one sales trip last week closed up Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin to Schwartz Films, Inc., Schiller Building, Chicago; Michigan to Warren and Palley Film Company, Canman Building, Detroit, Mich.; Ohio to Exclusive Features Company, Inc., Columbia Building, Cleveland, Ohio; New England to Eastern Feature Film Company, Inc., 57 Church street, Boston.

We contemplate a western sales campaign every shortly, and are certain that when the western exchanges can see this subject, they will want to sign as rapidly as did the Eastern buyers.

We would like to remind American buyers again, that while Miss Shotwell's feature is of a sensational order, it has been pronounced by press and censor boards as thoroughly moral. It is simply a stirring but clean entertainment.

M. H. HOFFMAN, who has recently entered the state rights field, but who has had years of experience with program territory, comes forward with a few remarks apropos of the proposed definite division of state rights territory. He says:

"It is now customary for the exhibitor in North Carolina to receive his prints from Birmingham, Ala., or Jacksonville, Fla., and in the Southern territory...."

The question of mapping out the territory is not one to be taken with a shudder, as some think. This procedure will be simple and will be greatly expedited if only those concerned will look at it squarely in the face and consider that much of the work which seems to be before them in this task has already been done by the program man. And by this I mean that the state rights man in considering the proper division of territory can easily adapt it to the territory as handled by the program man and which territory has been recognized since the inception of the motion picture industry by a more or less unanimous opinion.

"It is now customary for the exhibitor in North Carolina to receive his prints from Birmingham, Ala., or Atlanta, Ga. In my opinion, this territory should be handled from Washington exchanges.

Let us take, for example, the towns of Hertford or Elizabeth, N. C. It takes practically two days to ship a print from Birmingham, Ala., to these or both of these places. From Washington, D. C., I can express a print at midnight to Wilmington, N. C., way down in the southeast corner of the State and the exhibitor will have it for his morning run the following day. In other words a print expressed from Washington to this place will be in transit only from ten to twelve hours. Isn't it fair then to urge that conditions change in this territory?

It must be remembered that the number of theatres in this territory compared to the number in New York or other States is comparatively small. And again the theatres are not only few but they are scattered, and the long haul of the present system is tremendous compared to the same in New York or Boston. Take, for example, New York City. It is safe to assume that the seller in Greater New York in selling his picture can travel the entire territory for his nominal earnings, and that is tremendous advantage which is not enjoyed by the man in the southern territory. The man in traveling through the southern territory finds that he has to have a small fortune for railroad fares alone. And, again, the jumps are long and comparatively few places can be covered in the..." (Continued on page 4081)

Eastern Territory Is Closed for "Woman and the Beast"

THE latest Marie Shotwell feature, "The Woman and the Beast," has been sold for all territory East of the Mississippi, with the exception of Pennsylvania. This announcement has been made by the Graphic Features, 220 West Forty-second street, who are distributing the feature.

"Negotiations are also pending for Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Russia. The fact that this is a clean picture, and the added fact that Miss Shotwell's previous features, 'Enlighten Thy Daughter' and 'The Witching Hour,' were huge successes, enabled us to dispose of Eastern territory so fast," quoted a Graphic official.

"Practically one sales trip last week closed up Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin to Schwartz Films, Inc., Schiller Building, Chicago; Michigan to Warren and Palley Film Company, Canman Building, Detroit, Mich.; Ohio to Exclusive Features Company, Inc., Columbia Building, Cleveland, Ohio; New England to Eastern Feature Film Company, Inc., 57 Church street, Boston.

We contemplate a western sales campaign every shortly, and are certain that when the western exchanges can see this subject, they will want to sign as rapidly as did the Eastern buyers.

We would like to remind American buyers again, that while Miss Shotwell's feature is of a sensational order, it has been pronounced by press and censor boards as thoroughly moral. It is simply a stirring but clean entertainment.

Eastern Adds Five Films

Short Features Exchange Gets Rights to "Hans und Fritz"

The Short Features Exchange, 720 Seventh avenue, New York, has closed a contract for the New York rights to the "Hans und Fritz" cartoon pictures, founded on the comic drawings of Rudolph Dirks, appearing every Sunday in the New York World. Because of their wide appeal to the young folks as well as the old, these cartoons are placed on the first page of the Comic Section of the features of that part of the paper. The "Hans und Fritz" pictures have met with great success on the printed page, and the company predicts that the new film version on this popular series will meet with even a far greater degree of success on the screen.

Strand Film Opens in Atlanta

The Strand Film Company, 73a Walton street, Atlanta, has been opened under the management of J. Hamlin for the exploitation of pictures on a state rights basis in the South. The company has bought rights on Selig's "Neer-Do-Well" and will also handle the Ivan productions.
Klotz Seeks Only Reasonable Profit on Film

Exploiter of "Whither Thou Goest" Declares That Mania to Make Money in a Hurry Is Cause of Many State Rights Failures

Joseph S. Klotz, of Klotz and Streimer, believes in being satisfied with a reasonable profit from a picture. A buyer, who recently made him an offer for rights to "Whither Thou Goest," remarked that while the picture was well above the average it was not a "million dollar" film.

Mr. Klotz agreed that the feature was not in the "million dollar" class, and said that he did not expect to make a million with it and did not care to make a million dollars on any picture that his company might handle.

"The mania to make a million in a hurry has hurt not only the industry as a whole but has been the main cause of many failures of state rights producers," said Mr. Klotz. "If the state rights operator makes money he will go back and buy more. He will continue to be a customer, and he will naturally go to the company where he can buy pictures at fair prices.

"This is sane business logic," says Mr. Klotz, "and the reason I say I don't want a million of any picture is because I want to stay in the business."

Kleine Considering Reissue of "Quo Vadis"

"Quo Vadis" is to be reissued if the plans of George Kleine materialize. Mr. Kleine has been requested to republish this super-feature and list it as a state rights release. If this be reissued it will be one of the few productions ever revived on the screen. It is intended that the production will be re-edited and new subtitles added.

Sixth King-Bee in Work

Billy West's Sixth King Bee Comedy is well under way at the Frohman Studios, Flushing, N. Y., where the company is temporarily working. A conference of the directing staff has led to the selection of a story specially written to develop the famous young star's personality.

Cummings at Work on His Own Picture

Irving Cummings, who recently formed his own company in association with M. F. Tobias, is in the northern part of New York State, at work on a seven-reeler for release through the Superlative Pictures Corporation. Mr. Cummings has been before the public on the legitimate stage and on the screen for a number of years. His career began with the Davidson Stock Company in Chicago. Later, he returned East, and made a reputation in juvenile and character roles.

Lust Buys Motoy Rights

The Peter Pan Corporation, New York, announces that Sidney B. Lust, of Washington, D. C., has bought a weekly release of the Mo-Toy comedies for the states of Maryland, Delaware, North Carolina, Virginia, and for the District of Columbia.

Board Passes "Great White Trail"

The National Board of Reviewers has passed "The Great White Trail," made by the Whartons, with a percentage of one hundred. The reviewers called the picture "excellent" in every one of its salient features, and not a foot was ordered cut from the film, nor were any other changes suggested.

Since the showing of the picture, fully a score of letters have been received at the Wharton plant, at Ithaca, N. Y., complimenting the producers upon the faithfulness of the Klondike scenes, says an official of the company. All these letters have been from men who made the Klondike rush themselves, and who should be in a position to know.
Rothapfel Books "Parentage" for Rialto Theatre

Managing Director Rothapfel, who has been enthusiastic regarding Hobart Henley's thought film of real life, "Parentage," since he first saw it screened, has booked that feature for his Rialto theatre, for the week of July 8.

This showing will take the place of a "run" on Broadway, as Mr. Seng, who is presenting "Parentage," believes that these so-called "runs," have lost their significance.

"The producers lose money on these forced runs and intelligent buyers and exhibitors no longer consider them a mark of quality," said Mr. Seng.

Mr. Seng has implicit confidence in "Parentage," as a picture for the masses and the classes, for the largest of cities, and the smallest of towns, which can be shown anywhere in the United States, successfully at from ten to fifty cents.

"Mr. Rothapfel frankly stated that he booked 'Parentage,' because he considered it one of the human character portrayals that he has ever seen screened, and a feature in which the types are the most distinctive and realistic," said Mr. Seng.

He will place his stamp of personal guarantee upon "Parentage," in his own daily newspaper advertising presenting it to his patrons. Supplementing Mr. Rothapfel's own campaign in the greater city, Mr. Seng will depart from the usual custom of marketing state rights by continuing his advertising to the public after the Rialto showing. This publicity will be of great aid to exhibitors who book "Parentage," in and around New York through the Schneck exchange.

Aaron Jones, who is just as enthusiastic about "Parentage," will parallel Mr. Rothapfel's showing, as far as advertising goes, when he opens with a run with "Parentage," at his beautiful Colonial Theatre, Chicago, during convention week, July 13.

Mr. Jones stated that, with the exception of one or two massive spectacles, he considered "Parentage," the best production of entertainment value and advertising possibilities he had ever seen. He classed it as the best box-office value of the ten to fifty cent class he had ever presented.

Not only have Mr. Rothapfel, Mr. Schneck, and Mr. Jones acclaimed "Parentage," but every review from the trade papers has been just as unanimous in praising the production.

These reviews complete, exactly as published, will be reprinted in booklet form to be distributed to the state right buyers or exhibitors.

Brennon Picks Cast for "The Fall of the Romanoffs"

Herbert Brennon has almost completed his cast for his state rights picture, "The Fall of the Romanoffs," featuring Ilidor, the "Mad Monk," on which he has been working for five weeks at his studio on Hudson Heights, N. J. The picture will show the conditions that led up to the recent revolution in Russia, and the sensational disclosures of the monk Ildor, who, for a year, has been a refugee in New York.

With Ildor acting his own role, Nance O'Neil as the Czarina, Alfred Hickman as the Czar, Edward Connelly as Rasputin, Mlle. E. Katerina Galanta as Anna, the girl who was the immediate cause of Rasputin's downfall and death, and Conway Tearle as the Prince, Brennon's selection of players is one that will awaken the interest of state rights buyers and the public, while William E. Shay and Mlle. Marcelle complete the cast.

All of these are actors who have proved their worth, and hold a high place in the annals of the screen and dramatic stage, with the exception of Mlle. Galanta, who as yet is little known here, but her career on the other side has been of such calibre as is bound to produce a response here.

Mlle. Galanta is a "find" of Mr. Brennon's. She is a young Russian girl who came to this country two years ago with the Russian Ballet, and appeared in all the ballets both at the Metropolitan and Manhattan Opera Houses. When the company returned to Europe earlier in the season, she remained in this country, and was engaged for the dancing girl in "The Wanderer," where her dancing was quite a feature of the performance. It was during her engagement there that Herbert Brennon first was struck by her talent both as a dancer and actress.

Galanta will have ample opportunity to display her versatility, in her new role for the part of Anna brings into use both her powers of acting and of dancing. First she is seen as a peasant girl; later as one of the foremost ladies of the land, whither Rasputin's enormous influence at court has placed her.

Gainsburg in Charge of Foursquare

Announcement from the office of M. H. Hoffman states that Mr. H. Gainsburg, formerly in charge of the New York Universal Mecca branch, resigned this position to take over the first of the Foursquare exchanges, this being rushed to completion on the seventh floor of the Godfrey Building, 729 Seventh avenue.

Mr. Gainsburg is well known among the exhibitors and is able to render the exhibitors who book Foursquare pictures splendid assistance and co-operation in exhibition.
“Deemster” Is Sold for Several Foreign Countries

W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation has allied himself with a number of well-known men in the industry for the distribution of “The Deemster.” Lewis J. Selznick has the New York state rights; Louis B. Mayer the New England state rights; F. E. Backer, Mammoth Feature Film Corporation, the New Jersey state rights; Stanley V. Marcus and Harry Schwab, Eastern Pennsylvania; B. Amsterdam, of the Masterpiece Feature Film Company, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia; Wilson and Stedman, of the American Maid Film Company, Minneapolis, the Minnesota and North and South Dakota rights; and Charles Klopot, of Exclusive Features, San Francisco, the California, Arizona and Nevada rights.

Every one of these buyers report excellent bookings for “The Deemster” and favorable newspaper reviews wherever the picture has been shown.

“IT cannot be denied that The Deemster is one of the strongest dramatic stories ever made into a photoplay,” says Mr. Shallenberger, “this fact, coupled with the personality of the star, Derwent Hall Caine, and the dainty little leading lady, Marian Swayne, together with a splendid cast, makes a sure fire box-office attraction.”

Useful for lobby display, have been sent to Detroit, where the picture is expected to remain for the entire summer. Mr. Buttefield will be remembered as the buyer of “Civilization” for his state.

Demand for “Joan” in Ohio Is Big

The Barnett Film Company, 605 Sincere Building, Cleveland, announces big business for “Joan the Woman” and “Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea.” Their Western representative, Mr. Eckstein, has just returned from a most successful trip, where he booked these pictures in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota. Of special interest to exhibitors is the announcement made by Mr. Barnett, president of the company, that no looking for “Joan the Woman” will be made elsewhere, anywhere in the state of Ohio, until autumn.

All requests for the picture, however, will be placed on file, and when it is released they will be taken care of in the order of their application. Great preparations are being made for the opening of “Joan” in Detroit. Carloads of scenery hangings, pictures and armor, which is useful for lobby display, have been sent to Detroit, where the picture is expected to remain for the entire summer. Mr. Barnett has left Cleveland in order to be present at the formal opening of the Farrar spectacle.

Savini Gets Rights to “Modern Mother Goose”

R. M. Savini, of the United Film Service, Atlanta, Ga., has closed a contract for the rights to “The Modern Mother Goose,” in five reels, for Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina, obtaining the subject from the Lea-Bell Company, Chicago.

The rights have also been obtained by Mr. Savini to “The Woman and the Beast,” five parts, from the Graphic Company, for Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Bar Sinister” Sold for New York, New England and New Jersey

Frank Hall’s first announcement regarding the disposition of domestic territorial rights for “The Bar Sinister” is of unusual interest to the many theaters in the several important territories sold and settle many rumors as to whether Edgar Lewis’ successful special production would be available for booking in all theaters immediately, or would first be booked like a stage production.

New York state, for “The Bar Sinister” was purchased by M. H. Hoffman for the Foursey Square Pictures, Inc., 729 Seventh avenue, New York. New Jersey was bought by the Civilization Film Corporation, Strand theater building, Newark, N. J. New England went to the American Feature Film Company, 60 Church street, Boston, Mass.

Mayfair Company at Work Near Niagara Falls

M. A. Schlesinger, president of the Mayfair Film Corporation and his company of Mayfair artists are at present at Niagara Falls, where a number of scenes are being taken depicting “The Honeymoon Trip,” that is one of the many episodes portrayed in “Persuasive Peggy.”

Mr. Schlesinger is leaving nothing undone in his efforts to make the first of the Mayfair production a success, and one which will insure substantial profits to both state right buyers and exhibitors.

Charles J. Brabin is in charge of the direction of Miss Hyland, supported by a cast, including William Davidson, Mary Cecil Parker, Arthur Housman, Jules Cowles and others. The story, by Mar aevere Thompson, has appeared serially in McClure’s Magazine.

Hatch Buys Smallev Picture

The J. Frank Hatch Film Company, Newark, N. J., is now in control of the rights for New Jersey to “The Hand That Rocks the Cradle,” with Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley, and also has acquired the rights to the Biograph six reeler, “Her Condoned Sin,” for the same territory.

Here to Exploit Divorce Film, "Should She Obey?"

Lieutenant-Governor Barrett O'Hara, of Illinois, is in New York this week, in the interest of the Arizona Film Company, of which he is the guiding spirit; and especially of the latest production of that company, "Should She Obey?" a feature founded on the divorce question.

Governor O'Hara's work in cleaning up the Red Light districts of the big cities of Illinois is well known. The picture portrays the work of the Vice Commission, headed by Governor O'Hara.

"Next to the social evil in this country," said Governor O'Hara, "is the divorce evil. It legitimizes vice, cruelty and neglect; and puts a premium on selfishness and indecency. Our picture, 'Should She Obey?' is founded on fact—not imagination, and is designed to be a pronouncement against this legalized crime.

"It is in no possible sense definable as a 'sex picture,' but at the same time we have made a startling and ruthless exposure of the lives of America's spendthrift millionaires."

Governor O'Hara has his headquarters with the Renowned Pictures Corporation, of which E. A. Westcott is president, at 1600 Broadway. The company is handling the sales of "Should She Obey?" on the states right basis. Already Canada, Greater New York, Indiana and Illinois have been sold.

Distribution Plan for "Hate"
Under Way, Says Bolling

Robert Bolling, vice-president of the Fairmount Film Corporation, New York, will shortly make an important announcement concerning the distribution of "Hate," the seven-reeler being handled by the company.

Shortly after receiving a telegram from William J. Mooney, president of the corporation, last week, Mr. Bolling, accompanied by Walter R. Stahl, director; Walter Meade, scenario editor; Sidney Vaughn, studio manager, and George Couderc, cameraman, hurried to Philadelphia, as the Flushing Studio, New York, "Hate" was given a private showing for the benefit of a group of interested parties who were invited by Mr. Mooney to be his guests at the Columbia Club.

Returning to New York, Mr. Bolling showed the picture to the National Board of Review; it was passed without a single cut or unfavorable criticism. It is reported that the board commented favorably on the exceptional quality of the picture.

The company reports that it has already started arrangements for producing another big feature. All the plans were discussed with Mr. Mooney in Philadelphia at the time of the recent visit. And it is expected that Mr. Meade will go to Philadelphia shortly.

Westcott Gets "Intolerance"

The Westcott Film Corporation, Minneapolis, Minn., of which E. A. Westcott is secretary and general manager, has acquired the rights to the Griffith spectacle, "Intolerance," for Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

Effects of Military Training on Youth Shown in "What of Your Boy?"

The Cameoagraph Film Manufacturing Company has arranged to secure for exhibitors booking "What of Your Boy?" the seven-reel subject dealing with military training of the youth of the country, public-service cooperation from leading civic and patriotic organizations.

General Manager Frank R. Abrams is certain that this co-operation and the importance of the question in the public mind are certain to fill any theatre in which it is played. Mr. Abrams is booking the picture in New York State direct from his own offices at 140 West Forty-fourth street, New York City.

State rights for the rest of the country and the rest of the world are being disposed of by the Victoria Feature Films, 220 West Forty-second street, New York City.

Feeling that an answer to all America's query concerning the effect of universal training would make an interesting and compelling picture, the Cameoagraph Film Manufacturing Company through Mr. Abrams, requested Col. Sebastian C. Jones, U. S. A., one of the foremost experts in methods of military training for the youth, and now supervising such training at an important military school, to contribute his ideas in picture form. The scheme was to give an answer by an authority. Col. Jones had spent years in the work, and was the logical person to supervise such a film.

According to Mr. Abrams, the producers made it a point to show what happens to the boy under training, caught at every angle.

Schlaifer Takes Winstock in Firm

L. J. Schlaifer, of 216 Central Building, Seattle, Wash., controlling a number of State rights features, has taken into partnership Melvin G. Winstock, widely and favorably known throughout the north-west, with A. Bloom as office director.

Mr. Winstock handled two prints of "The Unborn" and "Idle Wives" working all the time, as well as a number of one-reel feature fillers. The new combination also has options on several additional features and will be in the field from now on for every attraction that can be handled with profit to Northwest exhibitors.

The firm will specialize on each production with carefully prepared publicity and lobby displays of originality.

Sixth King-Bee Nearly Ready

Billy West, the Young King-Bee star, is rapidly adding to the list of impersonations which is making him so popular with exhibitors and fans alike.

In King-Bee's Sixth Comedy now approaching completion at the Flushing Studios, Billy West plays the part of a young millionaire whose health and social position involves him in all sorts of difficulties with all sorts of people. "The Millionaire" is a comedy of contrasts in which Billy West is splendidly supported by the members of the liberated King-Bee Company, which includes Babe Hardy, Lee White and Bud Ross.

The South's Condition

course of a day. There are theatre owners in North Carolina who have never seen a representative of a state right concern unless he has taken upon himself to look this or that one up. The reason is obvious to the one who has ever traveled through this territory.

"It is therefore imperative that something should be done in regard to this condition. Of course I appreciate, and we all appreciate, the fact that this territory could never be placed upon an efficiency basis equal to that existing to more densely populated regions, but it could be rendered 50 per cent. more efficient than it is today. It costs us five times more to operate through this territory than it costs the distributors in the East, not only because of the long jumps but because of the limited number of large theatres.

"My argument isn't that this territory should be placed on the same basis of efficiency as some larger territories. This is impossible unless the nature of things be changed. But I do contend that conditions can be greatly altered and changed for the better and it will all come about if only the ones interested will give careful consideration to the plan as suggested by Motion Picture News and work in co-operation and with a will. It's not only going to benefit the men in the South but in bettering conditions there, the business in general is going to be bettered, and you and I and every one connected with the business will feel the resultant effects—all pointing to betterment."

"Another matter which I should like to mention is the failure of the producer and seller to give proper consideration to the exhibitor in the exploitation of his product. Help the exhibitor advertise. This should be the foreword. It isn't right to the exhibitor to let him paddle his own canoe."

According to Mr. Abrams, the producers made it a point to show what happens to the boy under training, caught at every angle.

Happenings That Will Be Recorded in History Shown in Current Events

Ten years from now the children will be asking questions about what America did in the World War. How America prepared; what she did to meet the issue. All is shown in Current Events.

Fascinating instruction on the manufacture of products of general interest; it contains cooking lessons; beauty hints; science and art; travel; and animated sculpture by the gifted sculptor, Willie Hopkins. It is not a "fill in," but a feature in itself. If you show it once your patrons will demand that you show it every week. It is popular with the masses of every age and sex. If you don't show it and your competitor does, he will get the crowds on the night that Screen Magazine appears.

Over and again the Animated Weekly has flashed an occurrence of national interest on the screen several days before its nearest competitor appeared with the same event. Its immense staff of correspondents never miss the dramatic punch of any event. They get it. No matter what the difficulties may be or how many barriers may be put up they never quit until they get what they were sent for. It is this hanging on with a bulldog grip that has placed the U. A. W. in the lead—and first in the hearts of the fans. They know they are going to see live news—things that they never saw before when U. A. W. appears on the screen. It will pay any Exhibitor to book this feature and advertise it to his patrons. He will make a hit with his crowd and "cash in" as big as he does when showing a popular star.

Something Different

"Seven Cutey Pups" Make Thousands Laugh 'Till the Tears Come.

Versatility is the true secret of the Universal Company's success. Something different all of the time. One of the latest features is breathing the breath of life into Vincent Colby's pups. Every person in America has seen these pups on post cards and have both sent and received such cards through the mails. They have not rented a theatre for the purpose of screening with laughter, as they witness the antics of the pups. This clever one-reel feature can be booked through any one of the 73 Universal Exchanges.

Pulling Power Of Universal Serials

Assure a Steady Weekly Attendance of Patrons.

The serial idea makes big profits for Exhibitors because it keeps the fans coming back each week to see the next episode. They have become absorbed in the plot and want to see how the story will unfold. One of the greatest serial money-makers is the "Voice on the Wire." But "The Gray Ghost," with its intensely gripping plot, will catch the fancy of the fans and play capacity. The indications are that it is going to run away ahead of the big profits made through "The Voice on the Wire." Don't overlook the business building abilities of the serials. Anything that sustains interest in your house week after week is sure money for you to bank. This is what Universal Film serials do.

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers.
Many times people will move from one neighborhood to another just because they have grown deadly tired of traveling the same street and into the same house year in and out. Every progressive human wants change. It is this desire for variety that the Universal Program completely fills. Instead of long drawn features—novels in picture form—the Program shows short stories of drama, melodrama, comedy, and love. It gets under the skin of the crowd every time. It fills their longing for human interest stories, yet, unlike the feature, they can slide into the theatre any time most convenient to them and know that they are not going to break into the middle of a feature and see a story backward. You will get your patrons out more frequently each week through the Program than any other show you can put out.

The REGULARS are fine, wholesome and powerfully dramatic subjects—brilliant and popular stars—masterly direction—complete and lavish productions. They can be booked separately, if desired. But no matter how you book, be sure to get at least a part of them for your house. Get in touch with the nearest Universal Exchange and ask for full particulars.

There are three kinds of Universal comedies; Nestor, is a very polite brand of humor; it might almost be called subtle. But the big way it gets over and the huge enjoyment the audience gets out of a Nestor leaves no doubt of the fun that is in it. L-KO’S are screams. Folks are so busy laughing that they don’t have time to notice just how daring the stunts are that are put over in the L-KO brand. Yet some of the stunts rival in daring the best efforts that are tried in feature plays. Jokers are well named; they are jokers in truth. No one can look at a Joker and keep a straight face. No matter what control he may have over his features he is sure to laugh with uncontrolled mirth over the laff-getters that are packed and pressed down in a Joker. Book them for a Comedy Night through any Universal Exchange.

The clean, wholesome fun in Universal Comedies pulls screams of laughter from the fans. No matter how hardened or grumpy the patron may feel he is bound to chuckle, chortle, and snort with pleasure as he sees the funny antics and humorous situations which each comedy presents.

The SPECIALS are all bull’s-eye hitters. They cost a little more than their pro rated rental at the complete Program price, but they certainly are worth every extra cent they cost. They make a good advertisement for your house, too, because they make your patrons tell your friends what a good show you put out. That’s the kind of talk that means increased patronage for you.

New Director for Vitagraph's Boy Star

"Charley" Seay, formerly director for Edison, Equitable and Moss, and until recently a writer of stories for various publications, has been engaged by Vitagraph to direct little Bobby Connelly. He succeeds Wesley Ruggles, who has been drafting to direct "The Slacker," which will be completed within a few days. It is planned to have the boy moved to the Quality Studio on Sixty-first street for his forthcoming production. Just now, Mr. Seay is putting the finishing touches on "The Lifted Veil," in which Emily Stevens appears.

Navy Officer Uses Mutuals to Stimulate Recruiting

To aid in the recruiting, the Pittsburgh branch of the Mutual Film Corporation offered to Lieutenant Oldendorf, of the United States Navy, who has charge of the local recruiting station, the use of the U.S. Defender series of one-reel subjects showing the work of the army and navy. The three subjects which Lieutenant Oldendorf chose as being particularly useful in his work were "Scouts of the Sea and Sky," "Afloat and Ashore," and "Jack Tar in the Making."

Kipling Story to Be Filmed by Astra Company

Arrangements have been made for the filming by the Astra Company of "The Naulahka," one of Rudyard Kipling's stories. Work on the production, which will be released on the Pathe program, will begin shortly.

Antonio Moreno, former Vitagraph star, will have the leading male role. Helene Chadwick will play opposite him. Warner Oland is seen in a villain part, while a well-known dancer will take the role of the Gypsy Queen in the story.

M. C. and S. A. Franklin directed this production which will be released in September, and which it is said will cost over $500,000.

Special Metro with Emily Stevens as Star Begun

THE first of the special productions de luxe to be released by Metro Pictures Corporation will be a picturization of "A Sleeping Memory," E. Phillips Oppenheim's novel, which has been adapted for the screen by Albert Shirley Le Vino. Emily Stevens will be the star in this special release, and her leading man will be Frank Mills.

"A Sleeping Memory" is being photographed at the Quality Studio, which will henceforth be given over to the making of special Metro wonderplays under the general supervision of Maxwell Karger. George D. Baker and Edwin Carewe will be the directors of the special releases. The former, assisted by Charles Hust, will direct "A Sleeping Memory."

Assisting Mr. Karger in the Quality Studio will be Dave Thompson, who has been for many years floor manager of the famous Quality Studio at 3 West Sixty-first street. Mr. Thompson will be general manager of the Quality Studio. William H. Stevens will be the technical director, a position he has held at the Quality Studio for some time. In a short time Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne will also begin work at this studio on a special release. Several stories are being considered for these co-stars and as yet no definite announcement as to the name of their first special release can be made. Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne will be directed by Edwin Carewe, who is now directing Emily Whalen in "The Trail of the Shadow."

These special productions for the Metro program will be released as super-features. They will be more than five reels, and will be being made for runs of a week or more. It is promised that well-known stars will appear in these productions, and that their support will be very carefully selected.

Miss Stevens, who is the first star selected for Metro special productions, is still working in "The Slacker," which will be completed within a few days. She will find in the title role of "A Sleeping Memory" a role totally different from any she has hitherto played. George D. Baker, who is directing Miss Stevens, has just completed "The Lifted Veil," in which Ethel Barrymore appears.

The opening of the Quality Studio as the place in which special releases will be produced, means that Mr. Christy Cabanne, who has been using that studio for his productions, will move to the Metro Studio on Sixty-first street for his forthcoming production. Just now, Mr. Cabanne is putting the finishing touches on "The Slacker," at Fort Totten.

Poland Story for Jean Sothern's Next Picture

George H. Wiley, president of the Van Dyke Film Corporation, announced last week that he had purchased a script from Joseph Franklin Poland, and will star Jean Sothern in it for Art Drama's program.

Mr. Poland's most recent success was "The Auction of Virtue," in which Naomi Childers made her debut on Art Drama's program. He also wrote "The Cloud," an early Art Drama, which was such a favorite that it was later made into a novel and published in book form.

The new story is as yet untitled. It is said to be a drama of a distinctive type, with human interest as the keynote. Donald Cameron will have the male lead. The picture will be on Art Drama's program sometime in July.

New Vita Policy Approved

Greater Vitagraph's recently inaugurated policy of withdrawing from distribution all of its productions which do not meet with the approval of forty per cent. of the first exhibitors who represent them, has struck a responsive chord in the exhibitors throughout the country, judging from letters received from exhibitors. They appear to have come to the conclusion that this institution will exert a powerful influence in securing for them only productions of merit and one's that will be assured box-office attractions, and accordingly are offering their heartfelt cooperation.
"Man and Beast" Story of Jungle A U Offering

Eileen Sedgwick Starred in This Serial, "The Gray Ghost," Begins

UNGLE life is portrayed in the But- terfly five-act drama, "Man and Beast," which tops the Universal program for the week of June 2. The settings for this photodrama are laid in the South African belt and the story tells of the hatred of the Boers for their English neighbors. A love story is interwoven in the plot and opportunities are offered for some excellent animal pictures.

The story was written by Reed Henius and the production was made under the direction of Henry McRae. The leading roles are played by Eileen Sedgwick and Kingsley Benedict. Others in the cast include L. M. Wells, Harry Chilton, Park Jones and Mrs. Witting.

"Man and Beast" will be released Monday, June 25, on the same day with the Nestor comedy, "The War Bridegroom," featuring Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts.

The feature for Tuesday, June 2, is the Gold Seal three-part Western drama, "The Golden Bullet," starring Harry Carey, supported by Fritzie Ridgeway. The story was written by Shelly Sutton and the picture produced by Fred A. Kelsey.

The other Tuesday release is the Victor comedy, "Damaged Goodness," with Ernie Shields in the leading role.

"Her Daring Caring Ways," a two-part L-Ko comedy, with Merta Sterling and Fritzie Ridgeway furnishing most of the fun, is the chief offering of Wednesday, June 27. Issue No. 78 of the Universal Animated Weekly will also appear on this date.

On Thursday, June 28, the Big U two-reeler underworld drama, "The Pointed Finger," will be released. This is a story of crime with George Pearce and Gretchen Lederer in the principal roles. On the same day the Victor comedy, "Her City Beau," will appear, with M. K. Wilson and Edith Roberts as the featured players.

A two-part comedy drama is offered under the Victor brand on Friday, June 29, entitled "Swede Hearts," with Neal Hart and Janet Eastman in the leading roles. This photoplay written and produced by George Marshall, Dick La Reno and George Berrill have important roles in the production. Issue No. 25 of the Universal Screen Magazine is the other Friday release.

The Bison two-act Western drama, "Money and Mystery," with Eileen Sedgwick and Kingsley Benedict, is the feature for Saturday, June 30. The Joker comedy, "His Fatal Beauty," with William Franey, and the weekly issue of the Universal Current Events will be released on this date.

On Sunday, July 1, the Imp drama, "The Double Topped Trunk," starring Allen Holubar is presented. The other releases for Sunday are the Powers split reel, "Duke Doolittle's Jungle Fizzles," a comedy cartoon and "In the Land of Many Tamples," a Dorsey educational, and the Big U drama, "Love's Turmoil," featuring Edna Mason.

During the week the first episode of the latest Universal serial, "The Gray Ghost," will be released. This new mystery serial, which is a film adaptation of the novel, "Loot," by Arthur Somers Roche, which appeared in serial form in the Saturday Evening Post, was produced by Stuart Paton and the principal roles are played by Priscilla Dean, Eddie Polo, Emory Johnson and Harry Carter. The serial will run for fifteen consecutive weeks.

Metro Picture Establishes a Booking Record

For the first time in the history of the Symphony theatre, an 800 downtown house in Los Angeles, a picture has been shown for two consecutive weeks. The subject was that of the Metro program, "The Call of Her People," which stars Ethel Barrymore. During the first week this picture was shown the house could not accommodate the people who wished to attend, and for this reason the film was engaged for a longer run.

"Caleb Conover" Gives Fawcett Big opportunity

George Fawcett, stage and screen star, believes he has done his finest motion picture acting in the forthcoming Selig drama, "The Call of Her People," written by Albert Payson Terhune. The story was produced in motion pictures by Colin Campbell from the scenario by Gilson Willets.

In the drama, Mr. Fawcett has many opportunities for artistic character delineation. In the beginning he is seen as a Section Boss on a railroad. Later he becomes the leader in his ward. How Caleb earned his first million dollars, and of how he won a bride are also interestingly presented and have a strong bearing on future developments. Then there comes a time when the masterful Boss can no longer govern events.

Coleman to Direct Pictures of Lois Meredith

William Robert Coleman, formerly connected with Biograph, Selig and other producing organizations of equal repute, has been engaged to direct the first of six productions, starring Lois Meredith, and bearing the star's name as the brand of release.

Coleman will be remembered as having staged the "Selig Special" in 1915, "The Mariner's Compass" and "The Evangeline." His most recent endeavors have been for the London Features, of London, Eng., where he was centered until war broke out.

The story for Miss Meredith has been selected, and Mr. Coleman co-directing with Mr. Marcel Morhange will start work soon.

Choose Story for Long Lois Meredith Feature

The scenario department of Lois Meredith Pictures, Inc., announce that they have selected a story for the first of six sequels starring Miss Meredith, to be released by Superlative Pictures Corporation.

The story, a timely subject, written by Miss Winnifred Dunn, is now in the hands of the scenario department. Miss Meredith's cast is being rapidly assembled, and will start work shortly.
New Production for Leading Arctraft Players

Fairbanks in Original Story, "The Optimist"—Mary Pickford, Elsie Ferguson and Cohan Vehicles—Farrar's Work Delayed by Illness

ANNOUNCEMENT of new productions already commenced here and on the West Coast, and presenting Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Elsie Ferguson, George M. Cohan and Geraldine Farrar, was made by Arctraft last week.

Following the completion of Mary Pickford's patriotic picture, "The Little American," staged under the direction of Cecil B. De Mille, Miss Pickford will start on her newest vehicle, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." This adaptation from the book and play will be produced at the Lasky-Hollywood Studio by Marshall Neilan. The cast for this picture is now being assembled, and all preliminary preparations for its actual screening are rapidly nearing completion. After "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," Mary Pickford will appear in an adaptation of Frances Hodgson Burnett's well-known book, "The Little Princess," arrangements for the screening of which were made last week.

As his third Arctraft picture, Douglas Fairbanks will present an original story written by himself, the temporary title of which is "The Optimist." This subject will offer a typical Fairbanks photoplay staged by John Emerson. Eileen Percy, who has just signed a year's contract to appear opposite Douglas, will head the supporting cast. The new Fairbanks picture is now being prepared for screening by Anita Loos, and will be ready for the camera when the star returns from his vacation shortly.

George M. Cohan's next picture for Arctraft, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," is now being produced at the Famous Players-New York studio. This adaptation from Mr. Cohan's stage success is under the direction of Hugh Ford. Although originally scheduled for production at a later date, requests from exhibitors for another Cohan picture in the near future prompted Mr. Cohan and Arctraft to do this film immediately.

At the Famous Players-Lasky Studio in Fort Lee, Elsie Ferguson will start her initial photoplay, "Barbary Sheep," from the book by Robert Hichens, as soon as Maurice Tourneur finishes the picture on which he is now working.

Geraldine Farrar, who arrived in Los Angeles recently to appear in a series of photodramas for Arctraft under the direction of Cecil B. De Mille, has contracted a severe case of tonsillitis, which has delayed her activities at the Lasky Studio. Mr. De Mille, who has just returned from his first vacation in many years, is at present working on the initial Farrar-Arctraft release in collaboration with Jeanie Macpherson, and it is thought that the star will have fully recovered so as to start work the early part of next week.

Circus Series Planned by the Whartons

In the plans which they are making for the future, the Whartons at Ithaca are considering the filming of the Shoestring Charlie stories now running in the Red Book. The stories were written by their scenario editor, Courtney Ryley Cooper.

The stories all have the atmosphere of the circus and in case they are produced, arrangements are to be made with one of the big circuses for the Wharton people to accompany it across the country if necessary that the proper atmosphere and color may be obtained.

Lee Children Hard at Work on Stellar Vehicle

After delays made necessary by bad weather, the Fox feature in which Jane and Katherine Lee will star, and which will be released in July, is well in progress at the Fort Lee, N. J., studios.

The picture is said to exactly fit the personalities of the two young players and to abound both in humor and dramatic situations.

Stuart Sage, Edwin Holt, Sidney D'Albrook, Edna Hunter, Leslie Austen and W. Harvey are members of the cast.

Society Endorses "Vicar"

A private invitational showing of the Thanhouser feature, "The Vicar of Wakefield," brought a capacity audience to the Woman's City Club of Chicago, situated at the Lakeview Building on Michigan Boulevard. Society and club women made up the audience.

The picture was voted a big success and congratulatory telegrams were forwarded to the Pathe Exchange, Edwin Thanhouser and Frederick Warde.
Firing Line Hospitals Shown in “Heroic France”

Views of field dressing stations, close up to the firing line on the Somme front in France, with hundreds of men being rushed to the emergency operating rooms by stretcher bearers, are among the most interesting of the screens in “Heroic France,” the eight-reel war picture released by Mutual.

The field resting stations are established as near as possible to the firing line and are equipped as close as possible to the battle line to the doctors and nurses, who care for their immediate injuries and pass them on to the rear as rapidly as the ambulances can transport them to the field hospitals.

In this intimate showing of the workings of war, Dr. Alexis Carrel, of the Rockefeller Institute, is shown, and the use of the Dakin solution for aseptising wounds is thoroughly illustrated.

Dramatic Subject Is Chosen for Gail Kane

“For the Family Name” has been chosen as Gail Kane’s next vehicle for release through Mutual. This is from a scenario written especially for Miss Kane by the fiction and scenario writer, Dan F. Whitcomb.

The story of “For the Family Name” is based on the efforts of a young wife to keep secret her knowledge of a family murder and the dreadful mental agony and strain which she undergoes until she is rendered temporarily insane. Her actions lead to the belief of her husband and father, as well as the detectives, that she is herself the murderer.

Gail Kane, the star, is the only woman lead in the cast. Five men play the principal roles—Lewis J. Cody, Henry A. Barrows, James Farley, Robert Klein and Ashton Dearholt.

“The Lone Wolf” Opens Indefinite Broadway Run on July 1

The Herbert Brenon Film Corporation announces that “The Lone Wolf,” the production on which Herbert Brenon has been working for so many months will open an indefinite engagement at the Broadway theatre, Sunday, July 1.

“The Lone Wolf” is a picturization of the novel by Louis Joseph Vance, and is Brenon’s third Selznick picture.

The story ranges from Troyon’s hotel in Paris, where Marcel, the tiny lad, who is later to develop into the Lone Wolf, is first revealed; to America, where the lad is taken by a master crook and becomes involved in his first escapade which ends in his being sent to a reformatory for ten years. At the end of that period he is discovered in Paris as Michael Lanyard, supposedly a collector of paintings, but known to the police of Europe as one of the cleverest crooks of the age. From then on many stirring situations are said to occur.

Mr. Brenon wishes it is understood that “The Lone Wolf” goes into the Broadway for an indefinite run and will have no advance showing for trade, press or exhibitors.

Baby Marie and New Picture

Work has been started on another Baby Marie Osborne Picture, which is entitled “Baby Pulls the Strings.” The scenario was written by Marc Edmund Jones, of the Pathe scenario staff. William Bertram will make the production, and Harrish Ingraham will make the next Baby Marie Picture, the scenario of which is now being prepared.

Future Plans for “Honor System”

There will be a special release of “The Honor System,” Fox’s cinemodrama, beginning in September, covering the entire United States. At present this R. A. Walsh drama is booking only for New York and New Jersey.
Planning Ahead for Marine Co.

Water Picture

M. Philip Hansen, the general manager of the Marine Film Company of Los Angeles, together with his director, Henry Otto, last week paid a visit to the Santa Barbara Islands to look over locations for the big water feature which has since been started. While the photo play has not yet been named, it is known that the subject images on a modern Lorelei with a mythical parallel. Both Mr. Hansen and Mr. Otto consider that the story is an exceptional one and that it gives opportunities for scenes of the greatest beauty. A hevy of diving bnecks will cross the water from San Pedro to the Santa Barbara Islands to take part in the water scenes. Henry Otto states that the new picture will far surpass his "Undine."

Marguerite Bertsch Writes Book on Pictures

"To Writers of Moving Pictures" is the title of a new book just brought out by George A. Doran & Co., and written by Marguerite Bertsch, who for five years was scenario editor of the Vitagraph Company. After a short introduction the market for scenarios is discussed in some length, a model scenario is then given showing the method of building the story and finally its completed form as it is when it reaches the director.

The remainder of the book is taken up with descriptions of various classes of scenes, each being described in considerable detail. The book is illustrated with actual photographs, giving illustrations of the various scenes described. It is one of the most instructive publications of its kind yet issued and one which is well worth careful perusal.

West Likes "Within the Law"

The Vitagraph subject, "Within the Law," has finished a two weeks' continuous run at T. L. Tally's Broadway theatre in Los Angeles. The attendance was exceptionally good, Mr. Tally states, considering the length of time the picture ran at his theatre. The subject is being sought eagerly by many exhibitors of this territory.

Country-wide Publicity Campaign on "Fatal Ring"

Fathe Plans to Reach Every Picture Fan—Pearl White Said to Have Most Strenuous Role She Ever Enacted—Exhibitors Force Early Date

A publicity campaign which will reach every picture fan in America is planned by Pathe on the latest serial, "The Fatal Ring," which will be released July 8.

The exploitation is planned with a view of touching every section of the country. The Hearst papers throughout the country with their immense circulation, will carry large display ads on this serial together with news stories and reviews of the various episodes of the serial, in addition to pictures of the stars and a novelization of the serial. Other newspapers in the large cities in the United States and the newspapers in the smaller towns will also carry large display ads and considerable publicity of the stories. Many of them will print the novelization of the film story.

The release date on "The Fatal Ring" was advanced from September to July 8 at the request of exhibitors throughout the country, who hailed Pearl White as "the greatest box-office tonic for the Summer months."

Pearl White in this picture plays the part of Pearl Standish, a rich girl who has so much money she did not appreciate what it could buy for her. She is bored with life until a demand is made on her at the point of a gun by a man named Nicholas Knox for the violet diamond which he claimed her father had bought after it had been stolen from the Sacred Order of the Violet God. Pearl disdains any knowledge of the violet diamond, but the followers of the Violet God make life so interesting for her that she has an opportunity to bewail her sad fate of being so rich that she cannot enjoy herself. She is given fifteen days to live in case she does not return the Violet Diamond of Daroon, but before the fifteen days pass she has become so involved in the affairs of the followers of the Violet God in the villainies of Richard Carslake and in the adventures of Tom Carlton, a newspaper man, that her waking and sleeping hours consist of dodging death at the hands of the order of the Violet God and Richard Carslake.

Surrounded by danger for the first time in her existence, Pearl Standish takes an interest in life. She meets Tom Carlton, a reporter on the New York American, and the adventures of the two in the search for the diamond and in the fight with Carslake and the followers of the Violet God continue through fifteen thrilling episodes. Pearl meets with "the spider," a power in the underworld who also enlists on her side to fight the Sacred Order of the Violet God and to learn more about the Violet Diamond.

In the supporting cast of "The Fatal Ring" are Warner Oland, Ruby Hoffman, Earle, Fox, and others.

Vivian Martin as Plebeian and Patrician

In a "Kiss for Susie," a Pallas-Paramount adaptation of Paul West's story, Vivian Martin will be seen as Susie Nolan, energetic daughter of Jim Nolan, a brick-layer.

Tom Forman, in the part of Phil Burnham, a wealthy young man who has turned hod carrier in order to learn the contracting business from the ground up meets Susie. The death of an uncle gives the Nolan family opportunity to live in luxury and after many complications Phil and Susie are united.

John Burton, Jack Nelson, Pauline Perry and Chris Lynton are among the players.

President Wilson's Double in Essanay Film

A remarkable characterization of President Wilson is said to be given by P. H. Westphal in Bryant Washburn's coming Essanay feature, "The Man Who Was Afraid."

It was found necessary to have a counterpart of the country's executive in this picture, and it is said he was located in the person of Mr. Westphal, a hotel clerk of Lafayette, Ind.

Trade showings of the production are going on now at all branch offices of the K-E-S-E. Release date is July 2.
It is freely admitted by men, with any comprehensive grasp of the situation, that the motion picture industry is on the verge of a great change. Men of purely mechanical minds are being forced to give way to men with creative minds. In the opening of the industry, the director with a knowledge of the mechanics was all important; today he has dropped back to give place to the creative director, the man who can write the story, as well as direct the working out of the mechanics.

Concerning this important matter, I sought an interview with Hampton Del Ruth, a man who enjoys the reputation of being one of the most successful and thorough picture men of the hour.

"The creative director is the coming man," began Mr. Del Ruth. "The man with the mechanical mind cannot become the creative man, but the creative man, by work and concentration, can master the mechanics. The creative director, the man who not only creates the idea but directs its growth into the perfect picture, will be the man who will reap the big rewards. The photoplaywrights of today will be the great directors of tomorrow. The truly great photoplaywright can in time master the technique of camera, stage production and film cutting, but the director who can only grasp the mechanics will sink into natural obscurity."

William H. Cotton is now finishing her second Pathe feature produced at her special studio. That newspapers, exhibitors and public are eager for news of her activities can be seen by the great number of inquiries received at the Pathe Executive Offices. Theatre men from all sections of the United States express their belief in Mrs. Castle’s drawing power as a screen star. As indication of her popularity in smaller cities as well as the larger ones, the following brief extracts are of interest:

"The creative minds of today are the directors of tomorrow." By J. C. Jessen

MRS. VERNON CASTLE is now finishing her second Pathe feature produced at her special studio. Theatre men from all sections of the United States express their belief in Mrs. Castle’s drawing power as a screen star. As indication of her popularity in smaller cities as well as the larger ones, the following brief extracts are of interest:

"I have played Mrs. Castle to the best box-office receipts in the history of both of my theatres and can recommend her as a box-office attraction to any exhibitor," says Benjamin Apple, manager of the Arbor theatre, Albany, N. Y.

"The people who pay their good money to see pictures are becoming educated; they recognize readily the brain and creative genius in a picture, and as readily detect the absence of it. Genius is as necessary in directing the picture as in creating or bringing forth the idea. The same genius that brings forth the idea will show in the picture. No purely mechanical director can fully interpret in film the idea of a genius or an idea from a creative mind. Only creative minds can fully interpret the ideas of creative minds. The mechanical mind does not, never has, and never will, speak the language of the creative mind. The creative mind knows no limitations.

"The mechanics are necessary, but they do not now occupy first place. The blazing idea is the thing."

With view of the rapid changes of the past, and the future adjustment of things, one is forced to see the logic in Mr. Del Ruth’s "Periscopic" outlook, as it is quite probable that the great film director of the coming day will be the great photoplaywright of the present day. This is based upon the fact that the average director can never learn to write a truly great creation, but the truly great photoplaywright of today can and will in time master the technique of camera, stage production and film cutting, hence the deductions of Mr. Del Ruth as above noted.

"Goldwyn Augments Art Staff—Cotton Engaged"

William H. Cotton, noted portrait painter, who has won distinction by his decorative drawings and tone-studies, has been added to the Goldwyn producing staff. His services will be along the same lines, broadly considered as those of Hugo Ballin and Everett Shinn, the artists who have been with Goldwyn for the past four months. Mr. Cotton has started work on the first Jane Cowl production.

At the same time the announcement of Cotton was made, it was stated arrangements had been concluded by Goldwyn with the Arden Studios, 599 Fifth avenue, New York, whereby that group of artists and decorators will henceforth lend their skill to the preparation of all Goldwyn Pictures. The Arden Studios are conducted by Miss Elizabeth Avrell and Mrs. John W. Alexander. Both have promised to write a series of practical articles for the owners of theatres exhibiting Goldwyn Pictures, showing them how pictures houses may be beautiful at comparatively trifling expense.

"Casting a Star—Melcher Engaged" Officially at the Kalem Studio in Glendale, were greatly surprised a few days ago, when, in the midst of their vast pile of daily mail, they came across a letter addressed to "Mr. Stingaree, Kalem Film Company, Glendale, Cal., America." The attention of Phil Lang, scenario editor, was called to the letter, and he immediately turned it over to True Boardman, the star, who created the role of "Stingaree" in Kalem’s original series of that title, and who again the featured player in "The Further Adventures of Stingaree," a series of fifteen new stories written especially for the screen by the famous author, E. W. Hornung, and which are now being released through the General Film Company. Boardman found that the letter was addressed to "Dear Mr. Stingaree," and contained the proverbial request for a photograph.

"Tanks at Ancre" Scoring in All Cities Actual figures continue to point to Pathe’s five-reel official British war picture, "The Tanks at the Battle of the Ancre" as one of the greatest box-office attractions of the year. After breaking records at the special showings at Carnegie Hall, New York; in Chicago, St. Louis and other cities; and at the Strand Theatre, New York, engagement, during which ninety thousand people saw them, pictures these are to play three weeks solid at Tremont Temple, Boston, beginning June 16. Other important bookings at big theatres for long runs at high rental, which have come in during the last few days, which have been accepted since they do not interfere with state rights买者; are the following: Circle theatre, Indianapolis, one week, which may be extended to two; Strand theatre, Birmingham, one week; Shubert theatre, Buffalo, one week; Valentine theatre in Toledo, under the auspices of the Red Cross, one week; Strand theatre, Spokane, one week.

"Creative Minds of Today the Directors of Tomorrow"

"We can highly recommend Mrs. Vernon Castle as a great box-office attraction. Each night our first show has played to capacity with a big crowd waiting outside for the second show. If there is any other star who will draw the business she does, we would like to know of her," write Carlisle and Bedard, of the Belevue theatre St Albans, Vt.

Real Fight Will Feature Wm. Russell Play

For the Edward Sloman photoplay in which William Russell is starred, the baseball park at Santa Barbara, California, will be used for the big prize-fight scene in which Russell, a noted boxer himself, will oppose Al Kaufman, who was in "A Small Town Girl"; John Smiley, Fred Hearns, Jane Lee, Alma Muller and Edna Munsey are in the cast.

Miriam Cooper is said to be ideally cast as a sacrificing heroine in "The Innocent Sinner." Jack Standlee, Charles Clary, Rosita Marstini and Johnny Reese are in the cast.

"Mae Marsh Day" Feature of Goldwyn pictures Corporation has won the honor of opening the annual exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League, to be held in the Coliseum, Chicago, beginning Saturday, July 14.

The first day of the convention, according to announcement, will be known and advertised as Mae Marsh Day and the little star of "The Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance" and other pictures, will arrive in Chicago on the morning of the fourteenth, accompanied by Samuel Goldwyn, Miriam Cooper, Jane and Katherine Lee and Gladys Brockwell featured in four pictures—themes said to be varied.

Prominent Players in All Fox’s July Releases

WILLIAM FOX'S schedule of photoplays for July release, announcement of which has just been made, includes some of the best known of the organization's stars. The films will be issued in this order:

July 1, June Caprice in "Patsy"; July 8, R. A. Walsh's drama, "The Innocent Sinner," with Miriam Cooper; July 15, Jane and Katherine Lee in a surprise drama, "Two Little Inps"; July 22, Gladys Brockwell in "To Honor and Obey," a screen drama of vigorous action.

Virginia Pearson's present production, which Director Carl Harbaugh now has in work, will probably be the release for the week of July 29. This picture has not yet been titled, but the principals in the star's supporting cast consist of Hardie Kirkland, Claire Whitney, and William Meehan. Mr. Meehan will continue to portray the genial crook of "Turn to the Right," the current Broadway comedy success, while appearing before the camera for Miss Pearson's play on the afternoons when there are no matinees of his other vehicle.

In "Patsy," her eighth William Fox picture, Miss Caprice is said to have a story full of charm and sunshine. John G. Adolphi was in charge of the direction.

Harry Hilliard is the leaping man. Others in "Patsy" are Ethylle Cooke, who was in "A Small Town Girl"; John Smiley, Fred Hearns, Jane Lee, Alma Muller and Edna Munsey.

Miriam Cooper is said to be ideally cast as a sacrificing heroine in "The Innocent Sinner." Jack Standlee, Charles Clary, Rosita Marstini and Johnny Reese are in the cast.

Much is expected of the Leslie kiddle picture, "Two Little Inps." Keneum Buel, director, chose Edna Hunter, Edwin Holt, Stuart Sage, W. Harvey and Leslie Austin to fill the chief supporting roles.

The last announced photoplay of the month, "To Honor and Obey?" is heralded as possessing a gripping story and cast of exceptional ability. This is Gladys Brockwell's initial production under direction of Ots Turner. Bertram Grassby plays the star, and Jewel Carmen, stage favorite, has an important part. Also in the cast are Charles Clary, Joseph Swickard and Willard Louis.

Gus Mohme to Handle "Hate" for Fairmount Film

Gus Mohme of the Biograph laboratory has been appointed special representative by the Fairmount Film Corporation, New York, to handle "Hate" on a state rights basis.

The picture has been advertised extensively in New York by the use of a large electric light display sign in Times Square, and 250 of the most prominently situated 24-sheet stands in the metropolis.

In speaking of the production, Gus Mohme said: "In our experience at the laboratory we come in contract with perhaps more productions than any laboratory or studio in the world, and naturally we have prepared material to handle any eventuality. In this case we have prepared two styles each of five-color ones, threes and six sheets, a compelling 24-sheet, eight by ten black and white photos, nine by eleven colored photos, twenty by thirty colored photos, three colored window cards, two colored heralds, press sheets, slides, cuts, etc. It is all attractive and convincing matter, sure to serve its purpose for exhibitors and state rights buyers."

Rifkin Buys "One Law for Both" for New England States

Negotiations were recently concluded between Herman Rifkin, president of the Eastern Feature Film Company, of Boston, and the Ivan Film Productions for "One Law for Both" for the New England territory, comprising the States of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Mr. Rifkin has made several trips to New York in the last few weeks in connection with the acquirement of this picture, and remarking upon his purchase of the feature, stated: "It was after very careful consideration and much deliberation that I have secured 'One Law for Both' for the territory in which I operate. Reading the reviews of the various trade papers, I found that the production is a vital problem, broad in its scope, and while the truth hits hard at times, it will make people think; in so doing it is bound to create interest.

"The story, by J. Walter Meade, a successful newspaper man and author, is worthy of success and the treatment it has received at the hands of Walter Richard Stahl, the director, speaks well of his ability to send home facts on the screen. "We have prepared two styles each of five-color ones, threes and six sheets, a compelling 24-sheet, eight by ten black and white photos, nine by eleven colored photos, twenty by thirty colored photos, three colored window cards, two colored heralds, press sheets, slides, cuts, etc. It is all attractive and convincing matter, sure to serve its purpose for exhibitors and state rights buyers.""
Selznick Secures "On Trial" for N.Y. and Chicago Territory

"On Trial," a photodrama made by Essanay from the successful drama that ran a whole year in New York, has been secured by Lewis J. Selznick for the territory covered by his New York and Chicago exchanges. Exhibitors in New York State can book this picture through the Selznick exchanges at 729 Seventh Avenue, New York, and 66-68 Exchange Street, Buffalo. Bookings may be made soon.

Carl Hahn

Selznick Actress Recovers from Painful Injury

Valentine Petit, who has been confined to her home for the past five weeks, due to a broken ankle inflicted while alighting from her automobile, is now convalescent, and with the consent of her physician will soon return to her screen work under the direction of Leonce Peret, the director of Robert Warwick's latest Selznick pictures. Miss Petit, while comparatively a stranger to cinema patrons of this country, is one of the favorites in Europe, where she is known as the best dressed woman of the screen, which title she aims to earn here and for which she brought to this country many exclusive costumes.

Fairmount Engages Hahn for Score to "Hate"

CARL HAHN, director of three prominent musical societies, has been engaged by the Fairmount Film Corporation to arrange a musical score for "Hate," in seven reels, which will soon be given a New York run at one of the Broadway theatres. Mr. Hahn is one of America's foremost conductors, and at present he is orchestral director for the New York Arian Society, the New York Mozart Society and the Brooklyn Arian.

The decision on the part of the Fairmount Film Corporation to send out a complete orchestration with "Hate" was reached by Mr. Robert Bolling, vice-president, early during the past week. Mr. Hahn was selected because of his recognized ability as a conductor and as a composer.

The score will be so arranged that it will be possible to give it orchestration by the largest as well as the smallest orchestras. Most of the selections will be highly dramatic in their scope, wonderfully tender and inspiring, forming a motif running throughout the entire script. Mr. Hahn, with Mr. Bolling, Director Walter Hahn, and Mr. Bolling, Director Walter Hahn, have arranged the musical score for the New York and his assistant, David Stahl, and J. Walter Meade, the author, R. Stahl, and J. Walter Meade, the author, were identified with the Civilization Feature Company.

Hirsh Companies Consolidate

The Civilization Feature Company and the Pioneer Feature Film Company, New York, have been consolidated by Nathan Hirsh as the Civilization-Pioneer Film Corporation. Mr. Hirsh, president, and a large stockholder in both companies, now negotiating for a subject to follow his first release, "Redemption."

Mr. Hirsh's new company will operate in New York State and in northern New Jersey. Associated with Mr. Hirsh are Louis Haas and Morris Rose, who were identified with the Civilization Feature Company.

"The open program booking will be our policy," said Mr. Hirsh. "No exhibitor, big or little, will be compelled to enter into a contract with us to book all our offerings. We, ourselves, are not agreeing to purchase the total output of any one producer, but we claim the privilege of making selections in the open market of such features which come up to our standard of merit. Recognizing the advantage we would derive from this arrangement, we state it. But the right and proper course to pursue with our customers. The sooner it is realized that any plan which works to the benefit of one works beneficially to all, much quicker will an equitable distribution be made of the profits in the motion picture industry."

Hoffman Buys "Sinister" for New York

M. H. Hoffman has bought the New York State rights to "The Bar Sinister" from Frank Hall, and it is now ready for release through first of the Foursquare Exchanges to be opened in the Godfrey Building, New York.

"The Bar Sinister," with "Madam Sherry," the "Sin Woman," and "Should She Obey?" will form the nucleus of the exchange product to be distributed under the supervision of H. Gainsburg, who is installed at the head of the New York Foursquare Exchange.

"The Bar Sinister" enjoys the distinction of being "interrupted," in a good sense, by two men who have "interrupted" many pictures previously run in New York.

License Commissioner Bell and Assistant District Attorney Dyer.

The interruption came during the interval, and was only prolonged sufficiently to allow the audience to enjoy patriotic addresses on the subject of Liberty Bonds.

Councillor Dyer spoke to a crowded house at the Broadway theatre, New York, on Thursday evening of the second week's run of the Edgar Lewis drama, while Commissioner Bell addressed the audience on Tuesday of the week following. During the Broadway engagement of "The Bar Sinister," Frank Hall arranged the presentation so that a ten-minute interruption occurred during the showing of the picture, and this time was given by Mr. Hall to the Liberty Loan Speakers Bureau.

"Her Fighting Chance" Sold for New Jersey

The New Jersey rights for the latest A. H. Jacobs Photoplays, Inc., production, "Her Fighting Chance," with Jane Grey, have been bought by A. L. Messer, of Newark, New Jersey.

Frank Hall, who controls the world rights for the new Jane Grey feature has also started to dispose of foreign territory.

Norway, Sweden, Denmark and South America have all been taken by Aragon & Carlton through their New York office in the Times Building, while Australia, New Zealand, Java and adjacent islands were bought by William A. Vogel.

The New Jersey territory will be booked by Mr. Messer through his Newark exchange in the Proctor theatre building.

Constance Talmadge to Star

Constance Talmadge, comparatively unknown except for her vivid playing in D. W. Griffith's spectacular "In-tolerance," has been added to the list of Selznick stars and is practically finished with her first production, a drama entitled, "The Lesson," from a story by Virginia Terhune Van De Water.

Constance has been a close observer of her well-known sister Norma's methods, and is taking advantage of the elder's experience.

Norma Talmadge, welcoming the open booking system as the one in which the star would be unhampered by dominating release dates, signed a contract some time ago with Lewis J. Selznick, and Constance has now followed.

Mr. Selznick asked the younger Miss Talmadge if she would care to do one picture for him and here is the way in which he found this much favored plan of his worked out:

"For two weeks I had daily reports upon Miss Constance from her director, and looking them over I was convinced that the story of the application of the Blandine, as Miss Constance renders it, is as favorable comment. Mr. Giblyn's favorite word for her is 'plastic.' He says that Mentally and physically she is able to adopt any attitude with the greatest ease, one of the most important of all characteristics of the screen artist. So I decided that I was right in my original intention to star Miss Constance Talmadge, and she will appear in a series of productions which will be released on my open booking plan."

Mr. Selznick has a variety of exterior scenes in "The Lesson," and Director Giblyn's company has been hiking all over this section of the country for locations. Everything from bathing to mountain climbing has had a part in the program.

Additional property has been secured by the company in the vicinity of Wilkes-Barré, where the outdoor shooting will be done. Everything from bathing to mountain climbing has had a part in the program.

Exhibitors Praise Care Taken

As proof of the manner in which its efforts to make Star productions the very best possible, Mutual quotes from letters received from exhibitors throughout the country. Following are a few of the messages received:

"Mutual Star productions are the last word in the feature field today."—G. A. Sieraczki, Alhambra Theatre, Newark, O.

"I take this opportunity to drop you a line to inform you that after you sold me the Mutual Star features they have proven to be the best of satisfaction and my patrons appreciate the program you so kindly laid out for me. I hope this will encourage other exhibitors to help their box office receipts."—J. M. Kaufman, Opera House, Gallipolis, O.

Send me contracts of your entire output of Star productions and I will sign them as I consider what I have already run to be as good as the best on the market and my patrons are more than pleased with them, and as this house is catering to the public's want and they don't hesitate to tell me to book Mutual Star productions, and their word is law. If, myself, am very well satisfied with your productions and think, judging them as a whole, they are the best money-makers that I have on my house program."—Walker Baughman, Grand Theatre, Circleville, O.

"As I have been a Mutual exhibitor for four years, I wish to say that I can recommend any of the stars on the Mutual Star program to any exhibitor who wishes to build up the trade in his house. I have never had a bad picture from the Mutual Film Corporation—and that is saying a whole lot for the pictures."—D. H. Thompson, Muse U.S. Theatre, Dayton, O.

Paramour Feeder Company

The United States Motion Picture Corporation is enlarging their studio in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, and have engaged a number of new players for the future single-reel Black Diamond Comedies, which will be released by Paramount Pictures Corporation to all exhibitors.

An entire section of the new place will be used solely for this trick photography work.

Additional property has been secured by the company in the vicinity of Wilkes-Barre, where the outdoor material will be made. In this section of Pennsylvania there is every possible location to be secured, and the company has purchased a large tract of land where every phase of outdoor pictures can be shot.

During the past week additional players have been secured by the company who will surround Miss Latrice Joy, the leading lady of the company. A scenario department was recently established by the company and their first offer of $5 per word for all ideas of fifty words is expected to have brought to them hundreds of clever suggestions which are rapidly being turned into pictures for the company.

Enlarges Scope of Operations in speaking of the future work of his company stated that nothing would be left undone to make these single-reel comedies a great success. We have been keeping our finger on the filmgoer's pulse during the past six months and we know, without any fear of contradiction that we have struck upon the right ideas that the public want and which will make money for every exhibitor who books the pictures.

Critic Highly Praises "The Garden of Allah"

The reviewer on this staff of the Los Angeles Times pays a tribute to Selig's "The Garden of Allah," which crowded the finest and newest of Los Angeles theatres for three weeks and more. The reviewer says: "The Garden of Allah" is a story which depends primarily on sustained subjective interest, on atmosphere, on a sense of sinister impending fate, and whereas a stage version is necessarily fragmentary, the screen version is rich and varied opportunity for all film elements.

"Selig has overlooked not one of these in his finely-impresive photoplay rendering of the great story.

"God's Man" Sold for 32 States

It is announced by President William L. Sherrill of the Frohman Amusement Company that negotiations have been completed and contracts entered into for the exclusive rights to "God's Man" in thirty-two states. Among the recent purchasers are Sampel Van Ronkel, a well-known exchange man of Chicago, who has chosen "God's Man" as the ready-made husk of his newly organized exchange enterprise. Mr. Van Ronkel acquires the exclusive booking privileges for the states of Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. "God's Man" will receive its first presentation at an indefinite run at a leading downtown theatre, with augmented orchestra and musical program and special advertising attention. Simultaneously with the Chicago premiere, Mr. Van Ronkel plans the opening at four other cities within the states controlled by him.

Another important contract entered into by President Sherrill is with George F. Perkins, who, acting for his independent Film and Theatre Supply Company of Montreal, has acquired the exclusive right to "God's Man" for the entire Dominion of Canada. Mr. Perkins' organization will also exploit this Frohman production as a distinct theatrical attraction, having arranged for the simultaneous presentation with complete traveling company of Canadian centres. Acting in conjunction with the Frohman advertising and service departments, the Independent Film and Theatre Supply Company has arranged with newspaper and unusual advertising accessories and aids, which have already received a widespread praise from Canadian theatre proprietors and exhibitors.

Hamilton Novel in Scenario for Moss

Anthony Kelly has completed the scenario of Cosmo Hamilton's novel, "The Sins of the Children" for B. S. Moss.

"The Sins of the Children," which as a novel was written by Mr. Hamilton upon the basis of the story of "The Blindness of Virtue," makes an admirable vehicle for screen production.

The script as provided by Mr. Kelly calls for the equal exploitation of a male and female star, and Mr. Moss announced that when he is ready to announce the names of the co-stars in question, he will have a photoplay production that will compel attention.

When "The Sins of the Children" is released, and the production will be rushed post haste, it will have cost at least fifty thousand dollars, it is stated, and the concerted energy of the Moss forces will be brought into immediate action.

As a novel "The Sins of the Children" has broken records as a seller for Little, Brown & Company, of Boston.

Second Essanay Western Will Be "The Range Boss"

"The Range Boss" will be the second of Essanay's series of Westerns. This series, which was inaugurated with the release of "Land of Long Shadows," June 18, presents an interpretation of old-blooded life in the wilds of the West.
AMONG THE EXCHANGES

New Paramount Branch Manager Has Wide Experience

Joseph Klein, who has just been made manager of the Pittsburg Paramount Exchange, has long been in the theatrical and motion picture business.

For years he was manager of vaudeville booking offices, but for two years he left the field and entered mercantile business. He soon found himself back in New York, however, and handled a number of big picture features, including Helen Gardner in "Cleopatra." Still later in Atlanta he managed the office of Warner's Features for a year, and then went to Detroit, where he became connected with the World Film, afterward holding the Southern branch district management.

Then came New York again, still with the World Film, after which he shifted to Pathe as business manager and assistant to C. R. Seelye.

On January 1 of this year he joined Artcraft, first in Atlanta, and since February in Pittsburgh. Now he feels he is settled down, and expresses himself as most satisfied with his work in selling Paramonts.

Metro Opening New Office

The Metro Film Corporation, of New York, are opening new offices in St. John, N. B. The offices are at 87 Union street, in a building which already houses offices of the Famous Players and the Canadian Universal Film Exchange.

Here to open the Metro Exchange is J. J. Ungar, general manager of the Canadian exchanges. Metro has already established offices in both Toronto and Montreal, and under new management expects to give excellent service. H. H. McArthur, who has been manager of the General Film Exchange in St. John for the past seven years has been appointed local manager for Metro.

New Philadelphia Exchange

The Economy Film Company has opened an exchange at 1235 Vine street, Philadelphia, with M. S. Kahnweiler as manager. Large features, regular service and one-reel comedies for open bookings are being handled by this exchange.

Opens Cincinnati Branch

M. A. Leibensburger, secretary and treasurer of the Selznick Productions Company, has returned to Cleveland, after opening offices in Cincinnati. A. M. Miller is the manager for the new office.

Paramount Man Transferred

C. H. Powell, known among film men as "Jerry" Powell, is now covering Michigan for the Paramount Pictures Corporation, having been transferred from the Pittsburgh territory.

George Cooper, auditor of the Vitagraph Company of New York office, was in Los Angeles last week, spending several days with Branch Manager H. M. Lentz. From there Mr. Cooper will go north visiting the other exchanges of Vitagraph.

Charles I. Luntz, salesman for the All Star Feature Distributors at San Francisco, this week made a trip to Los Angeles and return visiting exhibitors on the 500 miles inland route while on his way to Los Angeles and those on the coast route upon his return. Mr. Luntz reports he hears very little complaint from exhibitors and all feel they are getting their share of business.

E. H. Emnick, general manager of the Peerless Film Exchange with branches at San Francisco and Los Angeles, motored from the Bay City to Los Angeles this week calling on exhibitors while enroute. Mr. Emnick plans to spend the entire Summer at Los Angeles, making frequent trips to San Francisco to keep in touch with the conditions there. This Exchange has been known as "the house of comedy," and numbers a number of the most popular independent brands being bought for this territory by the company.

General's Branches Discard Worn-Out Traditions

Sales Manager S. R. Kent, returning from tour of exchanges, tells of Educational Campaign and Policy of Scientific Distribution

After a trip of inspection to various mid-western branches of General Film, including among others Detroit, Chicago and Minneapolis, General Sales Manager Sidney R. Kent returned to New York with this section of his field confirming his expectations in regard to various new merchandising methods.

His tour was devoted not alone to branch managers but to exhibitors in each branch territory. His main purpose, however, was directly to instruct branch managers in the application of modern systems and policies that have been adopted by General Film.

His trip was part of the educational campaign waged from headquarters and which includes every member of the vast organization.

"We are requiring that our branch managers discard many of the obsolete policies that seem to be a sort of tradition in the film industry at large," says Mr. Kent. "Many merchandising methods new to this business are being introduced as swiftly as the magnitude of the organization permits.

We find that most of these plans not only fit well into the distribution of motion pictures but are badly needed. In fact, the old cry that up-to-date merchandising methods used with conspicuous success by large organizations in other lines of industry cannot be applied to film salesmanship is completely disproved.

"We are insisting that all our branch managers co-operate with the exhibitor in studying out not only the cheapest but the most effective way of getting film and posters to him. What we are successfully accomplishing is the minimum of delay and expense to the exhibitor and ourselves.

"Among other things of importance we have advised our branches that the arbitrary methods employed in this business so generally in the past must not creep in where we are concerned, and even where they do exist in other organizations our methods must provide a refreshing contrast.

"For example, we are receiving most favorable comments from the exhibitors throughout the country whose complaints have been investigated by the home office and straightened out for them. In fact, we are requiring our branch managers to make a written report to the home office whenever they find it necessary to discontinue the service of any exhibitor as the outcome of a misunderstanding. This is so that headquarters may share any responsibility involved, and if any wrong has been done, right it. We want the branch manager and the exhibitor to feel that the General Film as an organization is directly interested in the welfare of both.

Many West Coast Branch Men Touring Their Territories

A. B. Knox, who opened the first exchange in Arizona, the branch of the California Universal, and has served as manager there for a long period, has resigned from that position and will leave in a few days in company with Arthur C. Fox for Alaska. The men will take a number of big attractions to Alaska, and book them through the theatres there during the Summer. Reports from the northern country are to the effect that theatre men are enjoying an era of prosperity there, and Messrs. Knox and Fox anticipate a very successful season.

Joins the Colors

Ray Anderson, who has been connected with the Paramount Pictures Corporation for some time, has gone to Fort Royal, S. C., to take the final examination in the United States Marine Corps. Mr. Anderson has been serving Paramount as a roadman, out of the Famous Players Film Service, Inc., of Pittsburgh, for some time, and before that, was the special representative of the Famous Players organization before the Board of Censors at Philadelphia.

GEORGE PARDY called on Pete Schmid one day last week taking with him his dog, a most intelligent canine, who has learned a number of tricks from his master. Pete displayed great interest in the creature and requested George to put him through the paces. After the four-footed one had shown off to the complete satisfaction of the bard, he complained as follows:

"Well," replied George, "in the first place, of course, you have to know more than the dog."

T HE organized attempt of the female reviewers to drive the members of the opposite sex from the "profession" is gaining publicity, which, though the attack in this special instance be cleverly veiled by the author, is nevertheless quite obvious to one possessing any appreciation of that which is subtle. Frances Agnew, Eileen St. John Brenon, Helen Dury, L. Hochstetter, Ethel Evans, Margaret MacDonald, Agnes Smith and Allison Smith, and any others of their kind may take note that we are, to put it plainly, "on to" them. Here is the propaganda:

"There are three classes of critics, dramatic, music and film. Dramatic and music critics are male and of enormous size. Film critics are female, slender and beautiful. . . .

"Dramatic critics are nocturnal insects. They do not leave their nests until twilight, sometimes remaining under cover for four days at a time. Film critics on the other hand do their foraging in the daytime, usually the first four days of the week. Film critics are neat and methodical. They do not talk much, but what they say is usually very comical. They live on metaphors and candy. . . ."—Ring W. Lardner in the Chicago Tribune.

A FEW "DONT'S" FOR FUTURE FILM STARS (FEMALE)

Don't:

1. Go into a trance to gain inspiration.
2. Admit that your salary is larger than the President's.

We don't mean to imply that there is no use for the closeup. On the contrary "The Golden Lotus" might possibly have been even stronger if one had been inserted here and there. But the point is that closeups, as we recollect having remarked several times before, are used altogether too much in present day picture production. So please, Mr. Closeup Director, go and sit through "The Golden Lotus" and realize what can be done without breaking up the continuity with s.

Exhibitors Up Against Another Possible Drain

J. C. Rosenthal, of New York, attorney for the Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, is in Chicago to start a campaign to compel owners of theatres, dance halls, cabarets and other places of amusement, to obtain a license to play copyrighted music. Although the motion picture theatre managers here are dizzy trying to fight off unfair license laws, taxation edicts and censorship bills, they are going to line up in battle array against what they consider the newest attempt to muck them.

Supply Company Opens Branch in Indianapolis

The Exhibitors' Supply Company, of Chicago, announce that they have opened a branch office and store at Indianapolis, Ind. The branch is occupying suite 203 to 213 in the Stewart Block, right in the center of the theatre and exchange district of that city.

Like their Chicago main office and salesrooms, they will handle a complete line of machinery and exhibitor's supplies at the new branch. R. E. Gumm, formerly one of the traveling salesmen of the company, has been placed in charge.

New Tax Schedule Drawn Up — Exhibitors Protest

Chicago I ily Councils, have been discussing for the past month, was the drawing up of a schedule for a new rate of taxation for motion picture theatres, and the presentation of it to a committee of exhibitors last Tuesday, June 12. The object of the revision and the new schedule planned to be put in force the coming fiscal year is a determination to increase the city revenue from this direction, the committee stated. The schedule presented by the committee is, however, displeasing to what is known as the "small exhibitor," the one having over three hundred and under one thousand seats in his house.

The schedule as drawn up provides for a graduated tax, based on seating capacity and admission prices. The tax rate is fixed at five dollars a year for all houses charging less than twenty cents admission, regardless of seating capacity. It is hoped by the plan to raise the average annual revenue derived from approximately $84,000 to $100,000.

A committee representing the exhibitors, given until June 16 to come forward with a feasible suggestion for the revision, feels that the issue is being railroaded through, and are striving to delay matters until July 1.

Guernsey Bill Still Alive and Being Reconsidered

The joy that was rife among Chicago exhibitors on Tuesday, June 5, when it was announced that the Guernsey censorship bill had been killed in the Lower House at the sessions in Springfield, was suddenly changed to startled surprise, four days later on Saturday, June 9, when word again reached them from the Capital that one of the members of the Lower House had voted to reconsider the action and succeeded in bringing the bill to life again.

Late that day it was voted out of the Lower House and placed before the Senate. On Tuesday of last week it had not yet come up before the Senate. The Chicago Exhibitors' League, however, took no chances, and William Sweeney, national secretary and treasurer of the Chicago League, together with Fred Hartman were delegated to go to Springfield and add their efforts to the fight to have the bill downed in Senate once and for all.

The word that reached Chicago on Tuesday, June 5, had stated that the bill was killed in the Senate. This was found later to have been erroneous, it merely having been voted down in the Lower House. Thus is allowed the chance for its reconsideration again and the bringing of it before the Senate.
THE EASTERN STUDIOS

LAWRENCE SEMON, comedy director for Greater Vitagraph, is organizing a brand new company for the production of Big V comedies and of his old company, the only members retained are Joseph Simberg and Earl Montgomery. He already has engaged several of the best aerohats he can find and his new pictures will, he says, contain thrilling stunts. One of these will be the flight of a bed through the roof of a house onto a set of telegraph wires. For this scene, Mr. Semon has had a special set of wires constructed.

DUE to the exigencies of production, Mrs. Vernon Castle has found it necessary to indulge in a progressive sleeping party of late. Hotel scenes being necessary in the filming of "Sylvia of the Secret Service, the Martinique Hotel, New York, was chosen as a locale, and in order to avoid interference from crowds, the hour of two o'clock in the morning was set for taking the scenes. Mrs. Castle had forty winks while motoring from Englewood to New York about 10 P. M. one day. The nap was resumed at the Martinique after the scenes were shot, and then at 7 A. M. exteriors were taken in Jersey City and Mrs. Castle continued her sleep for two hours in her dressing room.

DISCLAIMING the term "slacker" in the most emphatic manner possible, on announcement that a recruiting station for British and Canadian subjects had been opened at 280 Broadway, New York, Roland Bottomley, the English actor, who has a prominent part in Pathe's serial, "The Neglected Wife," applied on Wednesday, June 6, for enlistment papers. Mr. Bottomley is not seeking a commission. He says that he wants to be of service and it makes no difference of what kind.

ONE of the features in the forthcoming Metro play, "The Slacker," in which Emily Stevens returns to the screen, is a bathing scene. The scene was photographed at Long Beach, and many of the swiftest young women on the New York stage were clothed in bathing suits that will probably set the fashion for like costumes from Atlantic to Pacific.

SIDNEY VAUGHAN, studio manager of the Fairmount Film Corporation, and who also acted in the capacity of art director during the filming of "Hate," the big seven reel feature now ready for release, arrived in New York on Thursday to join the forces of the corporation. Mr. Vaughan, while in New York, will be in constant conference with Mr. Robert Bolling, vice president. Walter R. Stahl, director, and other executives of the corporation, preparatory to designing a score of elaborate sets which will be necessary in the filming of the next feature, which will be a product of the pen of J. Walter Meade, who wrote the scenario for "Hate," the present release.

"DAVE" THOMPSON, the popular floor manager of the Metro Studio, has been appointed first sergeant of the Elks' Military Unit of New Rochelle, N. Y. This unit, which consists of fifty-four men, its ranking officer being first lieutenant, expects to co-operate with the Home Defense League, but places itself at the service of the government in any way in which it may be needed.

AFTER all, Maxine Elliott did not go to Europe. With goodbyes said and waved, apartments at the Ritz closed down and everything, came the report of her return from an unnamed port either in the United States or Canada—and the reason is shrouded in mystery.

Whether official warning of danger, of U-boats or commerce raiders sent her ship back to port is a matter of speculation. The fact remains that the Goldwyn star's trip is off, for the present at least.

IN line with the movement to reduce food consumption to a minimum in view of the war situation, Director William Christy Cabanne, of the Metro Fort Lee Studios, has eliminated all expensive dishes from the menu at the studios. This move has not been made with the idea of effecting a saving in Metro expenditures, but is wholly for the purpose of setting an example to other studios in war-time economy.

Director Cabanne's change in the studio bill of fare has lopped $100 a week from the commissariat expenses of the studios, and this sum is to be devoted weekly to patriotic purposes.

The third Lasalida-Pathe film, with Baby Marie Osborne as star, is to be directed by William Bertram. The story is by Mark E. Jones, entitled "Baby Pulls the String." Jones is a member of the Pathé scenario staff, and Bertram recently completed the filming of "The Neglected Wife." It is announced at the Horsley Studio, where the Baby Marie pictures are made, that Harrish Ingraham, formerly with the Pathé forces, will direct following pictures, it being the intention of General Manager W. A. S. Douglas to alternate with two directors to insure subjects, will be released on schedule, and more variety be given to each production.

The Gertrude Selby-Neill Burns Comedy Company are nearing the completion of their first subject made at the David Horsley Studio under the new company composed of Mr. Horsley and W. A. S. Douglas to alternate with two directors to insure subjects, will be released on schedule, and more variety be given to each production. The Gertrude Selby-Neill Burns Comedy Company are nearing the completion of their first subject made at the David Horsley Studio under the new company composed of Mr. Horsley and W. A. S. Douglas to alternate with two directors to insure subjects, will be released on schedule, and more variety be given to each production.

The first Mary MacLaren Company picture, "A Daughter of the Well-Dressed Poor," from the Henry Warren novel is nearing completion, and all scenes will probably be photographed by the end of the coming week.

Robert A. Turnbull, a cameraman at the Horsley Studio, has been granted leave of absence that he may make a commission from the Mexican government to make pictures of the great Hemp industry in Yucatan. This will be his fourth trip to Mexico on missions of this nature, and he is assured the pictures he makes will be used in the United States to exploit the land of the Southern republic.

Miss Dalton arrived home this week from a vacation spent at Chicago with her parents. While en route to Los Angeles she attended the Oregon Exhibitors League Ball at Portland, and made several personal appearances at the Liberty theatre at Seattle, and the Portola at San Francisco.

Sylvia Bremer, who was injured by being hit by a floating log while in the surf at one of the beaches last week, was forced to undergo two minor operations at a local hospital this week. Miss Bremer had just taken a part opposite Charles Ray in "Sudden Jim" at the time of the accident, and production of this subject is delayed until Miss Bremer recovers sufficiently to take up her work.

One of the big enclosed studio stages at the Ince Culver City plant this week contained an interior church setting which required practically all of the space. The church is one of the type to be found in an early Western town, the interior being of rough hewn lumber and benches of a primitive type. Louise Glaum is to be the star of this subject which is being filmed under the direction of Reginald Barker.

The technical department of the Ince Studio has been busy preparing settings and costumes for the Hart subject which will be taken up immediately upon the arrival of William S. Hart from his thirty-day tour of the United States. Mr. Hart is expected to be in Los Angeles not later than the eleventh, and at that time a new film will be put in production. The story is by G. Gardner Sullivan.

Two of the Lasky producing units this week took up the filming of new subjects. One is under the direction of George Melford, and has Fannie Ward as star, supported by Jack Dean, Harrison Ford, James Cruze, James Mason, James Neill, Jane Wolff, Henry Woodworth, Edith Chapman and Lottie Pickford. The company departed early this week for the Mexican border, where a great many of the exterior scenes will be made.

William C. De Mille will next make a film with Sessue Hayakawa as star. This subject is now in production, and working opposite the Japanese actor is Camille Ankowitz. In the supporting cast are some of the best known Lasky players, including Mabel Van Buren, Walter Long, Tom Forman, Raymond Hatton, Ernest Joy and Margaret Dumont.

Geraldine Farrar and husband, Lou Tellegen were hosts and hostess at a party given at the Hollywood home of the couple in honor of Miss Farrar’s parents who departed the following day for the East. Many of the principals of the Lasky Studio and others well-known in filmland were guests. In the rear of the Farrar residence there is a beautiful pergola and garden, and in this a buffet luncheon and tea was served.

At Universal City, four five-reel productions were put in the filming this week. One of these is titled "Triumph," and like all recent Joseph de Grasse directed films, will have Dorothy Phillips with William Stowell and Lon Chaney in the principal parts. Others cast for important roles are Claire DuBrey and William Gower. This film is from a story written by Samuel H. Adams, and prepared for the screen by Fred Myton, of Universal staff.

Jack Mulhall and Louise Lovely are principal players in a story being filmed by Allen Holubar, which is in five reels and titled "Sirens of the Sea." The story is from one by Grace Helen Bailey, with scenario by Holubar. Many of the scenes require coast locations, and the company spent a week or more in the vicinity of Santa Barbara, where ideal scenery can be found.

Jack Ford, a brother of Francis Ford, who has worked with him as co-director is now at the head of a company at Universal City, and is making a Western drama, "Joan of Cattle Land," with Harry Carey and Molly Malone as the leading players. This Western story of the early frontier days has many of the Universal cowboys taking part. The other five-reel subject commenced this week is "The Face of Prentice Tiller." It has Ruth Clifford as leading woman and Rupert Julian playing the opposite lead.
SEVERAL other subjects of shorter length were commenced this week. Director George Marshall has in the filming a three-reel Western drama, known as "The Ninth Day." Neal Hart plays the featured role in this Western, with Janet Eastman as leading woman. Joe Rickson is heavy in the subject.

The Universal railroad drama company headed by Helen Gibson is now at work on " Sands on the Rail." This is a two-reel subject, and playing opposite Miss Gibson faced grave dangers this week when she made a thrilling scene which required that she ride horseback alongside a speeding train and jump from the saddle to the rear platform.

The two Universal serial companies are progressing with their subjects very successfully. Scenes for the fifth and sixth episode of the serial, "The Gray Ghost," were filmed this week. Priscilla Dean, Eddie Polo, Emory Johnson, Harry Carter are the principals of this serial film, adapted from the Roche story "Loot." Director Jacques Jaccard is now on the second release of "The Quest of Virginia," which has Marie Walcamp and Larry Peyton as leads.

Craig Hutchinson, who was with the Keystone Company as scenario writer for one year, and directed L-Ko comedies. "The Vamp of the Camp," "A Desert Dilemma" and "Her Mistake in Love," which have been produced by Joker Company at Universal City.

Hal Reid has furnished the Christie Film Company with a farce comedy, titled "Crazy by Proxy," which has now been filmed under the direction of Al. E. Christie. Betty Compson, Harry Ham and James Harrison play the leading parts, with Eddie Gibbon appearing as the eccentric comedian in the role of an insane asylum superintendent. The story revolves about the pot of a villainous youth who attempts to have his niece held in the asylum in order that he may secure an inheritance. George French and Ethel Lynne also appear as principals.

At this time Director Christie is making a film, with Margaret Gibson and Harry Ham as leads. The story deals with a mix-up at a hotel when a young married couple and a pair of newlyweds secure rooms adjoining on the same floor. Wife and husband have had a quarrel because dinner was not ready the afternoon the bridge club met. At the hotel wife come to think husband is in an adjoining room with another woman, and husband thinks wife is there with another man. Accidentally the true situation is discovered. Supporting the leads are James Harrison, Ethel Lynne, Eddie Gibbon and George French.

The Francis Ford Company is still working on the film version of the stage play "John Ermine of the Yellowstone." This picture will probably run seven reels and will require several weeks before it is completed. Ford plays the featured lead, with Mae Gaston playing opposite. Others in the cast are Duke Worre, William Carroll, Mark Fenton and others.

A number of scenes, especially those containing Indian warfare require a great number of extra people, the maximum being approximately 1,000.

Universal City this week entertained royalty in the vicinity of Laguna Beach, where the Cardinal Virtue "Loyalty" are being made. Many of the scenes for this release require primitive ones of a wild nature, and the players and Director Jack Pratt believe they have in the Laguna Beach region some exceptional locations for this work. It is expected the company will be away from the studio fully two weeks. While the producing organization is absent from the studio the technical staff is busy in building settings for the next subject of the series.

opportunity for the display of his versatility as a character actor.

THE Yorke-Metro producing company is home from a stay of ten days on a big cattle ranch in Arizona, where Western scenes were made for the coming adaptation from the Jackson Gregory story, "Under Handicap," which will have Harold Lockwood for star. The screen version was prepared by Fred Balshofer and Richard V. Spencer. Anna Little will play lead opposite Lockwood in the subject. Most everyone in the big cast have appeared in Western subjects. This being his first typical Western one for Lockwood in about four years.

Lester Cunco, who is the heavy, appeared in many Selig subjects made in the Arizona territory, and Jim Youngdecker, who takes the part of Lonesome Pete in this subject, was one of the first producers of Western pictures. William Clifford entered motion pictures in the West at an early date, and Fred Balshofer, the director, Miss Little and Richard V. Spencer, the scenario writer, were with one of the first companies to produce Western subjects in California. A trip to Arizona at this time made possible the filming of a number of big scenes during the stay of the company at the ranch, as cowboys staged a genuine annual roundup. The number of cowboys present is exceptionally large, as five of the biggest ranches in the district sent their best riders. Several of the members of the Yorke Company were injured in scenes. Harold Lockwood, the star, and Pat Dowling, the publicity director were forced to carry their hands in slings as the result of the members being burned by a lariot whicth was used to rope a wild horse.

THE report that Dustin Farnum is to leave William Fox became current this week, but at the studio it was learned that Mr. Farnum is beginning work in a new subject to be made under the direction of Richard Stanton. This film will have a story based on the great war of today, and it is said will abound in thrills and unexpected situations. Winifred Kingston is to play lead opposite Mr. Farnum and the remainder of the cast will be announced in a few days.

When Theda Bara arrived in Los Angeles it was in readiness for the filming of the first interior scenes of "Cleopatra," and the company was immediately rehearsed for the making of these. Miss Bara, it is said, has been overwhelmed with invitations to attend a number of patriotic and charitable affairs, but owing to the short stay she anticipates making in Los Angeles, and the number of subjects she will work in while here, it has been found impossible for her to accept any of the many kind invitations. A. L. Selig, Miss Bara's personal representative, is in Los Angeles tending to details of the production together with her director, J. Gordon Edwards.

PADDY MAGUIRE, comedian for the Fox Company, slipped away from the studio Tuesday noon while wearing makeup, and in company with Patricia Hanna, secured a marriage license, and were wedded at the Alhambra Apartments, where a minister waited them. Paddy, with his baggy cotton trousers and down at the heel shoes, was said to have made a very dilapidated looking groom. Miss Hanna has appeared in a number of William Fox subjects made at the Western Studio. The Tom Mix-Fox Film Company took up the making of a new comedy in the location of Silver Lake. The cast for this besides Mix, who will co-direct, will include Victoria Forde, who returned to play opposite Mix after a vacation of two months. Others supporting the leads are: Billy Mason, Hart Crissman, Sid Jordan, Violet Eddy and Eagle Eye, the Indian.

The Fox Company, headed by George Walsh and directed by Paul Powell, made an ocean trip to and from San Francisco this week for the South American story written by Randolf Lewis. Doris Pawn is playing the feminine lead, and other leading players are: Ralph Lewis, Bert Weisner and Clyde Hopkins.

Director R. A. Walsh is shortly to begin a new production, with Miriam Cooper as star, and the Franklin Brothers are still working on their child subject, "Treasure Island."

In addition to the three Fox Film Comedy Companies, directed by Hank Mann, Charles Parrott and Tom Mix, the Sunshine Comedies, supervised by Henry Lehrman, now have three producing units at work. Lehrman is directing Billie Ritchie and Mildred Lee; David Kirkland has Dot Parley and Ernie Shields, and Jay Howe and Jack White, are making the finishing scenes for another comedy which has Gertrude Selby as lead.

Announcement will shortly be made concerning the reorganization of the Fox dramatic scenario department which is now composed of Agnes Parsons as editor, Bernard McConville and Chester Clapp. Other writers, formerly affiliated with the department, have severed their connection with the Fox Company.

STUDIO MANAGER J. R. CRONE, of the American Company, at Santa Barbara, was in Los Angeles this week engaging players for coming productions, and also announced the making of a contract with Lloyd Ingraham, who will succeed James Kirkwood as director of future Mary Miles Minter subjects. Mr. Kirkwood had just completed the tenth subject, "Melissa of the Hills," a mountain picture with exteriors made in the Santa Cruz Mountains. When this is completely edited, Mr. Ingraham will first film "Charity Castle," and in this Allen Forrest will play the lead opposite Miss Minter.

The Gail Kane American Company, under the direction of Henry King, is home from a sea trip to San Francisco, during which they made scenes for "The Unafraid." Lou Cody has been specially engaged to play opposite Miss Kane in this subject.

Rollin S. Sturgeon is in charge of the Juliette Day, first American subject, the title of which is "Betty and the Buccaneer." Joseph King is playing opposite Miss Day. T. J. and T. L. Dazey, authors of the stage play, "In Old Kentucky," and a number of others as well as "The Sign of the Rose," "Manhattan Madness," "Wolf Lowry," and other film plays, have been engaged to write exclusively for the American Company.

The second William Russell series of six five-reel subjects has been completed, and plans have been made for another series of like number. Edward Soman will continue as director, and Francesa Billington will play opposite Mr. Russell in the coming six. The first of the series is written by Harvy Gates, and as yet is unnamed. This series will be made up of a variety of stories, each differing widely from the other, and the six will consist of dramas, melodramas, comedy drama and comedy.

The making of the last scenes for the Signal-Mutual serial, "The Railroad Raiders," brought considerable excitement to the producing plant. A fire scene was staged, and the dry setting occupying a portion of the stage, burned more speedily than the technical staff had anticipated, and before they scarcely realized it, the flames had reached the diffusing system above and was spreading to all portions of the big stage. Bits of burning cloth were carried to a nearby building, and only the steady action of the players and their effective use of studio fire equipment prevented a serious loss.

PRODUCER McGOWAN has made an enviable record during the eighteen months the Signal Company has been producing, including the last of the Railroad Raiders, the total of film of the finished quality made up to date is 126 reels. This makes an average of one and a half reels of finished negative for each week since the first scenes were made. In the eighteen months, three railroad serials have been filmed, and a number of other subjects including four or five five-reel pictures have been filmed.

Three elaborate settings are nearing completion for use in Signal-Helen Holmes subjects. Two of these consist of five-room office suites, so arranged that views may be taken showing the entire of the five rooms at one time. They will be equipped with the finest office furniture obtainable. The third set is one of the interior of a millionnaire's mansion. This will show four rooms on the ground floor with an opening into a court yard.

The Selig Company has returned to Los Angeles Studio for the making of interiors for "The City of Purple Dreams," after working in Chicago, where the exteriors for many of the scenes were made. This subject is being directed by Colin Campbell, and has Tom Santchi and Bessie Eytou.

During the producing units absence from the studio, sets had been made for this production and the work of filming it will go on without any delay.

Director Al Green is taking up a new subject, and cast for this will be made within a day or two. It is the general belief that only subjects of five reels or more will be made by Director Al Green, his most recent one being "The Lad and the Lion," which has been the cause of the director receiving a great many compliments.

Miss Geraldine Crossman, who handles publicity at the Selig Studio, has been granted a month's vacation, and is spending it at her former home at Seattle, Wash.

THE "Hearts of Flame," Vitagraph Serial Company, was introduced this week to strenuous production work, as every member was required to put in extra time in order to secure necessary night effects. This story is being made by Wm. Duncan, who is also playing lead, and he was successful in securing fifteen hundred feet in twenty-four hours.

Another Vitagraph Company which has Mary Anderson as star, and Wm. Wolbert as director, broke records one day by working on three different subjects. The first was the making of scenes for "The Girl Sheriff." Later some settings were shot for "The Pretenders," and later still the company worked on scenes for a new Vitagraph feature, title of which has not as yet been announced. Alfred Vosburg will take the part opposite Miss Anderson in the subject now being made.

The first June bride of the Los Angeles film colony is Gloria Payton, Balboa actress, who on June 2 was married to Neil C. Hardin by Episcopal Rector Baker P. Lee. The couple will reside in Long Beach.
CONSCRIPTION Day took many of the leading men and juveniles from local studios to the polls, June 5 being election day in Los Angeles and registration was conducted in connection. Charles Spencer Chaplin got through the registration questions, and was leaving the polling place before the officers in charge realized he was the wrong person, which he stated his age at twenty-seven. Crane Wilbur, Neil Burns, Horace Davey, and Allen Davey represented the David Horsley Studio.

Charles Ray, Charles Gunn, Roy Neill, Victor Schertzinger, Lambert Hillyer, Frank Borzage, production, respectively are among those who carry registration cards to the Ince Culver City Studios.

Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran, Alfred Allen, Leo Pearson, Beulah Beaudine, E. J. Clavson, Emory Johnson, Beverly Griffith, Neal Hart, Director Allen Holubar, and many others from Universal City helped swell the list of conscription candidates.

From the Fox Studio, George Walsh, Hank Mann, A. B. Berndt, R. A. Walsh, Bernard McNeville, C. M., and S. A. Franklin, J. J. Glavey, and a number of others mentioned answered the call of the nation.

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

“On Trial”
(ESSANAY—First National Exhibitors’ Circuit—Seven Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

The First National Exhibitors’ Circuit made a wise choice in selecting Essanay’s production of the Cohan & Harris play “On Trial” as its initial picture. As a play it was constructed along lines borrowed from the screen by its author, Eimer Reizenstein, and so it was only natural that, transferred to its native element, it should prove highly successful in an entertaining sense. The base of the action is the court-room, a familiar locale to patrons of the silent drama to be sure, but the neat construction of the plot with particular respect to the manner in which the author has maintained an extraordinary degree of suspense until the very last, is something which is seldom seen on the screens of picture theatres. Bared to the bone the material in “On Trial” is composed of certain trivialities often employed by the scenario writer of the studio, but plot treatment and not plot vitals made the play and have again made the picture.

The suspense is instituted through the practice of keeping the spectator totally in the dark at the very outset and only enlightening him on the details of the murder and its causes hit by hit as supplied by the testimony of the various witnesses as they take the stand. The evidence that sends the greatest thrill coursing down the spine is that supplied by Mrs. Strickland when she makes public her past in order to pardon her husband’s deed. Little Doris’ story is too, revealing strong evidence that sends the greatest thrill coursing down the spine of the spectator when it is made public. Little Doris’ story is that supplied by Mrs. Strickland when she makes public her past in order to pardon her husband’s deed. Little Doris’ story is that supplied by Mrs. Strickland when she makes public her past in order to pardon her husband’s deed.

The major portion of the action in “On Trial” is told on the witness stand and is never broken. Perhaps such a repetition of a common occurrence should have no place in a review of a picture so completely powerful as “On Trial” and certainly few if any of a Sunday afternoon Rialto audience noticed it.

James Young, who directed, has made a thorough job of it. Clearly told, judiciously subtitled and with good continuity there seems to be no fault to find with his work in this capacity. He has introduced many valuable bits of comedy deriving it from the routine attendant on the trial, which comes as a welcome relief to the many moments of melodramatic intensity. The photography is beyond criticism.

Of the cast it is difficult to single out any one member over his fellow players. Sidney Ainsworth in his portrayal of Strickland gives an admirably realistic performance. His wife, Lily Morton (Florence Reed) is fond of pleasure, entertainment, show. But when her father and mother, live with them, Morton’s life is happier and he is able to enjoy the simplicity of life. Mrs. Morton dislikes the idea but finally succumbs. She meets a wealthy friend, Mr. Ince. But when she presents of Lily Morton, the wife who still loves her mother, to obtain finery and jewels as “some others do?” There was no evil intent. The step was taken to satisfy a woman’s vanity.

It can be said that Florence Reed has never been seen either behind the footlights or before the camera in a more entrancing role that being Miss Reed’s quality of dramatic art; its story human, its appeal, one that will strike all without injuring one. Never has a cast been assembled for the presentation of any one photoplay whose individual members have worked to better advantage and with less friction than did the cast of “Today.” There are no “extras.” There is no “acting.” Every move is made with the undisguised grace of naturalness. What is more natural than that Lily Morton should have succumbed to the invitation of her less scrupulous girl friend, to obtain finery and jewels as “some others do?” There was no evil intent. The step was taken to satisfy a woman’s vanity.

"The Neglected Wife" (Balboa-Pathe—Eighth Episode) REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

The breach between Kennedy and Norwood widens in this number as heated words pass between them concerning Margaret Warneke. Either prominent vein of suspense is introduced when Kennedy accuses Norwood of nominating his party to run for Congressman. The key to his past is held by Norwood and the animosity of Doyle give promise of many more complications to follow. There are some good mob scenes in "A Relentless Fate" when Doyle and his gang break up Kennedy's campaign meeting.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Kennedy (Roland Hotlomley) and Norwood (Philo McCullough) become rivals for the graces of Margaret (Ruth Roland). Kennedy, speaking at his first campaign meeting, is winning the applause of the public when the gang, headed by Doyle (Neil Mac- din) employed by the rival candidate, Bull Brady, breaks up the assembly. A general free-for-all ensues. Kennedy is stunned and carried away by the gang, but they leave him by the roadside when pursued by Norwood and Margaret. Norwood realizes where the girl's affections lie when he sees her tenderly caring for Kennedy's injuries.

"Periwinkle" (Mutual-American—Five Reels) REVIEWED BY WILLIAM J. McGAHAN

Here is Mary Miles Minter in one of the best of her screen productions. Here is Mary of the M's in a picture where she is garbed almost throughout their reels of action in nothing more than olivkins and a middy blouse but still, without exception, one of the usual frills, turbelows and chapeaux to lend to the charm she is prettier and more delightful than ever before. No title or story in the many of her past screen plays ever fit her more aptly than does "Periwinkle." It is a story of the seaside, full of emotion, sustained and balanced interest, and as clean as a new minted gold piece. Never in any other picture previous has the full worth of the charming Miss Minter's childish face been brought to the fore as here. Never has she irradiated such an aura of clean, girlish innocence as here. The story opens before, has the accompaniment of the sea in most of its scenes, breaking surf and long stretches of sand and dunes. The action centralizes around a life-saving station and the strong hearts and hands of the men who man it.

Miss Minter is in the role of a waif of the sea. Grown up to girlhood after being cast ashore from a wreck, she is longing for the attention and companionship of father and mother, blessings which she never had. The story itself is really slight for the number of reels allotted it. Foreign elements are introduced for the sake of filling up the gaps. The servant story which is given so much prominence is more than likely to miss fire without audience raised on a diet of the average comedy of the day, while the husband's affair with the adventuress and the crooked mill owners seems to lie without the pale of the main plot thread.

Madame Blache's direction is average. Toward the end there is an extensive bit of allegory introduced when the mother becomes boarder and sees her husband a way of living pictured in a dream. The allegory is not exactly in tune with reality but it has some good moments and is blended excellently with the action proper. The double exposure work secured in these scenes is very good.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Mrs. Manning (Catherine Calvert) is rapt up in a medical career and Manning (Frank Mills), her husband, is equally absorbed in his business. Louise (Kittens Reichert) is neglected so much and left to the care of une feme servants that she comes unhappy. Mr. and Mrs. Manning drift apart. When finally Louise runs away with a little negro and is thought drowned, Manning deserts his wife. She suffers a nervous breakdown and it is only when the child is found and restored to her that she recovers. After this husband and wife are reconciled and both determine to pay more attention to Louise in the future.

"Madecap Madge" (Triangle-Ince—Five Reels) REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"MADCAP MADGE," a comedy by R. Cecil Smith, offers Olive Thomas in her first Ince picture. Miss Thomas makes her debut with a fetching smile, a charming personality and a carefree manner, all of which, combined with her beauty, make the picture captivating in letters quite too large to fit this page. To the tune of boarding school scenes, in which the inevitable pajama feast is prominent, with a lot of pretty summer hotel stuff, romance and an elopement and comedy splenetic "Madcap Madge" will beyond a doubt please even those to whom the names of Olive Thomas and Ziegfeld's Midnight Frolic are alien or alien enemies. For comparison, "MADCAP MADGE" can be likened in its effect to Billie Burke's first picture "Peggy" and there is nothing odious about the comparison.

The picture is most all comedy. There is enough suspense in it to link the chain of light events together and make them interesting, which remark, though it may seem entirely trite, can not be entirely applied to a good many five reel comedies. The plot is decorated with the most withering business, which loses all its effectiveness in the telling. Mistaken identities are rampant but they never confuse. Much fun is derived from the character of Mrs. Flower who, being a climber, must of course desire a title for one of her daughters or both. Aggie Herring handles her role so excellently in this role while Gertrude Claire and the boarding school principal is largely more prominent and well to the part. The rest of the cast including Charles Gunn as the hero handles itself well while Raymond West has given the story an excellent setting.
THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Jimmie Hallet (Earle Williams), millionaire clubman, has suddenly thrust upon him out of the darkness of the night a blackjack. Recovering consciousness he finds on the bed with him an old man, murdered.

Jimmie has faith in the girl, in spite of everything seeming to be against the probability of her being on the square with him. That he should take her side against the persecution of the real Earl completes the cast.

"The Immigrant"
(Mutual-Chaplin—Two Parts)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THE IMMIGRANT has a title that seemed pregnant with possibilities for some more Chaplin laugh spasms, is a Chaplin that may not be said to be up to the Chaplin standard. While it is not a "flivver" in any respect, and will no doubt draw in the regular and multitudinous host to whom Chaplin is their best known prescription for a real laugh fest, the usual sustained and deft comedy punch is lacking.

Every once in a while there flares up in "The Immigrant" a genuine bit of business that brings its spontaneous outburst of risibility. Most of these flares are near the finish, where the best part of the picture shows up in. In the first reel, with its steertage scene aboard an immigrant-laden liner, it seems as though there has been too much attention paid to the plot, of the sort it is: a seeing earnest attempt to bring emotional action into play where go-as-you-please, whirlwind comedy stunts of the former Chaplin brand is expected.

The second part brings a restaurant scene and Eric Campbell to the aid of Chaplin, and things begin to "warm up." But here there are also lapses. However, it is a Chaplin picture to the exhibitors, and that will go a great way.

"The Maelstrom"
(Vitagraph—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

VITAGRAPHS have produced here a mystery play of almost too much mystery, yet well directed and clear in all important details. Old favorites make the leading roles particularly enjoyable, with Earle Williams as the gentleman investigator, Dorothy Kelly as the girl consort of crooks, and Julia Swayne Gordon as Gwennie Lynne, the fence.

From the start-off, when the girl places in the hands of Jimmie Hallet a package addressed to an unknown house, where Jimmy immediately on arrival is black-jacked and a murdered old man found with him, the interest is tense.

Jimmie has faith in the girl, in spite of everything seeming to be against the probability of her being on the square with him. That he should take her side against the persecution of the real Earl is a necessary trait with Jimmie.

As the member of a gang of crooks headed by Ling (Denton Gray) and Dago Sam (Bernard Deigel) were the Red Gorilla (Gonlon Gray) and Dago Sam (Bernard Deigel). They were the detectives, and many adventures are also the subject of "The Maelstrom," his plots.

Miss Gordon as the old woman who guards the crooks' retreat, has a character role that completely covers her usual personality, and we do not see how she could possibly have acquihed better.

The photography and staging is even above usual Vitagraph standard. "The Maelstrom" can be accepted as a very high grade of picture in its class—the semi-sensational crook story, a good running mate for its famous predecessor Arsene Lupin.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Three bachelor friends, David, Dick and Jerry (Jack Conway, Dick La Reno, and George Webb) each adopt a Belgian orphan. David draws a girl in the lottery of selection, and the "help" consists of a goat and pet chicken. David almost decides to exchange his charge for a less cumbersome one, but his pleading look saves the day and she is taken to his elegant home, where she establishes herself firmly in his heart.

Rene (Ella Hall), the little orphan, resents the attempt of Mrs. Billy Hardwick (Gretchen Lederer), grass widow, to become her foster parent. So she goes out to market and brings home a more suitable candidate for David's wife in Emmeline Warren (Gertrude Aster). But alas! Jerry is an old flame of Emmeline's, and David is still more alone than falling in love with Emmeline and having to give her up. The matter is at last solved, when Rene has returned from boarding school, by her selecting herself for the pleasant duty of providing a home for her ideal man.

"The Golden Lotus"
(Bluebird—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THIS is the second foreign-made picture featuring Regina Badet and ranks far above its predecessor in every department. Entirely free from the suggestive it presents a skilfully compiled melodrama centering about a woman who aims to lift herself above the evil environment in which she has lived for the greater part of her life. It is not of reaching the point at all to say of "The Golden Lotus" that it compares more than favorably with anything in the kindred pictures produced on this side of the ocean. Suspense and excitement are aroused at every turn taken by the story. The power of the situation created by the marriage of Leah and the Marquis is steadily retained until the very finish. And David is still more alone than ever, as have been others. The happy ending is something which extremities does not possess.

Louis Mercanton has scored a success in the direction of the picture. The continuity is easy-running, compact to the last degree, the settings are satisfyingly realistic, the characters are to say the least, beautiful in a number of instances. Furthermore, Mr. Mercanton has not burdened his footage with closeups. On second thought, we do not recall the insertion of a single one in all the five reels. His action in general is centered on the fore-
MOTION PICTURE NEWS

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Jeff Hillington (Douglas Fairbanks), the young man with ancient ideas of the West, is sent to an Arizona town by his father (Walter Bytell) on business. The townsfolk, in order to appease him, arrange a regular Wild West show for his reception and give him the time of his life, venting his glories in what he believes to be the real West. And it does turn out to be more than the townsfolk expected. Steve (Sam de Graasse) and Pedro (Charles Stevens), who have the principal roles in the mock holdup, turn their part of the act into the real thing and kidnap Hillington. The villagers, caught unaware, are helpless until Jeff, with his theoretical tactics put into practice, defeats the villains and wins the day in the cause of virtue.

Joseph Singleton, Calvin Carter, Forest Seabury, J. W. Jones and Tom Wilson appear to good advantage in prominent parts.

“A Rough House” (Paramount-Arckuxle Comedy—Two Reels) REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

In the third of the new “Fatty” releases we have Al St John and Bud Keaton again supporting the star, and plenty of action assured. There is a commendable securing of real humor in this production aside from mere slapstick. Fatty’s calm demeanor in the face of threatened configuration as was funny as this part of the action would have been commonplace had it been the usual style of “comedy.” In the early stages of getting excited, it is the audience, which sits in anxious suspense to see if Fatty proposes to let the house burn down before he is stirred to action. This is an innovation in slapstick comedy that marks a very wide difference between a well directed production getting real imaginative in their plots, the intelligent audiences can appreciate, and the average wild excitement which it has only.

Fatty’s slicing the potatoes in the electric fan is clearly the “piece de resistance” of the offering, in our opinion. Fatty as a kitchen mechanic gets many a laugh. In fact, the entire sequence is ingenious, and its presentation almost suggests that we are in the presence of a genius. Fatty should get the money he gets, but he may be said to fairly earn it as being in a peculiar class by itself of appealing to intelligent audiences beyond the mere “action” of the slapstick.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

A Rough House” not only should “get the money,” but may be said to fairly earn it as being in a peculiar class by itself of appealing to intelligent audiences beyond the mere “action” of the slapstick.

“Land of Long Shadows” (Essanay—Five Reels) REVIEWED BY WILLIAM J. McGRAITH

This is the first Essanay’s series of Westerns, and it should start them off with a bang. It is a virile, red-blooded story of the Northwest, and it carries all the tang of a Robert Service poem on this part of the country and its people. The theme is an atavistic one of love and self-preservation, with a plot layout that is not deep, baffles all anticipation as to the finish. Jack Gardner, who as well as many others, were of the opinion that the idea of a civilization involved a lot of shots, drawing room tete-a-tete, and nothing wilder than a yacht, to pursue his vocation of a stage and screen hero, is bound to be a surprise to everybody in this pictured story, where he is nothing more than a mackinaw-garbed and moose-skin-trapper working out his destiny of love and life in the snow-covered and wolf-infested expanses of the Canadian Northwest.

Long vistas of wild, snow-covered country, mining camp scenes, forests primeval and gun play are perennially favored and delighted in by the motion picture votary, and here in this picture there are heaps of it. The settings are letter perfect, seeming to have been laid out with painful care as to their features. The supporting cast of principals is a small one, but exceeded,
Ruth King makes her performance opposite Mr. Gardner stand out nicely to support the whole. Joe Mauchin (Jack Gardner), fur clad and on a trapping expedition, first meets Jean Verrette (Ruth King) when he is performing a sly courtship. Then comes an attempt by one of the drunken miners to force his attentions upon Jean in her father's barroom. Joe intercedes and is forced to shoot, and shoot to kill, to save himself.

Constable McKenzie of the Northwest Mounted hears the gun play and comes on the run. Jean rushes Joe out a secret door in the barroom and flees through the wilds from the hand of the law, taking the stolen jewel with her. They go into the deepest and wildest part of the timber country of the Northwest. They are married and have almost a year of happiness, when fate brings Constable McKenzie face to face one day with Joe in the forest. Joe gets the “drop” on the policeman and escapes to his cabin. He tells Jean, who, expecting a visit from the stork, is making baby clothes. She sees the danger threatening. The constable makes his plans to notice her at length from the scene, they match weapons and a bloody hand-to-hand encounter ensues.

During a lull in the fight Joe runs out of the cabin to see how Jean is faring. The constable, determined to get his man, follows and is set upon and killed by a pack of wolves.

"The Cigarette Girl"

(Astra-Palhe — Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"The Cigarette Girl," Gladys Hulette's first Astra Picture, is a fast melodrama, which, however, gives this popular little actress ample opportunity to display her winning personality to a degree quite sufficient to satisfy her followers. The manner in which she, as the cigarette girl of a cabaret show, is led into a marriage for the sake of a wealthy man away from the scene, they match weapons and a bloody hand-to-hand encounter ensues.

The picture has been ideally produced under the direction of William Parke, who did such good work with Miss Hulette in the Thanhouser release, "The Shine Girl." The action is concise, rapid and full of intense moments, while the whole is laid in settings of unusual realism. The cabinet stuff is excellent, and affords a lively start to the story. The remaining settings are most appropriate.

Opposite Miss Hulette in the role of Meredith, the juvenile millionaire, is William Parke, Jr., who though somewhat too young for the part in appearance, makes up for this want in his expert cast is without exception capable of handling every situation. "Patriot," works in another heavy role here, and the supporting cast is without exception capable of handling every situation that presents itself.

As a melodrama, "The Cigarette Girl" appears to be an excellent bet.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

In order to save the funds of Meredith (William Parke, Jr.) from blackmailer, his lawyer arranges a marriage for him with the cigarette girl (Gladys Hulette) of a cabaret. She concedes only with the permission of Trot, a dancer, whom she loves. With Meredith's money under the girl's name, the blackmailers (Warner Oland and Florence Hamilton) are ultimately defeated, mainly because they fail to notice the scheme. When Trot discovers that Trot is by no means the gentleman she supposed him to be, her marriage becomes one in love as well as in name.

"The Dazzling Miss Davison"

Instead of reforming he gets so jealous of his brother Max that he finally attempts to murder him, and in doing so brings on himself a heart attack that is fatal. Then true love comes to Coralie.

"The Star Spangled Banner"

(KE-E-B-E-Edison—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY JOSEPH L. KELLEY

"The Star Spangled Banner," an adaptation by Sumner Williams from the story by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, is a light drama with the American flag to hold the attention. It is in three reels. Its action never rises to dramatic heights and it seems apparent that this offering was screened for the one purpose of appealing to our patriotism. It will be received in that spirit, not as a dramatic offering. There is neither strength in its characters or action. The director, R. H. Griffith, handled what material the story offered, capably. Nellie Grant, Herbert Evans and Paul Kelly presented the outstanding roles.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Evelyn Shelby (Nellie Grant), an American widow living in England, marries Colonel Barron (Herbert Evans), an officer in the U. S. M. C. Her young son Roger Shelby (Paul Kelly) dislikes all things American, choosing to call himself an Englishman. The Colonel goes to America after the marriage taking his wife and step-son with him. He is placed in command of a Marine Barracks. Roger, visiting the barracks, refuses to salute the flag as "Retreat." Later on while on a hunting trip he is injured and fails to return home. The Colonel calls for volunteers to search for his step-son. The entire company of Marines respond. Roger is found and rescued. Thereafter he has the greatest respect for Uncle Sam's men and the Flag and expresses his desire to fight for it.

"The Heir of the Ages"

(Pallas-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

ONE reel of prologue and four reels of good western melodrama combine in this entertainment an unusual degree of character. The idea is to show how the love of two brothers is similar, the stronger protecting the weaker, whether in prehistoric stone age or present day frontier life.

The cave-man stuff is good, helped greatly by titles which make clear its purpose. Also, which distinctly shows the purpose. The character development of the poor little wali who can neither read nor write, and the arrival of the clashy brother from the East, who seems to have the inside track on the little girl's love. But in another of the prehistoric time, the girl does appreciate the love of the stronger man, and does not fall a victim to the frivolous insincerity of the weakening, and so we have a good story with a good moral and the sort of play that all audiences like and see too little of nowadays.

Adelie Harrington as "The Duchess," girl of the dance hall, adds an important touch to the building up of atmosphere. Nina Byron as the "girl" is pretty and has a most expressive face. House Peters and Eugene Pallette play with their usual capability in roles well cast for their talents.

We regard this as a far better than average offering from Paramount.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

When the world was young, two cave men, brothers, lived together. The woman, taken by the man who preferred the weaker brother, and the stronger one sacrificed his life to save the weakening from the flood. Then the girl realized, and followed the hero to his death.

Now in the little town of Last Chance, Hugh Payne (House Peters) is the top manager of the mining interests that support the town. He falls in love with Abby Hope (Nina Byron); but his younger and dissipated brother Larry (Eugene Pallette) comes on, and chooses Abby also. He tells Payne Abby loves him, and Payne believes it until Abby, even in the face of belated Payne untrue, tells Larry she does not love him—when Larry's confidence forces him to set matters right.

"The Broadway Sport"

(FOX—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

STUART HOLMES certainly develops a new character in this play, the chief complaint against which is that it hardly lives up to its name. We first see him as a near-sighted, blurry vision bookkeeper with another disease and an eye comedy is introduced in the use of a vacuum cleaner to recover the floor spilled from the cracks in the floor, this brand being sold for restaurant use.

A little by-play between a very homely old maid stenographer and her "hero" leads to the real start of the plot when a couple of crooks try to blackmail her. There is no Hezekiah's note. Hezekiah locks them into the safe and then, overcome by the sight of money scattered on the floor he picks up a big roll and starts for the big city. Here is where the disappointment to the audience comes. For Hezekiah's experience in the big city is not, as the title of the story would indicate, a burning up of the town, but he meets there a crooked lawyer and becomes part of a plan to hoodwink a rich childless old man by posing as a lost relative. This is mildly funny, not greatly exciting, and when after inheriting the big fortune he goes back home and "wakes up" to find it all a dream, the audience is not in our opinion likely to enthuse greatly over the plot that has been laid bare to them.

We enjoyed Mr. Holmes' character work. Of the rest of the cast, there was no role of sufficient importance to be singled out for comment.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Hezekiah Dill (Stuart Holmes) has a grindy job in old Hector Sweet's (Dan Mason) flour mill. He loves Sadie Sweet (Wanda Petit) the boss' daughter, and is loved by Violet Gaffney (Mabel Rotter) an old maid stenographer. Working late one night, Hezekiah finds two crooks at work on the safe, and shuts them in. On the floor is a bank roll. Hezekiah takes this and going to New York, becomes party to a plot to pose as phony relative of a rich man there. Then he returns home, has an exciting time interrupting a wedding, and—wakes to reality. The safe is opened, Sadie proclaims him a hero, the burglars are captured.

"The Secret of the Night"

(Gaumont-Mutual—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY F. G. SPENCER

This is the fifth stirring chapter of Ultus, and there are more thrills crowded into the three reels than in any which have gone before, and each of the preceding chapters has been pretty full of exciting episodes.

While hiding from his pursuers, whom he has again evaded, Ultus comes across a haunted house at Milthorne, and being disguised as a club-footed, harmless old man he learns enough to make him curious about the so-called haunted house.

He therefore assumes another disguise and goes to Milthorne. Crome entersSir Miles Fleet, the owner of the haunted house. After a discussion on ghosts and like subjects he disagrees all belief in them, and bets Sir Miles £50 that he dare spend a night in the house. The bet is taken, and the caretaker is warned to make things so hideous as to dissuade any further such attempt. Ultus, however, having gained his points, presents himself at the haunted house, with the result that when morning breaks the caretaker and his wife have flown to London with a young girl they had imprisoned there.

Sir Miles, as the child's guardian, was anxious for her death, as he would benefit to the tune of £50,000, and she was being gradually starved to death.

"The Divorce Game"
(World Film—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

An adaptation of the play of Leo Ditrichstein's, entitled "Mlle. Pif," "The Divorce Game" is a domestic comedy of manifold complications, a good many of which smack of something that is not American, and which, because of their approach on the risque, are generally described as continental in character. No doubt whatever brilliance shed by "Mlle. Pif" as an offering on the speaking stage, was caused, for the most part, by its lines. One often gets a touch of subtlety in the spoken subtitles which are borrowed from them, in all probability.

For the rest "The Divorce Game" consists of one misunderstanding after another, mounting finally to serious proportions, but gently smoothed over by the confession of a single character. The spectator has just cause to be amused in the early scenes of the picture, but as the action progresses and nothing further is introduced besides more complications of a similar sort, it becomes a rather tedious affair.

Alice Brady, featured, finds her natural forte as a light comedy actress. In the role of Florence she comes to stand for general excellence recently, while the direction of Travers Vale is most satisfactory.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Through extravagant living Viscount de Sallure (John Bowers) and his wife, Florence (Alice Brady), are heavily in debt. At the suggestion of Mendoza (Jack Drumier), who holds most of their notes, they agree to divorce themselves for a certain period, in which to allow Florence to obtain complete control of her fortune. Complications arise, Florence believes the Viscount really in love with a dancer, Pif (Marie Larivare), he believes Florence in love with Jean le Beau (Arthur Ashley), while until the last gasp both Mrs. Safford (Kate Lester), Florence's mother and the Duke de Sallure (Joseph Herbert), believe their children are fooling. A duel between the Viscount and le Beau results, and is only prevented from reaching serious proportions by the confession of Mendoza, who alone holds the key to the happiness of the de Sallures.

"The Haunted Pajamas"
(REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY)

THE kind of humor that "screens," we are sure audiences will enthusiastically receive—we could almost say "cheer" is "The Haunted Pajamas." Francis Perry Elliott made a lucky strike when he thought of this bell-balanced mixture of drama, comedy and fantasy. The idea of a pair of pink pajamas turning their wearers successively into a fierce "Chink," a beautiful girl, and a be whiskered father of this same girl who looks so much like a crook the victim is jilted on the spot, is something we have not met before. We have seen fairy transformations where heroes and villains were created for the dramatic effect it might give the story, but such well conceived surprise combinations producing consequences so exceedingly funny, yet not a bit far fetched once you assume the magic, deserve high praise.

Harold Lockwood always appears to best advantage in society clothes, regardless of the fact that he has been cast as a rough diamond in almost all his more recent plays, and the predicaments he is placed in by the queer effect of the pajamas are dramatic as well as comic, in the accepted sense of both these words.

We predict great success for this new Lockwood play. It has excellent possibilities from a publicity angle, if the "pink pajamas" are played up with their strange "haunt" and a lot of mystery.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Richard Hudson (Harold Lockwood) receives from a friend in China a pair of haunted pajamas. He wears them and appears to his man-servant, Jenkins (Harry de Roy), as a fierce Chinaman. The wearer of course does not know that he appears as an alias. Jenkins thinks he has drunk too much. The next night Francis Billings (Paul Willis) is sent to Hudson by his brother Jack (Ed Sedgwick), a close chum of Hudson, but before Hudson sees him has donned the pajamas so that he appears to Hudson as Jack's sweetheart, Frances Kirkland (Carmel Myers), Francis, as Frances, gives Hudson a series of shocks, but he agrees to meet "her" the next morning. Not recognizing the man, "Francis," complications ensue. Meantime Jack becomes a victim of the pajamas and is locked up as a burglar. His own father gives him a black eye for presuming to "impersonate" his son. Not until Colonel Kirkland (William De Vattel), which is the alias the pajamas gave Jack, returns from China and ismobbed as the "burglar" before he can explain, does the mystery clear itself, and though the "magic" is never understood all ends happily.

"Who's Your Neighbor?"
(Master Drama Features—Seven Reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THE thorough enjoyment of the invited guests at the Broadway theatre on the premiere of this picture is not to be doubted. It was possible that one of those dreary sex lessons was to be pounded in with unremitting tenacity, and to be roused and entertained in the manner Willard Mack and S. Rankin Drew entertained with this picture was just cause for the long and hearty applause that greeted the final curtain. This, too, following a thirty-five-minute tedious wait, which has become noticeably customary at some trade showings, was doubly significant. For no audience can stand facing a blank wall for half an hour and feel kindly disposed toward what is to follow.

Willard Mack gave the stage and screen "Kick-In," and now he has given us another real masterpiece. Fairness in criticism of "Who's Your Neighbor" requires us to say Mr. Mack has not approached the skill shown here in any of his previous work we have happened to view in the program releases.

"Who's Your Neighbor" offers the most powerful argument we have seen in pictures this year, but offers it as genuine entertainment. And it entertains in spite of the fact that an allegorical prelude slaps you in the face with the fact that this is a picture with a purpose. Not one improbable incident is introduced into the plot that we could see, and we would select this picture, from all propagandistic pictures we have ever seen, as ideal to go before the courts, in case of censorship interference, as an illustration of proper demand for "free speech" through the screen. It is bold, clear, tremendous in the force of its convincing showing that to drive the scarlet woman from a restricted district into the hotels and apartment houses of a city is a worse crime than it seeks to cure.

The cast is exceptional. We have never seen a presentation that pleased us more for its complete harmony of all the characters. "Hattie" exactly fits the woman, who is a she-devil, but might be taken for an angel by the "innocent bystander."

"Who's Your Neighbor" will make a vast impression in the big cities. The manager of the neighborhood theatre will want to use plenty of advance publicity warning any supersensitive patrons of the exact character of the play before attempting to present it. Reformers who disagree with the picture may get violent. But we will say it is not "suggestive" in the slightest degree. It is unvarnished truth. The only complaint we can conceive of is due to the title, not because it does not sufficiently misrepresent the case and interest of the underworld.

The "whole show," of course, is Miss Dana, whose coy demureness in this character is most attractive, while the "little slave" has stowed away on board. Arrived in Boston he hides her in a trunk. An old maid stenographer overthrows her....

This chapter is as full of thrills as any of the others, and Helen Holzer is given ample opportunity to prove her nerve and valor. "A Desperate Deed" is a fit chapter, and most assuredly the series will prove a winner from a box office standpoint.

"Mutual Tours, No. 32." (Gaumont. One reel. Tues. June 12.)—Versailles, the royal residence of France is the opening feature of this reel, and the graceful rapid fire production of thousand of pairs daily is compared to the slow and tedious methods of the long ago. Bass fishing in Florida; stimulating garden growths by electric currents are other interesting subjects treated and an instructive reel is brought to a close by a very amusing animated cartoon entitled "The Balance of Power."

"Reel Life, No. 59." (Gaumont. One reel. Thurs., June 21.)—The manufacture of modern footwear is the opening feature of this reel, and the present rapid fire production of thousands of pairs daily is compared to the slow and tedious methods of the long ago. Bass fishing in Florida; stimulating garden growths by electric currents are other interesting subjects treated and an instructive reel is brought to a close by a very amusing animated cartoon entitled "The Balance of Power."

"Universal Program"

"The War Bridal Room." (Nestor. Week of June 23.)—The boys, celebrating on the eve of their wedding, are arrested and sentenced to the rock pile. They send home word that they were drafted into the army. Returning in pursuance of the plot to enact, there yet remains the opportunity to refer to Miss Ward in other terms than compliment.

"Max Plays Detective." (Two reels. Week of June 15.)—Another Max Linder comedy made in France. The first time the Mutoscope has given a plot of Max's operations against a gang of coast spies and, indeed, there is a deal more dramatic suspense than humor in the two reels. However, there are a number of laughs and the scenario is excellent.

"Ready-Made Ad-Talks Features"

"Fannie Ward in Her Strange Wedding" Enacts George M. Cohan's Popular Story (Lasky-Paramount, Five-Reel Production) It cannot be said of Fannie Ward that she is more fascinating in one picture than another. She is always good. That much we may rely upon. The only thing that could detract from a picture in which Miss Ward appears is the fact that the story itself is impossible. Since Mr. Lasky has seen this reel, it is rather slow as a comedy, although it contains some beautiful photographic effects. The other one is the best comedy that Linder has ever put over. The trip to his walk, the business and the windup in the doctor's office are all good for hearty laughs.

"The Double Topped Trunk." (Lemp. Week of June 23.)—Highly interesting melodrama by George Brosson-Howard of the lesser service and smugglers. Much suspense and original ways of doing old things. Allen Holubar directed, appearing also at the head of the cast which includes Frank Whitson, George Pearce and Gretchen Lederer.

"Her City Beau." (Victor. Week of June 23.)—Rather trite in story which centers around a cause that is entirely too simple to believed for a second the hero's father asks her to desert her sweetheart and court the attentions of an old beau. The heroine returns to her faithful lover after the other has shown his true colors. Edith Roberts, M. K. Wilson and Earl Page are the principals.

"Swede Hearts." (Victor. Two reels. Week of June 25.)—Amusing comedy drama, in which the action shifts from Sweden to America, the romance between Ole and Frieda, so rudely interrupted by their fathers and subsequently by a group of gangsters is interesting, and the wealth of business in the hotel reaches its mark well. Reel Hart, Janet Eastman and a good supporting cast appear.

"The Greater Law." (Signal. One reel. June 16.)—A Signal-Universal production. The featured role and IS supported by George Berrell Vester among his latent beauty he departs for the city eventually to win the heart of the girl in the tragedy which she caused. In the meantime Xerison has recovered from his injuries, and after having had a fight with the lilter, the latter is forced to resign from the railroad company's service.

"A Desperate Deed." (Signal-Mutual. Chap. 11 of The Railroad Raiders.” Series. Two reels. Mon., June 16.)—Jerry is always in trouble, and increases his troubles as his discretion for law and order. George Ovey as Jerry invariably makes good. The policy is given him ample opportunity to display himself as an acrobatic comedian, and the scenes are surely some funny stunts in which an inspector and a sergeant of police come off loser, the former scorchec almost to a cinder and the latter frozen solid. Wherever Jerry's antics are known, there will surely be an ovation accorded "Jerry's Getaway."

"The Gold Bullet." (Gold Seal. Three reels. Week of June 20.)—Western Western written by T. Shelley Sutton and directed by Fred Kelsey. It is an average melodrama concerning the manner in which a bandit attempted to inerminate an innocent man for his own crimes, and how, after an amount of fighting, the cause of virtue triumphs. Harry Carey appears in the featured role and is supported by George Berrell, Vester Persk, Bill Gettner, Pritli Ridgeway and Ed. Gibson.

"His Fatal Beauty." (Joker. Week of June 25.)—Week Western written by J. H. English. The hero is a son of a wealthy father who wants him to marry the old lady's beautiful and innocent one. His holds the mortgage on his hotel and so along with his fate beauty he departs for the city, eventually to win the hand of the banker's daughter. William Farnum, Ze So Pickett, Frank Whiston and Lillian Peacock get a lot of laughs from this picture which was written by Jack Cunningham.

"The Double Topped Trunk." (Lemp. Week of June 23.)—A highly interesting melodrama by George Brosson-Howard of the lesser service and smugglers. Much suspense and original ways of doing old things. Allen Holubar directed, appearing also at the head of the cast which includes Frank Whitson, George Pearce and Gretchen Lederer.

"Her City Beau." (Victor. Week of June 23.)—Rather trite in story which centers around a cause that is entirely too simple to believed for a second the hero's father asks her to desert her sweetheart and court the attentions of an old beau. The heroine returns to her faithful lover after the other has shown his true colors. Edith Roberts, M. K. Wilson and Earl Page are the principals.

Reel Hart, Janet Eastman and a good supporting cast appear.

"Path Exchange"

"Max, the Heart Breaker." (Two reels.)—Another heretofore unseen Max Linder comedy made in France. The first time the Mutoscope has given a plot of Max's operations against a gang of coast spies and, indeed, there is a deal more dramatic suspense than humor in the two reels. However, there are a number of laughs and the scenario is excellent.

"Max Plays Detective." (Two reels. Week of June 16.)—Another Max Linder comedy made abroad, and containing more plot than his previous Pathe pictures. The story is well chosen as a sight of the fact, "That Max Plays Detective" is a comedy. The story concerns itself with Max's operations against a gang of coast spies and, indeed, there is a deal more dramatic suspense than humor in the two reels. However, there are a number of laughs and the scenario is excellent.

"A Rough House," the Third of the Series of Paramount-

Latest Butterfly Offering, "Man and Beast," Affords Thrilling Scenes and Romance (Universal, Fine-Rec Production)
To the Transvaal Republic there came two set Carl von Haagen and one Townsend. A bitter hatred springs between the two. The daughter of von Haagen, Gretel, does not share her father's bitterness toward the Townsend family and finds herself very much in love with Ned, the son of Townsend. The forbidden courtship is pierced with many strange happenings, which form the nucleus of this story told in pictures.
The plot is laid in romantic Africa. The secrets of this little known land are brought before the camera and flashed on the screen with all the reality of the land itself. An elephant, orang-outrang, lion and leopard are included in the cast, and these native animals of Africa afford thills such as have never been seen on the screen of any theatre. You will wonder at the intelligence of Charlie, the elephant; the ferocity of the dam, the lion, and the almost human characteristics of the orang-outang. Through it all runs a love tale which is told amidst the roamings of the lion and the superhuman strength displayed by the elephant, which acts before the camera with the intelligence of an experienced actor.
During the course of events which lead to a thrilling climax, the elephant saves the life of a child in arms, and brings about a recognization between the houses of von Haagen and Townsend. Harry Clifton and Eileen Sedgwick are in the featured roles.
Universal's Butterfly offering telling the story of Africa and its wilds, "Man and Beast," will be shown at the theatre on of the week.

A Burning Houseboat, with Thrilling Resues, Shown in Late Chapter, Neglected Wife" (Pathé Second Two Reels)
With the final scene in the Fifth Chapter of "The Neglected Wife" series, the houseboat burning, with Margaret, Mrs. Kennedy and Norwood, together on board. Doyle, Kennedy's enemy, had set fire to the houseboat. In that, the sixth and late chapter of "The Neglected Wife" series, Margaret, who has grown to love Kennedy, but who insists that Kennedy shall not be estranged from his wife, saves Mrs. Kennedy from the burning. Mary and Kennedy are taken to a hotel, where Mary recovers, but Kenedy is struck by a falling timber and is ren-ered unconscious. Mary and Kennedy are then taken to their home, and after the scene in Mr. Kennedy's room, Margaret and Kennedy are led to the theatre. "The Voice on the Wire" brings this gripping mystery story to a most fasci-inating climax. It is safe to assume that not one out of a thousand of those of you who have followed this mystery serial can guess the identity of the demurely dressed man of the "Voice." This is all explained in this last chapter. The last episode is titled "The Loving Death," and after seeing it you will agree that a more fitting title could not have been selected.
The fourteenth episode was shown at the theatre last week, left Shirley and Polly about to enter the room to which they had been invited by the "Voice," in order that it might explain why such strange proceedings had taken place. You will, perhaps, guess that the death of "Red" Warren had an important bearing upon this mystery. It had, "Red" Warren, who had given so much trouble to Shirley, Polly and the authorities was closely connected with the "Voice." and the murdered hand is himself, did not realize this. The mystery had its inception a number of years back, when the "Secret Seven" was organized for a purpose.
This purpose was important to the organization,
so that for years the members sacrificed everything, even their lives, before the mystery was solved. In this the last chapter the mystery is solved, and a more thrilling and unexpected climax could not be imagined than the one which brings to an end the most gripping mystery story that has ever been seen on the screen of the theatre. The last chapter of "The Voice on the Wire" will be shown on the screen of the theatre on of the week. Remember it is the last chapter, and all the mystery contained in the previous chapters is brought together in this most thrilling climax in this chapter.

THE MOTIOGRAPH

It Answers "Yes" to Every Question

It is of vital importance that you ask such questions as the following when buying a projector.

IS THE BEST MATERIAL USED?
The Lamphouse is made of high grade planished steel—Castrings from best grade grey-iron—Bushing of the best journal bronze—Star and Cam of high grade crucible steel.

IS IT SAFE?
Ask any user or operator of the MOTIOGRAPH; he will soon answer your question in regard to safety.

WHAT ABOUT SIMPLICITY?
Easy to thread—Simple oiling system. Framing device easily removed. All parts interchangeable. Adjustments where necessary.

DOES IT GIVE SATISFACTION?
The Bronx Amusement Co., Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Altho our theatre opens at eight o'clock in the morning and runs continuously till eleven o'clock at night, being reputed to be the hardest grind in the city, yet we have not had a particle of trouble of any nature with your machines and they have never failed to produce perfect results in a most satisfactory manner.

IS IT ECONOMICAL?
With our Year’s Guarantee on the machine and the best material used in every part of the projector, your upkeep is reduced to the minimum—and think of it, first cost only $265.00 for hand-drive and $305.00 for motor-drive.

Write for Literature

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO., 568 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.
Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
This letter is written to confirm my decision given you when you 'phoned me a few days ago, in reference to the contract you submitted, covering your appointment as our exclusive sales agents for the United States, for Simplex Projectors.

When considering your offer we realized that it would be much easier for us to tie up with you and thus to insure the sale of a specified number of Simplex Projectors each year, without sales effort on our part.

But that is not all there is to the proposition. Your Combine includes only a handful of Distributors, who would acquire the sole right to sell the Simplex, cutting off a considerable number of Distributors and Dealers who have been loyal to us these many years.

Those men not only deserve better treatment than that, but they have a right to expect honorable treatment from honorable men; and we cannot accord them any other.

Of course we appreciate the fact that, since you wanted to handle but one Projector, and the best obtainable, your first choice was the Simplex, and we regret, for your sake, that we felt it our duty to decide adversely.

Very truly yours,

E. D. Fisher
Vice-President.

To our Friends:

We respectfully submit to you the above letter. It shows that we are not going to be swallowed up.

It means that Simplex Projectors, their parts and accessories, will be available in the future as in the past; and that they'll be in the hands of loyal friends.

We, as makers of the Simplex, give you our assurance that we will continue to put heart and soul into the work of building the highest-grade Projector known to the art.
In the past our only real, tangible possession was our vote and the power which it exerted on the community, on the country and ultimately on the world. Local 306 has taken advantage of something still more tangible—a part of the very vitals of our land—a mortgage on its very existence. Can anything be more real than this? Can anything be more important to every inhabitant of our free land than this? Is there anything which can insure our future happiness and the safety of our families more than this? It is time right now for all of us to put our shoulders to the wheel, for us to stop complaining and to do our part in this critical struggle for existence.

The time is coming and it is not so far off when our government is going to make greater demands for support. This support must be given by those whose freedom is at stake—that means you and me and all those about us. When we speak of the government we speak of ourselves, for the one without the other could not be. At that time when it comes those in our industry who have not taken a part of the Liberty mortgage will have the opportunity again and it is their duty to themselves to take advantage of it, at that time.

In the meantime we have another duty and that is to line up solidly behind the government.

Those of us who are called to the colors will do our duty to the fullest extent of our ability, while those who stay at home can do almost as great work, by throwing the full force of our influence for good into this fight for Liberty. The man in the projection room can show his patriotic films, show the slides which he may make himself or which he may buy to the very best of his ability. This will have its influence on the people whom he is entertaining. It will work into the scheme of preparedness, in which we must all help.

It is also the duty of every I. A. T. S. E. Local at their meetings to pass resolutions pledging themselves to do their bit, and making this pledge one of the requirements for continued membership: men who are "up against" a problem which affects all of us. It must be taken seriously in every quarter of our great land. It must be given more sober thought than many of us are giving it. This problem is the same no matter what our worldly wealth may be, for a man is a man and the country and the government are the same to all and owned by all.

It is the universal spirit of patriotism which we need in North, South, East and West—that banding together of every element of society so that all are brothers working shoulder to shoulder. This is going to be brought about to a large degree through the agency of our operators, who must themselves be imbued with the enthusiastic spirit of patriotism and with the determination to make all men see and realize it.

Therefore while we are looking for our opportunity to do our bit let us do all in our power to help in the uplift and in the enlightenment of all those around us. Let us see to it that the I. A. T. S. E. is the most patriotic organization in this beautiful land of ours, and when the time comes for further contributions to the support of our government let us step up as individuals in our own organizations and emulate Local 306.
WAT was in the opinion of the writer a very signal lesson in patriotism, and one which should make each and every member of the Moving Picture Machine Operators' Union of Greater New York, Local 306, I. A. T. S. E., feel proud, as, I am sure it made millions George C. Edwards, president, and Al I. Mackler, secretary-treasurer, and should also have been emulated by other operators' organizations, was the decision reached at the meeting of the Executive Board of the above-named local, held at headquarters on Tuesday, June 12, to buy Liberty Bonds.

Our country's call, founded upon humanity, justice and democracy, is also the call of organized labor, and while organized labor is, ever has been, and ever will be opposed to war, with all of its horrors and the attendant sorrow inflicted upon the families of the brave boys who give their all in answering the country's summons, Local 306 believed that as it had been decided that war was necessary if humanity, justice and democracy were not to be overthrown and liberty become an established fact beyond peril- venture that they should in some small way lend the government all the support of which they were capable.

This should meet with the hearty support of every member of the local, for this money so invested will in no doubt in time bring large returns and it will serve to prove beyond a question of doubt that there is no lack of patriotism where the membership of Local 306 is concerned. Our hats off to you boys. Let us all join in the chorus, "Long May It Wave O'er the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave."

A Lesson in Patriotism

Wants Books

J. M., Mass., writes: Will you please inform me through the columns of the News where I can purchase good books on motors, such as are used to drive moving picture machines?

Answer: I will. Can think of no better investment than for you to purchase a set of Hawkins' Electrical Guides, published by Theo. Audel & Co., 72 Fifth avenue, New York, New York, for the relatives in your chosen profession, wherein you will find much help to you in your chosen profession. Another treatise that I could recommend would be "Electrical Wiring," published by Cleveland Armature Works, Cleveland, Ohio, the cost of which is $2.

Need Stirring Up

A brother in Iowa, whose name and town are for obvious reasons suppressed, writes: You may put my name on the Roll of Honor of the Anti-Misframe League, as I am strongly in favor of same and have followed that pledge for a very long time.

I wish to say that I am a strong union man, but am sorry to say that the operators do not and will not join or take any interest in the local here, and it has got so low in membership that I expect to have to give it up any time, and, believe me, it is not my fault, for I have done everything I could to induce them to join, but what was the use? They would not be union men anyway if they were taken in free of charge. Keep up the good work you are doing.

Comment: We intend to. And we believe that much good work is needed in your city, for the operators undoubtedly need a good stirring up. It is indeed discouraging when we try to accomplish something for the good of the organization to find that his efforts are not crowned with success, but, as you say, you are a strong union man—and a good union man is never a quitter; would suggest that you keep right after them and perhaps success will attend your efforts. It is a fact that some of the strongest union men have formerly been bitterly opposed to organized labor, cutting off their noses to spite their faces, as it were, for just as long as a man remains outside of the organization, when there is an organization in the craft which he is following for a livelihood, just so long is he cutting his own throat and giving the employer the opportunity to keep wages down as low as possible. And just as long does the operator by this act show that he is in favor of serfdom. I would personally feel very sorry were your local disbanded, but whether it comes to this or not it need not cause you any concern, for you would not lose your union card. The International Alliance has a provision which takes care of just such cases as yours, and once a union man always a union man, you know. I have placed your name on the Roll of Honor, and hope you will continue to follow the pledge and in this way help me keep up the good work I am endeavoring to accomplish.

We Don't Suppose

GLEN N. WOODBURY, Pomeroy, Iowa, sends in a collection of bad patches and writes: I suppose when you open this letter you will think some one is making you a gift of an exchange, but don't get scared. They are just a few of the patches that I have cut out. They are all films. In "A Modern Thelma" I cut out at least ten misframes in the subtitles, where they do not have a frame line, and it is hard to get an even one is making you a gift of an exchange, but don't get scared. They are just a few of the patches that I have cut out. They are all films. In "A Modern Thelma" I cut out at least ten misframes in the subtitles, where they do not have a frame line, and it is hard to get an even

In Reply: While an exchange would be a most acceptable gift, still I did not suppose you were making me a present of one. The portions of film which you enclose are sure some specimens. For misframes in titles or portions of the film where fade-ins occur, would suggest that you read the letter of Brother Estes, Orangeburg, S. C., who explains the manner in which he performs this operation. It is not always the operator who "smells" cement on a frame and calls it a patch; this is practiced greatly in the assembling rooms, and it is either by reason of the fact that an inferior grade of cement is used or that the film does not overlap sufficiently to make a patch. The punch hole evil is something that we have hopes of totally eradicating in the very near future. A number of film manufacturers are co-operating with us and others have promised to. If you wish to write to the party whose address you seek, you may do so by sending your letter in my care.

He's With Us

FRANK A. DAVIS, Osiskaloosa, Iowa, writes: Have been reading much about the Anti-Misframe League, and want to say as an operator that I am with you, and will take the pledge for better projection any time. I guess I am the first one in this town to write you. (No, Brother Shirk beat you to it.—Ed.) I hope there will be more with me to join the League. I am a reader of the News, and always read the Projection Department, which stands for better working conditions, and helps to make everything move right in the operating room. Please enroll me as a member, whether it costs or not.

Comment: The more the merrier. And now that you and Brother Shirk have enrolled as members of the League there is no doubt but that you two can obtain many more members for the League. Your name has been placed on the Roll of Honor, and you will receive membership card and button as soon as they are delivered to us by the manufacturers. Don't let this first letter to the department be your last, as we are always pleased to hear from your friends out "in the sticks."
"Anti-Misframe League" Pledge

As a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart, and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practiced in the operating room, I promise, that I will, to the best of my ability, return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remove all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

In an editorial by E. K. Gillett, which appeared on page 3481 of the June 2 issue of Motion Picture News, speaking of the purpose of the Anti-Misframe League, Mr. Gillett said: "There are no strings of any kind attached to a membership except that every member must be willing to stand by the membership pledge." There is, however, one "string" and that is that each member and to the department the following information which is for the purpose of enabling us to keep a record of our members:

Name of Theatre where employed, Address of Theatre and name of Manager, Names of operators will be added as fast as they are received, and copies of letters will be sent to the various film exchanges asking their support.

Notice—Anti-Misframe League Members

The following members of Local 307, Moving Picture Operators of Philadelphia, Pa., have signed the pledge of the League and become members:

Returns Not All in Yet

Victor B. Cone, Chillicothe, Ohio, writes: More returns from Ohio. Like the other brother from Ohio, I also am ready to take the pledge in your Anti-Misframe League. There should be more enrolling from this state if the film which we received today is a fair sample. Artcraft's "A Poor Little Rich Girl" came to us in very bad condition, considering the class of picture. I took out six misframes, which is caused undoubtedly by the failure on the part of some operators to count perforations when making patches. They seem to think it a case of "let George do it." This is not the first experience of this kind; rather is a frequent occurrence. I am giving you this in hopes that some of these "let George do it" operators will see this and yet be. I wish you much success in this undertaking and remain yours for better projection and better care of film.

In Reply: Victor (y) shall be ours, we hope, when all returns are in and we welcome you into the ranks of the Anti-Misframe League members, as you will note by perusing the Roll of Honor in this week's issue. It is hoped that all the operators of the state, where floods are so prevalent, as well as those in the Scioto Valley, will flood us to a point of inundation with applications for membership. It is a lamentable occurrence, and one much to be regretted, when such films as the one you mention, featuring the idol of the screen, the highest salaried star in the film firmament, should be received in other than first-class condition. Hardly think the trouble is due entirely to the "let George do it" operators, as you call them, but am rather inclined to blame it upon the auditions, or reel boys, who in many cases rewind films without giving due thought to their care, and when a break occurs they patch it together haphazardly, and the operator either has not had the time to correct their error and make the patch perfectly. If this is due to any carelessness on the part of the operator then it is up to him to mend his ways, and if they do see this article they are welcome to come in. Many thanks for your kind wishes.

Power's Distribution Complete

The United Theatre Equipment Corporation announce that they have obtained full distribution rights for the Nicholas Power Projector for the territory covered by the branch offices which are at the present time located in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Kansas City, Des Moines, Omaha. They also announce that each one of these branches will act as a service station for the Power's equipment.

Editor's Note: To Brother Pastre belongs the honor of heading the roll, for it was he who proposed the "League." Names of operators will be added as fast as they are received, and copies of letters will be sent to the various film exchanges asking their support.

Operator Soldier

F. W. Bailey, Albany, Ill., writes: I have been a subscriber to the News for over two years and am always pleased when I receive my current issue, as I always obtain much information from its contents. Have been an exhibitor and operator for three years, and have always run films through the rewind before running them through the machine, patching up misframes, etc., and, although not in business at the present time—on account of having enlisted in the Iowa National Guard—I intend to follow the profession sooner or later, as possible, and wish to enrol my name in the Honor Column of the Anti-Misframe League, and also with you and the league the best of success.

In Reply: I am pleased that you are pleased, and hope you will always receive benefit from the columns of the News. It is a good idea for operators to run films through the rewind before projection, that is why I advocate the sending of reels from one operator to another not rewound, for this makes it certain that the operator shall rewind the film and in this way it will receive at least some inspection which it would not receive otherwise. In some of the larger cities operators are handicapped to a certain extent by not receiving the film from the exchange in sufficient time to give it the once-over. It is a pleasure to place your name on the Roll of Honor, as you are, I think, the first railroad operator to be so enrolled, and from the number of reports that have been received lately from operators who have enlisted in the various branches of service there can be no doubt as to the patriotism of the moving picture machine operator, and if they do as good work behind the machine guns as they have behind the projectors an early victory for this country should be assured.

Mormon "Made"

LYMAN THOMPSON, Vernal, Utah, writes a most interesting letter, which follows: Dear brother, if I may call you that, although I am not a member of any local at present, but hope to be when occasion arises. I have been a reader of the Projection Department for some time, and find from time to time things that interest and help me put it over better. One of these is the Anti-Misframe League just started, and I believe it will work wonders for everyone concerned, especially the "man behind the machine." Operating in this remote country is not pleasant, because we are about two hundred and twenty-five miles from the exchanges and parts for repairs are not to be obtained in less than a week, so we have to give our machines the best of care in order to obtain good projection. The average exchange seems to think that as we are out in "the wilds" the film does not have to be in as good condition for us as it is for "city operators." Sometimes films are received by us not re-wound, and with as many as forty bad splices in one reel, and have being taking most of them out, but it seems an endless job. And I was nearly discouraged until I read the announcement that you were to organize an Anti-Misframe League. This has given me courage to write you a few lines asking that my name be put on the Roll of Honor. I believe it would have made a difference if you had had cards printed, as per the enclosed form, even as you had to sell them to the operators. I know I would gladly buy a hundred to start with, and the exchange would then see that we (the operators) are trying to build up their business instead of tearing it down. The up-to-date exchanges would see this, and assist us in obtaining film in the best possible condition. Punch marks, too, are becoming very numerous.

In Reply: We are all brothers in the craft at least, and you sure would have to travel some distance to become a member of an operators' local. I should imagine it is not a very pleasant task operating a picture machine with all the anticipation of something happening at any moment when one is located such a long distance from a supply house. I Vernal is under the shadow of Mt. Lena, one of the Uintah Range of mountains in the northeastern part of Utah, near the boundary line between Utah and Colorado. —Ed.

machines always in the best of condition, and while it might appear to you as though some exchange managers felt that being in the "wilds," the condition of film was of no great importance, I will say for the benefit of a number of exchange managers that it is their desire that the films shown in Vernal be as free from defect as that shown in New York, Chicago and other large cities. You should not really object to receiving film that is not rewound, for when film is not rewound it relieves you of at least one-half the labor of inspecting it; in this way it only being necessary to go over the reel but once. I can't blame you for becoming discouraged, but I am glad that the birth of the Anti-Misframe League has given you new encouragement. The suggestion concerning the printed form cards, while a good one, is something that we have tried to obviate, as we did not desire the operators to be under any expense whatsoever. This has all been covered by the "pledge," and if members live up to it the exchanges will see that the operators, instead of tearing down, are trying to build up the business. I have seen punch marks that were indeed outrageous, and was almost tempted to advise the operator to amputate and keep amputated that portion of the film wherein these punch holes were most noticeable, but hesitated to give this advice for the reason that the operator next receiving the film, finding it free from punch holes, might get busy and work his punch overtime, and if his marks were removed by the operator who followed him on the circuit, it would be no time at all before a reel of a thousand feet would have dwindled into nothingness. You said something when you say there never has and never will be room for a punch among your tools.

Evidence Unnecessary

Maurice E. Gant, Brandon, Man., says: "I have been a reader of the Projection Department for some time and am interested in the Anti-Misframe League. I am in favor of its object (when film is on circuit), but am inclined to think that unscrupulous exchange men might try to slip one over on the operator if he thought he was going to get his films put in shape for nothing. I have before me several envelopes of bad patches, misframes, ripped sprocket holes, etc., which I have kept as evidence in case it was necessary. (The brother gives names of pictures of five reels and over, each of which have contained on an average two or three bad spots. The most flagrant was a seven-reel picture in which there were one hundred and two such places.--Ed.). I deemed it my duty to send this film out in decent shape as it was all on circuit, but I cannot see why an operator should put film in condition (other than is necessary for his own use or to repair any damage of his own making) when receiving it direct from the exchange. In one place I notice where you say the exchange ought to pay for this work. That is all right, but how many will? I think you are doing the right thing in going after this evil, but I do not see why each operator who joins the league should not at least pay for his badge to show his good faith."

In reply: It will be an easy matter to detect any "unsavory" exchange man who might try to slip one over on the operator by having him condition film which of right should be done in the exchange. Letters are being sent to each exchange manager asking for his co-operation and doing away with this evil. And if film is continually received by operators in such condition as to make it unfit for smooth projection, we will know that this individual exchange manager is one of those who are trying to put one over, and we can govern ourselves accordingly. The evidence which you say you have collected is unnecessary for in the list of pictures submitted by you are several which have been as you say, notorious on account of badly made factory patches. There is absolutely nothing in the exchange can offer for sending out film that is not in perfect condition. They all have inspectors, and if they have not sufficient of these then it is up to them to employ more. They charge enough for film service, and should give service, which can be done by employing someone to help to inspect every reel of film and see that it is in first-class condition before the exchange. Your suggestion for the Anti-Misframe League button was a good one, but the design had already been decided upon before yours was received. As far as the suggestion that each operator should at least pay for his badge to show his good faith is concerned, would say it would be realized not all operators are overburdened with "legal tender," and we are only too glad to aid in some way interest and aid them in their efforts to improve their work and better their condition.

Benson-Hopley Co. to Place New and Improved Screen on Market

CHARLES G. BENSON, of the firm of Benson-Hopley Company, Inc., of Sacramento, spent several days of the past week in Los Angeles demonstrating the new screen of this company to heads of the photographic departments of several of the Los Angeles Studios, and also a number of Los Angeles exhibitors. The Benson-Hopley Company has been working for almost two years in perfecting machinery for the manufacture of their patented product, a screen which is said to hold all light, and yet prevent glares. The screen, it was shown, by demonstration, will also show the much finer tone photography than the ordinary one of a plain white or metallic surface. The manufacturers claim it will prevent distortion of the images, and make possible the use of all seats within twelve feet of the screen, and at the same time make possible the use of the side seats in extremely wide theatres.

Portrait Programs in Demand

S. PELEZMAN, formerly connected with Universal, has joined the staff of The Water Color Company in an advisory capacity. Mr. Pelezman is particularly interested in the distribution of the portrait programs, which are reproduced in exquisite rotogravure and meeting with popular favor among movie fans. All favorite stars are included in the list. The Water Color Company, 450 Fourth avenue, New York, who are manufacturers, are in a position to supply these at a very low price, consequently these programs are becoming very popular. Mr. Pelezman reports that he is planning to have these programs used by an exhibitor in every town in the country.

Laboratory Equipment of Big Capacity Installed by Craftsmen

THE Craftsmen Film Laboratories, Inc., 249-53 West Nineteenth street, New York City, have just completed their installation of up-to-date laboratory equipment for turning out high-grade developing and printing of film. The plant is capable of turning out 600,000 feet of finished film each week, working on an eight-hour shift. This work is all done in a laboratory space of 8,500 square feet.

The laboratory is painted with white enamel and all employees are dressed in white uniforms and wear white gloves. After leaving the offices, which are elaborately equipped, we enter the cutting and projection room for directors. This is a private room, where a director may edit and cut his film and screen it himself in total privacy. These laboratories are also making a specialty of artistic title work, and in this room a Bell & Howell camera has been equipped with special attachments made by the Duplex Machine Company. These attachments alone cost over $600. Cooper-Hewitt lights are used in the photographing.

The next room we find is the printing room. In this room there are twelve Duplex printers, made by the Duplex Machine Company; also three Bell & Howell perforators mounted on steel pedestals. This room itself is very large and covers an area of 25 x 30 feet. The developing and washing room contains tanks of special construction—the washing tanks are of glazed tile; the developing tanks are made of blue steel slate. An elaborate system of filtering has also been installed for cleansing the water. The drying room is capable of drying 10,000 feet of film every half-hour. The equipment contained in this laboratory is capable of turning out excellent work.

T. J. Hirrliman, who is president of this organization, was for a long time connected with and was organizer of the Eclipse Film Laboratories. Mr. Hirrliman just recently sold out his interest in the Eclipse and is now associated with L. Abrams, who is vice-president; H. Lazarus, who is treasurer, and J. L. Sam, secretary of the Craftsmen Film Laboratories. In speaking of the laboratories Mr. Hirrliman said: “As in the past, my whole ambition in this business will be to turn out only quality work. All work that we handle we shall guarantee. It will be the privilege of our customers to inspect their film here on our premises, and any work that is not entirely satisfactory will be adjusted to the satisfaction of the customer.”

While it is not the purpose of the present article to supply a formulae for the preparation of dye-baths to be used in the color-sensitizing of negative cine film, we have, however, to draw attention to some points connected with the preparation and use of such dye-baths; for the nature of the sensitizing solution, and the manner in which bathing is accomplished, can exert considerable influence upon the properties of the sensitized film stock. We are assuming, throughout the course of this article, that negative film stock must be strongly sensitive to red and green light, and also to blue-green. It will depend, of course, upon the exact spectrum transmissions of the taking-filters used by various workers, whether the film should be equally sensitive to the red and the green spectral regions.

Of the various details of the bathing operation the following are of such importance as to require observation:
1. The concentration of the dye-bath.
2. The time of bathing.
3. The temperature of the bath.
4. The time of washing.

It might at first glance appear that the higher the concentration of the dye-bath, the stronger would be its sensitizing action; but, upon further consideration, it is not difficult to appreciate that above certain limits any further increase in the dye content of a color-sensitizing solution must decrease, instead of increase, the integral speed of a film so processed. The reason for this is readily apparent; any excess dye retained by the gelatino-emulsion will act as a light-filter, the screening action of which will materially decrease the effective speed of the film. It is therefore important to know the most suitable concentration at which photographic color-sensitizing dyes should be used.

Sheppard and Mees found* that the maximum color-sensitiveness, conferred by a Pinacyanol bath, was secured when the concentration did not exceed 1:50,000. The color-sensitiveness produced with the bath at this strength was, however, more than double that secured with a 1:100,000 solution.

For the same dye R. James Wallace secured the best results with solutions ranging in concentration from 1:68,000 to 1:70,000.

The experiments cited were, in both instances, made upon plates, but we have tested the applicability of these data to standard cine negative film, and find that for the purposes of color cinematography a 1:50,000 solution is, perhaps, the most satisfactory. It is particularly fortunate that the careful research workers, whose results are here referred to, have given the concentration data on Pinacyanol, for this dye is almost an absolute requisite in the preparation of negative film stock for the color processes.

The length of time for which films are immersed in a color-sensitizing bath does not appear to affect the ultimate speed to such an extent as does the use of highly concentrated dye solutions; the only requisite in this connection is that bathing be continued for a sufficient interval to secure the maximum color sensitiveness which the dye-bath can yield. Sheppard and Mees (loc. cit.) found that the time of immersion should be at least three minutes, although ten minutes in the bath did not appreciably decrease the sensitiveness. A bathing-time of three or four minutes will be found most practicable when processing cine films, for with longer immersions fog may be induced (with some types of dye-bath) in the case of such rapid emulsions.

With regard to the washing of plates or films after bathing in a color-sensitizing bath, there is great diversity of opinion. Some workers prefer to dry the film without any washing and accordingly use an alcoholic dye-bath, while others prefer to wash the dyed films for a time in water. There are points in favor of the straight alcoholic bath, when it is considered that the films, after bathing, should be dried as rapidly as possible. On the other hand, it has been amply demonstrated that emulsions sensitized with Isocyanines are considerably improved, as regards color sensitiveness by a thorough wash in running water.

Sheppard and Mees found a gain in chromatic sensitiveness for various periods of subsequent washing up to 10 minutes, in the case of a Pinacyanol bathed plate, while further prolongation of the washing time produced no added sensitiveness.

R. J. Wallace does not follow the dying operation by washing in water, but prefers to raise the plate in alcohol for about 30 seconds and then dry. This, of course, facilitates rapid drying, but we have not been so successful with this procedure when processing cine film; for at times a slight fogging will result.

With cinematograph film the ten-minute wash in water is dependable, while washing in water from six to ten minutes with a final immersion in alcohol of about one minute might be an improved manipulation.

Wallace has also observed the temperature at which the dye-bath solution must be color-sensitized, and states it (for a 1:20,000 bath) to be between about 68 degrees (Fahrenheit). This is a customary temperature for baths used in cinematographic laboratories, but 65 degrees F. will be safer for negative cine film of standard make, since fogging must be guarded against.

Whatever method of subsequent washing is employed, the drying of the dyed film must be accomplished in a short space of time, if the finished film is to be free from fog and streaks. In the case of films washed in alcohol, and dried in a current of warm air, the drying may be complete in 15 minutes provided atmospheric conditions are favorable.

The drying arrangements for bathed cine films require careful consideration, and exact regulation, since the film shrinks to an appreciable extent in drying, and this inevitable shrinkage must be controlled to the utmost extent possible as regards its uniformity. The extent to which a bathed film shrinks will vary, according to the composition of the dye-bath used (whether aqueous, alcoholic, or ammoniacal); in the case of a mixture which have used extensively the shrinkage of standard cine negative, so processed, is regularly and uniformly 1/32 of an inch. To prevent kinks and bends in the color-sensitized and dried film we have always advocated the use of drums, instead of frames, in the bathing operation, although a machine which feeds film through a perforation would, of course, prove feasible for accomplishing this end.

Returning again to the consideration of the shrinkage which inevitably results from bathing and drying a strip of cinematograph film, it will be immediately apparent that the negative must, in all instances, be dyed before it is perforated. If the film is to be used very shortly after sensitizing it can be perforated as soon as sufficiently dry, but it is a question whether films should not be left for a day or two before perforating, so as to allow for the total effect of the shrinkage.

The exact extent, or coefficient, of the shrinkage should also be gauged with as much precision as possible, for it is obvious that film which departs from the standard width, even to the extent of 1/32 of an inch as in the case of our variety, previously perforated, will not be perforated with the utmost precision by a perforator of precise design (such, for instance, as the Bell and Howell) which is adjusted for film stock of normal (standard) width. The necessity for determining the shrinkage coefficient for dyed negative film, and of using a suitably adjusted perforating machine, has, therefore, to be taken into account by all who sensitize their own film stock for use in color cinematography.

While plates and films bathed in solutions of the Isocyanines, or mixtures of this series of dyes, are suitable for practically all requirements of color photography, it is seldom that a bathed cinematographic negative film possesses more than just sufficient sensitiveness to yield vigorous images, when it is used behind color-filters in a cinematograph camera. A highly sensitive panchromatic negative stock is greatly to be desired, and the only method by which color-sensitive film, showing greater speed and color-sensitiveness than the usual variety, can be prepared is by the method known as:

HYPERSONSIZING

There has not been much data published upon hypersensitizing, as applied to ordinary photographic films or plates, and most of the suggestions which have appeared do not command the attention of the intelligent investigator. It has been proposed, for instance, to hypersensitize plates (or films) by bathing twice (with a drying interval between) in the sensitizing bath, and, furthermore, one textbook smoothly states that “when ortho-plates are bathed in Pinacyanol, the plate is hypersensitized, and the exposure necessary reduced to one-fourth its original amount,” but all such suggestions notwithstanding the only known method of apparently increasing the integral speed of a dyed emulsion is by the addition of an ammoniacal solution of nitrate of silver to the dye-bath, or by treating the emulsion with the silver solution before or after the dyeing operation.

The following remarks on “the effect of silver nitrate” are due to E. J. Wall:

- “The assumption that the dye must be a substantive dye (see last week’s installment, Ed.) does not preclude the use of adjective dyes with substances which may act as mordants, and this may be an explanation of why a dye plus silver nitrate in many cases acts better than the dye alone, for the silver nitrate may act as the mordant, just in the same way as tannin or the salts of copper, tin, and aluminum in ordinary dyeing.
- “It must not be forgotten, moreover, that ammonia-nitrate of silver, not only can increase the total sensitiveness of an emulsion to white light, but, as proved by Eder (“Photo. Korr.”—1885), actually increase the sensitiveness to the less refrangible end of the spectrum—that is, it confers, or conduces to, color-sensitiveness.
- “It should not be overlooked that in the use of silver nitrate there may be direct combination between the dye-base and the silver, as occurs in nearly every case with the pthaline dyes (the Eosins and Erythrosins, Ed.). Some of these silver dye compounds are insoluble in water, others only insoluble in excess of silver nitrate (Acworth—“Photo Quarterly,” Vol. II, page 187 et seq.), but most are soluble in ammonia. One may, therefore, by bathing a plate in a solution of dye plus ammonia plus silver nitrate, introduce a salt which in itself is sensitive to light, and which may form the nucleus or germ for the latent image on the silver haloid or the visible image in metallic silver, and as the light absorbed must act, it is obvious why we should get color-sensitiveness.”

From the foregoing remarks it would appear that the addition of an ammoniacal solution of silver-nitrate to the sensitizing dye-bath is an actual method of securing increased or hypersensitivity in a photographic emulsion, but it should also be here stated that film hypersensitized in this manner will not keep for any length of time and should, advisedly, be used immediately after being prepared. In the light of present knowledge, however, it appears that the treatment of negative film stock with ammoniacal silver-nitrate, either before or after dyeing, or in conjunction with the dye-bath, is the only effective method of preparing color-sensitive stock which may be correctly said to be “hypersensitive.”

It has been previously stated that hypersensitized negative film displays very poor keeping qualities, and it must furthermore be set forth that cine film sensitized in dye-baths of customary preparation (without silver nitrate) also lose their color-sensitiveness within a short time after preparation, in most instances. Dyed films show a marked retrogression in chromatic quality within a month after being bathed, while if any fogging has resulted from the bathing operation, this will be found to increase with time. Out of deference to these inevitable effects, it appears that cine film should not be color-sensitized and stored up very far in advance of working requirements.

Our lengthy article would have been almost without purpose, were it impossible to procure, at the present time, any color-sensitizing dyes of the Isocyanine series, but fortunately, due to British genius and perseverance, there are now obtainable several varieties of sensitizing dyes which are in every way comparable to the best which ever came out of Germany.

We refer to the Isocyanines offered by Ilford, Ltd., of London, England, which have been termed "Sensitol Red" and "Sensitol Green," and are chemically identical with Finacyanol and Finacordial, respectively. (See "Color Photography" supplement to "B. J.", issue of February 2nd, 1917 for working formule.) The production of these dyes is the result of extensive experiment on the part of Professor W. J. Pope, F.R.S., of the chemical laboratory of Cambridge University, and this product should be warmly welcomed by workers upon the color processes. According to the latest issue of the "British Journal," we note that chemically pure Erythrosin is also now supplied by Messrs. Ilford, and in addition, some other dyes suitable for the preparation of light-filters.

While we have omitted to mention, in the course of our article, some of the more recent Isocyanines from the Hoechst Farbwerke—such as Dezamin A, Pinacchrome-blue, Pinacchrome-violet and Finacyanol-green—these dyes have not been found to show marked advantages over the Isocyanines previously known, and we refer the readers who desire further particulars to Dr. Eder’s article, which is mentioned in the appended list of books and papers upon "Color Sensitizing."

—BIBLIOGRAPHY—

This is an English translation, by Major-Gen. J. Waterhouse, of Von Hubl's article in "Eder's Jahrbuch" of 1905. Since Hubl’s observations have been referred to in the course of our article, some readers may wish to refer to the original paper—which we can commend as interesting and valuable.

These paragraphs contain some data, by E. König, on color-sensitizers and color-sensitizing, but, inasmuch as they have already been quoted by other writers upon this subject, it was not considered requisite to include them with our foregoing translation. In common with all of E. König's writings, however, they are most instructive, and translations of some of these paragraphs may appear at a future time in the Camera Department.

"The Estimation of the Colour-Sensitiveness of Plates." This book, which was reviewed in the "Photographic Bibliography," is of great value throughout, and the chapter here referred to is on a par with the rest of its contents. Mees and Sheppard's results, along with some other work, presently to be mentioned, must be referred to by all who have to deal with color-sensitizing on a commercial scale. This chapter, in substantially the form here presented, first appeared in the "Photographic Journal" of March, 1906—pages 110-130, and may be there consulted by those who have not access to a copy of Sheppard and Mees' complete work.

—has wonderful latitude in both positive and negative emulsions. It is remarkable for the brilliance of its pictures. The negative stock insures a higher percentage of snappy, brilliant negatives because of its great S.P.E.E.D. and true rendering of the color values. The positive stock gives a perfect scale of tone values of unusual softness. Rexo M. P. Film is a standardized product which will produce the RESULTS.

Quinn’s Rialto Newest Los Angeles House

A new and decidedly attractive theatre, the Rialto, with a seating capacity of 800, was opened in Los Angeles during the past week by J. A. Quinn, former manager of the Garrick and Superba theatres there.

Artistic simplicity characterizes the foyer and interior decorations. There is nothing garish about the place, but there is a dim touch of the imposing. This simplicity extends even to the lighting effects. The screened incandescence of the illuminating fixtures is very pleasing and is so arranged that it can be utilized in heightening incidental effects demanded in the picture. The avenues are broad and the space between the tiers of seats permits of easy passage.

The lobby is compact and intimates the plain refinement that prevails throughout the place. A huge electric sign, representative of flickering candles and the emblazoned words, Guinn’s Rialto,” scintillates from the top of the structure.

The interior of the theatre has been neatly decorated, the Schackne Studios, of Dayton, Ohio, having done the work. The seating capacity of the house is approximately 1,000; there being 512 seats on the main floor and 482 on the balcony. All the chairs were furnished by the American Seating Company, of Chicago, and have leather upholstered seats and backs. The direct and semi-indirect lighting system is used in the interior. The theatre is heated by steam.

The projection room, which is in charge of Louis C. Eskridge, contains two of the latest model Simplex projectors. The length of throw is 58 feet onto a Gold Fibre screen.

The music for the picture is furnished by a three-piece orchestra consisting of piano, violin, drums and traps. An overture consisting of classic music of some famous composer, such as Liszt, Wagner, Strauss or Verdi, is rendered at each performance.

Operating a Theatre from the Manager’s Desk

The accompanying photograph is one of the most interesting which the News has had the pleasure of publishing in some time. It shows Mr. Harold Edel seated at his desk in the manager’s office of the Strand theatre, New York City, surrounded by equipment which is of the utmost importance to him in conducting this large theatre.

On the top of the desk we see a box similar to those used by detectives in certain branches of their work. It is connected with the orchestra pit, with the projection room and with the ticket selling window. With the aid of this instrument Mr. Edel is enabled to follow the orchestra continuously. He is also able to hear the comments of his operators in the projection room and keep in accurate touch with exactly how everything is going on in that most important part of the house. He is also able to connect up so that he may hear the various comments of his patrons as they buy their tickets or as they go out of the theatre. This makes the instrument of the utmost value to him as can be readily seen.

At his left on the wall may be seen an indicator which gives the exact speed at which the projection machines are running at any particular second. With this and with the instrument above described he is able to keep in touch with both the operators and the orchestra and knows within a fraction of a moment how long each show is going to last, aside from his ability with them to check up the synchronization of the picture and the music.

To the left of this dial there is the inter-communicating telephone which is connected with the operating room, the ticket selling booth, the stage, the orchestra pit and other important points in the house. With this Mr. Edel is able to get in touch with the various employees of the house without delay and can give his orders without the need of leaving his office.

In this article Wall quotes and comments upon a great many theories and processes of color-sensitizing, and the action of sensitizers. Ample references are given to the original articles, which are largely of German authorship.

5. Studies in Sensitometry II.
   "Orthochromatism by Bathing."
   By R. James Wallace
   December, 1907—Pages 299-325.

This article, which is one of a series of three important and valuable Sensitometric Studies, is devoted to a highly scientific and accurate investigation of the color-sensitizing properties of the Isocyanines. The data given by Wallace well repays study by the practical worker along these lines.

   By S. E. Sheppard, D.Sc.
   This paper sets forth the results of a painstaking and extensive examination into the chemical constitutency and behavior of the Isocyanines and includes much important spectroscopic data. It is undoubtedly the most exhaustive and valuable article on these dyes which has appeared to date, and, although deeply scientific, should be digested by all thorough students of the color processes.

   This is an English translation of an article by Dr. E. König, and while the article is primarily devoted to the description of Finachrome violet; at the same time some interesting facts concerning other sensitizers are given. These two pages well repay the reading.

8. "Über Farbenempfindliche Platten Zur Spektrumphotographie."
   By Dr. J. M. Eder.
   In this article the sensitizing action of the more recently introduced Isocyanine sensitizers is discussed, and illustrated by Spectrograms and curves. A digest of this article in English appears in the "Color Photo." supplement of the "B. J.", February 2nd, 1917, page 8, and may be consulted by those who wish to acquaint themselves with the characteristics of these newer dyes.

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

ILLINOIS

Work has been started by C. J. Larkin upon the remodeling of the J. T. Shields grocery store, 2330 Fifth avenue, Rock Island, for its new use as a motion picture house, the first one in that section of the city. The grocery store has been closed for the past month and the remodeling was being completed for the new business. Mr. Shields's retirement from the grocery business marked the closing of one of the oldest grocery stores in the city. The store is being enlarged to extend to the alley, and the new section will be 16 feet wider than the old part. This will give a seating capacity of about 520. The new house will start as soon as the building is ready. This is expected to be about three weeks unless more bad weather intervenes and causes delay.

Frank Meenan and Ray McCullough, of Rock Island, have announced that out of 300 suggested names they have selected "Loyal" as the name of their new motion picture house, 1228 Thirteenth street. Miss Katherine Lemon, 1316 Twenty-sixth street, submitted the successful name and received a $5 prize. The new theatre will be named Paramount in other respects. The opening bill included "The Covered Wagon," a comedy. Next day "Odyssey of the North" was shown, and Sunday Margarette Crane appeared in "Wild Flower."

Ray Lancaster has entered into a partnership with H. C. Daley, of Carlinville, in the motion picture field, and a contract has already been let for the erection of a theatre on the site of the oldm on West Main street, which it is expected to have ready for business in the near future. It is the plan of the promoters to roof the building and floor it and place comfortable seats therein, so that it will be a cozy, comfortable show house and that the usual good pictures will be shown in the future as it has been done in the past. The new building will have a seating capacity of nearly 500.

The new building which is being erected by John Gibbons at Hanna City, next to the opera house, is fast nearing completion and when finished will be under the management of E. A. Sorenson.

Fred and Charles Still, of Murrayville, have had under advisement a project looking to the opening of a motion picture theatre in the Osborne Building.

INDIANA

A new motion picture theatre was opened at 131 South Illinois street, Indianapolis, a week ago under the name of the Lenwood. The policy of this new theatre is the catering to women and children particularly, while, of course, the male contingent will not be entirely slighted. A large exhaust fan has been installed, so patrons can rest assured the house will be at all times properly ventilated. The house is decorated with beautiful vases and a soft green lighting system, giving the interior a scenic effect. The Rialto Trio will entertain during the afternoon and evening with the late popular songs. A fine change of program will be given daily.

Portland's new theatre, The Princess, opened its doors to the public with a matinee at 11:30 O'clock Saturday afternoon, June 1. The attraction was "Broadway Jones," billed for the opening performance. The Portland Amusement Company, a corporation composed entirely of local men, owns The Princess, and it is under the management of Chas. Wilson. No expense nor pains have been spared in making it an ideal amusement place and it is one of the most beautiful theatres in eastern Indiana. Two of the very latest projecting machines have been installed and the best possible showing of films is assured. Only the highest grade of pictures will be shown at the Princess, and vaudeville will occasionally be presented.

The New Strand theatre, situated at the corner of South Main and Central avenues, Newcastle, was opened to the public for the first time Saturday of last week with a program of motion pictures and vaudeville. Newcastle's newest playhouse is under the management of the Newcastle Motion Picture Company, of which John G. Ostot is president, Ralph Swearigen is vice-president and treasurer, and John V. Hey is secretary. Mr. Swearigen is the active manager of the theatre. The New Strand is situated in the old old Christian church. The theatre is the most up-to-date of playhouses and is built very much on the same plan as the Circle theatre in Indianapolis. It has a seating capacity of 500 people and is entirely fireproof. It consists of lower floor and balcony, and the interior is beautifully finished in cream calcimine. The auditorium has 35 feet of fire exit and has a floor of cement. The theatre has an 18x20 foot stage, with plenty of room for a good vaudeville act. The theatre will be supplied with pictures each program, for this evening's program.

Play the headliner that draws crowds all summer

Keep the stream of nickels, dimes and quarters coming continuously. Fan your movie fans into forgetfulness of summer's heat. Give them the remembrance of your house as a cool retreat.

Put in G-E Fans and you'll have an all-season feature to equal the biggest release you can put on.

Your local electric company has them on hand—in wall, ceiling, pillar, oscillating, stationary and ventilating types—will put them in quick, if you ask now before the supply is sold.

Remember, cool comfort collects crowds.

And for out-door-houses G-E fans are a big card—their lively breezes toss "skeets" and other insects into the great beyond.
